Dorcas Society Sale

The Dorcas Society will hold their annual auction sale on Friday evening Oct. 21, at the Nazareth Lutheran church. The young girls and their leaders, Mrs. S. Lorentson and Mrs. A. T. Hagen, have worked diligently lately to get things ready for the sale and let us show our appreciation for the time, work, and patience these ladies give to our girls. Let's all go to the sale.

Many Attend Mens Club

A very large crowd of men attended the Men's Club at the church parlors on Tuesday evening. William Borchert, District Game Warden, Thief River Falls was the speaker of the evening and he gave a very fine talk on conservation.

Mr. Borchert brought out the point that it is never too late to start to conserve what we have for use by future generations. After the speech he held round table discussion and a lot of problems concerning conservation, species of game and hunting laws were discussed.

Governor Benson Makes Tour

Governor Elmer A. Benson is making a three day speaking tour of the 9th district this week. Last night he spoke to a large gathering at Thief River Falls.

Elmer A. Benson

This morning he had breakfast with a group at Roseau before starting out on a tour of Roseau, Kittson and Marshall counties. A large delegation of Marshall county people went to Stephen to meet him and follow his tour into Warren where he will be entertained at a luncheon at 1:15.

Several auto loads of people from here joined the tour at Stephen and attended the doings at Warren where the Governor spoke at the luncheon.

The Marshall County Temperance Movement will hold their annual meeting at the Bethlehem Lutheran Church at Newfolden, Minnesota, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 October 16, 1938. A program consisting of numbers from different groups in the county will be given. The speaker will be Herbert H. Parish, executive director of the Minnesota Temperance Movement, and he will be well worth hearing. There will be election of officers and reports read. Let us rally around this worthy cause and be present at this meeting.

Rev. H. Alfred Peterson, Pres.
A. O. Gudim, Secretary.

County Committee Reorganized

On Friday, October 7, delegates from the 39 agricultural conservation committees in Marshall County met at the court house at Warren and reorganized the Marshall County Agricultural Conservation Association for the year of 1939.

On roll call, all delegates responded. The Articles of Association were read and discussed and procedure of balloting were explained.

Mr. Tom Howard of Warren was reelected chairman of the county association. Mr. Anton Anderson, Fork township farmer, was elected vice-chairman, while J. Henry Clausen of Moylan was elected as the 3rd member. Mr. Chas. N. Kranz of Lincoln township and Mr. Otto Thompson of Newfolden were elected 1st and 2nd alternates, respectively.

Following the election, the newly elected committee met and appointed R. A. Reierson, Secretary and Dorothy A. Johnson, Treasurer.

Mr. Howard, as chairman of the county committee, named Anton Anderson as committee man in charge of crop loans and the sugar program while he appointed Mr. Clausen in charge of the crop insurance and educational program.

The educational committee is the result of a demand from committeemen and farmers. Its function will be to conduct meetings and arrange educational material for committeemen and other groups and also carry on discussion meetings with committeemen.

Mr. A. O. Aspelin returned home this week from a four month trip to his native country Sweden. Mr. Aspelin left the first part of June to spend the summer with relatives. He reported having a fine time in the old country. The News joins his many friends here in wishing him a warm welcome back here.

A crowd that filled the church parlors to capacity attended the Luther League at the Nazareth Lutheran church Sunday evening Hjalmer Johnson was the main speaker. Mrs. A. Skjerping, Mrs O. Halvorson and Mrs C. Davis were hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Saastad and son of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Ludvig Sagstuen and family were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Peterson on Sunday.

Mrs. Louis Wegge spent Monday at Thief River Falls visiting her daughter Lucy Wegge.

Johnson-Karvonen Wedding

The Bethlehem Lutheran Church of Newfolden was the scene of a candle-light wedding service on Friday evening October 7, when Miss Eunice Johnson daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson of Newfolden, became the bride of George Karvonen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Karvonen of Plummer, Minnesota. Rev. G. P. Ronholm, officiated at the service, which took place at 8:00, before a setting of autumn leaves and lighted tapers.

Miss Grace Lyseng played a program of nuptial music and accompanied Mr. Lloyd Streeter, who sang two numbers, "Because" and "Oh Promise Me", before the ceremony.

The bride chose a gown of white satin fashioned with a long coat and a train of lace. Her finger-tip veil was of white net with a halo of seed pearls, and caught with orange blossoms. She wore the bridegroom's gift, a gold brooch, and carried a shower boquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Johnson was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Mavis Sorenson, who attended the bride, wore a gown of peach taffeta and carried a a boquet of tea roses and baby chrysanthemums. Two little flower girls, Misses Shirley and Marion Sorenson, preceeded the bride up the aisle. They wore long gowns of taffeta in blue and yellow and carried baskets of sweet peas.

Mr. Harley Karvonen, brother of the groom, acted as best man. Messrs Wallace and Jay Johnson were ushers.

The wedding took place in the presence of the immediate families of the bride and groom. Mrs. G. P. Ronholm was also a guest. A reception and wedding dinner were given at the home of the bride's parent's following the ceremony.

Mrs. Walter Wegge visited at the Mrs. L. Wegge home Sunday

Many Forest Fires Raging

The northern part of the state has been visited by many bad brush and timber fires the past week. Several families on the Canadian side at International Falls have perished in the timber fires there. On Monday fires for a while threatened many farms in the area near Grygla and only thru the efforts of both village people and farmers were several places saved. Heavy peat fires are going near the Moose River north of Grygla.

Mr. P. B. Malberg, pioneer farmer of Excel township and who is an ardent orchard man, this year had a very fine crop of apples and plums in his orchard. Mr. Malberg has spent years in growing several different varieties of good plums, crab apples and other apples. He had a most wonderful display of fruit at Warren on Hamburger Day.

A basket Social will be held at Sunnyside School Saturday evening Oct. 22. A good time for all.
Everybody Welcome.
Christine Peterson, teacher.

4-H Clubs Made Showing

Marshall County 4-H club boys and girls completed their showing of their projects on Saturday, Oct 8 at the fair grounds at Warren. Sixty-seven exhibits were made including potatoes, corn, garden, baby beef, fat barrow and fat poultry. The quality of the exhibits was good. Outstanding were the fat lamb show and the potato exhibits. Competition for trips on fat lambs was the keenest. Trip winners to the Junior Livestock Show are as follows: Clifford Hirst, Warren. Baby Beef - La Vern Peterson, Viking; Orval Wittman, Warren; Forrest Swanson, Stephen.

These people will show their stock at the Junior Livestock Show in South St. Paul during the period October 31 to November 3. Sweepstakes in the potato exhibit went to Paul Morkassel of Warren on his exhibit of Early Ohios. The winning garden exhibit was made by Eugene Crummy of Argyle.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Prosser and daughter moved to Middle River last week.

Maine Governor Wins Potato-Picking Duel

Republican Gov. Lewis O. Barrows of Maine, left, and Democratic Gov. Bazilla W. Clark of Idaho are shown as they competed for the gubernatorial potato-picking championship of the western hemisphere in "Bot" Smith's hilltop field at Fort Fairfield, Maine. The chief executive of the Pine Tree state, with height and reach on his side, picked 201 pounds of potatoes in five minutes, compared with 197 pounds by the Westerner. A crowd of 4,000 persons stood in the rain to watch the unprecedented contest.

STRIKEOUT KING

Nineteen-year-old Bob Feller, only two years out of high school, struck out 18 batters to shatter the old major league record held jointly by himself and Dizzy Dean. Oddly enough, his sensational feat did not result in victory for the Cleveland Indians, who were defeated by Detroit, 4 to 1.

★ Themes From News

★ G-Man in Nursery

★ Sabu Transformed

By Virginia Vale

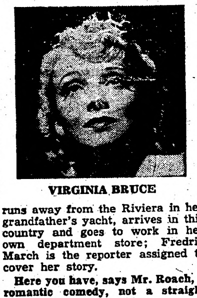
IF YOU'RE interested in writing—or learning to write—for the movies, take a tip from Hal Roach, who certainly ought to know what he is talking about.

He recently conducted a survey, as a result of which he announces that 72 per cent of the themes of current films have been taken directly from newspaper clippings. Here is his report: General news (including aviation, maritime disasters, divorce court proceedings, depression stories and natural catastrophes) 46 per cent; crime news, 9 per cent; letters to editor, 4 per cent; love-lorn columns, 3 per cent; editorial columns, 2 per cent; sports, 2 per cent; comic strips, 1 per cent.

Mr. Roach, at present, is filming a story called "There Goes My Heart," which concerns an heiress, (played by Virginia Bruce) who runs away from the Riviera in her grandfather's yacht, arrives in this country and goes to work in her own department store; Fredric March is the reporter assigned to cover her story.



VIRGINIA BRUCE

Here you have, says Mr. Roach, a romantic comedy, not a straight drama, and it combines general news, society news and lovelorn column material. Better study it with that in mind, if you're interested in seeing how film stories are put together.

*

Remember Corinne Griffith, you old-timers? Not that your memories need go so very far back; it's not so long since she was a popular star. Corinne is one of the few really happy retired stars. Her husband, George Marshall, owns one of the big professional football teams, and he and she travel with the team during the season.

And she has those two little girls whom she adopted a few years ago, taking them from an orphan asylum, and taking two when she'd meant to adopt just one because they were sisters. Needless to say, she's bringing them up beautifully—or thought she was, until she discovered that their favorite game is "G-man"; that, when left to themselves, they make the nursery ring with "You won't talk, then—you rat! Take that—and that!"

*

Another young devotee of gangster life is Sabu; remember him in "The Elephant Boy"? This young Indian arrived in New York from London for the opening of his latest picture, "Drums," the new Alexander Korda release. When Robert Flaherty discovered him in India, while searching for a youngster to play the title role in "Elephant Boy," he was just one more young Indian, an orphan, poor; you should see him now!

He loves American slang, which he picked up from the Hollywood technicians in the English movie studio where he worked. And he is wild about the movies, especially American gangster pictures. His enthusiasm also includes war films and any method of traveling fast, particularly planes. And three years ago he was riding elephants and liking it!

Seth Parker, with "Ma" and their Jonesport neighbors, is back on the air on Sunday evenings; people all over the country feel as if old friends had returned to them. Phillips Lord, who is "Seth," plans to revive many of his first successes—the old-fashioned singing school among them. And, of course, there are the Sunday night gatherings in which the Parkers and the neighbors sing hymns.

*

Fathers all over the country are turning the radio on late in the afternoons so that their sons can listen to "Dick Tracy"—and not admitting that they did it because they wanted to listen themselves. For "Dick" has returned to the air, more energetic than ever in his battle against criminal activities.

*

Slim Waist the Thing to Wear for Glamour

HERE are two charming new designs that give you the tiny, Victorian waistline — almost an hour-glass effect—that's so fashionable right now. Both accentuate it, too, with perked-up sleeves and full skirts. Both give you a most feminine and appealing look! And it's so easy to make these carefully simplified designs.

Hearthside Coat.

You can relax so thoroughly in this charming design. It will give you the inward peace that comes of knowing you look particularly pretty. The fitted-in waistline, the sweep of the full skirt, are too flattering for words! Make it of taffeta, flannel, challis, moire or velveteen—choosing colors that do nice things to your eyes and hair. This pattern is perforated for short length, too.

Daytime Dirndl.

Of course you want a fall-into winter version of the flattering dirndl—and here's the way to make it. With a tailored collar, big buttons down the bodice, Victorian sleeves and (a highlight of charm!) the shirred waistline that looks so delightful on young and supple figures. For this, choose challis, silk print, taffeta or cashmere—preferable in some of the new, rich, warm, lively colorings.

1498 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40, 42 and 44. For long coat, size 16 requires 4¾ yards of 39 inch material. For short, 4¼ yards. 1¾ yards grosgrain ribbon to trim.

1617 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material. ⅜ yard for contrasting collar, if desired. 1¾ yard braid to trim. 1¼ yard ribbon for sash belt.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Significance of Fruits and Vegetables; Tells the Truth About Canned Foods

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

A GENERATION ago, except in mid-summer, fruits were a luxury that only appeared, with nuts, at the end of a festive meal, and vegetables, except for the root crops, had no regular place in the daily diet. But when scientists established the importance of mineral salts in human nutrition, these two groups of foods assumed a position of commanding importance, because next to milk and eggs, they are the chief conveyors of minerals from the soil to man.

With the discovery of vitamins they achieved new distinction, because in their content of these vital substances, they rank with milk and eggs as "protective" foods.

Foods That Safeguard Health

In addition to providing nutrients that are indispensable for buoyant health and normal growth, they possess another important virtue: the indigestible cellulose or bulk yielded by the fibrous framework of the leaves, stems and fruits of plants, has a natural laxative value which helps to insure normal elimination. And finally, they are extremely useful in helping to maintain the acid-base balance of the body, for all vegetables and most fruits yield an alkaline-ash following digestion.

Green Vegetables for Iron

Fruits and vegetables supply varying amounts of practically every mineral element the body requires.

They do not compare with milk as a source of calcium, but substantial amounts of this bone-and-tooth-building substance are to be found in leaf and stem vegetables, carrots, oranges, figs and strawberries. Moreover, investigations have demonstrated that calcium from vegetables is well utilized by adults.

Green vegetables, in general, are outstanding as a source of iron. And it has been further established that their iron is better absorbed and becomes more completely available for nutrition than iron from some other sources.

Some fruits are also valued for their iron content, the more notable including oranges; tomatoes, which are botanically a fruit, though they are classed as a vegetable; strawberries, blackberries, raspberries and huckleberries; and dried figs, dates and prunes.

Vegetables for Vitamin A

We usually think of milk and other dairy products as our most important sources of vitamin A. But recently, it has been determined that the thin green leaves of vegetables are also outstanding in this respect. Weight for weight, when fresh, escarole is more than five times as rich as butter. Young green peas and green string beans are also a good source of this vitamin as are tomatoes, carrots, and sweet potatoes.

Sources of Vitamin C

Vitamin C, which is essential for maintaining the health of teeth and gums and for preventing the degeneration of muscle fibers generally, is obtained almost entirely from fruits and vegetables. The principal sources of this vitamin are the citrus fruits; raw and canned tomatoes and canned tomato juice; strawberries; raw carrots, onions and yellow turnips.

As this vitamin is easily destroyed by heat in the presence of oxygen, the amount present in any fruit or vegetable is greatly reduced by the average home cooking methods. On the other hand, this and other vitamins, as well as minerals, are usually well retained in commercially canned fruits and vegetables.

What About Canned Foods?

I frequently receive letters from readers who question the merits of canned foods. They ask whether it is true that canned foods are devoid of vitamins; whether canned foods are wholesome for children; whether or not canned foods may spoil on the grocer's shelves; and if it is dangerous to eat foods that have stood in the can for a few minutes after being opened.

To discount the value of modern canned foods is to display a lack of knowledge as to how these foods are harvested, prepared and packed. And the failure to use them may result in depriving your family of essential minerals and vitamins.

There are available in cans today, 46 varieties of vegetables, 33 kinds of fruit, and 10 different juices, besides soups, numerous specialties and several kinds of fish. Every one of these presents a healthful and nutritious food in a form that is often superior to the same foods cooked at home. That is partly because of the methods employed and partly because canned foods are processed at the peak of their flavor and freshness.

A Superlative Canned Food

An outstanding example is canned salmon which has been called by one of America's leading food experts, "the cheapest and most nutritious animal food that can be had for children over six."

Very little fresh salmon finds its way into our markets and even then it may be far from "fresh" after a considerable journey packed in ice. On the other hand, salmon canneries have been established in close proximity to the waters from which salmon are taken, so that only a few hours elapse between the time the fish are removed from the water and the moment their rich nourishment is sealed in cans.

Similarly the fruits and vegetables designed for canning are allowed to mature on tree or vine. This means that they develop maximum flavor and vitamin content. Then they are picked, rushed to nearby canneries and hermetically sealed in cans. The sealed cans are then cooked at high heat so as to destroy any bacteria which might be present. Because they are protected from the air during the cooking process, and because the cooking liquors are sealed in the cans, they retain a maximum amount of minerals and vitamins. It is because canned foods are so definitely superior in this respect that physicians encouraged the canning of strained fruits and vegetables for infants and young children.

Fallacies Disproved

Canned foods will keep indefinitely without spoilage, as long as nothing occurs to make the can leak. It is not necessary to remove canned food from the container as soon as the tin is opened, though many homemakers often do so because the food presents a more attractive appearance in a dish or bowl. A hissing sound when opening does not mean that the contents of a can are spoiled, but rather that there was a vacuum in the can, which the air is rushing in to fill.

Thus canned fruits and vegetables are not only "as good as" fresh ones, but are often superior in food values. Every homemaker should see to it that she uses both liberally in the diet of every member of her family, as a means of providing liberal amounts of minerals and vitamins.

Questions Answered

Mrs. A. B. M.—There is not the slightest reason why a normal person should not drink coffee after middle age unless the beverage has been expressly forbidden by a doctor. On the contrary, many people find both coffee and tea extremely comforting in their later years.

Doilies for Your Enjoyment

Pattern 5998.

Indulge your love of luxury with these lovely doilies. Whether it's your buffet or your luncheon table that you want to dress up, this pattern will do it effectively. The three sizes (15 by 28, 12½ and 5¼ inches in string) are most practical and lend themselves to many uses. Use a finer cotton for smaller doilies. Pattern 5998 contains instructions for making the doilies; an illustration of them and of stitches; photograph of doily; materials needed.

To obtain this pattern, send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th Street, New York, N. Y.

Please write your name, address and pattern number plainly.

Bryan's Brevity Likely Influenced the Opinion

William Jennings Bryan, silver-tongued orator, used to enjoy telling of a comment which he once overheard about himself during a Chautauqua season. A local speaker preceding Mr. Bryan had talked for one hour and a half. So when Mr. Bryan finally got the floor, he simply raised his hands and pronounced the benediction. Later two old fellows were discussing the program.

"That was a great speech Mr. Blank made, even if it was too long," remarked one.

"Yep," agreed the other. Then, after a pause, he added: "That last feller that followed him was pretty good, too."—Boston Globe.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Uniform Sized Fruit.—If fruit is preserved either whole or cut into pieces, each one should be uniform in size, so they cook in the same length of time and look better in the jars or cans.

• • •

Faulty Heels.—Wear a comfortable shoe in the house. Rundown heels, or heels that are too high, cause fatigue and harm the feet.

• • •

Children's Garments. — Children's clothing that is too heavy or improperly balanced may cause rounded or sloping shoulders, say child guidance experts.

• • •

See to Your Lighting.—The type of lighting used can change the entire effect of a room at night.

• • •

Sift the Flour.—Flour is one of the easiest ingredients in baking to mismeasure. For best results always sift flour and measure by spoonfuls into a cup, being careful not to shake the filled cup.

Kitchen Trash Basket.—Don't buy a straw or wooden trash basket for kitchen uses. Buy one made of metal, so that it can be washed and kept sanitary. Meat papers, cartons and other containers of food are so apt to spill some of the remains of their contents into the basket, and unless the basket can be washed, roaches and mice are bound to be attracted.

It Must Be Admitted Waiter Was Not Tactful

The customer was raging and fuming as the manager came up.

"What is the matter, sir?" asked the manager.

"Discharge that waiter at once!" demanded the diner.

Regarding the boiled egg which had been served, the manager said:

"I'm very sorry about this egg, sir, but I can't discharge the waiter for that. After all, he wasn't to know that there was a chicken in it."

"Perhaps not," snapped the customer. "But when I told him there was, he needn't have taken away my spoon and brought me a knife and fork."

Norse Seamen

Hardy, indeed, are Norway's seamen. Though Norway ranks but forty-seventh in population among the major nations, her merchant marine is fourth largest in the world. Since the days of the Vikings, Norwegian seamen have specialized in long ocean trips. Even today they carry most of the cargoes from America's Gulf states to Europe.

In the days of sailing ships, too, Norwegian skippers began taking their families to sea because ocean voyages took many months. The sailors' superstition that women are bad luck to a ship never bothered them.

'Hill-Climbing' Boats

A unique steamship service operates between the East Prussian towns of Elbing and Deutsch-Eylau, a distance of 40 miles. Part of the trip is made on a canal and part on a railroad, whose specially designed trucks pick up the little vessels and quickly carry them over four long hills. These "hill-climbing boats" have rendered unnecessary the construction of 20 locks.—Collier's Weekly.

Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Minnesota

To be submitted at 1938 General Election

STATE OF MINNESOTA
LEGAL DEPARTMENT

WILLIAM S. ERVIN
Attorney General

St. Paul, Minnesota, June 8, 1938

Honorable Mike Holm,
Secretary of State,

Dear Sir:

In compliance with the provisions of Section 46 of Mason's Minnesota Statutes of 1927, I herewith furnish you a statement of the purpose and effect of all proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota which are to be submitted to the electors of said state at the general election in 1938 in accordance with certain acts adopted by the 1937 legislature.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 1

By the adoption of Chapter 492 of the Laws of 1937, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Article 8 of the State Constitution. The proposed amendment, if adopted, will not alter the form of any existing section of the Constitution but will add a new section to be known as Section 8 of said Article 8.

The proposed section reads as follows:

"Section 8. Any of the public lands of the state, including lands held in trust for any purpose, may, with the unanimous approval of a commission consisting of the governor, the attorney general and the state auditor, be exchanged for lands of the United States and/or privately owned lands in such manner as the legislature may provide, and the lands so acquired shall be subject to the trust, if any, to which the lands exchanged therefor were subject, and the state shall reserve all mineral and water power rights in lands so transferred by the state."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to confer upon a commission consisting of the governor, the attorney general, and the state auditor the power to exchange any of the public lands of the state, including lands held in trust for any purpose, for lands of the United States and lands privately owned, such exchanges to be made in such manner as the legislature may provide. In the case of certain trust fund lands exchanges cannot now be made because the State Constitution does not permit the legislature to authorize the sale of said lands except by public sale. This amendment will make it possible for the state to acquire compact areas of land for forestry and other conservation purposes by exchanging land outside of state forests and other conservation areas for lands of the United States within such areas and for privately owned lands within such areas.

The amendment requires that all mineral rights and water-power rights in lands so transferred by the state shall be reserved. The land so acquired will become subject to the same trust, if any, as the land disposed of. For example, if school land is given in exchange, the land received will become school land.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 2

By the adoption of Chapter 493 of the Laws of 1937 the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 36 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota.

This section now reads as follows:

"Any city or village in this state may frame a charter for its own government as a city consistent with and subject to the laws of this state, as follows: The legislature shall provide, under such restrictions as it deems proper, for a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall be and for the past five years shall have been qualified voters thereof, to be appointed by the district judges of the judicial district in which the city or village is situated, as the legislature may determine, for a term in no event to exceed six years, which board shall, within six months after its appointment, return to the chief magistrate of said city or village a draft of said charter, signed by the members of said board, or a majority thereof. Such charter shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such city or village at the next election thereafter, and if four-sevenths of the qualified voters voting at such election shall ratify the same it shall, at the end of thirty days thereafter, become the charter of such city or village as a city, and supersede any existing charter and amendments thereof: Provided, that in cities having patrol limits now established, such charter shall require a three-fourths majority vote of the qualified voters voting at such election to change the patrol limits now established. Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratification, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. One of said certificates shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and the other, after being recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which such city or village lies, shall be deposited among the archives of such city or village, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof. Such charter so deposited may be amended by proposal therefor made by a board of fifteen commissioners aforesaid, published for at least thirty days in three newspapers of general circulation in such city or village, and accepted by three-fifths of the qualified voters of such city or village voting at the next election and not otherwise; but such charter shall always be in harmony with and subject to the constitution and laws of the state of Minnesota. The legislature may prescribe the duties of the commission relative to submitting amendments of charter to the vote of the people, and shall provide that upon application of five per cent of the legal voters of any such city or village, by written petition, such commission shall submit to the vote of the people proposed amendments to such charter set forth in said petition. The board of freeholders above provided for shall be permanent, and all the vacancies by death, disability to perform duties, resignation or removal from the corporate limits, or expiration of term of office, shall be filled by appointment in the same manner as the original board was created, and said board shall always contain its full complement of members. It shall be a feature of all such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by general vote of the electors. In submitting any such charter or amendment thereto to the qualified voters of such city or village any alternate section or article may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to other articles or sections of the charter or any amendments thereto. The legislature may provide general laws relating to affairs of cities, the application of which may be limited to cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of fifty and not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of twenty and not less than ten thousand inhabitants, or to cities of ten thousand inhabitants or less, which shall apply equally to all such cities of either class, and which shall be paramount while in force to the provisions relating to the same matter included in the local charter herein provided for. But no local charter, provision or ordinance passed thereunder shall supersede any general law of the state defining or punishing crimes or misdemeanors."

If amended as proposed by the legislature, this section will read as follows:

"Section 36. Any city or village in this State may frame a charter for its own government as a city consistent with and subject to the laws of this State, as follows: The legislature shall provide, under such restrictions as it deems proper, for a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall be and for the past five years shall have been qualified voters thereof, to be appointed by the district judges of the judicial district in which the city or village is situated, as the legislature may determine, for a term in no event to exceed six years, which board shall, within six months after its appointment, return to the chief magistrate of said city or village a draft of said charter, signed by the members of said board, or a majority thereof. Such charter shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such city or village at the next election thereafter, and if four-sevenths of the qualified voters voting at such election shall ratify the same it shall, at the end of thirty days thereafter, become the charter of such city or village as a city, and supersede any existing charter and amendments thereof; provided, that in cities having patrol limits now established, such charter shall require a three-fourths majority vote of the qualified voters voting at such election to change the patrol limits now established.

Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratifications, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. One of said certificates shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and the other, after being recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which such city or village lies, shall be deposited among the archives of such city or village, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof. Such charter so deposited may be amended by proposal therefor made by a board of fifteen commissioners aforesaid, published for at least one day for four successive weeks in any daily newspaper of general circulation in such city or village, or if there be no daily newspaper of general circulation in such city or village then for four successive weeks in a weekly newspaper of general circulation in such city or village, and accepted by three-fifths of the qualified voters of such city or village voting at the next election, and not otherwise, but such charter shall always be in harmony with and subject to the Constitution and laws of the State of Minnesota. The legislature may prescribe the duties of the commission relative to submitting amendments of charter to the vote of the people and shall provide that upon application of five per cent of the legal voters of any such city or village, by written petition, such commission shall submit to the vote of the people proposed amendments to such charter set forth in said petition. The board of freeholders above provided for shall be permanent, and all the vacancies by death, disability to perform duties, resignation or removal from the corporate limits, or expiration of term of office, shall be filled by appointment in the same manner as the original board was created, and said board shall always contain its full complement of members.

It shall be a feature of all such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by general vote of the electors. In submitting any such charter or amendment thereto to the qualified voters of such city or village, any alternate section or article may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to other articles or sections of the charter or any amendments thereto. The legislature may provide general laws relating to affairs of cities, the application of which may be limited to cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of fifty and not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of twenty and not less than ten thousand inhabitants, or to cities of ten thousand inhabitants or less, which shall apply equally to all such cities of either class, and which shall be paramount while in force to the provisions relating to the same matter included in the local charter herein provided for. But no local charter, provision or ordinance passed thereunder shall supersede any general law of the State defining or punishing crimes or misdemeanors."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of the proposed amendment to Section 36 of Article 4 of the State Constitution is to change the requirements for the publication of proposed amendments to charters of cities having home rule charters.

The changes proposed are as follows:

Said Section 36 now provides that a proposal for the amendment of the charter of such a city shall be published for at least thirty days in three newspapers of general circulation in such city. If amended as proposed said Section 36 will provide that a proposal for the amendment of the charter of such a city shall be published for at least one day each week for four successive weeks in any daily newspaper of general circulation in such city or, if there be no daily newspaper of general circulation in such city, then for four successive weeks in a weekly newspaper of general circulation in such city. The proposed amendment, if adopted, will reduce from three to one the number of newspapers in which a proposal for the amendment of a home rule charter of a city must be published, change the period of publication from thirty days to four weeks, and require publication in a daily newspaper of general circulation in such city, if there be one, and otherwise in a weekly newspaper of general circulation in such city, instead of publication in newspapers of general circulation in such city without specifying whether they shall be daily or weekly. The proposed amendment, if adopted, will reduce the cost of such publication.

Yours very truly,
WILLIAM S. ERVIN,
Attorney General.

Held Court Of Honor

The local Boy Scout Troop No. 112, their scoutmaster, Hartley Peterson, and committeemen, H. O. Hanson and O. T. Ness, attended the Court of Honor given at the Auditorium at Thief River Falls on Wedneteay night.

Many boy scouts from various troops throughout the district were promoted in ranks of Scouting from second class on up thru to Star, Life and to Eagle Scouts. Many received merit badges.

The boys from troop 112 who were awarded merits for Life Scouts were: Roy Hagberg, Howard Lorentson, Milton Hanson, Harold Gavere, Reuben Ness and Russel Sanoden.

William Haug, son of Dr. and Mrs. Haug of Thief River Falls, was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout. This is a fine acheivement for a young lad to make and we extend congratulations to him and hold him as an example for the other boys in the district to follow in scouting.

Several business men in Thief River Falls took part in the impressive ceremony as also did many young men in that city who have no boys of their own but take an active interest in promoting scouting.

Peter S. DeJong, chief executive of Lake Agassiz Council, Grand Forks, also attended and gave a talk to the boys and parents present.

Saturday and Sunday the Lake Agassiz Council at Grand Forks will hold their meeting and H. O. Hanson, who is Vice-Chairman of the Theif River Falls district, and Scoutmaster Peterson and others plan to be there.

Rasmussen Makes Statement

Paul A. Rasmussen, budget commissioner and Farmer-Labor candidate for secretary of state, accuses Harold E. Stassen of having never denied he was "a representative of the mining interests, but rather has defended the meager taxes they now pay."

Paul A. Rasmussen

"I spoke from the same platform with Mr. Stassen at Warren, and challenged him to deny he was a representative of the mining interests," Rasmussen said. "He not only has failed to do so, but has come to the defense of the steel companies."

"Mining comprnies are interested in this year's elections because many leases are up for re-newal," Rasmussen said. "It is essential," he said, "that all leases be negotiated to the advantage of all Minnesota's citizens, rather than in accordance with the selfish exploiting interests of the mining companies."

Many Hear Benson Speak

Several people from here motored to Stephen last Friday to meet the Governor Benson tour thru this county and followed it thru to Warren where they attended a luncheon given for Governor Benson. Several of the other state candidates on the Farmer-Labor ticket accompanied the tour thru the Ninth district with the governor.

Governor Benson was given a large turnout at Thief River River Falls on Thursday night of last week when the auditorium there was filled to capacity with people to hear him speak.

The following ladies from here attended the W. M. F. meeting at Halma last Wednesday: Mrs. H. Moberg, Mrs. O. Backlund, Mrs. L. Wegge, Mrs. O. Nohre, Mrs. J. Nelson, Mrs. L. Sagstuen, Mrs. H. Nohre, Mrs. C. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. G. Anderson, Mrs. Lorentson, Mrs. G. Fricker Rev. and Mrs. Hanson, Eleanor Peterson, Gertrude Nohre, Betty Lou Lorentson, Jean Sorum and Avis Johnson.

Eastern Interests Help G.O.P

Eastern financial interests have joined with the steel trust and iron mining interests in a "spare no expense" campaign to defeat Farmer-Labor candidates, because there are millions of dollars in iron ore leases involved, Governor Benson charged during his tour on the Iron Range.

Elmer A. Benson

"For 50 years the mining companies have been paying 25 cents a ton royalty to the state," the Governor said. "Beginning this month the new royalty act the lower house forced through the senate will compel companies signing new leases or renewels to pay 50 cents a ton to the state".

A large number of companies find leases expiring during the next 12 months, the Governor said.

"The steel trust and iron mining interest know what they want. They want to put a Republican back in office," the Governor said. "They want their friends back in office when lease times comes around."

Had Letter From Raaum's

We have received a nice letter from Rev. and Mrs. O. I. Raaum of Vashon Wash. They are living at their place there and are good enough in health to take care of themselves with Rev. Raaum doing most of the housework.

Their son Ernest, who has had a pastorate in British Columbia has now accepted a call at Portland, Oregon and with his wife and one year old daughter will soon move there. We express our thanks to Rev. and Mrs. Raaum for their subscription renewel to the News here and wish them good luck.

Rains Checked Forest Fires

This part of the state enjoyed a small rain the first part of the week. This with cloudy and cool weather has helped a great deal to check the forest fires that were bad up north.

Rasmus Hage Visited Here

Mr. Rasmus Hage, prominent Warren attorney who is a candidate for County Attorney, was a visitor in Holt on Tuesday calling on many friends. Mr. Hage was born in Norman County, educated in public schools at Halstad, Minnesota, North Dakota Agricultural College and St. Paul College of Law. He came to Warren in 1903, associated as law partner with Julius J. Olson, our present Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Minnesota until 1927.

Mr. and Mrs. David Forsythe of Chicago visited at the G. Sanoden home Monday.

Dorcas Society Sale

The Dorcas Society will hold their annual auction sale on Friday evening Oct. 21, at the Nazareth Lutheran church. The young girls and their leaders, Mrs. S. Lorentson and Mrs. A. T. Hagen, have worked diligently lately to get things ready for the sale and let us show our appreciation for the time, work, and patience these ladies give to our girls. Let's all go to the sale.

4-H Clubs Get-Together

Marshall County 4-H members, their parents and friends will enjoy a social get-together on Thursday evening, October 27 at the Lutheran Parish Hall in Stephen. A banquet is being planned. The dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m. Following the dinner, there will be a program of music numbers, short plays and readings, and the promise is that there will be no speeches. Games for all will be provided to complete the evenings entertainment. This is the one time during the year when club members get together for an evening of fun and sociability.

All those interested in 4-H club work are cordially invited. Tickets may be secured from the 4-H club office.

Given Wedding Reception

Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Karvonen gathered at the High School auditorium here on Friday and gave them a wedding reception. A very fine program of several talks by local men, readings and vocal and instrumental selections was given after which lunch was served by the ladies of the community. The newlyweds were presented with many fine gifts.

Given Birthday Party

The following gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Olson on Sunday to help Mr. Olson celebrate his 83rd birthday: Mr. and Mrs. Racine Olson and family of Thief River Falls, Mrs. G. Moe of Middle River. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Olson and family and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Folden were present at the party.

Lutefisk Supper and Sale

Lutefisk Supper at Thief Lake church, 10 miles east of Middle River and one mile north on the CCC Camp road, Friday evening, Oct. 28. The men of the congregation are serving. Serving will begin at 5 p. m.

The Thief Lake Ladies Aid will have their auction sale at the same time.

We Hope They Got Home Before Moon Came Up!

A young farmer had bought a horse which was a wonderful jumper, and was riding him home. They came to a gate 10 feet high. The horse pricked up his ears, wagged his tail and gracefully jumped over.

A little farther on they came to a gate 14 feet high, and again the horse pricked up his ears, wagged his tail and sailed over with equal ease.

Farther on still they came to a railway bridge. Again the horse pricked up his ears, wagged his tail, but the squire shouted nervously, "Whoa, under this one, not over."

Star Dust

★ Consolation Prize
★ No Publicity Wedding ★ Rolling Home Next?

By Virginia Vale

IT LOOKS as if the skids had been put beneath another foreign star. Columbia has had Dolly Haas on the payroll for a year—at $1,250 a week, which maybe is a tidy little sum and nothing more to Columbia, but is a lot of money to a lot of us—and she was scheduled to play the lead in Lubitsch's "The Shop Around the Corner." She didn't make any other pictures; just waited for that one.

Janet Gaynor

So—Lubitsch recently moved into the Selznick-International studio, ready to begin work on the picture, his first as head of his new unit in association with Myron Selznick. But he wanted, not Dolly Haas, but Janet Gaynor, for the lead. A disappointment for the lovely Viennese, no doubt. Incidentally, the demure Janet goes right on increasing in feminine charm all the time.

Ronald Colman's marriage to Benita Hume rather startled a lot of people, who felt sure that he'd never marry again. It wasn't exactly the sort of ceremony that might have been expected, but Colman's knowledge of the publicity that attends any star's wedding no doubt prompted him in keeping his application for a license secret, and having a police judge perform the ceremony.

Ever since 1920, when he and his first wife separated, there have been rumors to the effect that the dashing hero of "If I Were King" was going to marry someone or other, although he has never been one of those young men about Hollywood who used rumored romances as a sure-fire way of garnering publicity. The beautiful Benita is just the wife one would select for him—best wishes to them both!

*

The fates seem to be agin' Ralph Bellamy, so far as owning a home is concerned. Last winter the California floods washed away his $50,000 home in North Hollywood. This summer the Connecticut hurricane washed away the house and much of the land on his farm in that state. Looks as if he'd have to buy him a trailer and settle down in that.

*

I like Kate Smith; I like her new radio program Thursday nights, which keeps her right up there with the topnotchers. But I do not like her when I am waked up at the crack of dawn to receive a pale blue turtle with "Greetings From Kate Smith" across its painted back, accompanied by a box of fish food.

Any time the movies need a young and handsome man to conduct an orchestra—and really conduct it, too—they can't do better than to raid the field of radio and take Macklin Marrow. He has been guest conductor of practically all the big symphony orchestras but the Boston and he is undeniably both young and handsome. What's more, it was accidentally, discovered, the other day, that he screens well.

A friend of his got involved in making a commercial movie. She took a look at the young men sent by one of the model agencies, and they wouldn't do at all. Then she remembered him. Unlike many radio big-timers, he was delighted to do it, just for fun and to oblige a friend. With that picture serving as a screen test he should be able to sign his name to a Hollywood contract if he ever wants to.

Dorothy Thompson, our most famous woman news commentator, has also discovered something about herself as the camera sees her. She's on the air now on a program that includes Phil Spitalny's orchestra, and the other day a picture was taken of him leading the orchestra, with her at the microphone. It couldn't be sent out to the papers; the dignified Miss Thompson—or Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, just as you like—looked exactly like a pretty blues singer, instead of an important commentator on world affairs!

Harry Duncan of the "Radio Rubes" declares that he can tell which parts of the country are having bad weather by the amount of fan mail he gets from those sections. During New England's hurricane week the "Rubes" averaged two hundred letters a day, and he knew that the storm was really terrific when the postman brought four layer cakes. Thinks all New England must have been moored to their radios.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Charlie Farrell's next stop on his come-back trail will be the male lead in "Tailspin," with Alice Faye . . . "Drums" ought to go down on your list of the new pictures that you must see . . . Paramount wasn't too pleased when their starlet, Ellen Drew, told Philadelphia reporters that she has a three-and-one-half-year old son.

Here Is How You Can Look Slimmer

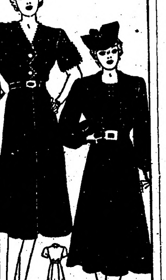
IF YOU take a woman's size, you'll certainly enjoy having both of these smart, new, slenderizing styles. They're extremely becoming, and made up in materials and colors of your own choosing, they will be the joy of your life, one for house work, and the other for afternoon and dinner engagements. Both of these dresses are so very simple to make that you'll thoroughly enjoy doing it.



Each pattern includes a detailed sew chart for the guidance of beginners.

The House Dress.

Notice how very practical and comfortable this dress is, with every detail you want for working freedom and slim lines. Darts make the waistline slim and neat, but not tight. The armholes are ample, the sleeves very short, and slashed for greater freedom. The skirt has sufficient, unhampering fullness at the hem. It's a diagram design, that you can finish in a few hours. For this, choose percale, calico, or gingham.

The Afternoon Dress.

Just wait to see how nice and slim your hips look, in this cleverly designed dress, with just a little fullness above the waist to emphasize the slick, smooth cut below. This design gives you the fashionable bodice detailing, in soft, lengthening jabot drapes that have a dressy, but not a fussy, look. Bishop sleeves are another new and very becoming style, most flattering to large women. This dress will be lovely in velvet, crepe satin, thin wool or silk crepe.

The Patterns.

1559 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 35 inch material. 2½ yards of ricrac braid.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Vitamins And Vision; Explains How and Why You Should Feed Your Eyes

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

FOR a number of years, scientists have stressed the importance of a well-balanced diet as a means of maintaining health, promoting growth and preventing disease. Recently, an even more significant development has occurred. It has been determined that a carefully chosen diet is absolutely necessary to preserve the general health and efficiency of every bodily function and that there is a close relationship between a good diet and good eyesight.

Your Food and Your Eyes

Many people regard their eyesight as one of the five senses which operate in some mysterious manner of their own! If they suffer from indigestion, they recognize that it is quite apt to be due to something they ate. If they are troubled with stomach, liver or kidney complaints, they quickly appreciate that prolonged dietary indiscretions may be at the root of the trouble. But it never occurs to them that what they eat may affect the eyes just as profoundly as it affects the internal organs.

It is not uncommon, during an attack of billousness, to suffer a disturbance of the vision. But that disturbance usually disappears with the disorder that caused it. On the other hand, a deficient diet may produce eye troubles that have a far reaching effect upon health, efficiency, and even personal safety.

Night Blindness Explained

For example, it has been established that there is a definite relation between your vision and the vitamins in your diet; between your ability to drive a car safely at night, and the amount of vitamin A-containing foods that you consume.

To understand this astonishing fact, it is necessary to know that vision under faint illumination is accomplished by means of chemical changes in the pigment at the back of the eye. This is known as the "visual purple" of the retina and one of its important components is carotene, which is the active form of vitamin A.

The visual purple might be compared to the film in a camera. When you are in a dim light and the eyes are suddenly exposed to bright light, the visual purple is greatly reduced or bleached. This change results in a stimulation of the optic nerve and enables you to see clearly.

When an adequate supply of vitamin A is present in the body, the visual purple is rapidly regenerated. But when the supply is inadequate, a much longer period elapses before the corrective chemical change takes place. During the intervening time, many people find it difficult to see.

That is the condition known as "night blindness." And it accounts for the fact that a large proportion of serious motor accidents occur at night. Victims of this deficiency disease are first blinded by approaching headlights, then cannot quickly readjust themselves after the oncoming car has passed. Their ability to drive safely is subsequently impaired for they cannot clearly see the road ahead, and they may miss dangerous curves, pedestrians or other vehicles.

A Common Complaint

Unfortunately, the prevalence of night blindness is not generally recognized, though it is held that urban dwellers are more conscious of it than those living in the rural areas. This is borne out by the fact that ocular disorders from vitamin deficiency are less common in urban than in rural areas.

Children Often Victims

Since the discovery of the close connection between vitamin A and the ability to see in dim light, scientists have tested large numbers of school children to determine whether vitamin A was present in their diet in adequate amounts. It was revealed that from 26 to 79 per cent of the children examined had incipient night blindness.

The same deplorable conditions were found among adults. Mild to moderate degrees of vitamin A deficiency were present in from 10 to over 50 per cent of each group tested.

Yet here is the remarkable thing —in nearly every case, a diet rich in vitamin A for a few weeks restored the vision to normal.

A Significant Experiment

An even more striking example of the power of food to affect the eyesight is to be found in the report of an experiment in which breeding sows were given food in abundance but lacking vitamin A for 160 days before and for 30 days after breeding. In three litters of 35 pigs, all were blind. In another litter of 14 pigs, all were sightless. But under normal feeding, the same animals produced litters of pigs with normal eyes and vision. This experiment justifies the conclusion of one of our most noted food scientists, that the deficiency of essential food elements may so alter vital processes that even pre-natal changes may occur.

Cause of Other Eye Disorders

Night blindness is not the only eye disease caused by an improper diet. Xerophthalmia or conjunctivitis, characterized by excessive dryness of the eyeball, has long been known to be caused by a vitamin A deficiency. It is also well known that a liberal amount of this vitamin will prevent that serious disease and will even effect a cure where destruction of the cornea has not progressed too far.

This suggests the tremendous importance of including in the diet foods rich in vitamin A—cod- and other fish-liver oils; milk and other dairy products; green leafy and yellow vegetables; and egg yolk.

Experiments with rats, whose dietary requirements are similar to those of man, show a close connection between cataract and a deficiency of another vitamin—vitamin G. This is found most abundantly in meat, milk, eggs, fruit and vegetables.

Were she concerned about protecting the blessing of good eyesight alone, that would be sufficient reason why every homemaker should plan meals that are rich in vitamins. But it is not only the eyes which are dependent upon vitamins, for they have many other functions to perform.

An improper diet may cause people to drive automobiles blindly at night so that they are dangerous not only to themselves and their passengers, but to everyone on the streets and roads. A deficient diet will also send them through life with half-efficient bodies, half-efficient brains, half-efficient senses.

That is why I urge you to learn everything you can about food, so that in planning meals you will not only feed your eyes, your husband's eyes and your children's eyes, but will take advantage of the wonderful discoveries of nutritional science to make every member of the family so efficient that they will enjoy the best of health each day of their lives.

Intermediate Grades

Last Friday afternoon the intermediate grades held a party in honor of Donna Mae Moline, who is leaving us this week. We played Bingo and several of us received a prize, after which we enjoyed a nice lunch. Donna was presented a small gift from the pupils in our room. We are all sorry to see Donna leave our fourth grade.

The first and second grades were guests at our party. We also had two visitors, Buddy Sorum and Allen Larson.

In art class, we are busy making black cats, jack-o-lanterns, pumpkins and other decorations for our room.

Primary Room

The First Grade children have completed their "Before We Read" booklets. Through the use of these booklets the children have mastered various necessary mechanics in their preparation for reading Some of these mechanics involve:

1. Thinking ahead and recalling on the part of the child.
2. Handling a marker.
3. Understanding what a sentence is.
4. Developing the eye movements from left to right.

On Monday we were out on a field trip. As a result galls, autumn leaves, nests, rocks' a wasp nest, a cocoon, and a woolly bear caterpillar have been added to our Nature Corner.

In Art Class we are working on a newspaper rack for our weekly reader copies. We also are working on Halloween decorations.

We are sorry to have Ivadelle and Dorothy Taggert leave us. They will naw be attending the Rosebank School at Rosewood.

The Juniors are having their six weeks tests in English, History, Algebra and Industrial Geography.

THE SECRET of LIVING IS MODERATION

The John Nelsons and George Smiths of this world find their greatest happiness in plain, everyday living. They work . . but life loses its sparkle if they do nothing but work.

John and George find that the art of living is being moderate. Working, playing, eating, drinking, each adds it's full measure. But each man must find the formula that for him will spell "the middle of the road". Beer IS the drink of moderation. The drinking of beer, the moderate drink, is a "middle of the road" path that will lead to better living.

Our problem and your problem is to work for better conditions surrounding its sale where there is room or need for improvement. We are sincere in asking your help.

If the sale in your community of the product of any of the undersigned is being made in violation of law, we would appreciate your sending the facts covering the breach of law to 3173 First National Bank Building, Saint Paul.

While the enforcement of your laws rests with your local authorities, we will do our best to co-operate.

FARM TOPICS

PULLETS DO BEST IF HOUSED EARLY

Ample Space, Cleanliness, Good Ration Necessary.

By H. H. Alp, Poultry Extension Specialist, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

With higher egg prices in prospect, poultry producers will find it doubly important to see that pullets are in their winter quarters a week or 10 days before laying begins.

Failure to observe this fundamental rule has many times resulted in lowered egg production when pullets are confined to winter quarters.

If the poultry house is in good shape, if the pullets have ample space, at least four square feet a bird, if the house is kept clean, if there are ample feeders and if a good ration is provided, well-matured pullets can be confined to houses all the time and maintain good production.

In the event that the poultry house is not particularly satisfactory and where a good clean range with plenty of young tender green feed adjoins the house, pullets might well be allowed outside at least the latter part of each afternoon until snowy weather arrives. However, confinement following range privileges and during good egg production is likely to cause a drop in production. Once pullets become accustomed to being kept in they can be expected to lay well if properly fed.

All things considered, pullets will usually do best when they are kept separate from older hens. Many poultry houses can easily be divided into two rooms by using poultry netting as a partition.

Off-Flavor of the Milk Not From Well-Fed Cows

If the milk from cows becomes off-flavor because they eat weeds, the remedy lies in providing feed other than that in the pasture, advises W. B. Combs, member of the St. Paul university farm dairy staff.

Experiments at University farm indicate that cows may not eat enough weeds to flavor milk if other palatable feed is available. In working with well-fed cows, it was necessary to starve them to the weeds, says Combs. When pepper grass flavor occurs in milk or cream, the cow has likely consumed as much as 80 pounds of the weed daily, University dairymen believe, for it was difficult to obtain more than a mild off-flavor in milk or cream by feeding 60 pounds of pepper grass. This would indicate that when pepper grass flavor occurs in milk, the animals are receiving little more feed than the weed itself.

When cows eat such weeds as French weeds, wild onion and pepper grass, the milk they produce becomes almost worthless. This not only leads to a loss for the individual dairyman, but to the industry as a whole, since in products from weed-flavored milk and cream, the off-flavors are intensified.

Combs reports that if pasture is supplemented by a grain ration, and some hay or silage, cows are less likely to eat enough weeds to flavor the milk.

Group Pullets by Ages

When pullets in the same stage of maturity are placed in the one pen they are much easier to handle, and produce better results than when birds of various stages of maturity are mixed. Because pullets all of the same age can be fed to better advantage, production will often climb to 70 or 80 per cent, because they are all laying at the same time. When production begins to drop the whole pen may be given the same change in management at the same time to bring the pullets back into laying. Thus a change to artificial lights, wet mash or any other phase of management may be made to better advantage.

Sore Shoulders on Horses

Clean cold water is very effective in washing sore shoulders on horses. Where animals are troubled with tender skin, advises the Indiana Farmer's Guide, it is possible to bathe the troubled areas noon and evening with a mild astringent wash as follows: Lead acetate 4 ounces and zinc sulphate 3 ounces in 1 gallon of water. This solution should be shaken well before using. At first an attempt should be made not to work the horse too hard for a time. Frequent curryings and brushing, clean collars, well-fitting collars and constant attention will do much to keep shoulders in working condition.

Laying House

One has a considerable investment in the pullets raised this year. And a little bug or two can upset the profit cart so easily, says Hoard's Dairyman. The laying house should be given a pretty thorough going-over inside. Use a lye solution or other good disinfectants. And don't neglect the feed hoppers and water utensils. They need a real cleaning up. Repair nests and put in new shavings or other nesting material. Shavings usually keep eggs cleaner than straw.

HOW to SEW

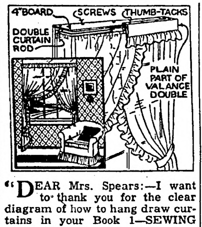
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS



"DEAR Mrs. Spears:—I want to thank you for the clear diagram of how to hang draw curtains in your Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator. This was just what I have been needing as we have casement windows and no shades in our living room. With a pull of the cord my new curtains shut out the light or the outside view. I wonder if you would help me with another problem? I do not want to make the curtains for the rest of the house. Thought I would buy ruffled net ones. Do you think they would be too commonplace? J. T."

Answer: Here is a suggestion for hanging ruffled curtains that will make your windows a little different from those of your neighbors and lend no end of style to your rooms. Double curtain rods are needed to give the crossed effect and a valance board is added to the top of the window as shown. Here the valance is the sort that comes with ready made curtains and the top is folded back to make it double. In thumbtacking it to the valance board, do not stretch it—just "ease it on" so that it hangs well. If you feel that the windows need color, the valance and tie backs may be of plain glazed chintz that repeats the strongest color in your room color scheme. A contrasting valance may be either plain or gathered.

Let Father and Young Son and Little Sister help you make the home a center of interest. Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator contains many useful things that every one may take a hand in making. Book 2 shows you with pictures how to make many novelty gifts. Books are 25 cents each. Order both books today and get the patchwork quilt leaflet picturing 36 authentic embroidery stitches free. (1) Five million dollars is the figure that's handed out in fair prize money each season. State fairs contribute about half of the figure and county fairs put up the remainder.

(2) C. P. Mills, St. Joseph, Illinois, farmer, has shown an extra profit of about $1,000 annually since he started keeping books on his farm operations. His bookkeeping takes about 208 hours a year—and that figures $5.00 an hour.

(3) In Nehawka, Nebraska, Harry Knabe paid $83.00 for a Hampshire brood sow. The $1750.00 he received for the first litter of pigs for breeding purposes was a gross profit of 2106% on his investment, and he kept two pigs from the litter.

(4) Crowds equivalent to almost two-fifths of the population of the United States attend fairs each year. Fairs outdraw the attendance at big league baseball, college football, basketball and professional hockey combined.

Through the efforts of the Firestone Farm Service Bureau millions of farmers throughout the country are receiving authentic information concerning problems that confront them in the adoption of better farming practices. # Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of Minnesota

STATE OF MINNESOTA
LEGAL DEPARTMENT

WILLIAM S. ERVIN
Attorney General

St. Paul, Minnesota, June 8, 1938

Honorable Mike Holm,
Secretary of State.

Dear Sir:

In compliance with the provisions of Section 46 of Mason's Minnesota Statutes of 1927, I herewith furnish you a statement of the purpose and effect of all proposed amendments to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota which are to be submitted to the electors of said state at the general election in 1938 in accordance with certain acts adopted by the 1937 legislature.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 1

By the adoption of Chapter 492 of the Laws of 1937, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Article 8 of the State Constitution. The proposed amendment, if adopted, will not alter the form of any existing section of the Constitution, but will add a new section to be known as Section 8 of said Article 8.

The proposed section reads as follows:

"Section 8. Any of the public lands of the state, including lands held in trust for any purpose, may, with the unanimous approval of a commission consisting of the governor, the attorney general and the state auditor, be exchanged for lands of the United States and/or privately owned lands in such manner as the legislature may provide, and the lands so acquired shall be subject to the trust, if any, to which the lands exchanged therefor were subject, and the state shall reserve all mineral and water power rights in lands so transferred by the state."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of this amendment is to confer upon a commission consisting of the governor, the attorney general, and the state auditor the power to exchange any of the public lands of the state, including lands held in trust for any purpose, for lands of the United States and lands privately owned, such exchanges to be made in such manner as the legislature may provide. In the case of certain trust fund lands exchanges cannot now be made because the State Constitution does not permit the legislature to authorize the sale of said lands except by public sale. This amendment will make it possible for the state to acquire compact areas of land for forestry and other conservation purposes by exchanging land outside of state forests and other conservation areas for lands of the United States within such areas and for privately owned lands within such areas.

The amendment requires that all mineral rights and water-power rights in lands so transferred by the state shall be reserved. The land so acquired will become subject to the same trust, if any, as the land disposed of. For example, if school land is given in exchange, the land received will become school land.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT NO. 2

By the adoption of Chapter 493 of the Laws of 1937 the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 36 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota.

This section now reads as follows:

"Any city or village in this state may frame a charter for its own government as a city consistent with and subject to the laws of this state, as follows: The legislature shall provide, under such restrictions as it deems proper, for a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall be and for the past five years shall have been qualified voters thereof, to be appointed by the district judges of the judicial district in which the city or village is situated, as the legislature may determine, for a term in no event to exceed six years, which board shall, within six months after its appointment, return to the chief magistrate of said city or village a draft of said charter, signed by the members of said board, or a majority thereof. Such charter shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such city or village at the next election thereafter, and if four-sevenths of the qualified voters voting at such election shall ratify the same it shall, at the end of thirty days thereafter, become the charter of such city or village as a city, and supersede any existing charter and amendments thereof: Provided, that in cities having patrol limits now established, such charter shall require a three-fourths majority vote of the qualified voters voting at such election to change the patrol limits now established. Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratification, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. One of said certificates shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and the other, after being recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which such city or village lies, shall be deposited among the archives of such city or village, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof. Such charter so deposited may be amended by proposal therefor made by a board of fifteen commissioners aforesaid, published for at least thirty days in three newspapers of general circulation in such city or village, and accepted by three-fifths of the qualified voters of such city or village voting at the next election and not otherwise; but such charter shall always be in harmony with and subject to the constitution and laws of the state of Minnesota. The legislature may prescribe the duties of the commission relative to submitting amendments of charter to the vote of the people, and shall provide that upon application of five per cent of the legal voters of any such city or village, by written petition, such commission shall submit to the vote of the people proposed amendments to such charter set forth in said petition. The board of freeholders above provided for shall be permanent, and all the vacancies by death, disability to perform duties, resignation or removal from the corporate limits, or expiration of term of office, shall be filled by appointment in the same manner as the original board was created, and said board shall always contain its full complement of members. It shall be a feature of all such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by general vote of the electors. In submitting any such charter or amendment thereto to the qualified voters of such city or village any alternate section or article may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to other articles or sections of the charter or any amendments thereto. The legislature may provide general laws relating to affairs of cities, the application of which may be limited to cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of fifty and not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of twenty and not less than ten thousand inhabitants, or to cities of ten thousand inhabitants or less, which shall apply equally to all such cities of either class, and which shall be paramount while in force to the provisions relating to the same matter included in the local charter herein provided for. But no local charter, provision or ordinance passed thereunder shall supersede any general law of the state defining or punishing crimes or misdemeanors."

"Section 36. Any city or village in this State may frame a charter for its own government as a city consistent with and subject to the laws of this State, as follows: The legislature shall provide, under such restrictions as it deems proper, for a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall be and for the past five years shall have been qualified voters thereof, to be appointed by the district judges of the judicial district in which the city or village is situated, as the legislature may determine, for a term in no event to exceed six years, which board shall, within six months after its appointment, return to the chief magistrate of said city or village a draft of said charter, signed by the members of said board, or a majority thereof. Such charter shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such city or village at the next election thereafter, and if four-sevenths of the qualified voters voting at such election shall ratify the same it shall, at the end of thirty days thereafter, become the charter of such city or village as a city, and supersede any existing charter and amendments thereof; provided, that in cities having patrol limits now established, such charter shall require a three-fourths majority vote of the qualified voters voting at such election to change the patrol limits now established.

Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratifications, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. One of said certificates shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and the other, after being recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which such city or village lies, shall be deposited among the archives of such city or village, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof. Such charter so deposited may be amended by proposal therefor made by a board of fifteen commissioners aforesaid, published for at least one day for four successive weeks in any daily newspaper of general circulation in such city or village, or if there be no daily newspaper of general circulation in such city or village then for four successive weeks in a weekly newspaper of general circulation in such city or village, and accepted by three-fifths of the qualified voters of such city or village voting at the next election, and not otherwise; but such charter shall always be in harmony with and subject to the Constitution and laws of the State of Minnesota. The legislature may prescribe the duties of the commission relative to submitting amendments of charter to the vote of the people and shall provide that upon application of five per cent of the legal voters of any such city or village, by written petition, such commission shall submit to the vote of the people proposed amendments to such charter set forth in said petition. The board of freeholders above provided for shall be permanent, and all the vacancies by death, disability to perform duties, resignation or removal from the corporate limits, or expiration of term of office, shall be filled by appointment in the same manner as the original board was created, and said board shall always contain its full complement of members.

It shall be a feature of all such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by general vote of the electors. In submitting any such charter or amendment thereto to the qualified voters of such city or village, any alternate section or article may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to other articles or sections of the charter or any amendments thereto. The legislature may provide general laws relating to affairs of cities, the application of which may be limited to cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of fifty and not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of twenty and not less than ten thousand inhabitants, or to cities of ten thousand inhabitants or less, which shall apply equally to all such cities of either class, and which shall be paramount while in force to the provisions relating to the same matter included in the local charter herein provided for. But no local charter, provision or ordinance passed thereunder shall supersede any general law of the State defining or punishing crimes or misdemeanors."

The Purpose and Effect of the Proposed Amendment

The purpose and effect of the proposed amendment to Section 36 of Article 4 of the State Constitution is to change the requirements for the publication of proposed amendments to charters of cities having home rule charters.

The changes proposed are as follows:

Said Section 36 now provides that a proposal for the amendment of the charter of such a city shall be published for at least thirty days in three newspapers of general circulation in such city. If amended as proposed said Section 36 will provide that a proposal for the amendment of the charter of such a city shall be published for at least one day each week for four successive weeks in any daily newspaper of general circulation in such city or, if there be no daily newspaper of general circulation in such city, then for four successive weeks in a weekly newspaper of general circulation in such city. The proposed amendment, if adopted, will reduce from three to one the number of newspapers in which a proposal for the amendment of a home rule charter of a city must be published, change the period of publication from thirty days to four weeks, and require publication in a daily newspaper of general circulation in such city, if there be one, and otherwise in a weekly newspaper of general circulation in such city, instead of publication in newspapers of general circulation in such city without specifying whether they shall be daily or weekly. The proposed amendment, if adopted, will reduce the cost of such publication.

Yours very truly,
WILLIAM S. ERVIN,
Attorney General.

WHY VOTE ON AMENDMENT NO. 1

Amendment No. 1 on the ballot this November would authorize the state to exchange lands with other owners. The measure is no political in any way but merely a necessary step in a constructive program. Similar amendments have been passed by four preceeding legislatures and have failed of enactment only because the public was not sufficiently well informed to vote on them. Always a preponderance of those indicating their views on the amendment have been in favor of it. Failure to pass has resulted merely because, according to the law, those not voting must be counted as opposing the amendment.

Here, then, is a measure which those interested in conservation must take positive action on, if they do not wish to be counted by the tally men as opposing progress.

The amendment is merely permissive. An actual program of land exchanges will have to be inaugurated by additional state legislation after approval of the amendment. Conservation Commissioner Wenzel has given assurance to interested counties that he would not proceed with any exchanges in their county without county approval, thus insuring the local people a voice in what is done with state land in their community. Exchanges would be made on the basis of equal values, thus insuring the state in preserving the total value of its public lands.

Bertha and Walter Moberg spent Wednesday visiting relatives at St. Vincent and Humboldt.

Right-Of-Way

What is the "Right-of-Way" Who has the "Right-of-Way"? I will not attempt to answer these questions because conditions and circumstances are involved that make one answer inapplicable to all cases. However, the safest bet and the wisest course is to give the other fellow the right-of-way rather than argue or have an accident.

What does a delay of a few minutes mean compared to a safe journey? Why gamble on the possibility of a serious accident just tor the satisfaction of having the right-of-way?

If you arrive at an intersection at about the same time another motorist does and he signifies his intention of crossing, let him, even though you know you have the right-of-way.

It is much better to follow the safe course, and it leaves you in a better frame of mind.

Issued Weekly From The Home Of The Biggest Co-operative Creamery In Marshall County

Gov. Benson and Kinzer Spoke

Both Governor Benson and his running-mate, John J. Kinzer, made radio addresses to Minnesota farmers last week. Benson spoke on Friday from Mankato, while Kinzer broadcast from Minneapolis Wednesday evening.

Warning against a new attack by the enemies of agriculture on farm legislation, Benson said farmers must decide whether they want to keep the present farm program and improve it, or whether they are willing to let it be defeated and take a chance on going back to Hoover farm prices.

Kinzer lashed what he termed the "gutter cambaign" being put up by the G. O. P. high command against the Farmer-Labor candidates and at the same time further exposed the methods by which the farm implement manufacturers, working through Roy E. Dunn, house member and Republican national committeeman, defeated farm legislation

The Farmer-Labor candidate for lieutenant-governor, who himself was liberal floor leader in the house during the last session, quoted letters seized by the United States government from the files of implement makers to substantiate his charges.

Governor Benson said in reference to opponents of the AAA measure to defeat it that "it is a matter of whether farmers are willing to arouse themselves to defense of agricultural legislation, or whether they will stand aside and see their enemies smash down the gains of recent years."

Hellesylt Visited Son

Lars Hellesylt received word Sunday from his son Lars Larson at Rugby, N. Dak., that he was very ill in a hospital with pneumonia. Mr. Hellesylt left late Sunday in company with his son-in-law Carl Gustafson, to see his son. They returned late Monday and reported that Mr. Larson is getting along quite well.

Editorial On Church Work

The Dorcas Society girls of the Nazareth Lutheran church feel well pleased with the results of their sale Friday evening. They wish to thank the large crowd for coming out and for the part each one had in making it a success.

It does a person good to see what a splendid cooperation the church work is receiving from the people of this community.

Old timers here feel elated over the progress that has been made in church work here in the past forty years. Taking it all in all there are very few places where the church has made such a forward stride as it has in Holt and through the good guidance and leadership put forth here in the past two years by Rev. and Mrs. Hanson the church has made some outstanding advancements.

We feel proud to be a member and co-worker in an institution such as the Lutheran Church which is doing so much to bind us together in our community.

We feel sure that it must do the heart and soul of the pioneer here a lot of good to see what a forward stride has been made in the work they started here with meager means years ago. We now have a fine set of buildings here on our church property, an outstanding Ladies Aid, Luther League, Men's Club, Dorcas Society, and Sunday School. It has reached the point where room is at a premium for most occasions in our church.

Without a church a community is more or less a wilderness.

We appreciate all good deeds that are being done in favor of church work. Let us keep this good work up to the high standard it now has reached and give others an opportunity to be reached through the word of our Maker and Savior.

Home Coming at N. W. School

Saturday, Oct. 29. is the Home coming date for the Northwest School of Agriculture at Crookston, The Northweet School Aggies will clash with the Aggies from the West Central School at Morris for what is expected to be the football championship in the Agricultural School Conference. The winning football team gets possession of the famous wood-carved pig "Ossie". Coach O. C. Evans of the Northwest School team, while non-commital about the outcome of the game, states: "Barring accidents previous to the game, our team will be in fine condition for the Morris game. In my first year's coaching of the Aggies, I have been amazed at the rapid development of our team and I can promise that our boys will give a good account of themselves in battling to retain the trophy". The Northwest Aggies have won eight of the fourteen encounters with the team from Morris.

Homecoming festivities begin with the big bonfire and pep fest on Friday evening. On Saturday, the Homecoming assembly, an outstanding entertainment feature, will be held at 11:30 a. m. with Superintendent T. M. McCall as chairman. The football game is scheduled for 2:30 p. m., the banquet at 6:00 p. m., and the Homecoming dance and party at eight o'clock. The Northwest School's Homecoming annually attracts several hundred of the alumni and former students of the school.

Spoke At Festival

Rev. Hanson was the Mission Festival speaker in the Zion Congregation near Goodridge on Sunday Morning and afternoon. In the evening, he addressed the Silverton Luther League at home of Henry Hegernes, east of Thief River Falls.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been the best that any one could wish for at this season of the year. It has given the farmers an opportunity to finish a lot of fall work and fix things up for the winter.

We are receiving copies here at the News Office of The Western MiSTiC, the Moorhead State College paper. Miss Ruth Horien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas Horien, is circulation manager is of this fine weekly.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Morberg of Oslo visited at the H. O. Hanson home on Friday evening. Mr. Morberg is representative in the legislature from Marshall county.

Moved Buildings At Gatzke

Harry Engen, local house mover, has been busy the past two weeks with several jobs in the Gatzke area. He moved several buildings recently from the Mud Lake area to near Gatzke for Raymond and Carl Carlson, farmers of that community. A short time ago he moved a fine log house from the northeast corner of the reserve to near Gatzke for Vern Williams of of Gatzke.

His latest job here was to move a large chicken house out to the Knute Nelsson farm. Mr. Nelson purchased the house from the R. Reierson estate here in the north end of the village.

Lutheran Ladies Aid Sale

The Nazareth Lutheran Ladies Aid will have their annual auction sale on Friday evening Nov. 4th at the church parlors. The organization now consists of around seventy-five members who have been diligently working the past months making wool quilts, pillow cases, dresser scarves, table cloths, etc. etc. etc and also one complete layette of infants wear with a crib.

The auction sale will be conducted, as usual, with O. H. Nohre as auctioner and H. O. Hanson as clerk.

Tveit Has Fine Farm

Ole Tveit made a business trip to St. Paul this week with a shipment of livestock and sheep. Mr. Tveit has built up a fine new farm in the northwest corner of Moylan Townsnip. He is now completing the work on a large new barn 32x60 feet.

Attended Meetings

The District Budget Allocation meeting was held at Detroit Lakes on Monday. Rev. Hanson represented the Thief River Falls Circuit at thie meeting. On Tuesday, he attended the Circuit alloocation meeting in Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Moline who have operated the Holt Cafe here for the past three years, disposed of their business recently to Sidney Engstrom and have now moved to Minneapolis where Mr. Moline is employed with the Great Northern.

J. O. Johnson, local carpenter, has been laid up the past two weeks with a hurt foot. He broke two bones in his left foot when the scaffolding broke down at the Chas Wilson farm where he was building a house.

Mr. Johnson has had a lot of hard luck lately as it is only a short time ago that he lost his dairy herd of eight cows when they ate sheep dip that poisoned them.

Mr. A. A. Trost, County Attorney for Marshall County was a visitor in Holt on Friday meeting with his old friends and attending to business matters. Mr. Trost is out for re-election to the office he now holds and in which he has served the past four years.

Tom Risdal of Karlstad visited friends here Wednesday.

The Immanuel Ladies Aid will have an auction sale of fancy work next Monday evening Oct. 31 at the Ringbo church. Lunch will be served after the sale.

Given Surprise Party

Relatives and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs Oscar Johnson on Sunday afternoon and gave Mrs. Lena Ring a surprise kitchen shower. Mrs. Ring is moving into her own home near the Lars Ring farm in the near future. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. Mike Leiran and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Leiran of Thief River Falls, Mrs. A. Anderson, Mrs. O. Backlund and son, Mrs. C. Hagglund, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Horien Lucille, Robert and Norma Fae, Mr. and Mrs. L. Sagstuen and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Peterson and sons, Mrs. John Hoffman and family, Mrs Lars Ring and daughter, Mrs. Frank Frickson and children, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Olson, and Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnson.

Clara Engebretson of Thief River Falls spent Sunday with home folks.

Reducing Dairy Herd

Wm. Paskewitz, prominent farmer living three miles east of Holt has been receiving many letters inquiring about the cows and calves that he has advertised for sale. Mr. Paskewitz has one of the best herds of cattle in this part of the country. He has some very fine stock for sale and states that any buyer can get the registration papers on any animal he buys.

Mr. Paskewitz states that he is reducing his herd as he has too many cattle to care for at his age.

Lutefisk Supper and Sale

Lutefisk Supper at Thief Lake church, 10 miles east of Middle River and one mile north on the CCC Camp road, Friday evening, Oct. 28. The men of the congregation are serving. Serving will begin at 5 p. m.

The Thief Lake Ladies Aid will have their auction sale at the same time.

The publisher was a supper guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nygaard at Grygla Monday.

How to Make Your Hooked Rug Designs

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

ANOTHER letter today from a reader who says she has made so many things from the books offered herewith that she has almost worn them out, but would like more information about rag rugs. So here is the answer to her question about making flower designs.

Use a wax crayon or soft pencil to mark the pattern on a 51 by 33-inch piece of burlap. Then divide the rest into 9-inch squares. Now, mark every other one of these big squares into small squares to be hooked in mixed stripes.

We are now ready for the flowers; here are ten posies of the type that grandmother drew. No. 1: just two circles. No. 2: A spiral outline with a circle around it makes a rose. No. 3: a spiral with four petals. Sometimes more petals were used. Nos. 4 and 5: a circle or an oval with five petals becomes a wild rose. Nos. 6 and 7: one oval inside another with a triangle added becomes the morning glory type of flower. Nos. 8 and 9: draw a big U and add petals at the top. No. 10: another kind of trumpet flower drawn with straight lines.

Tan is a good background color for the flower squares. Rags or rug yarn may be used. A rug hook, which is like a big steel crochet hook with a wooden handle, may be purchased in fancy work departments. Just pull loops of the yarn or rag strips through to the right side of the burlap with this hook.

With the help of Mrs. Spears' Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator—you can make many of the things you have been wanting for your house. Book 2—Embroidery and Gifts—is full of ideas for ways to use your spare time in making things for yourself and to sell. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books quilt leaflet illustrating 36 authentic stitches is included free. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Blarney Stone Moved to Los Angeles

Manfred Meyberg, Los Angeles seedgrower, acquired 20,000 pounds of genuine Blarney stone on a gag that has left Ireland and its newspapers still gasping. Meyberg was struck with a waggish thought about the time Douglas Corrigan made his wrong-way flight to Ireland, and ordered a friend to buy the Blarney stone. The friend bought the entire quarry. In the picture Violet Ashley, an American colleen, kisses a piece of the stone held by Meyberg.

HOWARD HUGHES must get awfully tired of hearing that he's going to marry first one limelighted young woman and then another. Unless he's grown so accustomed to it that he just doesn't pay any attention any more.

The gossip linking his name to Katharine Hepburn's had barely died down before the rumor-mongers were insisting that Bette Davis would become his wife as soon as she had divorced her husband. He made no comment. Bette denied that she and "Ham" were going to get a divorce, as long as she could; she insisted that she was merely spending a vacation in Nevada, instead of establishing a residence for legal reasons.

Bette Davis

The odds have been against that marriage for a long time, ever since she began her speedy climb up the ladder to fame. She has done everything that she possibly could to make it a success; it's not her fault that it failed. But Hollywood has a way of being awfully hard on marriages in which one person is far more successful than the other.

"Nobody outside this town knows how tough such a marriage can be, here," a star once told me. "Stars associate with stars, big people with other big ones. You have to do it! I was a star and my husband was a not very successful leading man, and in spite of everything we could do, we almost had to separate, before he got a lucky break and was on top too."

It's going to seem awfully funny to have Buck Jones turning into a straight dramatic star. But that's what he is going to do. He has finished "Law of the Texan," which he says is his final western, and after a short vacation he will begin work in Paramount's "Vice Squad." We take this opportunity of showing Buck in a ten-gallon top-piece for perhaps the last time.

Buck Jones

⁂

If you believe—along with a lot of other people—that the movies are still in their infancy, pause and consider the fact that recently, in New York, a plaque was unveiled on the wall of the building now standing on the site where the first theatrical motion picture was screened. The machine that made that showing possible was Thomas Edison's Vitascope, and his daughter, Mrs. Joen E. Sloan, unveiled the plaque.

⁂

Another fact that brings home the realization that the movies have been in existence for quite some time is the presence, in the cast of RKO's "Gunga Din," of a young woman named Fay McKenzie. She has had experience in stock—with her parents' troupe—and has appeared with various Los Angeles theatrical companies, but has yet to make her name in pictures. But she made her screen debut when she was ten months old—in the role of Gloria Swanson's daughter!

⁂

If you are interested in writing for the radio you'd better make a list of the things that just mustn't be done in the script of the average serial. Only the older men can smoke—preferably a pipe or a cigar; no women can smoke. No one, not even the villain, can touch liquor.

⁂

As a radio veteran Lanny Ross is true to the air waves, but his summer as a theatrical star almost made him wish that he'd gone on the stage long ago instead of becoming a singer. He appeared in a number of summer theaters, and at the one in Ogonquit, Maine, a farmer was so pleased with Lanny's work in "Petticoat Fever" that he came backstage afterward and promised Lanny free milk for a year.

⁂

Have you heard the new singer with Horace Heidt's band, Jean Farney? When the band was playing in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, she walked into town from the farm where she worked and asked for an audition. Heidt was skeptical, but let her sing. And so she got the job.

⁂

ODDS AND ENDS . . . After his impromptu appearance on "Vox Pop," when he revealed the fact that he has a delightful singing voice, Governor Chandler of Kentucky could easily have become a radio star if he'd wanted to . . . "Drums" is a swell picture—it justifies that claim that "Motion pictures are your best entertainment" . . . Maurice Costello, father of Dolores Costello Barrymore and screen star in the earliest days of the movies, is working again before the cameras, as a bit player . . . Tommy Lane, who's just eleven, won out over all competition for that sing ing spot on Joe Penner's programs.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Describes Correct Diet for Cool Weather; Explains How to Keep Warm and Well

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

MANY people look upon fall weather with foreboding. They cannot observe leaves on the ground without a feeling of vague uneasiness—and the sight of brown and barren fields fills them with desolation.

This, I think, is a throwback to an earlier day when the advent of cool weather foretold long months of bitterly cold days in draughty, inadequately heated houses. And the lack of adequate heat was only one of many difficulties. The principal reason for fearing cold weather is another heritage from the past.

Limited Diet of an Earlier Day

There was a time within memory of many of us when the terms "cold-weather diet" and "warm-weather diet" had real meaning. Winter food differed a great deal from summer food, particularly in the absence of fresh fruits and vegetables, and in the restricted use of milk, and milk products.

The limited diet of winter was enforced by conditions of that period. Methods of production, transportation, refrigeration and storage of foods, which are commonplace today, were then unknown.

Fruits and vegetables were consumed when and where they were grown, and when cold weather prevented their growth, they were not available. The canning industry was young and the grocery store in cold weather presented a far different appearance from the modern food store in which the shelves are lined, row upon row, with shining cans of the finest fruits and vegetables to be found anywhere in the world, plus an amazing assortment of prepared milks.

It was an accepted fact that fruits, vegetables, and the generous use of milk belonged to the summer months, while in winter everyone ate an unbalanced diet. As a result of lacking these essential protective foods, health went down rapidly from late fall to early spring.

The winter diet was deficient in minerals and vitamins, which science has proven to be the protectors of health, barriers against disease, sustainers of life. But in those days, vitamins were unknown and very little had been learned about minerals. Therefore, when people became ill during cold weather, the natural conclusion was that sickness was inevitable during the winter season.

Cold Weather Really a Tonic

Times have changed. Scientific knowledge has increased. The genius of man has asserted itself in mechanical advancement. The expressions, "cold-weather diet" and "warm-weather diet," have lost their former meaning.

Almost without exception, the protective foods are available throughout the year, no matter where we live.

It is therefore possible to protect the health by a balanced diet all the year 'round, and to benefit by the tonic effect of cold weather. For, contrary to popular belief, cold weather is beneficial, and not harmful, to healthy people.

Cold speeds up all the activities of the body. The circulation is improved, muscle tone is increased, and digestion, absorption and elimination are stimulated. Even prolonged cold is thus a tonic to health, provided we do not weaken our bodies by an unbalanced diet.

It is partly because so many people continue to eat improperly, in spite of our newer knowledge of nutrition, that we still find an increasing amount of sickness in the fall, which mounts steadily until it reaches its peak in the months of January, February and March.

Dangers of an Improper Diet

Yet winter need have no terrors for the fit. Only the weak, the unfit, surrender and become its victims. That the number of victims is large each winter merely indicates how many people neglect their health through careless living, and especially through careless eating.

Measures to protect one's self against the attack of winter should be taken during the summer and early fall. A sturdy resistance against the ills of winter should be built up by means of a balanced diet which assures an abundant supply of the minerals and vitamins.

When a person is undernourished or improperly nourished, he is denied of every defense. He is chilled by the slightest drop in temperature. He offers fertile soil for every kind of disease germs. He can neither resist their invasion, nor fight them off after they have attacked.

Thus, the first rule for keeping warm and well in winter is to live and eat in a manner that helps to maintain health and strength. The correct winter diet differs in one important respect—and one only—from the correct diet at other seasons.

More Fuel Foods Required

As a rule, people are more energetic in cold weather and it is therefore necessary to increase the amount of energy-producing foods. Nearly all children, and adults who spend much of their time out doors, should consume more high caloric foods which may be provided in the form of easily digested carbohydrates, such as rice, macaroni, spaghetti, noodles, potatoes, cereals and breadstuffs.

In the case of adults, the amount of fats may also be increased and in some circumstances, more sweets may likewise be taken.

To summarize, the cold weather diet should include a quart of milk daily for every child, a pint for each adult; two fruits daily, or one fruit and one fruit juice—and while one serving may be a dried fruit, such as prunes, apricots or figs, there should be one serving of a citrus fruit, or tomatoes; to provide vitamin C; two vegetables besides potatoes, one of which should be of the green, leafy variety, either fresh or canned; an egg daily, or at least three or four weekly; one daily serving of meat, fish or chicken, and a second protein food such as cheese, dried peas or beans or nuts; and enough of the fuel foods including whole grain cereals, to keep the body warm and comfortable.

If you eat correctly and dress sensibly so that you are neither too warmly clad indoors nor too thinly clad out of doors, you can enjoy cold weather and benefit by it to the extent of increased health and happiness.

Questions Answered

Mrs. F. L. B.—Egg white is a solution of pure protein. The egg yolk contains minerals, vitamins and fats, in addition to protein.

Miss C. M. R.—In general, whole raw fruits, especially those with skins and seeds, provide a slightly harsher residue than that of cooked fruits, or the pulp of raw fruits with skin and seeds removed.

Car of Death

The automobile in which Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife were assassinated in Sarajevo, Bosnia, in June, 1914, was instrumental in the death of 13 persons in 12 years, finally being smashed beyond repair in Cluj, Rumania, in 1926. — Collier's Weekly.

Your Health May Depend on Your Teeth

An Editorial by C. Houston Goudiss

The reason why some men and women in their middle years look and feel younger today than their parents did at the same age, is because they have learned something of the importance of caring properly for their teeth. In recent years, dentists have discovered that sound teeth are in truth a passport to good health, and that there is as close a relationship between healthy teeth and healthy bodies as between decayed teeth and sickly bodies.

Unfortunately, however, only a small percentage of our population is yet aware of the far-reaching effects of teeth upon health, and a distinguished scientist is so disturbed over our national ignorance in this respect that he has said that unless this trend is reversed, the course of human evolution will lead downward to extinction. That statement is no exaggeration. For it would be difficult to over-estimate the influence of the teeth on human health and happiness.

For many years I have endeavored to explain that a neglected tooth—which soon becomes a decayed tooth—is a poison factory, distributing its noxious products to every part of the body, and that it may lead indirectly to neuritis, rheumatic ailments, dyspepsia, and other obscure complaints.

In many of the "WHAT TO EAT AND WHY" articles, which have appeared in this newspaper over my signature, I have endeavored to point out the close relationship between diet and dental disease; between frequent and thorough brushing of the teeth with an efficient dentifrice so as to remove all food particles, and strong, beautiful teeth.

As a result of these articles, I have received many letters, showing that homemakers are eager for sound, authoritative advice on the proper care of the teeth. To help these and other readers how to properly care for their teeth, I have prepared a booklet on—"BUILDING AND PLANNING HEALTH" which I am offering FREE, because I feel so strongly that this information should be in every home, knowing as I do, that the salvation of the human race may lie in saving their teeth.

EASE PAIN

of Rheumatism, Neuritis, Neuralgia Quickly

1. Take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a full glass of water the moment you feel either a rheumatic or neuritic pain coming on.

2. You should feel relief very quickly. If pain is unusually severe, repeat according to directions.

People everywhere say results are remarkable. Yet Bayer Aspirin costs only about one cent a tablet, which makes the use of expensive "pain remedies" unnecessary.

If this way fails, see your doctor. He will find the cause and correct it. While there, ask him about taking Bayer Aspirin to relieve these pains. We believe he will tell you there is no more effective, more dependable way normal persons may use.

Pretty New Work Clothes

WE CAN all get our work done better and more happily, if we go at it in the right clothes (and, of course, in the right way!), whether it's a complication in fractions, or the necessity of getting the house cleaned and dinner ready before a flock of in-laws arrive. Here are two new designs calculated to make life easier for ladies busy about the house and lassies busy in the schoolroom. Both are quick and easy to make. Each pattern is accompanied by a detailed sew chart.

House Dress for Large Women.

Every line of this simple dress is made for comfort and good looks. Ample armholes, a waist that looks slim but is thoroughly unconfined, a skirt wide enough to climb and to hurry in—all assure you complete freedom for working. The front fastening makes it easy to iron as well as to put on. The v-neck adds to the slenderizing effect of the long, plain lines. Contrasting cuffs with a touch of braid brighten it up, effectively. A diagram design, to be finished in a few hours. Make it of gingham, percale or calico.

Jumper Dress for School Girls.

This is an unusually good version of the always-smart jumper. It has such a nice, tiny waist, the skirt flares bee-yu-tifully, and the straps are so fixed that they won't fall off at the shoulders. Make several versions of the sweet little blouse, with its round collar and high-shouldered sleeves, in dimity, linen, organdy or flowered challis. One jumper, many blouses, make it easy to have a fresh outfit always ready for school. For the skirt, choose challis, jersey or flannel.

No. 1623 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 5⅜ yards of 35-inch material; ⅓ yard contrasting for cuffs and pocket; 1¼ yards of braid.

No. 1520 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1⅜ yards of 35-inch material for the blouse; 1⅛ yards of 54-inch material for the jumper.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

GATZKE ASTRONOMER MAKES WEATHER PREDICTIONS

Gust Ruud and Ole Eastby of Gatzke, local astronomers and weather Prophets, predict nice weather until Christmas. According to their deductions the weather will be moderately warm and dry. Then they began to explain the position of the moon, which they said they based their predictions on.

But A. C. McMillan did not agree with them entirely. He said there would be moisture.

Who is right? We will refer back to this article at a later date when the weather will actually prove which of the two schools of Astronomy is correct.

Grygla Pioneer Summoned

W. A. Holbrook lay aside the cares of life on Monday evening of last week, sucumbing to a heart ailment that had kept him in bed since last January. He was born at Richland Center, Wisconsin in April 1862 and passed his 76th birthday last April. In 1910 he came to Grygla where he resided until his death.

Besides his wife he leaves five sons and four daughters to mourn his passing: Mrs. Byron Yaeger of Fenton, Michigan; Mrs. H. A. Bush of Grygla; Carl W. Holbrook, manager of the Co-operative store at Grygla; Mrs. L. E. Hill of Waukegan, Ill.; W. R. Holbrook, cashier of the State Bank of Warren; George H. Holbrook of Grygla; Laura of Waukegan, Ill.: Donald of International Falls and Ervin C. Holbrook of Grygla and several grandchildren.

While the bank was in operation at Grygla Mr. Holbrook was connected with the bank, later giving all his time to his farm duties a short distance west of Grygla, until a year ago when he retired and moved to Grygla.

Ever since last winter the end had seemed near but the spirit that had stood him in stead in pioneer life, caused him to linger suffering the infirmities that result from a failing heart. For several months it has been almost a miracle that he continued to live.

Funeral services will be held from Grygla Friday afternoon, when his large circle of friends will accompany his remains to their resting place. This publication joins in condolences to the bereaved family and friends.

Beaulah Bennes of Thief River Falls spent a few days at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. A. Bennes, this week after she had the misfortune of having a finger injured by having a car door slam shut ot it.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Reierson on Sunday morning, a boy.

Aalbu Speaks Here Today

R. M. Albu, former editor of the Tri-County Forum and assistant Chief Clerk of the 1937 Legislature will speak here today at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Aalbu will answere the false and misleading charges made against Governor Benson and Representative Emil Morberg and other liberal candidates

Mr. Albu states that in State Auditor Stafford King's report printed in the Minneapolis Star April 13, 1937 he stated that the expense of the 1937 session was $48,046 less than in 1935. Therefore you can see how unfounded some reports are that the legislature ran up the expenses in the last session.

Mr. Albu will also speak at Middle River at 12:30 today (Friday). Come and hear more about the Mud Barrage hurled at these men mentioned above.

Many Attend Mission Festival

The Silver Creek Lutheran Church was filled far beyond its capacity last Sunday when they had their annual Mission Festival and dinner. Many of those present had to remain outside due to lack of room. The pastor preached a Mission Sermon in the forenoon and Rev. Trelstad of Thief River Falls on "Reformation" in the afternoon. The Ladies Aid served a sumptious dinner at noon. The morning offering and the sale of dinner netted a fine sum to be used for Missions. Following the afternoon sessions, free lunch was served to all present. Almost every part of the county was represented, and also neighboring congregations.

Ludvig Larson and children his motner Mrs. Emma Larson and sister Amanda of Thief River Falls visited friends in Ringbo Monday evening and also attended the Ladies Aid sale in the Immanuel church.

Mrs. Geo. Moberg is visiting at the L. Reierson home.

Campaign Tour Saturday

The Farmer-Laborites of Marshall county will make a tour on Saturday which will mark the close of the campaign in this county. The tour will start at Warren on Saturday morning at 9:00 a. m. From there it will continue thru every village in the county stopping at Middle River for dinner.

The tour will arrive here at Holt at 3 p. m. and will go to Grygla and wind up at Gatzke at 5:30 where a large banquet will be held. The banquet will be in honor of Mr. Verner Nelson, Publisher of the Northern Minnesota Leader at Roseau, the Marshall County Star at Warren and Kelliher Progressive at Kelliher, for his faithful service to the people of eastern Marshall and western Beltrami counties.

The banquet committee at Gatzke who are Mrs. Eric Aune, Mrs. Ray Eastby and Mrs. Clarence Lian have extended an invitation to all who can come there. The banquet will start at 6 p. m. Tickets are 35 cents per per plate.

Will Buy Cow For Family

A committee consisting of business men of Holt and neighbor farmers and friends of the J. O. Johnson family started a list here recently for the purpose of soliciting donations from the people of this community to buy back a cow for them. As you will all recall that this family lost their entire herd a short time ago when their cows got hold of some Coopers sheep dip from which eight fine cows died.

H. O. Hanson was delegated to to circulate this list and we have at the present time gathered in $61.00 for the purpose stated If there is any one who has been missed in this soliciting and who wishes to contribution to this good cause, we would appreciate it very much if you would contact the editor of the News.

The editor of this paper wishes to thank those whom have given to this cause. It is hard to be left without cows for the winter, like in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson whom have a large family that needs milk.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Hammarsten of Highlanding visited at the Christ Engen and Ben Maijala homes last week.

The Ladies Aid of the Free Mission church will hold an Auction Sale of fancywork on November 11 at 8 p. m.

This occasion in past years has been outstanding in that it has had such lovely pieces of fancy work for sale. The ladies have again put much time and effort into making these articles and let us show our appreciation by being present at the sale.

TURKEYS

We start buying dressed Turkeys on Nov. 7 thru Nov. 12th on pool basis.

Will also do dressing at 10c per bird. Book your birds in advance. Turkeys must be free of feed.

We are buying for the Land O'Lakes this year.

Advance price will be announced later.

Roosevelt Endorses Benson

President Roosevelt has endorsed Governor Benson.

The endorsement came as an answer to a query by the working newspaper men and women in the Twin Cities and Duluth, who urged him to make his position on the Minnesota political campaign clear to all the people.

The endorsement was made clear when the President declared that if newspapers "are inferring that I have deliberately withheld approval from or disapproved the candidacy of your progressive Governor for re-election, they are of course misinterpreting my attitude."

Elmer A. Benson

Praising Governor Benson, and praising his "efforts to develope liberal governmental policies in Minnesota," President Roosevelt declared, "as a matter of ultimate good for the nation there is every reason why liberals thruout the nation should be working this year in the closest of harmonious co-operation."

The President's message came as a surprise to many of the state's shrewdest political observers, who predicted that Roosevelt would ignore the campaign in the state.

The reply from the White House came as an answer to a plea from 150 working newspaper men and women in the Twin Cities and Duluth to clarify his position on the real campaign issue in Minnesota.

The full text of the Presidenst's answer, which was sent to George W. Kelly of Duluth, co-chairman of the Working Newspapermen's Benson Volunteer committee, follows:

"This is my reply to the telegram you and your associates sent me on October 26. Will you please advise them.

I have read with great interest your telegram upon the character of the political campaign in Minnesota. Apart from every other consideration, it is encouraging to receive this further evidence that American newspaper men are taking an increasingly courageous and intelligent interest in the problems of government.

"If the political writers on Minnesota newpapers are inferring that I have deliberately withheld a approval from or dissapproved the candidacy of your progressive Governor for re-election, they are of course misinterpreting my attitude. I have repeatedly indicated the high esteem in which I hold Governor Benson, and the interest I take in his efforts to develop liberal governmental policies in Minnesota. There is no reason for the modification of that attitude."

"As a matter of ultimate good for the nation there is every reason why liberals throughout the nation should be working this year in the closest of harmonious cooperation."

Corn Husking Contest In Excel

A big corn husking contest is being held today on the Gust Hillyer farm in Excel Township four miles north of Thief River Falls. To go there from Holt you will find the place by going one mile east and two miles south of Steiner. Mr. Hillyer is farming on a large scale in that community and in the past summer raised some of the finest corn that has ever been grown in this part of the state. Several parties from here drove out to see his fields of Hybrid corn during the fall.

The husking contest will start at noon today and will be a spirited affair in as much as both young men and old timers will take part. Mr. Malberg, Excel farmer who is past 80 years will give the husking a try he told the News staff here on Monday.

We believe this to be the first corn husking contest ever staged in the eastern part of Marshall county and will draw a large crowd for the contest. Mr. Hillyer is to be commended for his fine job in raising the many varieties of corn here and which we are sure will be of benefit to other farmers in finding out which corn is most adapted to this section of the state.

Many Attend Supper & Sale

A crowd that packed the dining hall to full capacity attended the Lutefisk supper and Ladies Aid sale of the Thief Lake church east of Middle River on Friday evening. About two hundred people were served the fine supper. The Men's Club of the congregation served the supper and much credit is due them for the fine job they did.

After the supper the sale was held and many beautiful articles made by the ladies were sold. O. C. Brenna was the auctioneer of the evening. Many people from Holt as well as nearly every candidate running for office in this county attended the doings.

According to reports the net proceeds from the supper and sale amounted to about $90.00. Rev. Trelstad of Middle River is pastor of the congregation.

Had Fine Program And Sale

A crowd that filled the church to capacity attended the Ladies Aid sale in the Immanuel Church at Ringbo on Monday evening. Several people from here motored out there to spend the evening with that congregation.

A short program consisting of songs by the congregation and talks by Rev. Olson of Greenbush, their pastor, and Rev. Casperson of Minneapolis, Secretary of the Home Missions of the Lutheran Free church, was held before the sale commenced. Rev. Casperson is also editor of their church paper Folkebladet. He spoke on the asset of the church in rural communities and praised the Ringbo congregation for the faithful work they are doing there. Rev. Casperson took over the work as secretary of Home Missions some sixteen years ago while Rev. O. I. Raaum served the congregation here.

The Ladies Aid and others had worked many fine articles for the sale and are to be thanked for their cooperation in church work. E. O. Waagedahl was the auctioneer of the evening and did a fine job in selling the many beautiful articles offered.

Given Party Here Sunday

Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Nohre gathered at the Lutheran church here on Sunday afternoon and gave them a combination farewell party and wedding recepion. Mr. and Mrs. Nohre were married out on the west coast and had not been accorded the customary reception for newlyweds here. They came back to Holt late last year and have now moved to the vicinity of Karlstad. A short program consisting of an instrumental solo by Agnes Conklin, a reading by Alma Johnson and a talk by Mr. Thomson was held.

Mr. and Mrs. Nohre were presented with several beautiful gifts as a remembrance of the occasion.

By Virginia Vale

IN HOLLYWOOD there is a man named Jack Schulze who is one of the wizards of modern times, and it's dollars to doughnuts that you haven't the faintest notion who Jack Schulze is. He's art director for Edward Small Productions, which United Artists releases and here is a brief account of his latest exploit.

Small, producer of "The Duke of West Point," assigned him to a simple little task—just to transport the United States Military academy from West Point to Hollywood. And Schulze did it. That is, he built in Hollywood so perfect a replica of the academy that the West Point graduates who have come in hordes to visit the set felt that they were right back in college.

Perhaps you'll be interested in knowing how it was done. A camera crew was sent to West Point to make films of practically every inch of the academy. That ran into almost 50,000 feet of film, which showed the buildings, the grounds, and was a record of the sort of life that is led there. That's a lot of film, when you consider that the average feature picture, that runs for about an hour and a quarter, is 9,000 feet.

Each morning, before shooting a particular scene, Director Alfred E. Greene goes to his projection room and looks over pictures made under similar circumstances at West Point—pictures showing a day in the life of a cadet. Then he goes to the same spot on the set—there it is, waiting for him, whether it be in the mess hall or on Flirtation walk.

West Point's Michie stadium had to be reproduced for the picture's football game; Art Director Schulze and a crew of workmen did this in the interior of Pasadena's famous Rose Bowl. There's an ice hockey game too—and that set was built in the Polar palace, where Hollywood's stars go skating in their spare time.

Army experts approved the story of the picture. Its author, George Bruce, spent many weeks at West Point as the commandant's guest, and made volumes of notes for his story.

Hanging Shelves You Can Make of Spools

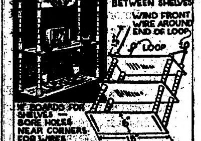
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

A letter received from a reader says, "I have found so many helpful things in your Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator, I wonder if you have any ideas on fixing up spools? I have in mind the spool book shelves and corner shelves they used long ago." It's probably the general revival of Victorian ideas in decoration that has started everyone thinking of spool shelves.

We seemed to remember that the shelves we had seen years ago in old parlors were put together with colored cords. We tried this but the shelves were not rigid as the cords stretched. So we used wire and the result has been a substantial set of shelves strong enough to hold reasonably heavy articles.



THREAD WIRES THROUGH SPOOLS BETWEEN SHELVES
WIND FRONT WIRE AROUND END OF LOOP
LOOP
¾" BOARDS FOR SHELVES — BORE HOLES NEAR CORNERS FOR WIRES

A little less than 12½ feet of wire was used for the shelves shown here. Two sizes of spools were used. Shelves, spools, wires and all were finally painted to match the brightest tone in the room color scheme—in our case it was peacock blue. There are picture directions like these on every page of Book No. 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. If your house is your hobby, it will be full of thrills for you. Don't go through the holidays with shabby curtains or slipcovers. This book illustrates every step in making new ones. Book 2: Novelties and Embroidery, shows how to make dozens of Christmas gifts from odds and ends of material. Books are 25 cents each. ## Call of the Winter Mode For Versatile Fur Styling

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SEEING the beauty, the elegance, the artistry, the charm and versatility of this season's fur fashions it would seem as if each and every designer is possessed with the idea that nothing short of a masterpiece must be turned out in order to meet the demands of a fastidious public.

It is a fact we are growing more exacting each year in regard to the furs we wear. We have come to expect of fur that it be styled with all the versatility of supple fabric, and that every phase of fashion from hats to shoes and even dresses (very smart ones are being turned out made all of thin supple fur) be expressed in terms of fur. The encouraging thing about it is that the new fashions in fur not only come up to expectations but they go far beyond.

This season it is not only that there are coats and jackets and various apparel wrought in fur but especial emphasis is being placed on "little furs" as they are often called. By which we mean the most charming little odd neckpieces and hats with bags to match and as for muffs, to be properly stylewise you really must carry a muff from now on until spring.

The new fur showings give the impression that furriers find it no "trick" at all to manipulate furs with as much sang-froid as if it were the most tractable and supple fabric. Note to the left in the picture an ultra smart suit tailored of black galyack. The pelts have been rendered as pliable as cloth and are here expertly worked in achieving this new box-jacket style with its graceful trim-fitting slenderizing skirt. The high hat is of black suede and galyack.

The double-breasted reefer new "longer" jacket centered in the group is in rich Persian lamb. This is an ultra chic style with the "new" look that makes it convincingly of 1938 vintage. The hat worn with it is also of Persian. It has an insert of bright grosgrain and little red leather motifs held with silver embroidery.

The smartest fashion going is the fur-jacket costume. There are such legions of fur jackets this season and they embrace every silhouette from bolero to the widely exploited "longer" jacket and the furs employed in making them run such a gamut of luxury and novelty, that the best one can hope to do is to touch a few highspots in describing them.

A new fur to some of us, guanaco by name, is receiving a lot of attention this season from the spectator sports angle. This tawny fur is attractively streaked with white. It is a natural guanaco that is so smartly used in the youthful sports jacket pictured in the foreground. The Breton worn with it is of multicolored hand-woven wool shaped into a rounded brim.

As to hats of fur if you keep pace with fashion a fur headpiece to complement your fur coat or your fur neckpiece or the fur trim on your dress becomes a necessary luxury.

Fits Like Glove

This charming satin evening gown is in a modish zinnia-rust color. The short puffed sleeves and the flaring skirt hemline are important style features. To say this exquisite dress, which made its debut at a style revue held in the Merchandise Mart, Chicago, "fits like a glove" is no idle boast for it does just that. The reason for its ideal moulded-to-the-form look is that it is fashioned across the bust and at the back of matalex satin quite after the manner of the amazing lastex form-fitting bathing suits that were such general favorites last summer.

Ostrich Restored To Ancient Glory

Comes again the ostrich upon the fashion scene, as naturally it must, since the current season is one of greater pomp and splendor. It is true Edwardian elegance that the new ostrich trims now bring into the fall and winter millinery picture. The tiny hats with the sweep of a single ostrich plume from back to front are amusingly quaint and wonderfully flattering. Have the fun of trying one on, you'll probably decide to buy it at first glance in the mirror.

Those cunning little tips of yore! See them this season clustered, prince of Wales fashion, atop tiny velvet evening caps or surmounting upswept curls that give the correct evening coiffure.

There is promise too, that intriguing ostrich neckwear and ostrich-trimmed evening wraps will frequent the winter fashion scene.

Fall Styles Call For New Corsetry

In the new silhouettes the trend is toward an uplift bustline, that gives more of a corseted figure. Since the call is for a slenderized waistline that extends into a sleek and slim body line up to the bust it is very necessary to look into this matter of the new corsetry that designers offer in order to conform to demands of a "different" figure from that heretofore advocated in fashion's realm.

New Season Laces Most Attractive

Among the lovely new laces brought out this season comes a most attractive sequin-embroidered type. Floral motifs patterned throughout are wide-spaced, giving a very new look. Each flower is worked in part with glittering sequins, color-matched to the lace. A dance frock in burgundy red lace worked in sequins in same color is something to covet.

Just a Little Smile

REMEMBERED INSTRUCTIONS

Little Johnny, aged four, had been receiving a lesson in politeness. His father told him: "And remember when you are in a bus and a lady comes in and cannot get a seat you must jump up and offer her your seat."

A few days later they were in a bus. It was very crowded. Johnny sat on his father's knee. People were filing in, and as a pretty young lady was standing, Johnny jumped up. "Take my seat, miss," he said.

Economy

Smythe-Brown arrived one evening with the gloomy news that his business affairs were in a sad state.

His wife was helpful.

"Well," she said brightly, "there's only one thing to do. We must cut down expenses. Now, how can I economize—I know! I won't wear that new diamond necklace to the theater tonight!"—Vancouver Sun.

MAKING A GUESS

"Charles says there is an intangible something about me that makes him love me."

"It's probably your suit."

A Proxy on Duty

It was an Irish judge who, just about to deliver an elaborate summing-up, noticed that there were only 11 men in the box.

"Where is the twelfth juror?" he asked, irritably.

"Oh, that's all right," said the foreman, genially. "He was called away on business early this morning, but he's left his verdict with me."

Just Like That

Lawyer—Then you admit that you struck the defendant with malice aforethought?"

Defendant, indignantly—You can't mix me up like that. I've told you twice I hit him with a brick, and on purpose. There wasn't no mallets nor nothin' of the kind about it—just a plain brick like any gentleman would use."

Not So Easy

A little girl was showing a visitor over her father's farm, and proudly pointed to a cow which, she said, was her very own.

"And does your cow give milk?" asked the visitor.

"Well, not exactly," replied the child. "You've sort of got to take it away from her."

Some Mistake

Rastus—Is yo' sure, Mr. Johnsing, dat was a marriage license yo' sold me last month?

Clerk Johnson—Certainly, Rastus. Why?

Rastus—Becaus' I'se led a dog's life ever since.

Imperfect

She—I was dreaming of the ideal machine—just press the button and all the work is done.

He—Yes, but who presses the button?

SILLY QUESTION

"Do you believe in women getting men's wages?"

"Great gosh, lady, ain't they bin gettin' 'em since the year one?"

Poetic

A pupil was asked to write a short verse using the words analyze and anatomy. Here's what he produced:

"My analyze over the ocean,
My analyze over the sea,
My analyze over the ocean—
O, bring back my anatomy!"

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Describes Food Value and Versatility of Gelatin; Outlines Its Many Uses in the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

WHEN we try to appraise the nutritional values of any one food in comparison with others, as a rule we have a difficult task. Most foodstuffs are composed of so many different substances that what is lacking in one will be supplied by another, and making comparisons may therefore be misleading as well as futile. But there is one food which is outstanding, not only because it is far less complex than most others, but because it is no exaggeration to say that without it, some of us might not be alive, and those of us who are alive would obtain far less enjoyment from our daily existence.

That food is gelatin!

What Is Gelatin?

Gelatin is a protein food which has no equal as a carrier, binder and "extender" of a wide variety of other nutritive materials. Chemically, it is classed as a colloid, which means that in solution, it can be removed from its solvent by filtration. It is because of this that it is so useful in producing smooth, delicious ice creams and other dainties, free from ice crystals.

Gelatin is an almost pure protein—a kind of protein known as an albuminoid. It is not a complete protein, because it is deficient in three of the amino acids that are necessary both to support growth and repair body tissues. In this it differs from meat, cheese, fish, eggs and milk, which are known as complete proteins.

It cannot be used as the sole source of protein in the diet, because those three missing amino acids are necessary for the formation of new body tissue. But it is especially rich in lysine, one of the protein building stones that is particularly important in the diet of children. Experiments indicate that no other amino acid can take the place of lysine and that it must be furnished by the food if adequate nutrition is to be maintained.

That coupled with the fact that it is non-irritating and easily digestible accounts for the large part it plays in the diet of infants and young children.

How It Is Made

Contrary to old wives' tales, gelatin is not made from hoofs and horns. In fact, there is no gelatin in hoofs or horns. It is extracted from connective tissue in the skins and from the bones of food animals.

Every homemaker who has made soup by simmering a knuckle bone for hours, and has found the soup "jellied" after standing overnight in the refrigerator, has prepared gelatin on a small scale. The same principles are followed by the gelatin manufacturer, only he operates in a much larger food kitchen, and each step of the preparation is scientifically controlled so as to insure a uniform finished product.

Gelatin is sold in two forms: the unflavored, granulated product which requires the addition of flavoring, and when used for dessert purposes, sweetening; and the gelatin dessert powders which contain added sugar, color, flavor and fruit acid. So popular are these convenient gelatin desserts, that about 10,000,000 pounds of gelatin are used annually for this purpose.

From Infancy to Old Age

Nutritionists recognize gelatin as a food possessing many unique advantages in the daily diet, and it is prescribed by physicians for a variety of special diets. Newborn babies, for example, are sometimes given a gelatin-sugar-salt solution which provides readily available protein to raise the protein level of the blood. When an infant cannot readily digest milk, owing to the formation of hard curds, the doctor may recommend the addition of 1 per cent of gelatin dissolved in the milk. This usually causes it to be assimilated easily and satisfactorily.

When it comes time to change a baby's food from liquids to solids, gelatin also proves useful, for its soft, semi-solid texture makes an excellent transitional food.

With toddlers and school children, gelatin — the carrier and "extender"—provides a splendid method for offering foods that are disliked. Vegetables that draw forth protests when presented in the usual fashion are eaten with relish when molded into a sparkling lime- or lemon-flavored salad. The coarse texture of certain raw vegetables, such as carrots and cabbage, or the tart flavor of some fruits, may likewise be modified by serving them in a gelatin base.

And it doesn't require statistics from nursery schools to tell mothers how readily children eat gelatin desserts when they are brilliant with color and flavored with orange, raspberry, cherry, strawberry or other well liked flavors. Every mother knows this from her own experience—and I rather suspect that many mothers describe these attractive molded desserts as the prize to be won in return for cleaning the plate of the main course!

In the Reducing Diet

Both men and women who are counting their calories, in an effort to avoid overweight, or to reduce, can profit by taking gelatin salads and desserts, which satisfy hunger without providing unwanted fuel value.

In cases of digestive disturbance, gelatin is frequently recommended because of its bland taste, and because it leaves no residue in the lower intestinal tract.

This same splendid food is also advised by doctors when a high protein diet is desired to speed growth, or during convalescence from an illness. Gelatin may be added to broths, milk, fruit and vegetables, and these, in turn, may be incorporated in solidified gelatin.

Indeed, this many-sided foodstuff has come to play such a wide and varied role in nutrition, not only by itself but by enhancing the value of other foods, that it must be numbered among the products that help to increase national health and vigor.

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. B. L.—Even in the so-called goiter belt, simple goiter may usually be prevented by the administration of small amounts of iodine to every young girl, before and during adolescence, and also to expectant and nursing mothers. The amount required is quite small and may be given by a physician in the form of iodized salt.

Miss A. M. G.—Bran is considered an excellent source of both iron and phosphorus.

Building, Maintaining Healthy Teeth

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

It is an alarming fact that almost every adult in this great land of ours is affected by some form of oral disease, and that more than 90 per cent of our school children have decayed teeth. A prominent medical authority made the statement that if dental decay became rare, instead of almost universal, more than half of all sickness would be eliminated.

Remarkable and widely heralded advances have been made in our knowledge of how to control and prevent many dangerous and debilitating diseases. A decayed tooth is a poison factory, distributing its noxious product to every part of the body. In the body, that poison attacks and centers in the weakest spot. It may lead to neuritis, rheumatic ailments, dyspepsia, or duodenal ulcers. It may even be a contributing cause of heart disease.

Only a small percentage of our population is yet aware of the far-reaching effects of teeth upon health. There is a close relationship between healthy teeth and healthy bodies, and between decayed teeth and sickly bodies.

By learning something of the importance of caring properly for the teeth, some men and women of middle age look and feel younger than their parents did at the same age.

I have endeavored in many of the WHAT TO EAT AND WHY articles, which have appeared in this newspaper over my signature, to point out the close relationship between diet and dental disease; between frequent and thorough brushing of the teeth with an efficient dentifrice so as to remove all food particles, and strong, beautiful teeth.

I have received many letters from readers of these articles, showing that homemakers are eager for sound, authoritative advice on the proper care of the teeth. To help these and other readers to know how to properly care for their teeth, I have prepared a booklet on BUILDING AND MAINTAINING HEALTHY TEETH which I am offering FREE, because I feel so strongly that this information should be in every home, knowing as I do, that the salvation of the human race may lie in saving their teeth. Address, C. Houston Goudiss, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

New All-Day-Long Dresses

THESE two designs are so good looking and slim-lined that you'll enjoy wearing them for shopping and runabout as well as at home. Make whichever one you like the best not only in such sturdy cottons as percale and calico, but in challis, jersey or flat crepe. In warm wintry colors, with fresh white accents, they'll look extremely pretty and smart. Both are easy to make as boiled dressing. Each pattern includes a detailed sew chart.

Buttoned Down the Front.

This softened version of the classic shirtwaist has fullness over the bust and a slight blouse at the waistline, which makes it easy to wear as well as to work in. The skirt has a nice flare to it. Shrugged shoulder sleeves and white cuffs and collar add to the crisp, smart look, and make it more becoming. You'll find the capacious patch pockets very handy!

For Large Figures.

Here's one of the most becoming and comfortable work dresses you ever had on, if you're in the 36 to 52 size range. Every detail is designed to give you freedom of movement, and to make you look thin. The armholes are ample. The darted waistline looks slim without being tight, and it blouses just a bit for greater ease. The scalloped front, braid-trimmed edges and white collar (with long lines, becoming to full faces) trim it up just enough. This is a diagram design, so you can turn off half a dozen of it in no time!

The Patterns.

1618 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. With long sleeves, size 16 requires 4¾ yards of 39-inch material; ⅝ yard for contrasting collar and cuffs; 2 yards of braid. With short sleeves 4¼ yards.

1624 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material; ½ yard for contrasting collar; 3 yards braid for trimming.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

By Virginia Vale

IN HOLLYWOOD there is a man named Jack Schulze who is one of the wizards of modern times, and it's dollars to doughnuts that you haven't the faintest notion who Jack Schulze is. He's art director for Edward Small Productions, which United Artists releases and here is a brief account of his latest exploit.

Small, producer of "The Duke of West Point," assigned him to a simple little task—just to transport the United States Military academy from West Point to Hollywood. And Schulze did it. That is, he built in Hollywood so perfect a replica of the academy that the West Point graduates who have come in hordes to visit the set felt that they were right back in college.

Perhaps you'll be interested in knowing how it was done. A camera crew was sent to West Point to make films of practically every inch of the academy. That ran into almost 50,000 feet of film, which showed the buildings, the grounds, and was a record of the sort of life that is led there. That's a lot of film, when you consider that the average feature picture, that runs for about an hour and a quarter, is 9,000 feet.

Each morning, before shooting a particular scene, Director Alfred E. Greene goes to his projection room and looks over pictures made under similar circumstances at West Point—pictures showing a day in the life of a cadet. Then he goes to the same spot on the set—there it is, waiting for him, whether it be in the mess hall or on Flirtation walk.

West Point's Michie stadium had to be reproduced for the picture's football game; Art Director Schulze and a crew of workmen did this in the interior of Pasadena's famous Rose Bowl. There's an ice hockey game too—and that set was built in the Polar palace, where Hollywood's stars go skating in their spare time.

Army experts approved the story of the picture. Its author, George Bruce, spent many weeks at West Point as the commandant's guest, and made volumes of notes for his story.

He did it. He gets four miles to the gallon now!

Twelve years ago Hal Roach threw Wheeling, W. Va., into a dither, when he arrived there looking for a double for Baby Peggy. He finally chose Mrs. Wyn's little girl, Nan.

Nan is now one of CBS's prize singers. She opened at a New York night club. She received a carload of floral tributes—among them a huge bouquet with which was enclosed an old photograph of her made up as Baby Peggy.

Bob Burns, substituting for Bing Crosby as master of ceremonies on their radio program during the summer, did so well—with a lot of help from a lot of other swell people—that the program stayed in third place in the popularity ratings.

Now that Bing has returned he's giving more attention to his farm. He has six acres in the San Fernando valley, and it's a real farm. Instead of a swimming pool (fancy a movie star without one!) he's building an extra-special barn. He's going in for the best farm equipment that money can buy, and he's going to market potatoes.

Those popularity polls are interesting. Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy hold their program in first place among the hour-long broadcasts; "The Radio Theater," Monday nights from Hollywood, is second. The Vallee Varieties is fourth of the big shows, Major Bowes' amateurs are fifth.

Hanging Shelves You Can Make of Spools

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

A letter received from a reader says, "I have found so many helpful things in your Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator, I wonder if you have any ideas on fixing up spools? I have in mind the spool book shelves and corner shelves they used long ago." It's probably the general revival of Victorian ideas in decoration that has started everyone thinking of spool shelves.

We seemed to remember that the shelves we had seen years ago in old parlors were put together with colored cords. We tried this but the shelves were not rigid as the cords stretched. So we used wire and the result has been a substantial set of shelves strong enough to hold reasonably heavy articles.

A little less than 12½ feet of wire was used for the shelves shown here. Two sizes of spools were used. Shelves, spools, wires and all were finally painted to match the brightest tone in the room color scheme—in our case it was peacock blue. There are picture directions like these on every page of Book No. 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. If your house is your hobby, it will be full of thrills for you. Don't go through the holidays with shabby curtains or slipcovers. This book illustrates every step in making new ones. ## Call of the Winter Mode For Versatile Fur Styling

SEEING the beauty, the elegance, the artistry, the charm and versatility of this season's fur fashions it would seem as if each and every designer is possessed with the idea that nothing short of a masterpiece must be turned out in order to meet the demands of a fastidious public.

It is a fact we are growing more exacting each year in regard to the furs we wear. We have come to expect of fur that it be styled with all the versatility of supple fabric, and that every phase of fashion from hats to shoes and even dresses (very smart ones are being turned out made all of thin supple fur) be expressed in terms of fur. The encouraging thing about it is that the new fashions in fur not only come up to expectations but they go far beyond.

This season it is not only that there are coats and jackets and various apparel wrought in fur but especial emphasis is being placed on "little furs" as they are often called. By which we mean the most charming little odd neckpieces and hats with bags to match and as for muffs, to be properly stylewise you really must carry a muff from now on until spring.

The new fur showings give the impression that furriers find it no "trick" at all to manipulate furs with as much sang-froid as if it were the most tractable and supple fabric. Note to the left in the picture an ultra smart suit tailored of black galyack. The pelts have been rendered as pliable as cloth and are here expertly worked in achieving this new box-jacket style with its graceful trim-fitting slenderizing skirt. The high hat is of black suede and galyack.

The double-breasted reefer new "longer" jacket centered in the group is in rich Persian lamb. This is an ultra chic style with the "new" look that makes it convincingly of 1938 vintage. The hat worn with it is also of Persian. It has an insert of bright grosgrain and little red leather motifs held with silver embroidery.

The smartest fashion going is the fur-jacket costume. There are such legions of fur jackets this season and they embrace every silhouette from bolero to the widely exploited "longer" jacket and the furs employed in making them run such a gamut of luxury and novelty, that the best one can hope to do is to touch a few highspots in describing them.

A new fur to some of us, guanaco by name, is receiving a lot of attention this season from the spectator sports angle. This tawny fur is attractively streaked with white. It is a natural guanaco that is so smartly used in the youthful sports jacket pictured in the foreground. The Breton worn with it is of multicolored hand-woven wool shaped into a rounded brim.

As to hats of fur if you keep pace with fashion a fur headpiece to complement your fur coat or your fur neckpiece or the fur trim on your dress becomes a necessary luxury.

Fits Like Glove

This charming satin evening gown is in a modish zinnia-rust color. The short puffed sleeves and the flaring skirt hemline are important style features. To say this exquisite dress, which made its debut at a style revue held in the Merchandise Mart, Chicago, "fits like a glove" is no idle boast for it does just that. The reason for its ideal moulded-to-the-form look is that it is fashioned across the bust and at the back of matalex satin quite after the manner of the amazing lastex form-fitting bathing suits that were such general favorites last summer.

Ostrich Restored To Ancient Glory

Comes again the ostrich upon the fashion scene, as naturally it must, since the current season is one of greater pomp and splendor. It is true Edwardian elegance that the new ostrich trims now bring into the fall and winter millinery picture. The tiny hats with the sweep of a single ostrich plume from back to front are amusingly quaint and wonderfully flattering. Have the fun of trying one on, you'll probably decide to buy it at first glance in the mirror.

Those cunning little tips of yore! See them this season clustered, prince of Wales fashion, atop tiny velvet evening caps or surmounting upswept curls that give the correct evening coiffure.

There is promise too, that intriguing ostrich neckwear and ostrich-trimmed evening wraps will frequent the winter fashion scene.

Fall Styles Call For New Corsetry

In the new silhouettes the trend is toward an uplift bustline, that gives more of a corseted figure. Since the call is for a slenderized waistline that extends into a sleek and slim body line up to the bust it is very necessary to look into this matter of the new corsetry that designers offer in order to conform to demands of a "different" figure from that heretofore advocated in fashion's realm.

New Season Laces Most Attractive

Among the lovely new laces brought out this season comes a most attractive sequin-embroidered type. Floral motifs patterned throughout are wide-spaced, giving a very new look. Each flower is worked in part with glittering sequins, color-matched to the lace. A dance frock in burgundy red lace worked in sequins in same color is something to covet.

Just a Little Smile

REMEMBERED INSTRUCTIONS

Little Johnny, aged four, had been receiving a lesson in politeness. His father told him: "And remember when you are in a bus and a lady comes in and cannot get a seat you must jump up and offer her your seat."

A few days later they were in a bus. It was very crowded. Johnny sat on his father's knee. People were filing in, and as a pretty young lady was standing, Johnny jumped up. "Take my seat, miss," he said.

Economy

Smythe-Brown arrived one evening with the gloomy news that his business affairs were in a sad state. His wife was helpful.

"Well," she said brightly, "there's only one thing to do. We must cut down expenses. Now, how can I economize—I know! I won't wear that new diamond necklace to the theater tonight!"—Vancouver Sun.

MAKING A GUESS

"Charles says there is an intangible something about me that makes him love me."

"It's probably your suit."

A Proxy on Duty

It was an Irish judge who, just about to deliver an elaborate summing-up, noticed that there were only 11 men in the box.

"Where is the twelfth juror?" he asked, irritably.

"Oh, that's all right," said the foreman, genially. "He was called away on business early this morning, but he's left his verdict with me."

Just Like That

Lawyer—Then you admit that you struck the defendant with malice aforethought?"

Defendant, indignantly—You can't mix me up like that. I've told you twice I hit him with a brick, and on purpose. There wasn't no mallets nor nothin' of the kind about it—just a plain brick like any gentleman would use."

Not So Easy

A little girl was showing a visitor over her father's farm, and proudly pointed to a cow which, she said, was her very own.

"And does your cow give milk?" asked the visitor.

"Well, not exactly," replied the child. "You've sort of got to take it away from her."

Some Mistake

Rastus—Is yo' sure, Mr. Johnsing, dat was a marriage license yo' sold me last month?

Clerk Johnson—Certainly, Rastus. Why?

Rastus—Becaus' I'se led a dog's life ever since.

Imperfect

She—I was dreaming of the ideal machine—just press the button and all the work is done.

He—Yes, but who presses the button?

SILLY QUESTION

"Do you believe in women getting men's wages?"

"Great gosh, lady, ain't they bin gettin' 'em since the year one?"

Poetic

A pupil was asked to write a short verse using the words analyze and anatomy. Here's what he produced:

"My analyze over the ocean,
My analyze over the sea,
My analyze over the ocean—
O, bring back my anatomy!"

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Describes Food Value and Versatility of Gelatin; Outlines Its Many Uses in the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

WHEN we try to appraise the nutritional values of any one food in comparison with others, as a rule we have a difficult task. Most foodstuffs are composed of so many different substances that what is lacking in one will be supplied by another, and making comparisons may therefore be misleading as well as futile. But there is one food which is outstanding, not only because it is far less complex than most others, but because it is no exaggeration to say that without it, some of us might not be alive, and those of us who are alive would obtain far less enjoyment from our daily existence.

That food is gelatin!

What Is Gelatin?

Gelatin is a protein food which has no equal as a carrier, binder and "extender" of a wide variety of other nutritive materials. Chemically, it is classed as a colloid, which means that in solution, it can be removed from its solvent by filtration. It is because of this that it is so useful in producing smooth, delicious ice creams and other dainties, free from ice crystals.

Gelatin is an almost pure protein—a kind of protein known as an albuminoid. It is not a complete protein, because it is deficient in three of the amino acids that are necessary both to support growth and repair body tissues. In this it differs from meat, cheese, fish, eggs and milk, which are known as complete proteins.

It cannot be used as the sole source of protein in the diet, because those three missing amino acids are necessary for the formation of new body tissue. But it is especially rich in lysine, one of the protein building stones that is particularly important in the diet of children. Experiments indicate that no other amino acid can take the place of lysine and that it must be furnished by the food if adequate nutrition is to be maintained.

That coupled with the fact that it is non-irritating and easily digestible accounts for the large part it plays in the diet of infants and young children.

How It Is Made

Contrary to old wives' tales, gelatin is not made from hoofs and horns. In fact, there is no gelatin in hoofs or horns. It is extracted from connective tissue in the skins and from the bones of food animals.

Every homemaker who has made soup by simmering a knuckle bone for hours, and has found the soup "jellied" after standing overnight in the refrigerator, has prepared gelatin on a small scale. The same principles are followed by the gelatin manufacturer, only he operates in a much larger food kitchen, and each step of the preparation is scientifically controlled so as to insure a uniform finished product.

Gelatin is sold in two forms: the unflavored, granulated product which requires the addition of flavoring, and when used for dessert purposes, sweetening; and the gelatin dessert powders which contain added sugar, color, flavor and fruit acid. So popular are these convenient gelatin desserts, that about 10,000,000 pounds of gelatin are used annually for this purpose.

From Infancy to Old Age

Nutritionists recognize gelatin as a food possessing many unique advantages in the daily diet, and it is prescribed by physicians for a variety of special diets. Newborn babies, for example, are sometimes given a gelatin-sugar-salt solution which provides readily available protein to raise the protein level of the blood. When an infant cannot readily digest milk, owing to the formation of hard curds, the doctor may recommend the addition of 1 per cent of gelatin dissolved in the milk. This usually causes it to be assimilated easily and satisfactorily.

When it comes time to change a baby's food from liquids to solids, gelatin also proves useful, for its soft, semi-solid texture makes an excellent transitional food.

With toddlers and school children, gelatin — the carrier and "extender"—provides a splendid method for offering foods that are disliked. Vegetables that draw forth protests when presented in the usual fashion are eaten with relish when molded into a sparkling lime- or lemon-flavored salad. The coarse texture of certain raw vegetables, such as carrots and cabbage, or the tart flavor of some fruits, may likewise be modified by serving them in a gelatin base.

And it doesn't require statistics from nursery schools to tell mothers how readily children eat gelatin desserts when they are brilliant with color and flavored with orange, raspberry, cherry, strawberry or other well liked flavors. Every mother knows this from her own experience—and I rather suspect that many mothers describe these attractive molded desserts as the prize to be won in return for cleaning the plate of the main course!

In the Reducing Diet

Both men and women who are counting their calories, in an effort to avoid overweight, or to reduce, can profit by taking gelatin salads and desserts, which satisfy hunger without providing unwanted fuel value.

In cases of digestive disturbance, gelatin is frequently recommended because of its bland taste, and because it leaves no residue in the lower intestinal tract.

This same splendid food is also advised by doctors when a high protein diet is desired to speed growth, or during convalescence from an illness. Gelatin may be added to broths, milk, fruit and vegetables, and these, in turn, may be incorporated in solidified gelatin.

Indeed, this many-sided foodstuff has come to play such a wide and varied role in nutrition, not only by itself but by enhancing the value of other foods, that it must be numbered among the products that help to increase national health and vigor.

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. B. L.—Even in the so-called goiter belt, simple goiter may usually be prevented by the administration of small amounts of iodine to every young girl, before and during adolescence, and also to expectant and nursing mothers. The amount required is quite small and may be given by a physician in the form of iodized salt.

Building, Maintaining Healthy Teeth

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

It is an alarming fact that almost every adult in this great land of ours is affected by some form of oral disease, and that more than 90 per cent of our school children have decayed teeth. A prominent medical authority made the statement that if dental decay became rare, instead of almost universal, more than half of all sickness would be eliminated.

Remarkable and widely heralded advances have been made in our knowledge of how to control and prevent many dangerous and debilitating diseases. A decayed tooth is a poison factory, distributing its noxious product to every part of the body. In the body, that poison attacks and centers in the weakest spot. It may lead to neuritis, rheumatic ailments, dyspepsia, or duodenal ulcers. It may even be a contributing cause of heart disease.

Only a small percentage of our population is yet aware of the far-reaching effects of teeth upon health. There is a close relationship between healthy teeth and healthy bodies, and between decayed teeth and sickly bodies.

By learning something of the importance of caring properly for the teeth, some men and women of middle age look and feel younger than their parents did at the same age.

I have endeavored in many of the WHAT TO EAT AND WHY articles, which have appeared in this newspaper over my signature, to point out the close relationship between diet and dental disease; between frequent and thorough brushing of the teeth with an efficient dentifrice so as to remove all food particles, and strong, beautiful teeth.

I have received many letters from readers of these articles, showing that homemakers are eager for sound, authoritative advice on the proper care of the teeth. To help these and other readers to know how to properly care for their teeth, I have prepared a booklet on BUILDING AND MAINTAINING HEALTHY TEETH which I am offering FREE, because I feel so strongly that this information should be in every home, knowing as I do, that the salvation of the human race may lie in saving their teeth. Address, C. Houston Goudiss, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

New All-Day-Long Dresses

THESE two designs are so good looking and slim-lined that you'll enjoy wearing them for shopping and runabout as well as at home. Make whichever one you like the best not only in such sturdy cottons as percale and calico, but in challis, jersey or flat crepe. In warm wintry colors, with fresh white accents, they'll look extremely pretty and smart. Both are easy to make as boiled dressing. Each pattern includes a detailed sew chart.

Buttoned Down the Front.

This softened version of the classic shirtwaist has fullness over the bust and a slight blouse at the waistline, which makes it easy to wear as well as to work in. The skirt has a nice flare to it. Shrugged shoulder sleeves and white cuffs and collar add to the crisp, smart look, and make it more becoming. You'll find the capacious patch pockets very handy!

For Large Figures.

Here's one of the most becoming and comfortable work dresses you ever had on, if you're in the 36 to 52 size range. Every detail is designed to give you freedom of movement, and to make you look thin. The armholes are ample. The darted waistline looks slim without being tight, and it blouses just a bit for greater ease. The scalloped front, braid-trimmed edges and white collar (with long lines, becoming to full faces) trim it up just enough. This is a diagram design, so you can turn off half a dozen of it in no time!

The Patterns.

1618 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. With long sleeves, size 16 requires 4¾ yards of 39-inch material; ⅝ yard for contrasting collar and cuffs; 2 yards of braid. With short sleeves 4¼ yards.

1624 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material; ½ yard for contrasting collar; 3 yards braid for trimming.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

U. S. Representative in Congress

Endorsed by thousands of farmers workers, independent and small business men, veterans, farm organization officials and leaders, members of the clergy and the priesthood; old age pension plan organizations and their leaders.

Buckler Pledges Continued Support of and Advocates:

—lower interest rates on farm mortgages and farm loans and the Frazier-Lemke Refinancing Bill.

—the bill fixing guaranteed minimum prices for farm products; cost of production plus a fair margin extra for the farmer and his family.

—enlargement of the research and farm products and farm wastes industrial program passed by the last session of Congress.

—a fairer, better and more equitable soil conservation program.

—more liberal and adequate national federal old age pensions with less "red tape".

—fairer treatment for disabled veterans, widows and orphans.

—further legislation in behalf of the independent merchant and the small business man.

—a general federal aid for rural, village and city schools.

—favor additonal silver legislation to raise agricultural prices.

—a living annual wage for labor and jobs for the unemployed.

—greater opportunities for young men and women.

—government ownership and operation of munitions plants as a means to peace and the prevention of encouragement of war for private profit.

—no more tax-exempt securities and bonds.

For clean substantial liberal Americanism and honest efficient and experienced representation in the United States Congress

HIGHWAY 89 IMPROVEMENT IS NEAR COMPLETION

Improvement of Highway 89 east of Grygla in Beltrami County is nearly completed. The Lund Construction company of Thief River Falls have had a large dragline busy the last week and the heavy construction was to be completed by Wednesday morning.

More than three-fourths of a mile of construction of standard grade has been made the first mile in Beltrami County which roadway was impassible every spring during the breakup. The construction resulted from the visit of a delegation to Mr. Elsberg composed of H. O. Hanson of Holt, Ervin Anderson, Harold Bush and Sidney Fladeland and others some weeks ago.

Another improvement on Highway 89 on the Randeen Ridge and between the Roseau County line and the first corner in Rollis township is also nearing completion and as a result an all-weather highway will soon invite the traveling public between Roseau and Bemidji. Mr. Elsberg and his assistants are to be congratulated for their fine work.

WHY VOTE ON AMENDMENT NO. 1

Amendment No. 1 on the ballot this November would authorize the state to exchange lands with other owners. The measure is no political in any way but merely a necessary step in a constructive program. Similar amendments have been passed by four preceeding legislatures and have failed of enactment only because the public was not sufficiently well informed to vote on them. Always a preponderance of those indicating their views on the amendment have been in favor of it. Failure to pass has resulted merely because, according to the law, those not voting must be counted as opposing the amendment.

Here, then, is a measure which those interested in conservation must take positive action on, if they do not wish to be counted by the tally men as opposing progress.

The amendment is merely permissive. An actual program of land exchanges will have to be inaugurated by additional state legislation after approval of the amendment.

Conservation Commissioner Wenzel has given assurance to interested counties that he would not proceed with any exchanges in their county without county approval, thus insuring the local people a voice in what is done with state land in their community. Exchanges would be made on the basis of equal values, thus insuring the state in preserving the total value of its public lands.

Rev. Hanson spent Tuesday and Wednesday at Pine Creek attending the Circuit meeting.

Mr. Orrin E. Peck or Boyesville, Wisconsin arrived Tuesday to visit at the home of his niece and nephew Mr. and Mrs. H. Moberg.

Vote For Carl O. KNUTSON For AUDITOR Marshall County

To Voters of Marshall County:

I wish to take this opportunity of expressing my appreciation to the people of Marshall County for the many courtesies I have received during the present campaign, which is now drawing to a close. I have tried to meet as many of you personally as time would permit, and am only sorry I could not meet all of you, but that has been impossible. I am very greatful for the endorsement I received at the primary election. In and around Warren where my opponent and I both live, and are probably the best known, I received the following vote, as compared to that of my opponent:

| | Carl O. Knutson | Levi Johnson |
|---|---|---|
| Boxville | 23 | 6 |
| Comstock | 42 | 25 |
| McCrea | 59 | 38 |
| Warrenton | 32 | 14 |
| Warren | 375 | 175 |
| Total | 529 | 258 |

If elected as County Auditor, I assure all the voters of Marshall County that I shall try to repay the confidence so manifested in me by devoting all my time to efficiently and courteously performing the duties of this important office. I would greatly appreciate your continued support and vote.

Sincerely yours,

Carl O. Knutson

Reared on a farm, Harold E. Stassen has always kept close to the soil and the men who work. Here he is shown talking over important problems with his father, William A. Stassen, Dakota county farmer.

The New Leader Minnesota Needs

From a Dakota county farm has come a new leader with a new and forward-looking program. In a time when bitterness and appeals to prejudices fill the air, Harold E. Stassen says to the voters of Minnesota:

"Instead of stirring up class hatreds and intolerance, instead of tearing down, let us unite our energies and work together to build a greater Minnesota."

Attracted by this sound and sensible attitude and impressed by his sincerity, men and women of all parties are flocking to his support. Here, they say, is the new leader Minnesota needs.

Endorsed by Petersen Supporters

Farmer-Labor supporters of Hjalmar Petersen from all congressional districts, meeting in Minneapolis, voted to endorse Harold E. Stassen. "He is carrying on the same fight for clean, honest and efficient government that Petersen fought for," they said. Democrats and independent voters as well are turning to Stassen. We must defeat the radical, irresponsible political machine in the state capital, they say, and give the government back to the people. Men and women of the republican party, reorganized and revitalized, are carrying on with new enthusiasm. The campaign led by Harold Stassen has become a "people's crusade." Give it your support.

At Least Five Tax Measures To Get Congressional Hearing

By Joseph W. La Bine

White House

Inconveniently close to election day have come piecemeal reports and offhand predictions concerning the U. S. fiscal situation. When President Roosevelt talks finance before congress on January 3, he may ask almost anything. But right now, as the President busies himself with budget planning, he can be guided by facts and forecasts:

Facts: Despite upswinging business, the U. S. treasury deficit for the current fiscal year jumped above one billion dollars October 20, leaping forward several million dollars a day. Gold reserves, mounting since the European scare, hit $14,008,236,361. Revised, the 1939 fiscal deficit prediction stands at $3,984,000,000, second largest in New Deal history. By next June 30, when the fiscal year ends, the U. S. public debt will hit $40,000,000,000, compared with $16,800,000,000 in June, 1931.

SECRETARY MORGENTHAU
Coolest of all concerned . . .

Forecast: Though "pump-priming" will help business, the 1940 budget will be unabalanced. Only by continued spending can the administration hold a mass vote for the 1940 election, thereby forestalling the normal swing to Republicanism. But it is far more painful to pay than merely file away the bill, and next winter's congressmen will present at least five new methods of making John Public pay:

(1) A 10 per cent "one shot" income tax levy to garner $263,000,000 needed for increased armament; (2) a processing tax to pay for the agriculture department's proposed "domestic dumping" program for crop surpluses; (3) removal of tax exemption from future issues of federal, state and local bonds, also on official salaries; (4) extension of social security to include farm laborers, domestics, bank employees, seamen, self-employers, etc.; (5) lowering of income tax exemptions under $1,000.

Coolest of all concerned with fiscal affairs has been the man in direct charge, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. Unworried by mounting gold reserves, he has chosen not to deny the hope that next year's budget may be balanced.

War

With 42,000 troops, Japan covered 100 miles in nine days, capturing Canton without dropping a single bomb. Such peaceful aggression has hitherto been unheard of in the Chinese war, giving rise to charges of a Cantonese "sellout." British, whose nearby crown colony of Hongkong is seriously damaged by the new Japanese conquest, claim the military governor of Canton betrayed his trust for a handsome fee. Communistic Chinese choose instead to blame Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek for withdrawing Canton's crack troops into the Hankow battle sector.

But these squabbles have become secondary to China's completely despairing picture. With both Canton and Hankow in their grab bag, Japs intend to push on until all Chinese opposition crumbles. Generalissimo Chiang is ready to resign, and the brave nation's amazing defense is about to crumble under internal strife.

Virtually sneering at Great Britain's charge of a Cantonese "sellout," angry Chinese trace their fast-sinking morale directly to Great Britain's own "sellout" at Munich, when it became apparent the British lion was unwilling to help her European neighbors—much less a distant nation.

Labor

Second only to taxation in unpopularity among U. S. industrialists is the national labor relations board, which last April 9 ordered Republic Steel to reinstate 5,000 workers who struck in May, 1937. To correct possible technical errors, NLRB quickly withdrew its first order and held more hearings which critics termed "star chamber" proceedings. What NLRB gained by its second five-month hearing is a mystery, since a new order—substantially the same—was handed down recently. The result may be an important test of NLRB's power, for Republic Steel has already filed an appeal with the U. S. circuit court of appeals. What stuck in many an impartial observer's gullet was NLRB's denial of the Republic contention that many workers should not be reinstated because they engaged in violence. Answered NLRB: "It must be remembered that the acts of which the respondent (Republic) complains were committed by strikers in the heat and turmoil of bitter industrial strife, in which the threat of violence on the part of the respondent against the strikers was ever present and frequently carried into execution."

Domestic

The new wage-hour law affecting the lives of some 11,000,000 people engaged in interstate commerce industries, has gone into effect with much less bluster and coercion than the ill-fated NRA. Placing a floor (25 cents an hour) under wages, and a ceiling (44 a week) over hours, the act brings pay raises to 750,000 people, with shorter hours for 1,500,000 more. Responsible for the act's smooth inauguration has been Administrator Elmer F. Andrews, whose slow-moving policy has left many employers puzzled over their compliance requirements, but has nevertheless been a potent force in encouraging peace between government and business. Since NRA was outlawed because it attempted to regulate intrastate as well as interstate commerce, the administration hopes each state will formulate its own fair labor act, thereby making the national-state program complete. But wage-hour regulation is due for headaches before its numerous "bugs" are removed. At Austin, Texas, where several thousand low-salaried pecan shellers were thrown out of work, and in Puerto Rico, where 120,000 more workers were ousted, laborers wondered if low wages weren't better than none.

Politics

In an organization the size of WPA, corruption will creep in regardless of who holds the reins. Spasmodically pecking away at New Deal prestige for three years, corruption has again raised its ugly head at the crucial election time. In New Jersey, where Fascist-like Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City is the Democratic party's head man, indictments have been returned against 16 corporations and 32 persons. The charge: conspiracy to defraud WPA of $250,000 in purchase of sand and stone.

But a much more distasteful case has arisen in New Mexico, where a crusading grand jury returned indictments against 73 persons charged with making political capital of WPA. Behind this wicked picture stands Democratic Sen. Dennis Chavez, who, like every other senator, has wangled every possible cent of WPA cash for his home state. New Mexico's indictments naturally do not touch Senator Chavez, but they strike very close to home. Among indictees are his sister, his son-in-law and his cousin. The charge: use of threat and intimidation against WPA employees, enforced political contribution on pain of discharge for noncompliance, enforced membership in political clubs disguised as "social" organizations and diversion of WPA funds for personal use.

NEW MEXICO'S CHAVEZ
Lightning struck close to home.

● Indictment in one form or another is almost a prerequisite for nomination in Pennsylvania, where Republican Sen. James J. Davis (once indicted for running a Moose lottery) and Democratic Gov. George H. Earle (indicted for alleged graft in office) are opposing each other for the senatorial seat. Although Pennsylvania tax payers have good reason to dislike their Democratic state administration, observers are wondering whether the opulent Republican machine has very much more political prestige. Reason: The five "angels" of Pennsylvania Republicanism are Joseph N. Pew, oil millionaire; Moses I. Annenberg, Philadelphia newspaper publisher who has purchased an immense interest in the party; Ernest T. Weir of steel fame; Jay Cooke, rich Philadelphia political leader, and Joseph N. Grundy, a reactionary of amazing tenacity. Without bothering to question the motives of these men, shrewd politicians nevertheless recognize that in 1938 a quintet of millionaire sponsors is an unpopular asset for any party.

Agriculture

One feature of the 1938 farm bill calls for U. S. loans on crops affected by falling prices. When crops are sold, loans must be repaid. Due November 1 were repayments on loans covering 48,000,000 bushels of corn. But by mid-October, with corn selling on the farm from 33 to 38 cents, and at market for 44 cents, disgusted farmers saw they would be money ahead to default on loans and give Uncle Sam their corn. Thus, overnight, the U. S. government became the world's largest corn broker.

This is but one phase of a Chinese puzzle known as the American farm problem. Since 1933 it has been the personal headache of Iowa's Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, who can remember the halcyon days when all surplus wheat and cotton—the two basic crops—were bought readily by foreign nations. But foreign markets are now glutted. American farm surpluses must either be dumped abroad at any price foreign buyers are willing to pay, or be left to rot in U. S. granaries. Most people have favored the latter policy, meanwhile deploring the economic unbalance that allows many U. S. citizens to go hungry despite bountiful crops.

SECRETARY WALLACE
Poor people are also a problem.

The easiest remedy would be to let low prices drive American farmers off the land, but this is socially inhumane, politically unsound and economically foolhardy. When the New Deal started in 1933, AAA was formulated to pay farmers for limiting their acreage. Funds came from processing taxes levied against manufacturers, but ultimately paid by consumers. When the Supreme court ruled processing taxes invalid, a "soil conservation" program was set up to pay farmers for retiring their land, ostensibly to give it a rest but actually to limit production. Thirty per cent of customs receipts were set aside to pay for it.

Last spring, with surpluses still piling up, congress passed a new farm law, too late to limit production this year, which partially accounted for its failure. Under it the government may (1) control production with consent of a majority of farmers; (2) make payments for retiring land; (3) make additional "parity" payments as a protection against less-than-production-cost prices; (4) loan money against crops. If compulsory control is enforced next year — as provided — wheat and cotton acreages must be reduced one half. Agricultural rebellion would result.

Still seeking the answer, Secretary Wallace recently tried export subsidies, which the state department's Undersecretary Francis B. Sayre condemns as "the uneconomic giving away of our substance to foreign nations." Though U. S. farmers are being subsidized the difference between export prices and the domestic market price, many observers consider it ridiculous to sell surplus foodstuffs abroad at a loss when several million Americans are going hungry. Consequently next winter's congress will be asked to adopt still another farm bill, the most far-reaching attempt yet made to kill two birds with one stone. The birds: farm problem and poor relief. The Wallace plan: surplus farm products would be distributed to U. S. low-income groups instead of being dumped abroad.

Though the federal surplus commodities corporation already distributes potatoes, prunes, milk and other minor products not affected by AAA, the new plan would include beef, pork, wheat, corn and cotton. Broadly, it would follow New York city's method of selling milk to relief families for eight cents a quart, the city paying the difference. If expanded to a national proposition, the U. S. would pay retailers the difference between standard price and cost price.

To pay for it, Secretary Wallace asks restoration of processing taxes, which theoretically fall on manufacturers but ultimately strike the consumer. Opponents argue that retail prices would rise, that consumption would drop and substitutes would be encouraged, thereby hurting the farmer. But since the government hopes to stabilize farm prices, its counter-argument is that producers would have steady income and increased purchasing power, thereby boosting U. S. prosperity. These are the arguments next winter's congress will hear.

Dies Committee Bares Activities Of Radical, Communist Groups

Unseen and Malignant Growths Are Being Bred Into Our National Life by Agitators Who Seek to Destroy Our Government; Spread Poison in Ranks of Labor.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — "Unless something is done to curb radicalism in my section, there is going to be an awful clash and a lot of people are going to get hurt."

So spoke Fred W. Frahm, superintendent of police of the city of Detroit, Mich. And his statement was under oath, for he was giving testimony before a committee of the house of representatives, a committee charged with exposing to view the un-American activities of certain groups in this country. It was the statement of a man who is serving a city in an official capacity and who has gone through 246 sit-down strikes which he asserted were the direct result of agitation by the radicals to which he referred. He looks for more in the near future and added, by way of emphasis, that "these communists and radicals do not want to seek adjustment of differences between labor and management; they want to make trouble all of the time."

Through a number of weeks, the house committee before which Mr. Frahm testified, has been taking testimony, gathering evidence, digging here and there in its effort to uncover the activities of subversive groups and expose them to public view.

It has been the contention of the chairman, Representative Dies of Texas and some other members of the committee, that most of us are not aware of the unseen and malignant growths that are being bred into our national life. They are out to destroy our government, to bring to us the type of thing that has made Russia famous.

Mr. Dies is a sincere and honest legislator, and he is trying to do the job assigned him, even when several of his committee members have sought to balk his efforts. But there is much more to be done in the direction of exposing radicalism and the chiseling, cheating, cowardly efforts the agitators put forth.

Charge Communists Active In Government Offices

What I am wondering is why Mr. Dies has not sent his investigators into the very offices of the federal government, itself. Or, if he has done that, as it is gossiped about, then why shield anybody? Why not turn the spotlight of publicity on the individuals who want to destroy the American system, the American form of government, American tradition, the American profit system of doing business? There has been much talk in the last several years about the operations of communists within the very walls of the government, men and women who are boring from within as termites destroy lumber, and we ought to know the truth. If they are within the government, they ought to be exposed and chased out of the western hemisphere; if they are not operating as is gossiped around, then their names ought to be cleared. In any event, I hope the Dies committee goes on and shows the cancerous nature of groups that do not believe in our system, whether they be Russians, or Germans, or Italians, or British or what have you.

It has been the favorite device of the radicals and their henchmen to characterize any official who attacks them as being a subject for the insane hospitals. Their game has been to laugh people out of court whenever an effort was made to tell of some of the things the agitators were doing. Many will recall an investigation by a house committee several years ago where the witnesses were laughed down and a courageous superintendent of schools from Gary, Ind., was made to look foolish because of the charges he made. Well, if my opinion be worth anything, the folks who were the suckers in that play were the supposedly intelligent members of congress who made up the committee. It was they who fell for a trick of propaganda. Either that was the case, or the members of that committee were just plain dumb.

Lewis Cannot Break Grip Of Communists on C. I. O.

Concerning the sit-down strikes about which Mr. Frahm testified, I want to boast that I wrote of communist participation in those sit-down strikes when they were happening. I had several letters thereafter, calling me crazy and describing me as a red-baiter. Mr. Frahm now has put into official records the facts that must be obvious to any real American, and he further has expressed the opinion that John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., cannot break the grip that the communists have on his organization. That may be the reason why Mr. Lewis has been so silent the last several months. Maybe he sees that the labor group of which he was so proud has become a gargantuan monster that is slowly swallowing him, physically large as he is.

There is, of course, the danger that a lot of people will make foolish and unsupported statements about red activities, thus throwing doubt on the really serious phases. That always seems to happen. Unwittingly, that type of person which shouts and shouts and has no proof creates the impression that all cries of "wolf, wolf," are meaningless. But when a congressional committee has the courage—rather, when its chairman over objections of some of its members—has the courage to bring the stuff out for public examination, there must, indeed, be a basis for it.

The tragedy of the thing is that the labor movement as a whole will suffer a severe setback. The fact that the radicals have grabbed control of the automobile workers' union means that they have "cells" in other groups also, and that these cells slowly but surely will be spreading poison and trouble. The agitators seize upon the unthinking, the foreign-born who are not steeped in our customs or love of country, or upon elements that have been badly treated, and they will use these innocent victims to carry out their destructive plans.

C. I. O. Being Used as Tool For Destructive Purposes

There will be much more labor trouble. You can count on that. The Communist party representatives will never allow the slightest chance for creating trouble to escape them. They are determined to convince labor that it cannot trust the managements; they are encouraging the breaking of agreements between labor and management to the end that employers will have no faith in the leaders of labor, and they are using the national labor relations board wherever that can be done to give official voice to labor troubles. That fact is chiefly responsible for the position which the C. I. O. group has taken in opposition to proposals for revision of the labor relations act. William Green and the American Federation of Labor are urging revision of the law, but C. I. O., having its tentacles in the labor board, obviously does not want its grip broken.

It has been known for a long time that the C. I. O. was being used as a tool for destructive purposes, but the agitators and emissaries were sly and careful. They covered their tracks. Such information as leaked out was promptly discredited by the very reds who had done the job—and they discredited any individual who repeated the story by laughing at his gullibility.

However, there is one instance which cannot be denied. The clerks in the rural electrification administration organized a union and affiliated with C. I. O. It was to have social as well as fraternal aspects. There was a dance scheduled. Negro workers attended and insisted on inter-racial participation in everything that was done. They said they were told to do so by representatives of C. I. O. After the dance was concluded, so participants have reported, a phonograph record was procured and the bellowing notes of "The Internationale," communistic anthem, blared forth.

Dies Committee Exposes Methods Used by Radicals

The Dies committee record is full of testimony about methods employed by the communists in their devious borings and destructive tactics. The record tells, too, of how many innocent appearing organizations, created for an allegedly useful purpose, are captured by communists and used by them to obtain money contributions — for which no accounting ever is made. And tragic, also, are the stories of how the real leaders laughed at the suckers who gave hard-earned money, laughed in the secret recesses of their hideouts about the soft and easy minds of Americans.

But another session of congress is coming. The Dies committee will make a report and probably will ask an appropriation to enable it to go on. We will see who opposes that appropriation. There probably will be opposition from two or three members of the committee itself, and we will see who they are. If they are outspoken in their opposition, I suspect most people will know why.

I think this condition has reached the point where attention should be paid to it by the federal government. It is now hot on the trail of some alleged German spies who were seeking American military secrets. So why not make a thorough job of it and lift up the lid that hides various other kinds of spies whose work, to my mind, is much more dangerous to American national life?

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

Bob Sherwood, Gay or Staid, Steals Show

NEW YORK.—A few years ago, this writer had the job of getting up an amateur entertainment. Robert Sherwood was just an added starter, but he ran away with the show. He is six feet, six inches tall, of lath-like dimensions and has a trick of undulating both his chest and his Adam's apple at the same time, when he sings. To hear him sing, "When the Rob-Rob-Robin Comes Bob - Bob - Bobbin'," undulating through a full octave, and flapping his long arms, is rare entertainment. He could have filled the theaters that way if he hadn't become a playwright.

With all his gift for foolery, his is the "weltschmerz" of a shy, sensitive, thoughtful man, and his are the peculiarly civilized qualities which enabled him to portray "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" with insight and fidelity which have brought the heartiest critical salvo of years and many cries of "the great American drama at last." Some of the reviewers see here a thrilling "play within a play" in the skilled and timely dramatization of Lincoln's timeless utterance at just this moment of national wavering and soul-searching. Mr. Sherwood may be a man of destiny.

He would dismiss all that with a slight thoracic undulation and perhaps a modest quip. He is the least pontifical of men, as he proved when he was a drum-major in the war. Unable to make the grade in our army, he joined the Canadian Black Watch. They put him in kilts, gave him a shako and a huge baton and enjoyed him tremendously as he quickly mastered the necessary twirling and stick-tossing stunts. But they also used him in plenty of fighting, in several hot engagements. The trouble was that the trenches were only six feet deep and he was a constant lure to enemy sharpshooters. He was gassed and sent to the hospital for a long stretch—about two feet beyond the end of the cot. He read a great deal, and decided to be an author.

Demobilized, he connected with Vanity Fair as dramatic critic, did a two weeks' turn as a reporter in Boston, joined the staff of Life and later became its editor. He was born in New Rochelle, in 1896, and left Harvard to get into the war.

This is his eleventh play, not counting "Tom Ruggles' Surprise," which he wrote at the age of eight. His fame as a playwright began with "The Road to Rome," which he wrote in 1927, "just to lift a couple of mortgages," as he put it. In 1922, he married Miss Mary Brandon, the actress. He has an apartment in Sutton place, New York, and a modest estate in Surrey, England, where he has been helping Alexander Korda produce films.

Met Takes a Singer From Potato Patch

MANAGER EDWARD JOHNSON'S musical autarchy at the Metroplitan comes along slowly, and we aren't yet quite musically self-sustaining. For the opening of its new season, the Met announced 14 new singers. There is one American contralto, 11 Germans, Austrians, Italians and Swedes and two new American male singers, John Carter and Leonard Warren.

Over in our Rockland county, N. Y., we have been quite excited over a "popular local farmer," as one of the parochial sheets had it, making the grade at the Metropolitan. He is the 26-year-old Mr. Carter, who has been growing beans and potatoes, singing at his work, near New City. Mr. Carter, born in New York city, studied engineering at New York university. The depression turned him to vaudeville and later to his joint cultivation of voice and garden truck. He and Mr. Warren were winners in the Metropolitan's audition of last March.

Mr. Warren, also 26, was born in the Bronx, son of a Russian-born fur dealer. He felt constraint in turning his big voice loose in town, but let it run in the big north woods, with his father on fur-buying trips. That was how he first knew he had a voice. He studied at Columbia university and night school.

How the Expert Shoots

The best and most effective shooting form requires little movement of the hands and arms, once the gun has been put on the shoulder and the comb is against the cheek. From that point on, the direction of the muzzle is changed by moving the entire upper part of the shooter's body, the gun remaining in the same relative position with respect to the cheek and shoulder.

Follow These Exercises to Keep Figure

By PATRICIA LINDSAY
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

WHY is it necessary for the modern woman to use an artificial method to strengthen her muscles and to promote good health? It is because our manner of living offers almost no opportunity to use the larger, important muscles of the body—the abdominal, back and thigh muscles.

We live inactive lives. We travel by motor or train more than we walk. We do our housework with electrical aids or have servants do it for us. Most office jobs demand eight hours of sitting and frequently in poor posture. Selling work in stores requires the over-use of the legs and feet. Sewing, writing, bridge and many other so-called activities are actually inactivities!

Games No Substitute.

You probably think that recreational sports such as tennis, bowling, badminton, golf and riding are sufficient exercise. But they are not. They stimulate the body through increased circulation and allow the skin pores to secrete waste but they do not build the body symmetrically because they are "one-sided." Seldom is a woman adept in using both her right hand and her left hand in sports.

Walking can be an excellent activity if it is done on soil which allows a spring to the step and if the body is carried with good posture at a steady pace and if you wear loose clothing and correct walking shoes.

Swimming is the exception in recreational sports. It exercises all the muscles of the body providing no one stroke is overpracticed, and it develops the body symmetrically and beautifully.

These Exercises Will Help

So, you see, unless you can swim daily it becomes quite necessary for you to resort to corrective exercises if you desire good health and a supple body. Exercises that will offset the ravages of our sedentary, inactive living. Here are two for firming the vital abdominal muscles, or in other words, for flattening your tummy! Why not begin scientifically to develop a pleasing figure?

For Stout Woman

Lie flat on your back, arms at sides—parallel with body. Bend knees back to abdomen. Then pull knees with clasped hands back to chest, gradually raising the hips from floor three to four inches. Lower hips—keeping knees bent. Repeat four times and relax. Repeat not more than 12 times each day.

For Thin Woman with Protruding Abdomen

Sit on floor with legs wide apart and knees slightly relaxed. Place hands palm downward just behind hips for support. Now push your abdomen out, to right, back, to left—making a complete circle such as you would in a Hula-Hula dance! As you circle consciously tighten the muscles. Circle five times without stopping. Relax. Circle five times in opposite direction. Circle twenty times in all.

HINT-OF-THE-DAY

If you are the nervous, high-strung type of individual, why not learn to relax your way to poise. Take things easy. Rest. Exercise to relax only. Stop worrying.

It is never the thoroughly relaxed person who suffers from insomnia. Lack of sleep is usually a symptom of a harried mind or a nervous disorder. Much can be done to overcome insomnia.

Regular sleeping hours are quite necessary. Make it a habit to retire the same hour and to arise the same hour until you are relaxed.

Do not overeat or eat too fast. Both are likely to give you restless nights. You can skip a meal a day if you wish. Or substitute for two meals each day, a glass of milk every four hours and glasses of fruit juices in between.

Do not resort to nerve sedatives unless your physician advises them for you.

Pillow and Chair Set

Pattern 6168

Spend spare moments profitably with your crochet hook and some string and add charm to your home with crocheted accessories that match! Interesting to make and inexpensive, too, you could make either chair set or pillow alone or make a pillow with matching scarf ends. Can't you see what attention they'd attract at a bazaar? Pattern 6168 contains charts and instructions for making the set; illustrations of it and stitches used; materials needed.

Miss Plymire was very pleasantly surprised by the pupils and their parents on her birthday, Oct. 26th. A very lovely lunch was served by the mothers.

Miss Plymire received many beautiful presents and a gift of money. Miss Plymire wants to take this means of again thanking all those that took part in the surprise.

Elma Elseth of the Teacher's Training Department of Thief River Falls visited us on Thursday and did some practise teaching.

Friday afternoon was the day of our Halloween party. We had many contests. Winners of prizes were Boyd Wilson, Lorraine Skjerping, Chester Smith, Earl Ness.

Mrs. Ness and Betty visited with during the party.

Single desks have been installed. Many of the pupils have different school homes now.

Those that have had 100 in spelling are: Joyce Movick, Yvonne Johnson, Wilma Movick, Lorraine Skjerping, Lawrence Folden, Dorothy Skjerping.

The children of the Tweten family have enrolled in school this week. This make the enrollment twenty-five.

Mrs. P. P. Hagen Summoned

The people of this community were shocked on Sunday to hear of the death of Mrs. Per P. Hagen of New Solum township who passed away at her home Saturday evening. Mrs. Hagen was one of the early pioneers of this community coming here 57 years ago and settling with her husband on a homestead in Section 10 in New Solum about five miles southwest of Holt.

Ida Olson Torgersdater Lansjiaasen was born in Trystol, Norway 83 years ago. She immigrated to America about 60 years ago and lived for a short time in Douglas county, Minnesota before coming here to make her home and where she spent the past 57 years. Surviving are her aged husband and five children, two daughters, Mrs. Martin Jarshaw and Mrs. Lawrence Peterson and three sons, Olaf, Carl and Willie Hagen all of New Solum. Five children have preceeded her in death.

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday afternoon from the Rindal church with Rev. Tungseth officiating.

Lutheran Ladias Aid Sale

The Nazareth Lutheran Ladies Aid will have their annual auction sale on Friday evening Nov. 4th at the church parlors. The organization now consists of around seventy-five members who have been diligently working the past months making wool quilts, pillow cases, dresser scarves, table cloths, etc. etc. etc and also one complete layette of infants wear with a crib.

The auction sale will be conducted, as usual, with O. H. Nohre as auctioner and H. O. Hanson as clerk.

Attacked Morberg's Record

Representative Emil Morberg was the target last week of an attack made upon his record by a clip sheet issued at Minneapolis by some fellow who thinks that he can tell the voters of this county what to do. The fact of the matter is that some of the bills listed and for which he accuses Mr. Morberg of either voting for or against do not have the companion bills attached showing why he voted so on them. And not only that but this propagandist is accusing Mr. Morberg of voting wrong on certain bills in 1935 when Mr. Morberg was not a member of the legislature. In the bill cited that Mr. Morberg vote to double bis pay, it was not stated that he also voted to cut the membership of the legislature in half. If the membership was cut in half and salary raised it would cost the state no more per session.

You will find an answer to these charges in the Marshall County Star this week. Get a copy of that paper.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been on the cool and damp order. October has been a fine month in this part of the state as we missed the heavy snow storm which hit the southern part recently.

Chevrolet Takes Big Strides Ahead for 1939

New Aero-stream styled bodies combine with major mechanical improvements to provide new beauty, safety, comfort and operating ease, in the 1939 Chevrolets, presented October 22, and featured at the big auto shows this month. The new models are offered on two chassis, the Master De Luxe and the Master 85, both of which are powered with Chevrolet's famous six-cylinder valve-in-head engine.

A new vacuum gear shift mechanism with steering column control, optional on all models at small extra cost, does 80 per cent of the work of shifting gears. The Master De Luxe series features a new riding system, in which a brand new Chevrolet Knee-Action mechanism is scientifically co-ordinated with new ride stabilizer and double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers to furnish a smooth, soft ride.

County Election Returns

The great election is over and a lot of the nice things said about various candidates is already forgotten -- maybe.

According to the report received from the county auditor yesterday after all but one precinct, New Maine, reporting in, the count stood as follows:

Levi Johnson was re-elected as auditor by about 700 votes margin.

County attorney A. A. Trost won over Rasmus Hage by a small majority.

H. M. Hanson was winner over Geo. T. Sands for Register of Deeds.

Thora Skomedal was elected over Nels M. Engen by about 300 votes.

Sheriff Toftner polled a very large vote over Strandquist.

H. S. Beckwith, Argyle farmer won ent over Emil Morberg for Representative.

Ben Jansen was leading Eric Friberg by only a few votes for Senator.

R. T. Buckler carried the county for Congressman.

Gunsten Skomedal, Excel Farmer was elected county commissioner in the 5th district by a vote of 808 as against H. O. Hanson who had 760 votes.

The Governor race was as follows: Benson - 2869. Stassen - 3486 and Gallagher - 425.

Racine Olson, of Thief River Falls, well known here, underwent a major operation at St. Luke's hospital there about ten days ago and has been in a critical condition since that time.

Little Donovan Peterson, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Peterson, was rushed to St. Lukes hospital Monday where he will have an operation.

Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson returned from Madison on Thursday evening where she had been visiting her mother and also at Milan attending a funeral and visiting relatives and friends at that place.

Verner Nelson Given Huge Banquet

The banquet, the first ever given an individual for good work done among the common people and arranged for exclusively by women of the community on Saturday evening, November 5th, at Gatzke was one of the largest banquets ever given in this part of Marshall county. More than 400 people were served.

It is the first time in the history of this part of the county that the women of a community have joined to honor an individual in this manner and surely the women can feel proud of the fine way in which the banquet was handled.

In planning the banquet Mrs. Eric Aune, Mrs. Clarence Lian, and Mrs. Ray Eastby of Gatzke requested that the women of the community get-to-gether and donate food and other things needed for this occasion and from all indications every woman had done more than her share in making the banquet a huge success.

Every woman in Gatzke community participated in the work at the Young People's Hall. Several girls served as waitresses and about twenty ladies dished up the fine food prepared for the evening.

All Saturday a number of women were busy getting the things in readiness at the hall. Some decorated and made the tables ready, while others were busy with other arrangements. Each had their work and did it in a masterly manner.

At 6:45 everything was in readiness, the honor guests and others seated. At the head table were Mr. and Mrs. Verner Nelson, Honor Guests, Hon. Judge James E. Montague, Crookston, Harold Anderson, WPA Area Engineer, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Holmstrom, Roseau, Mrs. Emma Haugen and Mrs. Signe Ganzhorn of Erskine, sisters of Mr. Nelson, Mr. and John Kast, Goodridge, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Sandsmark, Grygla, Mr. and Mrs H. O. Hanson, Holt, and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. McMillan, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Eastby and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lundsetter all of Gatzke. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Nelson, son and daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Verner Nelson, and their son Harold and daughter Avis were also present.

Mr. McMillan opened the program by introducing H. O. Hanson, Publisher of the Holt Weekly News, who was the toastmaster. He introduced the guest of honor and his family as well as many other prominent people whom had taken an active part in the arrangement of this fine banquet.

It so happened that the Campaign tour of the Marshall County Farmer-Labor Association was held on that day and ended up at Gatzke for the evening. There were about twenty cars in this tour. These people and all the present county officials and other candidates for office were present at the banquet and were introduced to the people there in the course of the evening.

Judge Montague was the main speaker of the evening and gave a fine talk on his association with Mr. Nelson while he was a resident of Polk county. John Gross and John G. Holmstrom of Roseau told the people why and how Mr. Nelson came to Roseau and credited him with the fine work done there. Mr. McMillan spoke for the people of Eastern Marshall county. Mr. Hanson spoke for the people of Holt and community and told of their appreciation for what Mr. Nelson has done there. Mr. Sandsmark spoke for the people of Western Beltrami while Representative Emil Morberg told of how and why the people of Marshall county had asked Mr. Nelson to come here to establish the Marshall County Star at Warren.

A large musical program was given the audience by Al Opic and Paul Lundmark of Gatzke and Miss Grace Lyseng of Holt. Mrs. Alvy Johnson, Warren, sang a solo.

The ladies of Gatzke have demonstrated that they know something about putting on a real banquet and we extend them a big hand for the fine work they did in giving Mr. Nelson this huge banquet in appreciation for what he has done for them in the past.

Several testimonial letters from friends of Mr. Nelson in various state departments in St. Paul were read to the people by the toastmaster.

About 40 ladies gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Bottem on Thursday evening to give Mrs. Bottem a birthday party. She was given a cash purse as a remembrance of the day.

Deer Season Opens Tuesday

The Minnesota deer and bear hunting season will open on November 15 to continue through the 25th in all of ten counties and parts of eleven others, according to director Harry E. Speakes of the division of game and fish.

This is the statutory season provided by law and the season order simply provided for the designation of the boundary between open and closed territory.

The open territory includes all of Lake, Cook, St. Louis, Koochiching, Itasca, Lake of the Woods Beltrami, Clearwater, Hubbard and Roseau counties; those portions of Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk, Mahnomen and Becker lying east of the Soo line railroad from the north of Kittson to the south of Becker counties; that portion of Cass county north of a line drawn from the northern boundaries of Wadena and Crow Wing counties; that portion of Aitkin county north of a line from the west boundary of Aitkin between townships 49 and 50 east to the Soo line railroad, and and thence along the railroad into Carlton county to Moose Lake. Carlton county is open north of the Soo line railroad, and east of Highway No. 61, and Pine county is open east of Highway No. 61.

In the Superior National Forest game refuge, a strip for five miles on either side of the Gunflint Trail is opened to hunting. A similar strip for five miles on either side of the Ely-Buyck trail is open east of the point where the trail intersects the line between ranges 15 and 16, township 65. This point is about ten miles east of Buyck, and will be definitely marked. Except for there two trails which are opened at the recommendation of the United States Forestry Service, all game refuges and and state parks remain closed to hunting.

Before the open and closed deer territory was decided upon, a careful survey of the entire deer territory had been made, and a summary of all reports received indicated that deer are numerous and increasing in number throughout the greater portion of the deer range, and that deer are extending their range to the sonth and southwest. It is to protect this extending herd that the border territory is closed, according to Mr. Speakes.

The survey indicates that there are approximately two does to each buck in the greater portion of the deer range. Deer of both sexes may be taken.

At least half of the deer herd, according to the survey, will have to be artificially fed, if winter conditions are severe, and only a small portion of the deer herd could be reached with artificially feeding.

The roport indicates that the entire deer population of Minnesota may conservatively be placed at 300,000 head. The average number of deer taken during the past five open seasons, since 1932 is 38,356 head, while game management technicians estimate that from 50,000 to 75,000 could be taken this year without effecting the normal increase.

Lutheran Men's Rally

A men's rally for the Thief River Falls circuit of the Norwegian Lutheran church of America is being planned for Monday evening, November 14, at Greenbush, Rev. M. Johnson's parish. A large delegation from Thief River Falls and other Northwestern Minnesota towns is expected to attend the Rally which will open with a banquet at 6:30 p. m.

District President A. O. Wigdahl of Moorhead is expected to be present, and W. F. Schmidt of Concordia college will be the principal speaker. The program will include musical selections furnished by the Greenbush male chorus.

NEVER SLEEP ON AN "UPSET" STOMACH

Neutralize excess stomach acids to wake up feeling like a million

To relieve the effects of over-indulgence — escape "acid indigestion" next day — do this: Take 2 tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water — AT BEDTIME.

While you sleep, this wonderful alkalizer will be sweetening your stomach . . . easing the upset-feeling and nausea . . . helping to bring back a "normal" feeling. By morning you feel great.

Then — when you wake — take 2 more tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with orange juice.

That is one of the quickest, simplest, easiest ways to overcome the bad effects of too much eating, smoking or drinking. Thousands use it.

But — never ask for "milk of magnesia" alone — always ask for "Phillips'" Milk of Magnesia.

Opposite Viewpoints on New Wage-Hour Law

Fred C. Perkins, left, the battery firm owner who was convicted by a federal court jury and jailed for a short time in 1933 on a charge of violating the National Industrial Recovery act, has announced himself a foe of the new federal wage-hour law. "I defy them to enforce it," he said. He is shown in jail in 1933. This attitude was one of the minor worries of Elmer F. Andrews, right, wage-hour administrator, as he conferred with his secretary, Miss Eugenia Pope, during the first hours of the act's effectiveness.

Candlemaker Prepares for Christmas

The robin may herald the spring, but Winston-Salem, N. C., has the most reliable harbinger of Santa Claus. Miss Ella Butner, official candlemaker for the Moravian church in the South, is busy at her annual task of making by hand, in ancient molds, all the 10,000 candles to be used by Moravian congregations in their Christmas love-feasts. The children of Old Salem crowd around to watch Miss Ella's nimble old fingers and bask in her wise old smile.

Star Dust

★ Greta Suits Garbo
★ Felix Gives and Takes ★ Good, Hard Advice

By Virginia Vale

PITY Greta Garbo! She has been criticized in the past for practically everything that she did, and when, on arriving in New York from Europe a short time ago, she did some of the things that she had been criticized for not doing, she promptly walked into more criticism.

People had jumped on her because she didn't go out more. So she went everywhere—to night clubs, theaters, restaurants. She walked down Fifth avenue and looked into windows. She had fun.

And she dressed as she likes to dress—in a tailored suit, flat heeled shoes, a classic felt hat. She wore her hair in a long, straight bob. And what a storm of criticism broke over her head!

She ought to dress up, said her critics. She ought to wear the kind of clothes that the department stores want to sell to other women, said they, (only not in so many words!). Because, if a glamorous person like Garbo could wear such simple clothes, all the other girls who want to be glamorous might decide that it was the woman, not the clothes, that counted.

GRETA GARBO

And her hair! Here was all this controversy going on, about wearing the hair up instead of down, and all over town women were breaking down and having their hair done high — which delighted the hairdressers — and then along came Garbo with hers down, and uncurled! She ought to wear her hair high! She ought to wear clothes-horse clothes! She ought to be ashamed of herself!

And Garbo went right on wearing her hair down and wearing her comfortable old clothes, and looking beautiful and glamorous!

If you are in New York and go to the big movie houses on or near Broadway, the chances are that the other people in the audience will also be visitors from out of town. New Yorkers, most of whom used to live in smaller places, flock to their neighborhood movie houses, the kind they'd find in smaller cities. Much pleasanter!

"Sing in the shower if you are learning how to be a singer," says Felix Knight, who's become one of our most popular young tenors of the radio. "The tile walls of a bathroom lend resonance and size to the voice and this makes it easier to hear yourself sing." Neighbors who live on the same road in the Connecticut countryside with Felix report that they always know when he's taking a shower, so apparently he practices what he preaches.

According to Billy House, the CBS comedian, if you want to get on the air and stay on, all you have to do is be funny. Just as simple as that! He's been at the business of amusing people for more than 25 years—circus, vaudeville, musical comedy, motion picture and radio audiences have laughed at him. He admits that it's quite a trick to land on the air (complete with sponsor) in the first place, and that you have to work like a dog to keep the popularity that you've won, but he points to various headliners to prove that his advice is good.

There's Fred Allen, who's had the same sponsor since 1934. So has Jack Benny. Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor—any number of them have climbed to success on a ladder of laughs. And Bob Burns' record shows how fast you can shinny up that ladder, after years of trying, if you can just find the formula that makes people chuckle. Two others who have made a fortune by being funny are George Burns and Gracie Allen.

Agassiz Spurned Money

Agassiz, the famous Harvard naturalist, when seized suddenly by some new scientific inquiry, would drop everything to work on it. One day, in the midst of such an inspiration, he was begged by a visitor from another city to come to them for a lecture, entreated, implored and finally offered twice the customary fee. But Agassiz only replied, "I cannot afford to waste my time in making money!"

Just Do What You See In These Pictures To Relieve Pain Quickly

1. Take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a full glass of water the moment you feel either a rheumatic or neuritic pain coming on.

2. You should feel relief very quickly. If pain is unusually severe, repeat according to directions.

Just Be Sure To Use Genuine Bayer Aspirin

People everywhere say results are remarkable. Yet Bayer Aspirin costs only about one cent a tablet, which makes the use of expensive "pain remedies" unnecessary.

If this way fails, see your doctor. He will find the cause and correct it. While there, ask him about taking Bayer Aspirin to relieve these pains. We believe he will tell you there is no more effective, more dependable way normal persons may use.

When you buy, make sure you get genuine BAYER Aspirin.

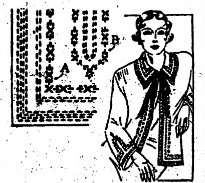
Free-Hand Embroidery Design Is Fun to Do

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

Here is another free-hand embroidery design that should be as much fun as those in our book. This attractive border is suggested here for a bed jacket. You will have no difficulty in finding a pattern for a jacket as they are quite the thing to wear over sleeveless nighties. Your free-hand border will dress it up for a Christmas gift.

If the jacket is pale pink, the rows of running stitches might be in several tones of rose. The cross stitches could be in deep rose and turquoise blue to simulate flowers. The long and short stitches, shown at A and B, should then be done in apple green. Lines may be drawn with a ruler as a guide to keep the rows straight, and evenly spaced dots may be made to indicate the cross stitches beginning the spacing at the corners of the design.



Are you ready for Christmas; birthdays; and the next church bazaar? Do you turn time into money with things to sell? Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2 has helped thousands of women. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator. Order by number, enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both books, a leaflet on quilts with 36 authentic stitches will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

Rail Reorganization Predicted Following Denial of Wage Cut

By Joseph W. La Bine

COMMITTEEMEN LANDIS, STACY AND MILLIS

Transportation

In the opinion of three experts, American railroads have no right to cut 15 per cent from pay checks of 930,000 employees because: (1) it would be a stop-gap measure at best, only reducing the standard of living at a time when business in general is coming back; (2) the railroads' financial problem is still of short term aspect, having been critical less than a year; (3) although railway wages have not fluctuated so badly as wages in other industries, they have not been advancing proportionately so fast as in other industries; (4) a flat 15 per cent wage cut would not be equitable, since smaller roads—which are in worse shape—would derive less benefit than the larger, more prosperous lines.

This was the gist of a 40,000-word opinion handed down by President Roosevelt's emergency fact-finding commission after three weeks of deliberation. Board members: Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy of the North Carolina Supreme court; Dean James M. Landis of Harvard law school, once chairman of the securities and exchange commission; Professor Harry A. Millis, University of Chicago economist and former member of the national labor relations board.

Though offering a well-considered opinion, the commission gave no help to sorely pressed railroads. Only tangible result is that some solution of America's entire rail problem will probably be speeded. Possibilities: (1) Wholesale reorganizations, combines and abandonment of lines to avoid duplicated service, a program which the interstate commerce commission must approve, and which would probably decrease railroad labor employment; (2) agreement with labor for a temporary, smaller pay cut; (3) federal financial assistance, which would only pile higher the already high interest charges and would offer only temporary relief.

Reorganization is the most likely solution. Already pending before the I. C. C. when the fact-finding commission reported were proposals for such plans. In the Northwest, stockholders of Chicago & North Western railroad wanted merger with the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific line. In the Southwest, an I. C. C. examiner recommended reorganization of the Missouri Pacific and consolidation of all properties now operated as the Missouri Pacific system. In the deep South, the Gulf, Mobile & Northern line wanted merger with the Mobile & Ohio road.

Domestic

Opponents of the administration's foreign policy have long criticized Secretary of State Cordell Hull for censuring Japanese encroachment on U. S. affairs in the Orient, meanwhile allowing Mexico to expropriate U. S.-owned oil lands. Secretary Hull's answer has been that Mexico's problem may best be settled by arbitration, not through a hostile attitude that may destroy Western hemisphere peace. The latest Mexican step has been seizure of a headquarters building occupied by Standard Oil subsidiaries, an act which brought only feeble protest from U. S. Ambassador Josephus Daniels ("I made representations . . ."). But if the U. S. hopes to stalemate Fascism in the Western hemisphere by its kid-glove policy toward Mexico, it may be doomed to disappointment. Although President Lazaro Cardenas once said his country would sell oil only to democratic nations, he has just announced consummation of a contract to sell several million dollars' worth in Rome. This, marking the birth of friendly trade relations between Italy and Mexico, gives Fascism another wedge into the New world.

Foreign

After the peace of Munich, France's Premier Edouard Daladier went to great lengths justifying his position before the senate and chamber of deputies. He won confidence by assuring Frenchmen that if Munich's treaty was a capitulation — which he denied — France would never again capitulate. But Premier Daladier's promise is not borne out in fact. At the Marseille convention of his Radical-Socialist party he outlawed communists from the government, plainly a move to curry favor with communist-hating Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini. Many observers believe this decision shows Premier Daladier is frantically grasping for a straw, since by repudiating the communist party he throws away a large part of his Popular Front support. Not only will the premier lose his next election, but France will probably break off her treaty with communistic Russia and thereby become isolated prey for Italy and Germany.

● Rumania's complete shift to Nazification marks another step in Germany's economic invasion of southeastern Europe. Acting under orders from King Carol, the Rumanian government has proclaimed 100 per cent totalitarian principles in the hope that Germany will respect its territorial integrity in Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's "drive to the east." Since Czechoslovakia and Hungary are already pro-Nazi, Germany's economic orbit is extending itself with little difficulty.

Utilities

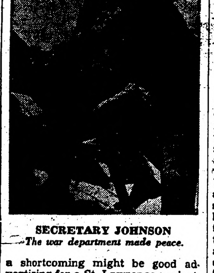
New Deal dams and power plants have offered public utilities serious competition, forcing down their prices and creating an unfriendly breach between electricity executives and the administration. One government power project not yet started is the St. Lawrence waterway, which President Roosevelt praised during September when the war scare first began. At that time, partly because he feared a lack of power reserve, partly because such a shortcoming might be good advertising for a St. Lawrence project, the President appointed a commission under Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war.



SECRETARY JOHNSON
The war department made peace.

When the commission reported recently, it failed to mention St. Lawrence waterway plans. But it made bigger and more puzzling news by drawing executives of 14 large utilities to Washington and getting their promise to start expanding. If this was a peace gesture, it was overshadowed by explanations that utility expansion is an important step in the government's defense program and a healthy move toward business recovery.

The program: In 15 areas (all east of the Mississippi) utilities will spend an immediate $350,000,000, boosting it to $2,000,000,000 if power consumption increases normally the next two years. Only government function will be Reconstruction Finance corporation aid in refinancing securities.

Though generally regarded as an optimistic sign of recovery, utility expansion has been minimized in some quarters. The 1,000,000 new kilowatts in generating capacity is only a 3 per cent boost in U. S. power potentiality, considerably below the average increase in good business years.

Are Your Children Eating Clean Food? Asks C. Houston Goudiss—Points Out Hazards of Neglected Hand-Washing

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

"I DO feed my Johnny correctly," a young mother said to me not long ago. "I give him milk and eggs and vegetables and fruits. And still he has colds! Would you mind telling me just how you reconcile that with all this talk about our newer knowledge of nutrition—and how it helps children to have better health?"

"I don't know," I answered. "But I wonder if it would be convenient for me to meet Johnny?"

"Certainly," she replied. "He'll be home from school in a few moments. He usually stops at the school playground for an hour or two, to play dodge ball with the other boys."

A moment or two later Johnny appeared. And a more grimy little lad I had seldom seen, certainly not outside of a neighborhood such as we sometimes describe as underprivileged!

Johnny's hands were dirty. His face was dirty. His knees and legs were streaked with mud. There was a lollypop in his mouth, though he quickly pulled it out when his mother made the introduction.

I could not refuse his hand when he put it forth in a gentlemanly gesture, though I noted that some of its visible soil, and doubtless some unseen germs, were transferred to my own hand during the greeting.

No sooner had we unclasped hands than a tremendous sneeze all but engulfed Johnny. And in spite of his almost adult manner at meeting a stranger, he had not learned to cover his nose and mouth during a sneeze. The lollypop was sprayed with moisture—and germs. Two seconds later, the child put the lollypop back in his mouth and continued sucking it!

And yet his mother could not understand why he had colds!

Contaminated Food

I have pointed out many times that in my opinion, a mother's foremost responsibility is to feed her children a diet that takes into account all the recent amazing discoveries of nutritional science. Only by so doing can she hope to give them a sturdy body with straight bones, strong responsive muscles, a good circulation and sound healthy nerves.

But the parent who permits her offspring to eat with unwashed hands and thus take countless germs into his body with every mouthful of food is scarcely giving that food a chance to build the kind of body and brain every mother desires for her child. On the contrary, she is risking the danger of grave illness. For the micro-organisms which cause 92 out of every 100 deaths from communicable diseases enter or leave the body through the mouth or nose.

Health Linked to Cleanliness

All of us have heard the expression: "Cleanliness is next to Godliness," though to observe some of our school children eating their lunches, one might have reason to believe that both mothers and school boards have forgotten this old copy-book maxim! But it bears remembering, every day and all day. For the writer who said that soap and civilization go hand in hand was not far from the truth. Certainly, soap-and-water cleanliness and good health are inseparably linked, and habits of personal cleanliness are a vital factor in safeguarding children against infections and disease.

We often compare a correct diet to the bricks with which a well-constructed building is erected. But if food represents the bricks with which the edifice of health is built, surely cleanliness is the mortar!

Keeping Everlastingly at It

Most babies are kept clean by their mothers because mothers know that they cannot keep their babies well if they do not keep them clean. If the same careful policy were followed in later childhood, it is almost certain that there would be less illness among children.

Unfortunately, many mothers relax their vigilance the moment their child is ready for school. In some cases, they believe that the child has had sufficient training and can be relied upon; in other instances, they believe, or hope, that further training will be supplied by the school!

A Mother's Job

But the mere fact that a child is old enough to go to school does not make him less of a child. Nor does it make his mother less of a teacher and guardian. On the contrary, it multiplies her responsibilities!

More than ever the child needs careful supervision of his health habits. For now he is in daily contact with countless other youngsters, from many types of homes. More chances to pick up germs! More chances to disseminate germs should he be permitted to go to school with the sniffles!

Mothers must increase, not decrease their vigilance. They must assume responsibility for the observance of all the habits that safeguard health. These include the daily bath; the daily change into clean clothing; the frequent washing of the hands, and always before eating; the twice-daily brushing of the teeth; regular elimination; regular hours for meals; and the necessary hours for outdoor play and for sleep.

What About the School?

Mothers must remember—and must emphasize to their children—that diseases may often be traced to unclean hands, and to germs sprayed in the air by persons having coughs and colds.

Teach your children to muffle every cough and sneeze in a handkerchief. And be sure they have a handkerchief handy for the purpose. Teach them to keep their fingers out of their mouths, likewise pencils and other objects. Teach them to wash the hands and face frequently.

If they are to carry out this last instruction, it is imperative that soap and towels be available in school washrooms, as well as at home. Investigate conditions at the school your child attends. If facilities are not adequate, do something about it. Either arouse other mothers to help rectify the omissions, or failing that—have your child carry soap and paper towels from home!

By teaching cleanliness to your children, by making it a regular part of their training, you will help to safeguard their health and the health of every other child with whom they come in contact in their daily lives.

Flattering Daytime Fashions

EACH of these good-looking new designs is just as comfortable and practical as it is becoming, and each is accompanied by a detailed sew chart that assures you no difficulty at all in the making.

Dirndl-Style Jumper.

High neckline, to cover up her collar bones, with a little round collar to soften. High-puffed sleeves and very full skirt to fill her out. Shirred waistline, to make her look soft and small through the middle. Those are the details making this one of the most becoming dresses a girl of the fast-growing years can possibly wear. Make the jumper of flannel, jersey or wool plaid, for every day, with linen, batiste or flat crepe blouse. Repeat it, for parties, of velveteen, with organdy or chiffon blous.

Large Woman's House Dress.

Plenty of leeway for reaching up, down and under, is promised you by the ample armholes, slight blouse above the belt, and easy waistline of this practical home dress. And it looks very trim and tailored, because the long lines, the darts around the middle, scalloped closing and narrow collar are just as slenderizing as they can be. You will enjoy having a jersey or challis version of this dress for cold weather, as well as several in calico, gingham or percale. It's a diagram design that you can make in no time.

No. 1621 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 10 requires 1⅜ yards of 54-inch material for the skirt and 1¼ yards of 39-inch material for the blouse.

No. 1624 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4⅝ yards of 35-inch material. Contrasting collar takes ½ yard; 3 yards braid.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Importance of Church Life

There is a definite relationship between social adjustment and their participation in church affairs.

The Minnesota Youth Survey made a study of partipatiton in community activities. It discovered that young folks participate more in church activities than in any other kind, and that those young people who participate in church activities were less likely to be unemployed, less likely to be on relief, less likely to be uneducated, less likely to be in trouble of various sorts. They were more likely to be married, more likely to have better education, and more likely to have the better jobs at better wages.

It is true that many came from the more favored homes, but even where the family income was scarcely equal to WPA wages the youths who belonged to church organizations were better educated.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Wegge and daughter of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wegge and baby and Mrs. L. Wegge motored to Larimore Sunday to visit with Mrs. Ray Wegge and daughters.

I will grind feed on Mondays and Fridays at 8 cents per sack. Also can grind roughage for those who want it.

Agricultural Program Meetings

Beginning Monday, November 14 a series of meetings will be held in Marshall County where farmers will express their reasons for or against an agricultural program. These meetings will be different from any ever held in the county in that the discussion method will be used. In a discussion type of meeting, people who comprise the audience express their views on questions relative to the subject. This will be the plan which will be followed at these meetings.

It is hoped that a large number of farmers and other people will be present to express their own opinions pro and con on the questions which may be raised relative to the Agricultural Conservation Program. The schedule of these meetings is as follows:

Monday, Nov. 21, Warren
Tuesday, Nov. 29, Grygla
Wed. Nov. 30, Gatzke
Thurs. Dec. 1, Middle River
Wednesday, Dec. 7, Holt.

All meetings will begin an 10 A. M.

Rally Held At Greenbush

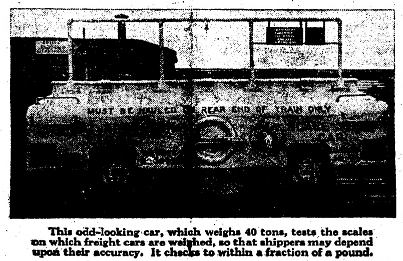
The Thief River Falls Circuit Men's Brotherhood was formally organized at a large meeting held in Greenbush on Monday night. The speaker for the evening was Prof. C. L. Schoberg, Concordia College, Moorhead. Mr. A. O. Wigdal, also of Concordia, President of the Northern Minnesota District Brotherhood spoke and laid the plans for the organization. The meeting began with a banquet in the parlors of the Lutheran Church, which was filled to capacity. It was planned to have a similiar event in the spring. Those representing the Men's Club in Nazareth were: Wm. Holst, A. P. Thompson, Hjalmer Peterson, Marvin Sandberg and Rev. Hanson.

Francis Backlund of Los Angeles, Calif. visited at the Mrs. O. Backlund home Monday and Tuesday.

The following gathered at the W. Risberg home Monday afternoon and gave Mrs. Risberg a birthday party: Mrs. Dennis Wegge and Mrs. Hagen of Thief River Falls, Mrs. Joseph Nelson and son, Mrs. R. A. Werner, Mrs. J. Hagberg, Mrs. A. T. Hagen, Mrs. S. Lorentson, Mrs. L. Sagstuen, Mrs. G. Fricker, Mrs. H. O. Hanson, Mrs. Jesse Sorum and son and Mrs. L. Wegge. The honor guest received many gifts and a cash purse.

A large crowd attended the Mission Church Ladles Aid Sale last Friday evening. Arvid Carlson was the auctioneer and Ferne Peterson the clerk. The net proceeds were about $90.00. Mrs. C. L. Sandberg won the quilt.

Effective last Sunday the train schedule of the Great Northern passenger thru here was changed to the following time: Northbound due in Holt 11:26 a. m. Southbornd due at 5:23 p. m.



This odd-looking car, which weighs 40 tons, tests the scales on which freight cars are weighed, so that shippers may depend upon their accuracy. It checks to within a fraction of a pound.

The "Wringer" on the Farm

Just what is meant by "putting the railroads through the wringer"?

It can be made very plain by applying the idea to the farms of this country.

Farmers would simply be told to "go broke" and turn their properties over to the mortgage holders.

The fact that the farmer had made an honest and prudent investment would make no difference. Nor would the fact that he is an economic necessity—producing things that are essential to the life of the nation.

Instead of trying to devise ways and means of giving the farmer a fair deal, the government would fix the prices of what he has to sell at levels that would force him into bankruptcy. And to make doubly certain that he would not escape going broke, it would fix the wages of farm labor at levels that were higher than he could pay.

The farmer would call that "confiscation."

But in the case of the railroads, it is called by fancier names—"reorganization," "putting 'em through the wringer," and the like—phrases intended to give the procedure a high moral tone.

Undercapitalized

"The net capitalization of all steam railroads in 1935 was but 71.9 per cent of the recorded investment in road and equipment before depreciation, and 80.6 per cent after deducting depreciation reserves. There has been a steadily declining trend in this percentage. For 1911, after deducting depreciation, the figure was 97.6 per cent."—From decision of Interstate Commerce Commission, March 8, 1938, Ex Parte 123, 226 I. C. C. page 57.

This is not to say that in a relatively few instances in the railroad industry there is no need for "reorganization." These cases have been widely publicized, obviously for the purpose of giving you the idea that this condition is typical of the whole railroad industry.

Even in these few isolated instances, the railroads were already in the hands of the courts, undergoing the process of "wringing out" any excess capitalization.

Cases like these, however, are more than offset by railroads like the Great Northern whose railroad property and other holdings represent an investment of at least $173,892,941 more than the par value of its outstanding stocks and bonds.

Government authorities have repeatedly held that the railroad industry as a whole is not overcapitalized—that the total of stocks and bonds outstanding is several billions of dollars less than the value of railroad property, and is less today in proportion to investment, than it was 25 or 30 years ago when railroads were most prosperous.

Deer hunting season is now open. Here are a few things to remember when you go on that hunting trip:

Be careful when you climb under or over fences. Pulling a loaded gun through a fence by taking hold of the barrel is a dangerous stunt.

Never leave a loaded gun leaning against a tree or rock, or lying on the ground or on the bottom of a boat.

A loaded gun should not be taken into a house, hunting shack, or car. Many times some other person tries out the 'sight' pulls the trigger, and a fatality is the result.

Do not clean a gun until you have made positive inspection of chamber and barrel. Never point a gun at anybody. It's a foolish and senseless action.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Johnson, Mrs. H. Johnson and Miss Mable Toftner of Warren visited at the H. O. Hanson home and also attended the Mission Church Sale Friday evening.

Former Ogema Man Sentenced

A former Becker County Farmer Monday was sentenced to serve five months in prison and to pay a fine of $325.

He is Theodore F. Ballard, formerly of Ogema, who pleaded guilty to a charge of misapplication of an emergency crop and seed loan.

Ballard was arranged in United States district court in St. Paul and was sentenced by Judge Robert C. Bell, formerly of Detroit Lakes.

Ballard told the court he collected a loan and then spent the money for other things.

Mr. Ballard, was apprehended in the State of Wyoming by agents of the Bureau of investigation, Department of Justice, and returned to St. Paul. The Judge, in imposing sentence, ordered that in addition to serving five months imprisonment, Ballard was to stand committed for non-payment of the fine.

Annual Church Meeting

The Annual Meetings of the Nazareth Lutheran Church will be held at 8 p. m. on Friday evening, Nov. 25. The congregation will hold its annual meeting in the church and the Ladies Aid will have their meeting in the Church parlors. New members in the congregation will be received at this time. Election of officers in both organizations will take place. As has been the custom, the Ladies will serve lunch after the meetings.

Smart Cushions From Odds, Ends

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THERE comes a letter from a reader ordering both of the sewing books offered below. She says, "I have to smile when people tell me it does not pay to sew. Recently I had a regular spree of doing over the living room. I spent $10.35 for materials. The sewing machine and I did the rest. Here is what the ten thirty-five bought. New slipcovers for the davenport and two chairs, chintz curtains for three windows, a new ottoman and a lamp shade. The slipcover for the davenport alone would have cost fifteen dollars if made outside."

CREASE DOUBLE FRILL WITH WARM IRON

BASTE TO RIGHT SIDE OF PILLOW COVER

It now seems that there is a need for more color in the newly decorated living room. The curtains are very gay but the new slipcovers rather neutral. Why not repeat some of the curtain colors with bright cushions? A clever girl I know saves the good parts of old silk dresses and blouses and buys remnants of bright silks and ribbons for this purpose. Her pillows are always most professional looking. If contrasting pieces are joined, she uses covered cords in the seams and contrasting cordings and neat little frills around the edges to repeat the strongest tones in the room. In this way many different kinds of material may be brought into harmony. I have sketched for you here some of the smart tricks that help to give cushions a well-tailored look.

NOTE: You also may have smart slipcovers, curtains and dozens of things you have been wanting. Mrs. Spears' books have helped thousands of women. She tells you quickly with pictures the things it would take years to learn by old-fashioned methods. Her sewing sketches clear away all uncertainties both for the beginner and the experienced sewer. Every page is packed with new ideas—all illustrated. Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery. Books are 25 cents each. ★ Good-Will Jalopy
★ Costly Separation
★ Picturing Lincoln

By Virginia Vale

DID "Josephine, the Tattooed Jalopy," happen to come your way on her return journey from Hollywood to Hartford, Conn.?

If she didn't, you ought to hear her story. It is really the story of two young men, Frank and Jack Pinney of Hartford, who paid $13.95 for the ancient car (born in 1928) and set out for Hollywood. They took along some white paint, and startled the movie center by requesting movie stars and celebrities to grasp a paint brush and autograph Josephine.

They were a sensation. Josephine was soon covered with names, and the owners refused an offer of $2,000 for her, it's said. And the Motion Pictures' Greatest Year representatives were delighted with them; they've become unofficial good-will ambassadors for the industry.

They ran into one difficulty; people whose autographs didn't mean much were all too obliging about scrawling their names on Josephine. The Pinneys let them do it, and, since Josephine's space was limited and they had to go in for big names only, they'd wipe off the undesirables with a bit of turpentine and then tackle somebody who meant something to them. Of course, they may thus have obliterated signatures of people, now unknown, who will be stars before the car is a year older, but that couldn't be helped.

Frances Langford

Don't ever say that Samuel Goldwyn isn't kind hearted. By sending Jon Hall off to England to do "The Thief of Bagdad" he tore the bridegroom from his bride, Frances Langford. But he's going to pay for a five-minute transatlantic phone call for them each week that they are separated! You will recall when Jon and Frances eloped to Prescott, Ariz., last June, Jon's mind was a bit hazy as to his birthplace, he giving it as New York city, instead of Fresno, Calif., on the license application, necessitating a remarriage later to ease their minds as to the legality of their marriage.

Evidently the next cycle in the movies will be based on the life and times of Abraham Lincoln. The success of the play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," in New York started it. Now three producers have announced that they will do Lincoln pictures. Goldwyn will star Gary Cooper as the Great Emancipator, Twentieth Century-Fox will cast Henry Fonda in the role, in "Lawyer in the West."

There's something about the radio serial, "Pepper Young's Family," that brings luck to those who have anything to do with it.

Originally it was called "Red Davis," and in its second year a young actor who wasn't getting along too well was engaged to play the role of "Red." His name was Burgess Meredith. Broadway producers and Hollywood executives heard of the program, listened to it—and first thing he knew, he was a success on the stage. Then he began to do a picture occasionally; remember him in "Winterset," his first big one?

Later, Martha Scott was engaged to play bits in the serial. And Martha landed in a stage play, "Our Town," which was one of the year's biggest hits of last season, and is still playing.

Fitted, Lifted Waistlines

IF YOU want to have the very smart, tiny-waisted look, and to look slimmer than you are, by all means wear these two frocks, each with the high-at-the-middle line that emphasizes the slender, flattering silhouette. And if you want to wear really individual clothes, up-to-the-minute in fashion, of superior fabrics and becoming colors of your own selection, then make your own, with these very easy-to-follow designs, each of which is accompanied by a detailed sew chart.

Afternoon Dress.

Here's a lovely fashion that simply melts into your figure at the waistline, because the lifted midriff section is cut in one with the skirt panel in front. The bodice fits beautifully, thanks to scarcely perceptible gathers above the waistline, and darts on the shoulders. The sleeves fit the arm snugly, and are smartly high and Victorian at the shoulders. In velvet, satin, thin wool or silk crepe, this will be one of the most slenderizing, flattering frocks you ever put on!

Workaday Dress.

An unusually smart casual fashion is this one with the princess skirt cut up to a high waistline and topped by gathers that give fullness over the bosom, accentuating the slimness of the skirt. Swirls of braid on the pretty sleeves, and a row of braid edging the round collar trim it up just enough. Make this of gingham, calico or percale for home work, and in wool crepe, flannel or flat crepe for runabout.

No. 1585 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. With long sleeves, size 38 requires 5 yards of 39-inch material. With short sleeves, 4¾ yards; 1¼ yards trimming.

No. 1629 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4⅜ yards of 35-inch material; 1½ yards braid.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

Mail Order Denture Business Victorious In Court Decision

False teeth may be measured and sold by mail as readily as in a dentist's chair, according to a court ruling, says a recent news item in the Chicago Daily Tribune.

The United States Dental Company of Chicago reports that its business both in the United States and outside is growing very rapidly; that its quick, easy, economical way of fitting and constructing dentures from finest materials, with expert craftsmanship, at very low prices, is an achievement of this age. Thousands of grateful letters in its files from satisfied customers all over the country testify to this.

This is a distinctly worthy service to people who work in the fields, mountains, or other places where it is inconvenient for them to find local dentists to make good teeth for them at low prices. Adv.

TURKEYS MUST BE FREE OF DISEASE

Growers Warned on Control Of Blackhead Trouble.

Supplied by the Laboratory of Animal Pathology and Hygiene, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Whether or not turkey growers make a profit when they sell their Thanksgiving turkeys this fall may depend on the measures that have been taken to control the disease known as blackhead.

This disease bearing the technical name of infectious enterohepatitis or histomoniasis is a cause of great loss in the turkey raising industry. Until recent researches demonstrated the complete course of the disease and successful means of combating it, the malady had forced the abandonment of turkey raising in many parts of the country.

A satisfactory treatment has not yet been found for blackhead, but prevention has been successful where all possible sources of infection are kept away from the flock.

Successful turkey growers are those who keep their turkeys on clean, uncontaminated ground on which chickens have never run. Some growers recommend transferring incubator-hatched poults immediately to a clean brooder house for about six weeks. The brooder house is connected with four separate yards in such a manner that grazing on the yards can be rotated. The yards are about 8 feet by 20 feet and poults are left in one yard about 10 days before being moved to the next.

After about six weeks, they are transferred to a rearing ground arranged in a similar fashion, but with the four lots covering about one or two acres.

Another good method of preventing blackhead is to rear incubator-hatched birds in brooder houses with hardware cloth floors until the poults are about half grown when they can be turned onto rearing grounds. Some growers prefer to keep the turkeys in confinement on hardware cloth until they are ready for market.

It pays to feed in such a way as to eliminate fecal contamination as much as possible. Feeding and watering equipment for this purpose may be purchased or made at home.

An adequate ration and plenty of fresh, clean water is needed at all times. It is best to quarantine new birds for three weeks before they are added to the flock.

Such measures will not only hold blackhead infection to a minimum, but in addition will largely eliminate trouble from other internal as well as external parasites.

Orchard Cover Crop Is Such as Winter Vetch

An orchard cover crop is one such as winter vetch or rye which lives over winter and starts growth very early in the spring. Cover crops make some growth in the fall and even in the winter, and may be of great value in sections where low temperatures occur and the ground is free from snow for much of the winter.

The seeding of cover crops is usually done in the summer or early fall to secure a fairly good growth before winter, according to T. J. Talbert, Missouri College of Agriculture. The crop is then turned under early in the spring and the land given clean cultivation. Then an interval of about four to six weeks occurs in most sections, during which the soil is bare or free of a cover crop, after which the soil is usually seeded to another crop.

It is true that the growing cover crops may compete with the fruit trees for soil moisture and nutrients during the late summer and early fall. But this effect is usually desired because it tends to slow up or check the growth of the fruit plants and cause them to harden their tissues for winter conditions. Annual cover crops are not as a rule deep-rooted and so may not influence deep-rooted tree fruits.

Time to Plant Trees

Planting trees in the fall is seldom a success unless there is an early snowfall, advises P. A. Anderson, extension forester, University Farm, St. Paul. The best time for tree planting is in the spring as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Fall-planted trees usually do not get started sufficiently and often cannot survive the winter. Fruit trees must be protected from mice and rabbits, also. If planting is delayed until spring, the problem of winter protection is eliminated, and in most cases the trees make equally good growth.

Poultry Paralysis

Every poultryman whose birds are afflicted with paralysis wants to know what to do about it, for he does want to do something. The truth is no one can tell him exactly because no one knows the exact cause of the disease. All authorities advise, however, and it is common sense advice, to keep the birds in a sanitary environment. They advise isolating the affected birds from the well ones. A further precaution is to give them a worm treatment.—Missouri Farmer.

C. Houston Goudiss Describes the Body's Vital Need for Vitamin C; Names Most Significant Sources of This Substance

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

OF ALL the vitamins that should be included in the diet every day, none, perhaps, is more important, nor more frequently provided inadequately, than vitamin C.

There are, I believe, two reasons for this. First, unlike some of the other vitamins, vitamin C is not stored by the body, so that it is impossible to build up a reserve supply. In order to maintain top health, it therefore must be furnished in the diet every day. Second, the C vitamin is more easily destroyed than some of the others, for it is oxidized upon exposure to the air, and is usually partially destroyed in cooking. That accounts for the well-known rule that it is usually desirable to include in the daily diet some raw foods, such as cabbage or citrus fruits. The rule may be waived, however, when tomato juice or cranberry sauce are included in the menu. For careful experiments have determined that, because of their high acid content, these two foods retain their vitamin C to a remarkable degree, when commercially canned or when cooked quickly in the home.

Functions of Vitamin C

The full importance of including an adequate supply of vitamin C-rich foods in the diet can only be fully appreciated when the amazing functions of this anti-scorbutic vitamin are fully understood.

Long years before the first vitamin had been discovered, and when the science of nutrition was still in its infancy, English physicians observed that the use of orange juice would help to cure children of a serious disease characterized by a sallow, pale complexion, flabby muscles, and a painful inflammation of the membrane surrounding the bones of the legs. And as early as 1795 it was also discovered that British sailors could be prevented from developing the painful and serious disease of scurvy if they were given a regular ration of lemon juice which had been evaporated to a syrup. It was because lemon, then called lime, juice was invariably prescribed for the navy that British sailors came to be known as "limies," a term which is still in use today.

Scurvy a Controllable Disease

Scurvy was thus prevented or cured in both children and adults, long before scientists learned that precious vitamin C is the controlling factor in this disease. And shortly after the turn of the century a systematic study was begun by scientists in both Europe and America to discover all the foods that possessed the almost magical power to prevent and cure this former scourge of mankind.

In the course of many painstaking investigations and brilliant discoveries, we have gradually increased our knowledge of scurvy until today we know that the substance which prevents the disease is vitamin C.

May Retard Growth in Children

It has also been noted that many cases of latent scurvy can be found among children and adults in all walks of life. It has been determined, for example, that many children who are restless, irritable, or retarded in growth are in reality suffering from a deficiency of vitamin C.

When deprived of this vitamin, experimental animals develop swollen, tender joints, sore jaws and spongy, bleeding gums, while the teeth become loosened and assume irregular positions. Hemorrhages may occur almost anywhere in the body, due to capillary weakness, and are particularly common in the kidneys, intestines, bone marrow, under the skin, in the muscles and adrenal glands. Indeed, one of the most interesting of all the discoveries concerning vitamin C was made with guinea pigs. It was observed that in a healthy animal, the adrenal glands are rich in vitamin C, while in a scorbutic animal, they contain practically none.

Pyorrhea and Vitamin C

Many investigators have discovered that a deficiency of vitamin C causes profound changes, not only in the gums, but also in the enamel and dentine of the teeth. It has been suggested that pyorrhea may be associated directly with a vitamin C deficiency.

Certainly, there is enough convincing evidence, as a result of work with both children and adults, to indicate the importance of an adequate supply of vitamin C in maintaining healthy teeth.

Sources of This Body Regulator

Vitamin C is produced by plants during their growth. It is found in juicy stems, bulbs, roots, tubers and fruits.

Outstanding among the fruits are the citrus family, including oranges, lemons and grapefruit; tomatoes and cranberries. Raw cabbage is a good source as is watercress.

So important is vitamin C that one or more generous portions of a vitamin C-rich food should be consumed daily, preferably at every meal.

Orange and tomato juice have been used interchangeably for quite some time as a convenient and easily available source of vitamin C. In recent years, some experiments performed at a leading university have given a high ranking to cranberries on this score, so that they, too, may be ranked as a significant source of vitamin C.

These brilliant little red berries come into market in the fall—the very time when it is important to eat generously of fruits to fortify the body against fall and winter ills. Their tart flavor helps to stimulate appetite and their fruit acids promote intestinal tone.

Neither the maturity nor variety of the fruit appears to have any influence on the vitamin content, and even when cooked, as whole fruit sauce, they retain from 75 to 80 per cent of the original vitamin C content of the fruit. Cranberries are also a fair source of vitamin A which is not impaired by cooking, and they contain iodine, iron, copper and manganese.

Because they are such a versatile fruit, cranberries can be utilized throughout the menu and at any meal. Thus orange and tomato juice may be varied at breakfast by serving a cranberry conserve, jelly or sauce, or a cranberry juice cocktail. For lunch or dinner, this same fruit may be served as an appetizer; with the meat course; or used to make a variety of attractive desserts.

If vitamin C-containing foods are included generously in the daily diet, the homemaker may well feel that she has provided her family with an important form of health insurance.

Questions Answered

A. F. G. Jr.—Green salads do play several important roles in the diet. They furnish bulk or cellulose, minerals, vitamins and water, and therefore help to balance a meal.

Mrs. F. C. L.—Most authorities now advise giving semi-solid foods to infants before the end of the first year. Usually the cereals, vegetables, and fruit pulps are carefully strained so that they are finely divided and free from harsh particles which would irritate a baby's delicate digestive tract.

Horse Sense About Winter Oil Change

Cold weather creates new problems in lubrication. To overcome damaging wear, the motor oil must possess three essential characteristics: (1) low cold test to assure quick easy starts (2) ability to lubricate at all driving speeds (3) durability to stand up for reasonable mileage. Curiously enough these requirements are contradictory in that to assure one factor it is very easy to unbalance another.

The only safe rule to follow in preparing your car for Winter is to buy the very best motor oil, Acid-Free Quaker State.

The refiners of Quaker State were pioneers in developing motor oils for Winter use. Today in four great modern refineries the most modern equipment and methods transform the finest Pennsylvania grade crude into motor oils which make automobiles, trucks and tractors run better, last longer, the year 'round.

The low cold test of Quaker State Winter Oil assures smooth easy starts. Its purity frees you of worry about sludge, carbon and corrosion. Its ability to stand up is unequalled . . . you go farther before you need to add a quart.

It is merely commonsense to practice economy. And the accumulated experience of car manufacturers, engineers, and most car owners proves that the use of high quality motor oil is genuine economy. It is conservatively estimated by authorities that 80 to 90 per cent of all repairs to an automobile are caused by faulty or incorrect lubrication.

A wise man once said: "It takes 12 months and sometimes longer to correct a mistake on a farm." Just so, five minutes running with the wrong oil in the engine of your car the first cold morning this Winter can cause more wear and damage than all the miles you drove this past Summer.

Play safe with your motor investment. Ask your dealer to prepare your car for Winter with Acid-Free Quaker State Winter Oil of the proper grade for your community.—Adv.

WHOEVER TAKES ASPIRIN SHOULD STUDY THESE PICTURES

Drop a Bayer Tablet in water—it starts to disintegrate in 2 seconds—hence is ready to "go to work" rapidly

This "Quick Dissolving" Property is Why BAYER Aspirin Acts So Fast to "Take Hold" of Muscular Aches and Pains

If you suffer with headaches or the pains of rheumatism or neuritis, keep the above picture about genuine Bayer Aspirin in your mind. Especially if quick relief is what you want.

For the way a Bayer Tablet works in the glass is the way it works when you take it. It starts to dissolve almost at once — hence is ready to "take hold" of the rheumatic pain or headache with astonishing speed. Relief often comes in a few minutes.

Always ask for "BAYER Aspirin" —never ask for "aspirin" alone.

Buckler Carried 12 Counties

Making a most remarkable race for re-election to his third term in the U. S. House of Representatives, Congressman R. T. Buckler, Farmer-Laborite, received a plurality of approximately 3,700 votes over his Republican opponent, Ole O. Sageng, according to official and unofficial returns compiled by Congressman Buckler's secretary and campaign manager, Harold C. Hagen of Crookston.

Mr. Buckler's total vote in the fifteen counties of the District was 43,683 according to the compilations made. The Republican candidate received 39,974 votes, while Martin Brandon's vote was 20,138, slightly less tnan his total two years ago.

Representative Buckler was high in twelve of the fifteen counties with Sageng winning three of them -- Otter Tail, Becker, and Wilkin, in the southern part of the District. Brandon was unable to win first place in any of the counties.

Showing uncanny judgement of the political situation in the District, Congressman Buckler's secretary, Mr. Hagen, predicted one week before election that Buckler would carry twelve or possibly thirteen counties of the of the District. The results show that Mr. Buckler won out in spite of Stassen's plurality of about 18,000 over Benson in the District.

Annual Village Caucus

We are sorry to report that Hazel Furr is on the sick list.

Marlin Augustine, Bill Paskewitz and Norman Peterson are among the hunters in this community that brought back deer.

Many Here Bring Home Deer

The old home town was more or less deserted last week when all the local sportsmen hit for the tall timber to hunt the fleet footed deer. The Editor and son Milton were among those from here whom spent the week out camping in the northeast deer country. They were in company with Theo. Ness of Red Lake Falls, and Olaf Ness and son Reuben. The hunters brought home two fine deer they bagged in Beltrami County.

Lewis Sagstuen was the first hunter to bring a deer home this season. He tied with Sam Lorentson who also shot one the first day out. Others to have a successful hunt were Sidney Engstrom, Harry Engen, Alton Carlson, Gusa brothers, Holmstrom brothers, Aug. Holstrom, Norman Peterson, Marlan Augustine and Bill Paskewitz.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Sandberg and Mr. and Mrs. C. Flak visited at the G. Sanoden home Saturday evening.

Work Started On Hatchery

Work on the new state fish hatchery four miles northwest of Baudette is progressing rapidly. Christ Hanson and John O'Neil, contractors for the general construction, laid the cement for the footings on Friday, and it is being given several days to properly set. The contractors have a good sized crew on the job and expect to bave their part of the work completed some time in January. After that other contractors will go to work with crows.

The fishery, which is being built at a cost of around $25,000, will be one of the best in the state, and it will have a capacity of two hundred million minnows a year. One hundred million of these minnows will be put in Lake of the Woods, and the other hundred million in inland lakes.

In addition to the hatchery there will be a building for warden quarters.

The new hatchery will be operated by the State Division of Game and Fish, and costs will be shared with the Lake of Woods Commercial Fishermen's Association. One half of the output of the hatchery will be planted in border waters where commercial fishing is done, and the other half will be distributed in state lakes to improve hook and line fishing.

Organization of the commercial fishermen's association took place last winter, at the suggestion of Commissioner Wenzel, who saw that steps must be taken not only to rehabilitate the commercial fishing industry, but to improve sport fishing in the international border lakes where, under the law, commercial fishing is permitted. The fishermen organized and agreed to raise the money necessary for their contribution. The division of game and fish set aside its part of the money, and a Public Work Administration federal grant was obtained. The bids for the construction which now is under way, was called for on October 14.

It is expected that the new hatchery will be completed and in operation with the spring spawning season in 1939. The two hundred million added capacity, togethur with a better than two hundred million addition to the Mounds Park hatchery at St. Paul, and rearing ponds near Whitewater State Park, will add over 40 percent to the present output of approximately one billion fish annualy, according to Commissioner Wenzel.

Annual Church Meeting

The Annual Meetings of the Nazareth Lutheran Church will be held at 8 p. m. on Friday evening, Nov. 25. The congregation will hold its annual meeting in the church and the Ladies Aid will have their meeting in the Church parlors. New members in the congregation will be received at this time. Election of officers in both organizations will take place. As has been the custom, the Ladies will serve lunch after the meetings.

Red Cross Volunteers Assist War Veterans

Red Cross workers in chapters, in hospitals and on posts of the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, and Marine Corps, assisted 132,355 active service men or veterans or their families during the past 12 months.

Red Cross service to these men included such personal help as letter-writing, shopping and recreational leadership, but it also included financial assistance to their dependents, help in locating missing members of their families, and assistance in filing necessary applications for pensions, disability pay, hospitalization, or for discharge from active service because of home needs.

The average number of men assisted by Red Cross workers each month was 18,790, according to a recent report.

Deer Season Closes Today

With the closing of the big game hunting season on the 25th of November, the last of Minnesota's annual game season, with the exception of squirrels and some fur bearing animals, comes to a close, according to Harry E. Speakes, director of the division of game and fish.

All venison to be kept longer than five days after the close of the season must be tagged with the department of conservation tag, issued by the director of game and fish through the game wardens. If properly tagged, venison may be kept until the last day of February, 1939.

At the same time hunters are urged to make their game reports to the conservation department, indicating the number of game birds or animals taken. These reports are carefully tabulated, and are used in compiling data to guide the department in propogation activities, as well as in game surveys.

It reduires about 55 acres of an average stand of spruce timber to produce one edition of a great city newspaper. That is the amount of pulpwood necessary to make the paper on which the largest of our metropolitan newspapers are printed.

There are two things that you should give your children -- a good example and a good education. A good example is also a safe example.

Recently I had a very strange experience. I saw a young child, whom I had just overheard tell his mother that he had been instructed not to cross in the middle of the block, suddenly and literally yanked off the sidewalk in the middle of the block by his parent and marched across the street.

That kind of example belittles the safety effort and the safety idea in the mind of the child.

Set the right and safe example.

Cross-Stitch Design For Knitted Things

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THERE is an amusing story about the mittens and scarf shown here. They were not hand knitted. They were purchased rather hurriedly and sent to a young miss who was away at school. She had wanted something rather gay and a bit foreign looking to wear for skating and these were perfectly plain and pretty drab. She didn't take her disappointment lying down, but decided to brighten up that scarf and mitten set and make it speak a foreign language as well! She found the Swedish cross-stitch design shown here and copied it in all its gay colors on the ends of the scarf and backs of the mittens.

Hand knitted mittens and other knitted things in plain colors may also be decorated with this pert flower pattern. Start at the upper right corner of the large flower and make the cross stitches as at A and B. This flower is a brilliant red, the small flowers bright blue and the stems jade green.

NOTE — Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery—has helped thousands of women to use odds and ends of materials and their spare time to make things to sell and to use for gifts and church bazaars. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator. Order by number enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both books, a leaflet on crazypatch quilts with 36 authentic stitches will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Maritime Hunters Bag Albemarle Deer

Hunters in tidewater North Carolina are forced to turn sailors to cope with the peculiar natural advantages protecting the Albemarle deer. Since the hunters cannot penetrate the swamps on the sound shores near Plymouth, they carry their dogs in boats and set them ashore on large islands inhabited by the deer. Hunters wait for the deer to start for the mainland, chased by the dogs. Then, under Albemarle hunting custom, the hunter-boatman nearest a swimming deer is entitled to first shot. Gun poised, the hunter must wait until the deer makes land, and is then permitted his shot. The buck on the right would have escaped if the boat had rocked in a swell, or if he had been slightly faster.

★ Glamorous, the Order
★ Opera Cycle in Movies
★ Radio's Grand Old Man

By Virginia Vale

ANDREA LEEDS has given her studio press agents no end of trouble. They've tried to make her a glamour girl, and she doesn't want to be one.

"I'd rather get married," says she. "It lasts longer."

But orders were that she must be glamorous—and that she must take on some weight in order to do it in "The Last Frontier," in which she captivates Gary Cooper.

She gave in, and then stumbled while playing badminton and broke a bone in her right foot. That meant being in bed with her foot in a plaster cast for three weeks, she was told. But she went night clubbing, plaster cast and all—if a girl's going to be glamorous she has to be seen about town. And her earnest effort to acquire the reputation the studio had ordered got her nothing but a scolding.

ANDREA LEEDS

Now we're to have an opera cycle in pictures. The San Francisco Grand Opera company has been selling out at all performances, so the motion picture companies got an inspiration and leaped right in. Metro starts the ball rolling with "Madame Pompadour," with a European importation, Meliza Korjus, starred. Two other studios will follow suit.

Probably the best one of the lot will be Walt Disney's "Farmyard Symphony," which will be knee-deep in burlesques of operatic arias; it's being released practically at once.

*

Tom Brown's supposed to break his neck in "The Duke of West Point," and had to wear one of those braces around his neck for eight hours. (Eric von Stroheim wears one in "Grand Illusion," a foreign picture that goes down as one of the best of the year.) Afterward Brown's neck was so stiff that he thought he'd never be able to move it naturally again.

*

William Powell is going back to work in January, under a new contract recently signed with Metro. His first picture will be "The Return of the Thin Man," with Myrna Loy, of course. That "Thin Man" series threatens to become as lengthy as the Charlie Chan one.

*

If anyone were to offer a medal for "The Grand Old Man of Radio" Rudy Vallee would probably get it. Not that he's old, but he's done so much to develop good programs and has discovered so much talent that he deserves the title.

If you heard his tenth anniversary program you've already checked up on that. If you didn't, you can probably remember that the list of people he's developed as stars of the air includes a lot of famous folk, from Alice Faye to Charlie McCarthy.

But you may not have known that he is responsible for the modern type of guest program. Irene Bordoni was his first guest star. In 1922 his program developed into its present form. The salary list was low, and still is far below the sums paid for some similar programs which are outdistanced by his in the popularity ratings.

It takes the listeners-in to make Tommy Riggs appreciate his talents. First they made him what he is today with his "Betty Lou" voice, and now they've been writing to him to praise his very pleasant baritone voice and urge him to do more singing as himself on his program.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . Jimmy Walker, ex-mayor of New York, certainly started something when he began those weekl broadcasts from the city's hospitals; his many friends in the entertainment field clamor to work for him for nothing, he gives his own services, and the programs are swell . . . If you like pictures about doctors you certainly must see "The Citadel," which is one of the best . . . And be sure to see "The Young in Heart" . . . All the studios are making Westerns these days . . . James Cagney's contribution to the cycle is "Oklahoma Kid," and he's had to learn to shoot like a cowboy instead of a gangster.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Toast Animals. — Cut animal shapes out of bread with animal cookie cutters. Spread with butter and toast a light golden brown under the broiler. Serve these to the children to eat with their soup.

* * *

Germless Brushes. — Once a week pour a little peroxide of hydrogen over the toothbrushes to sterilize them. Rinse with cold water and hang up in their places. We pay so much attention to the teeth and so little to the brush these days.

* * *

Economy Note.—Save all celery tops, wash and dry them and place in the oven, turning them now and then. Store the leaves in an airtight tin. Use them for flavoring soups, salads, etc.

* * *

Keeping Apples Whole.—Core apples before paring. They are less likely to break. A broad paring causes much waste because of the rounding surface of the apples.

* * *

A Scrap Book.—A large loose-leaf note book is inexpensive and handy to use if you are saving the newspaper clippings of the doings of anyone in the family. More pages can be added when needed and any added data may be written on the note book paper alongside of the articles.

* * *

Cleaning Strainers. — Never wash a tea strainer or a fine sieve in soapy water. Rinse in clear water always, then there can be no unpleasant flavor when next used.

* * *

Washing Dingy Bath Towels.—Bath towels that have become dingy should be put into boiler of cold water, soap added and a little lemon juice. Heat water to boiling point. Rinse towels in lukewarm blueing water and hang in the sun.

* * *

Colorful Salad.—When using apples in salad leave the skins on to add a touch of color to the salad.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

A Trade Mark Is an Honor Badge and Newspaper Advertising the Sentinel

Substitutes today are the illegitimate children of business. They are fatherless and unknown and they come to the consumer with a "Just as good" label on them which indicates clearly to the thinking buyer that she is buying something which is only "Just as good." The unknown product, the substitute parasite, has no reputation at stake. It is merely advertised for sale on a price basis and if the consumer does not like the quality, the manufacturer has suffered no injury because he is unknown and because he rarely links his name with a product as a standard of quality and a measuring stick of buying. It merely competes on a "take a chance" basis.

The manufacturers of well-known quality merchandise today place their names upon it and advertise it as the best they can offer to the consumer. The name of a manufacturer on an advertised product says this: This is the best product I know how to make. It is pure, good and worthy of your purchase. I think so well of it that I place my name upon it as a guarantee to you of its goodness. If it does not fulfill your wants I will gladly make good its failure.

There is no good reason why you should accept the unknown instead of the known; the untried instead of the tested; the doubtful instead of the sure. To refuse unknown substitutes is a guarantee to yourself of positive satisfaction in buying. If every purchaser will confine his or her purchases to known, advertised quality merchandise there will be little cause for complaint. Trade mark products tell their own story. It pays to look before you buy. Reading the advertisements in the newspaper, looking at trade marks, labels and names on products has purse interest.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

Feed Adolescent Correctly or Tragic Consequences May Result, Warns C. Houston Goudiss; Teeth Must Receive Special Consideration

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

OFFHAND, it may seem as if there could be very little connection between a deficient diet during adolescence and painful childbirth in later years. Yet it has been demonstrated clinically that there is a definite link. It has likewise been determined that the kind of food which is fed adolescents has a significant and far-reaching influence upon their teeth in later life, and in the case of girls, upon the teeth of their children when they in turn become mothers.

Preparation for Parenthood

Adolescence is a difficult period at best. And if a girl takes an unbalanced diet at this time, the result may be an unstable nervous system, poor physical development, lowered vitality and inability to fight off infections. This lack of strong resistance may open the way to dental disease and to a variety of other serious infections as well.

It has also been established that if a girl is poorly nourished during these years of rapid development, there may not be the slightest indication of that fact until she first becomes an expectant mother. Then she will pay for her mother's lack of nutrition knowledge.

Results of Calcium Deficiency

If her diet has been deficient in calcium, for example, her pelvic bones may be imperfectly developed, so that she suffers unnecessarily during the birth of her child. And if liberal amounts of calcium have not been stored in her body, she may be called upon to make needless sacrifices from her own body in the interests of her child. It is well known that if an expectant mother's diet is not abundantly supplied with calcium, the substance will be withdrawn from her own bones and teeth in an effort to meet the needs of the developing child.

An Aid to Dental Health

For although expectant mothers are not always aware of this important fact, it is true that the first or "baby" teeth are developed within the jaw during prenatal life, and the foundations for the second set are also laid at this time.

Unless the expectant mother's diet is very generously supplied with calcium, so as to allow adequate amounts for the baby's teeth and bones, nature will endeavor to meet the child's requirement by sacrificing calcium from the mother's own body. If she has no adequate reserve, then she may be forced to lose "a tooth for every child," or suffer even more serious dental ills.

Calcium-Rich Foods Required

Leading nutrition authorities hold that the average American diet is more deficient in calcium, perhaps, than in any other single nutrient. This is especially likely to be the case in the diet of the adolescent. For at that time, boys develop prodigious appetites and a tremendous capacity for carbohydrates or energy-producing foods, while girls become extremely finicky. Either they do not take enough food at meals, or they tend to eat too many rich mixtures between meals. As a result, the diet of both boys and girls is likely to contain an abundance of meat, fish, highly milled cereals and other refined foods, with inadequate amounts of the foods rich in calcium.

The Adolescent's Diet

To balance the diet properly, these necessary protein and energy foods should be supplemented by milk and cheese which are rich in calcium; by green leafy vegetables which are also a good source; by eggs and fruits, valued for their minerals and vitamins; and by bulky foods which supply sufficient cellulose to help promote regular health habits.

Mothers of adolescent children should make a conscientious and determined effort to feed them a diet rich in calcium and vitamins A, C and D—the substances required, especially, for maintaining sound, healthy teeth. If milk and succulent fruits and vegetables figure prominently in the daily menus of the adolescent girl, they will go a long way toward helping to correct the "choosy" attitude toward food from which many older children suffer.

And if careful attention to diet is coupled with careful attention to sound hygienic habits, the health of our 'teen-age boys and girls will be greatly improved, and they will be more adequately prepared to assume the duties of parenthood.

Correct Dental Hygiene

It is vitally important that the proper care be given to the teeth and mouth. But it is quite unlikely that a correct routine will be followed unless mothers offer tactful advice and suggestions very frequently. For while the tiny child has his teeth brushed for him, and the young school child has his tooth-brushing ritual supervised, too often the adolescent is left to his own devices in this respect. That is a great mistake, as adolescents are sometimes careless in the care of their teeth.

Mothers must see to it that there are two toothbrushes, one for night and one for morning, so that it is never necessary to use a soggy brush. They must watch when the supply of tooth paste or powder runs low, and see that it is replaced. For it is surprising how few children can be persuaded to brush their teeth properly without an agreeable dentifrice! Mothers should take care to choose a dentifrice that will preserve or restore luster in the teeth. For adolescents are extremely sensitive about their appearance and they must not be allowed to permit dingy teeth to spoil their smiles.

If mothers will feed their adolescents a correct diet and supervise their daily dental care, the coming generation will not only be more attractive to look at but should enjoy more abundant health.

Pretty Workaday Fashions

DURING the indoor season to come, make plenty of bright new workaday clothes for yourself and your daughter. Here's a design for charming aprons to wear over your own dark house frocks for protection and prettiness. And a simple, flare-skirted dress for school girls, so becoming and practical that just one of it will never be enough. Both of these patterns, in fact, you're sure to use over and over in different materials. They're easy as french dressing to make. A detailed sew chart accompanies each of them.

Charming School Frock.

This is an awfully good style for growing girls who incline to be a bit lanky. The puff sleeves, flared skirt and small waistline, drawn in by a belt at sides and back, give them just the right lines. The high neckline, finished by a little round collar, covers up their collar bones and looks so well under young faces. This is a diagram design, therefore can be finished in a few hours. Make it of velveteen, flannel, jersey, wool plaid, gingham, linen—it looks well in practically every fabric that school girls wear.

Three-Way Apron Design.

Two comfortable pinafore styles, so cut that they won't slip off at the shoulders, and a sweet little tie-around, are yours in this smart design that will help to solve many of your Christmas gift problems. Anyway you take it, or make it, this flaring, tiny-waisted apron design is a delight to make and to wear. Dimity, percale, dotted swiss, organdie and batiste, in white, dainty prints or pastels, are pretty fabrics for aprons.

The Patterns.

No. 1625 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2¼ yards of 39-inch material; 1⅝ yards of braid; ⅞ yard of ribbon for belt.

No. 1622 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 34 requires 2⅜ yards for each of these aprons. And for apron No. 1, 6 yards of braid. For apron No. 2, ¾ yard of contrast. For apron No. 3, 1 yard of pleating.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

HEADACHE EASED QUICKLY

Simple Method Shown Here Brings Relief in Few Minutes

1. Take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a full glass of water the moment you feel headache coming on.

2. You should feel relief very quickly. If pain is unusually severe, repeat according to directions.

To ease a headache with amazing speed, simply follow the easy Bayer Aspirin way shown above. Relief often comes within a few minutes.

If this way should fail — see your doctor. He will find the cause and correct it. While there, ask him about taking Bayer Aspirin to relieve headache and rheumatic pains. We believe he will tell you there is no more effective, more dependable way normal persons may use.

When you buy, ask for genuine "Bayer Aspirin" by its full name—not for "aspirin" alone.

Red Cross Seeks Cut In Accident Toll

1,725,406 First Aiders Trained Since 1910

Cognizant of tremendous losses in human lives and of permanent injuries resulting from accidents in homes, on farms and highways, and around industrial plants as well as in the basement workshop, officials of the American Red Cross have been directing a systematic fight against what they term "this economic waste."

As part of this nation-wide effort to reduce deaths and permanent injuries from accidents, a recent statement from Red Cross headquarters in Washington reports that during the past 12 months certificates have been granted to 295,028 persons completing courses in the administration of Red Cross first aid.

Holders of these certificates have followed detailed courses of study and have been taught how to splint fractured limbs, stop flow of blood, treat poison sufferers, care for victims of heat, electric shock, and handle other common emergency situations. The courses emphasize methods of caring for patients until professional medical aid can be summoned to scenes of accidents.

Since 1910, the report reveals, 1,725,406 persons have received this training from qualified Red Cross instructors, and at the present time 20,429 persons are qualified to give such instruction.

Bringing help nearer scenes of possible accident, 2,454 emergency first aid stations have been established in strategic locations on principal highways throughout the nation, operators of the stations receiving the prescribed Red Cross instructions and maintaining full first aid equipment on the spot. Conveniently placed, they also maintain up-to-date lists of available doctors and ambulance services pledged in advance to cooperate with Red Cross first aiders in preventing deaths and permanent injuries that so frequently result from automobile accidents.

Mobile first aid units also have been established in cooperation with state highway and police departments, operators of public utility vehicles and others frequenting highways, operators of such units also receiving the prescribed Red Cross courses in first aid.

To cut the number of persons losing their lives through drowning while swimming, the Red Cross has redoubled efforts to train as many persons as possible in life saving methods. During the past year 88,150 persons received certificates upon completion of courses. Since 1914, 884,649 persons have been trained in Red Cross life saving methods, including thousands of persons in CCC camps, beach patrolmen, camp instructors, and school boys and girls.

Carrying the fight onto farms and into homes, a campaign to eliminate accidents caused by careless habits and faulty equipment last year resulted in self-checks being made in 10,000,000 American homes through cooperation of children in school, women's clubs, farm organizations, and other groups. The 3,700 Red Cross chapters and their branches in every county are cooperating in this national effort to end needless pain and suffering resulting from such accidents.

These efforts to lessen such appalling tolls of human lives and usefulness are made possible through memberships in the Red Cross. The annual Roll Call will be held between November 11 and Thanksgiving Day, when all Americans are asked to join or renew their affiliation to ensure continuation of accident prevention measures.

Join the Red Cross Chapter in your community during the Roll Call, November 11 to 24.

"ORPHANS OF THE STORM"

Fleeing a tornado near Clyde, Texas, parents of these babies were killed, their automobile tossed a quarter-mile away. Hours later a telephone lineman heard a child's whimper in a roadside ditch. There he found 3-year-old Jesse Donald Rutledge, water up to his chin, holding his 3-months-old brother Daryl's head above water. Relatives being unable to care for the orphans, Red Cross workers arranged a maintenance fund to support them until they are 16. A Texas college promised scholarships and ranchmen started a herd of cattle for their benefit. The Red Cross will help the boys make adjustments as they grow older.

Appoint New WPA Director

Linus C. Glotzbach, regional WPA director at New Ulm, was named by Washington as state WPA director this week. R. C. Jacobson was acting administrator, following dismissal of Victor Christgau several months ago.

Glotzbach assumed his new duties on Monday.

A number of important personnel changes were announced by the new administrator. These are: Sam Kudish, deputy administrator, will become assistant to David Holmes, WPA finance director at Washington, and his position has been filled by S. L. Stolte, chief of WPA operations in Minneapolis; Jacob J. Herzog, former district supervisor for southern Minnesota, replaces Hubert Schon as state supervisor of employment, Schon remaining as assistant supervisor. MissEleanor Neeman, New Ulm, replaces Miss Catherine Schmitz as secretary to the administrator Miss Schmitz being transferred to the operations division.

The appointment of Glotzbach came as a complete surprise to most persons watching WPA developments in Minnesota. His name had never been publicly mentioned as a candidate for the position: He is regarded in WPA circles as conservative.

Moberg-Lunke Wedding

Miss Olive Moberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Moberg and Oscar Lunke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Lunke were quietly married at the Lutheran parsonage on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30. Rev. Hanson officiated, using the single ring ceremony. Their only attendants were Miss Hazel Lunke and Mr. Walter Moberg, sister of the groom and brother of the bride, respectively. Mr. and Mrs. Lunke will make their home on the groom's farm, northeast of Holt.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Peterson and daughter, Mr. amd Mrs. Geo. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnson and family and Miss Ethel Kivle were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Ness on Tuesday evening in the honor of their daughter Gladys who celebrated her birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Larson and family spent Thanksgiving Day at the J. A. Anderson home west of St. Hilaire. Mr. and Mrs Anderson recently returned from a two months trip to California.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Sandberg and family were entertained at the C. Flak home Thanksgiving Day.

Annual Church Meeting Held

The Nazareth Lutheran Church conducted its Annual meetings of the Congregation and Ladies Aid on Friday evening. In spite of inclement weather the attendance was very fine. According to reports given by the various officers, it showed the congregation to be in fine standing and that it had enjoyed a very successful year. A fine amount of funds was found to be on hand in both treasuries. Six families were received into the congregation. They are: Mr. and Mrs. Hjalmer Johnson and family; Mr. and Mrs. John Nass and family; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nohre; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Peterson and daughter Adeline; Mr. and Mrs. John Benitt and family; Mrs. Chas. Schwartz; This fine number of new members increases the congregation by 24 souls.

The Silver Creek Congregation held its annual meeting on Sunday afternoon. There too it showed a successful year from the reports given. Five families were received into membership there. They are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Ingeman Hoverud, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Russel and family; Mr. and Mrs. Seymore Nelson and family; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson and family; Mr. and Mrs. John H. Knutson and sons Raymond and Harlan. This increases the congregation by 23 souls and means that the congregation has increased over one third over the past year.

With all these families as members, it assures the parish, as a whole, of continued progress and development.

Adult Confirmation Class

On Monday evening, Dec. 5 at 8:00, an Adult Confirmation Class will be organized in the Lutheran Parsonage. It has long been felt that there was need for such a class in this community and parish. All those who are interested in the Lutheran Fundamentals are invited to come without further invitation. The books to be used are not the books usually used in the Confirmation class for the young folks but books specially designed for this work. The number of sessions will not be many as it is planned to have private Confirmation services some time around the first of the year. The pastor invites anyone above the usual confirmation age to attend as there are many in this community who should avail themselves of this opportunity.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Maruska Joey and Billy, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Saustad, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Saustad and Jerry all of Thief River Falls, Mrs. Clarence Doran of Grygla, Mrs. Fred Peterson Ferne and Cleo were guests at a turkey dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Saustad on Thanksgiving Day.

Amendment No. One Passed

The land exchange amendment to the constitution has passed by a vote of 609,046 for and 259,007 against, out of a total vote in the election of 1,144,926 according to complete official figures released by the state canvassing board. This is an endorsement of about two and a half to one of those who voted on the amendment, and a clear majority of 36,582 of the entire vote.

Conservation Commissioner Herman C. Wenzel expressed himself as well pleased with the passage of the amendment. "This is a demonstration that the people of Minnesota are becoming conservation-minded, and in their vote on the amendment they have clearly shown that they are interested in a constructive program of conservation and restoration of their natural resources", said Mr. Wenzel.

This is the fifth time the amendment was presented to the voters of the state, and the department of conservation has actively worked for its passage, carrying on an educational campaign in its behalf.

Mr. Wenzel voiced his thanks to the public spirited civic, labor, farm, and other organizations and to individuals who co-operated with the department in the educational work necessary to the passage of the amendment. He expressed thanks to the radio and the press for their generosity in giving time and space to explain the question.

The passage of the amendment will make it possible for the state to consolidate its forest holdings and put into effect a constructive policy of reforestration, timber management, and fire protection, as well as to aid isolated settlers in the forest regions te trade for more desirable land, commented Wenzel.

Final approval of all land exchanges is vested in the governor, the attorney general, and the state auditor, upon the recommendation of the conservation department. All mineral and water power rights on state land traded away, are retained by the state.

Mrs. Clarence Doran and Patty of Grygla arrived Wednesday to spend a few days at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Saastad and other relatives returning home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Aakus and family returned to Effie, Minn. Sunday after spending the week end at the Herb Johnson home. Mrs. Koepp accompanied them home where she will visit for some time.

Nancy Lee Johnson

Funeral services were conducted from the Free Mission church here yesterday afternoon for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Johnson of Fargo, N. Dak.

Nancy Lee Johnson was born on Sept. 2, 1938 and passed away on Sunday, November 27. She was ill all the time during her short span of life. Rev. Myhrer officiated and interment was made in the Holt cemetery.

The sympathy of the people goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson in their hour of sorrow. It is only three years ago since they laid away an infant son who they had with them only three days.

They have one daughter, Rosemond, who is twelve years old.

Village Election Notice

The Annual Village Election of the Village of Holt will be held at the Village Hall on Tuesday December 6th, 1938 between the hours of 9:00 A. M. and 5:00 P. M. of said day.

One Justice of the Peace for the term of 1 year.
One Constable for the term of 1 year.

Geo. Fricker, Village Clerk.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Peterson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Peterson and baby Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson were dinner guests at the Olaf Ness home Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Horien and family, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Nohre and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nohre and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nohre were guests at the Mrs. S. H. Nohre Thanksgiving Day.

Project Received Approval

Presidential approval of the Eastern Marshall County Ditch Cleaning and Construction WPA project was announced in Washington on Nov. 18, according to a report sent out by Congressman R. T. Buckler.

A letter to Congressman Buckler from David K. Niles, assistant administator states as follows:

"This is to advice you that the President has designated the Works Progress Administration projects for the 9th Congressional District of Minnesota described on the attachment as acceptable for inclusion in the program.

"These projects now are eligible for operation at the discretion of the State Works Progress Administrator. His decision will be governed largely by availability of funds, the presence of certified relief labor of the types and skills reduired, and other considerations that may be important in the state or locality.

"Should you desire information regarding the likelihood of operating any particular project, it is suggested that you communicatr with the Minnesota Works Progress Administration at the 306 Minnesota Bldg., 4th and Cedar Streets, St. Paul."

The project calls for an allotment of $108,061 and work will be governed largely by the availability of funds.

Penalized for That Which Was Unavoidable

W. B. Maxwell tells a story about the venerable Lord Halsbury, whose caddie had forced the famous lord chancellor to count a second stroke after his ball had been pulled out from under a bush.

"A harsh decision," soliloquized the jurist, "and I cannot but strongly urge that if the ball was playable in law it was not playable in fact. Then how can one equitably be penalized as if committing a misdemeanor, when only doing that which is unavoidable and inevitable? I would submit that if golf be really a game of skill, and not merely a game of chance . . ." he went on until the green was reached.

Money making ideas for Christmas.

AN INTERESTING letter this morning says, "Our church bazaar is over and in winding up the last details and balancing my accounts I feel that I would be neglecting something if I did not express my appreciation for your Sewing Book No. 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery. We found many ideas in it that were real money makers. Our annual Christmas sale is now in course of preparation. Could you publish some new ideas for toys in the paper soon?"

Unusually attractive toys may be made quickly and at little cost from cheap cotton stockings. This demure yellowish tan kitten with bright red or blue ribbon is made from a stocking leg. The secret of giving toys of this type character is in making the stuffing firm and tight. Cotton or small pieces of clean, soft rags may be used. Push the stuffing firmly in place with a blunt stick.

Complete directions for cutting and making the body are given here. For the tail, cut a piece 6 inches long and 2 inches wide. Stitch the lengthwise edges together, tapering toward the end, then turn right side out, stuff and sew firmly in place. It is easy to draw the face. Notice in the sketch how the eyelids curve, the shape of the mouth and how the whiskers slant.

Either wool yarn or mercerized cotton embroidery thread may be used—black or brown for the eyes and whiskers and red for the mouth. Be sure to save the scraps of stocking material left from the kitten. We will make a doll out of them later. If you are not ready to make Christmas toys now, clip and save this lesson as it is not contained in either of the books offered below.

NOTE: Are you ready for Christmas? Birthdays? And the next church bazaar? Do you turn time into money with things to sell? Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2 has helped thousands of women. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Order by number enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both books, quilt leaflet with 36 different stitches will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

"POOR TRUST IS DEAD—BAD PAY KILLED HIM"

This sign with picture of "doggie," gone where all "doggies" go, hanging on the wall of a small store in a little North Carolina town which was plenty years ago, was my first squint at the hint to pay cash. Some need a hint while others need a kick to make good their I. O. U's. The owner of that North Carolina store the kids called "OLD MAN CASH." What the grown-ups called him, I dunno.

It was said that he was a mind reader because he was always able to arrange to be at the spot where you had to look at that sign, and him, too, when you wanted credit. His cold stare and that sign caused stuttering of "the promise to pay tomorrow." It was told that some could not even utter the stutter when facing him and his sign.

In later years, after his retirement, speaking of his experience, he said, "There was a time when I was a Santa Claus and some folks seemed to think every day was December twenty-fifth, and no week had a pay day and no month, a first. It was then I decided to change my store habits and if possible the habits of some of my towns-people."

After thinking things over awhile, I made up my mind to advertise. I reasoned it out that a general alarm in the WEEKLY, the only paper in town, to tell about my store, the goods and the new policy of paying, would hit everybody and it would help me save shame-faces—some might feel sheepish while reading my advertisements and have a heart.

I got interested in advertising. I found other people, some of them my customers, read advertisements, so I helped it along the best I knew how. I put gingersnap words in my advertisements and some humor, and that's how the idea came for the POOR TRUST IS DEAD sign.

I also found that good-name goods had repeat sales and that started me concentrating on staples with the result that fussiness, over what kind, no longer confused or irked. Dilly-dally selling efforts, wasting time and costing money passed out.

Customers bought baking powder, soda, flour, soap and other articles bearing identification marks. Kids called them pictures. Products put up in neat, convenient, honest weight and measured cartons, boxes, bottles and cans. What an improvement in business and the dispositions of the customers. I even improved with conditions so greatly changed for the better.

Lonely North Carolina Town Marks Christmas January 5

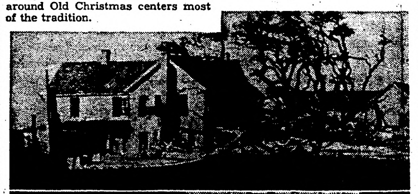
RODANTHE, N. C., easternmost town in America, celebrates Christmas twice each year. "New" Christmas comes December 25 but just as regularly on January 5 the inhabitants of this isolated town observe "Old" Christmas, a carry-over from the days before our current calendar was generally accepted. Christmas trees must be imported, for Rodanthe has only one tree (see below), a gnarled oak. But the kids enjoy this plan, because Santa Claus visits them twice. Their parents, fishermen and coastguardsmen on an island that is little more than a shifting sand dune, participate enthusiastically in both celebrations. But around Old Christmas centers most of the tradition.



Boatswain's Mate P. A. Tillett, biggest man in the coast guard service, is Santa Claus for Rodanthe's Old Christmas party. They had to send to the mainland to get red cloth spacious enough for his suit. Each Old Christmas celebration is held in the school building where the only "furriner" is the school teacher.

To the present teacher, a girl from Virginia, Old Christmas is the world's most puzzling custom. But seasoned residents of Hatteras island don't look at it that way. To them, Old Christmas is no more unusual than the Fourth of July. On their isolated island the event has been celebrated by generation after generation, and will probably continue for generations to come.

Rodanthe children believe in "Old Buck," an ogre with hoofs and horns who comes at Old Christmas to punish the naughty boys and girls, just as St. Nicholas rewards the good youngsters. None of the islanders remember how "Old Buck" originated, but he's definitely a part of the celebration.

C. Houston Goudiss Describes Some of the Functions of Vitamin $B_1$—Reports Recent Discoveries of Its Relation to the Gastro-Intestinal Tract

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

PERHAPS no more dramatic chapter has ever been written in the history of nutritional science than the discovery of the chemical structure of the vitamin now known as $B_1$ and its artificial synthesis.

Inasmuch as a deficiency of this vitamin may have extremely far-reaching effects upon human health and happiness, it is important that every homemaker should learn something of its functions, its characteristics and its sources.

The Anti-Neuritic Substance

Vitamin $B_1$ is known to prevent and to cure a nerve disease called beriberi.

The disease was known in Ancient times in the Orient. It occurred in other countries during the Nineteenth century. And even in the Twentieth century, some of the British troops stationed in Mesopotamia and the Dardanelles during the World war came down with the disease.

Even before this vitamin was identified, a European investigator was seeking to determine why a small portion of milk added to a diet containing protein, fats, carbohydrates and minerals successfully nourished individuals who did not enjoy good health when the milk was omitted.

Chemical Identification

Many investigators sought for years to fathom the secret of this mysterious substance.

After long research by many distinguished investigators, two Americans reached a milestone in the history of nutritional science when they discovered the chemical structure of vitamin $B_1$ and learned how to synthesize it.

A Regulator of Body Processes

In the course of their work with vitamin $B_1$, nutritional scientists have discovered many other important functions of this vitamin.

It has been determined that this substance is essential to growth and that it is also necessary to promote normal appetite. Laboratory experiments with animals revealed that when fed upon a diet lacking vitamin $B_1$, the animals lost their desire for food and refused to eat until the vitamin was restored to their diet.

There is also some evidence that vitamin $B_1$ is necessary for the maintenance of normal muscular tone of the large intestine.

Aids Gastro-Intestinal Tract

Chemical studies on 75 patients led one investigator to conclude that a continual slight shortage of vitamin B leads to definite changes in the motor and secretory mechanism of the gastro-intestinal tract.

There is also evidence that the vitamin $B_1$ requirement increases with the rate of growth and with increased energy expenditure.

For this reason, active working men and women should be amply supplied with this vitamin, and growing children should also have generous quantities.

Further investigations are now in progress and it is quite possible that many significant new facts will be unearthed in the near future.

In the meantime, there is enough evidence to warrant the belief that the absence of vitamin $B_1$ results in cellular alteration in the nervous system, intestine, pancreas, stomach, salivary glands, liver and other tissues.

The whole power of the body to resist infection appears to be decreased. This is especially true in the gastro-intestinal tract, probably owing to the action of the bacteria on its passage through the impaired alimentary tract.

Some Peculiarities of This Vitamin

Vitamin $B_1$ is soluble in water. For this reason, a large percentage of it may be lost if the water in which a food is soaked or cooked is discarded. Other ways in which this precious vitamin is lost are through refining cereals too highly, or when the natural acidity of a food is lowered by the addition of an alkali.

Preventing Vitamin $B_1$ Deficiency

It has been suggested that the health department of every village, town and city should not be content with protecting the local community against infectious diseases, but should be equally militant in endeavoring to safeguard its people against the dietary deficiency diseases which have been discovered through the recent advances in nutritional knowledge.

That is because many people who can easily afford the foods that furnish vitamin $B_1$ are consuming a diet deficient in this respect. This unfortunate situation may arise because they believe that their customary diet is adequate. Or, they conclude that appetite is a reliable guide to the meals that should be consumed.

Sources of Vitamin $B_1$

Investigation has established that foods yielding a good amount of vitamin $B_1$ include bran, milk, eggs, bananas, orange juice, carrots, spinach and cabbage.

One of America's outstanding nutritional scientists has stated that foods can be made to provide the necessary daily requirement of vitamin $B_1$ if half of the needed calories are taken in the form of fruits, vegetables, milk and eggs, and if at least half of the breads and cereals consumed are taken in the whole grain form. This suggests the advisability of adding some bran to muffins, waffles, and other quick breads when they are intended for the dietary of normal individuals. The same procedure can likewise be followed in serving hot or cold cereals.

Another distinguished authority holds that adequate amounts of vitamin $B_1$ can be furnished at a low cost if the homemaker will utilize larger quantities of the whole grain cereals and legumes. If the calories supplied by these foods are not desired—as when one is endeavoring to avoid gaining weight—vitamin $B_1$ may be obtained from suitable quantities of bran and the germ of the grain.

Foods That Help Promote Regularity

In addition to providing vitamin $B_1$, which helps to serve as a sort of intestinal tonic, bran and many fruits and vegetables help to add cellulose or bulk to the diet. Their fibrous framework is a great aid in promoting regular health habits.

Some foods are richer than others in cellulose or bulk. Good sources of this substance being notably bran, whole grain cereals, most raw fruits; dried fruits, such as prunes, figs and raisins; raw vegetables; such cooked vegetables as onions and leafy greens; and legumes, that is, dried beans and peas.

These foods, therefore, have a definite place in the diet of normal individuals. The homemaker should see to it that they are included regularly in her daily menus.

If that task is performed faithfully, it should help to develop a healthier and more vigorous race.

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. T. L.—Yes, you are correct. All kinds of flesh food furnish protein, and usually they also contain fat. The amount of fat, however, varies with the cut and with the kind of animal from which it was obtained. Many flesh foods have more fat than full cream.

Mrs. T. A.—If a year-old infant receives a quart of milk daily, he should obtain sufficient protein, calcium, phosphorus and vitamin A to meet his requirements. He will likewise receive substantial amounts of vitamins B and G, but he needs a supplementary source of vitamin C.

All Very Easy to Make

BUSY days are coming—you don't want to undertake laborious sewing tasks, and these designs have been greatly simplified, so that you can quickly and easily make them. The house dress is one of the prettiest princess styles you ever put on—very flattering to the figure. The outfit for your little girl's little girl is grand and glorious beyond description, from the point of view of childhood. Each design is accompanied by a complete and detailed sew chart.

Princess Home Frock.

This simple design has truly lovely lines, very slim and youthful. You can zip it down the front, or fasten it with buttons. The neckline and sleeve edges are unusually attractive and becoming. This is much too pretty a dress to make only once. You'll use the pattern time and again. Make it for home wear of gingham, linen or percale. Make it of challis, wool crepe or velveteen (without the pockets) for a useful runabout dress.

The Doll's Outfit.

Just look at all the pretty things you can make from this one pattern, for the Christmas joy of some doll-loving little girl! A playsuit that becomes a dirndl frock when you add the shirred skirt! A cape and a kerchief! A housecoat just like the grown-up ones for real ladies, and a dream of a party dress! In just a short time, with a few scraps left over from your own clothes, you can make this gift. And these tiny garments are almost as much fun for grown-ups to make as they are for children to play with!

The Patterns.

No. 1642 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 34 requires 4¾ yards of 35-inch material; 1⅞ yards of trimming.

No. 1645 is designed for 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22 and 24-inch dolls; 14-inch doll requires, for the party dress, and housecoat ¼ yard each of 35-inch material; for the playsuit, skirt and kerchief, ⅓ yard; for the cape, ⅛ yard.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Red Cross Nurses Aid Million Sick

Red Cross public health nurses made more than one million visits to or on behalf of the sick during the fiscal year 1937-38.

The patients live in mountain communities, on islands off the coast, in isolated swamp regions, and in crowded industrial sections. During the same period the nurses inspected 559,187 school children for health defects in cooperation with local physicians, and gave instructions in home hygiene and care of the sick to 58,754 mothers and young girls.

Disasters Strike 41 States During Year

Red Cross Aids 420,000 Persons Following Catastrophes

That the past year has not been an easy one for the American Red Cross is shown in a recent report listing disasters necessitating Red Cross relief throughout the United States during the past twelve months.

The report reveals that 129 domestic disasters called for Red Cross aid in 247 counties of 41 states, and that assistance was given to 420,000 persons who were disaster victims.

"That this has been a very active year is obvious when one compares this year's operations with the average of 92 disasters requiring Red Cross aid annually for the past 15 years," Chairman Norman H. Davis said in commenting on the Red Cross Disaster Relief Service report.

These catastrophes included cloudbursts, cyclones, epidemics, fires, floods, forest fires, hailstorms, mine explosions, a school bus accident, a shipwreck, tornadoes, typhoons, and wind storms.

"Disaster relief was the first humanitarian work of the American Red Cross after its organization in 1881," Mr. Davis said. "In the ensuing 57 years the flag of the Red Cross has flown upon every scene of major disaster in the United States. The Red Cross has carried relief—food, clothing, shelter, medical aid, rehabilitation of homes and families—to more than 2,200 scenes of disaster at home and abroad, and has expended over $140,000,000 contributed by the American public in this work of mercy."

The Red Cross policies of relief, the national chairman pointed out, have been established over a period of years through actual experience of its workers in the field. Relief is given on the basis of need of sufferers—not of losses. Loans, he pointed out, are never made, but relief is a gift from the Red Cross in the name of its members and contributors to its work.

"It would not be possible for the Red Cross to carry out such widespread relief activities without the help of thousands of volunteer workers," Mr. Davis said. "Volunteers are the mainstay of the organization, and in the past year's work assistance from many cooperating agencies has made it possible for us to answer the many calls for help."

While relief was being given to victims of natural catastrophes, the Red Cross was not unmindful of the necessity for preparedness plans to meet emergencies that may arise in any American community. Red Cross chapters in hundreds of counties have organized disaster preparedness committees charged with responsibility to map relief plans in advance of need, and to organize resources of communities to prevent duplication of effort and waste of materials when calls for help are received.

These plans are proving especially advantageous in localities subject to frequent floods, tornadoes, or hurricanes, and actual tests of such planning have demonstrated the necessity for such measures.

"The administration of such relief for disaster victims is made possible by annual memberships of millions of Americans in all walks of life," Mr. Davis pointed out. "The extent of Red Cross aid to such sufferers is entirely dependent upon unselfish sharing on the part of all of us."

Vera Grandstrand Is Winner

Vera Grandstrand of Stephen, Minnesota 4-H club dress reveu queen, represented the state at the National contest at Chicago last week. Making a very commendable showing by placing in the blue ribbon class, she has brought honor to the state the county and her local club.

Following is an account Vera has written of her trip.

"I have just returned from a most interesting visit to Chicago, the Agricultural capitol of the world.

"The great city is situated in the lagest area of fertile land on the globe. It is unequaled in manufacturing and distributing facilities. Chicago has the advantage of nearby coal and iron fields, pipe connections with natural gas wells, unlimited electrical energy, center of inland canals and ship routes, plus 48 railway trunk lines.

"I won my trip to the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago on our state dress revue, sponsored by Chicago Mail Order Co. Monday we girls modeled before the revue judges, Miss Edith Lacy from Kentucky and Mrs. M. Loies Stewart from Minnesota. The competition was so close in my class of best dresses that it was necessary to

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father, Hans C. Knutson, who passed to the Great Beyond two sad years ago December 8.

We are sad and lonely dear Daddy
Since the day you were called to our Heavenly Home above.
Your love and kindness will never be forgotten
And our love for you dear Daddy
Will live forever in our hearts.
When we leave this world of care
We shall find our missing Daddy
In Our Father's Mansion.

Sadly missed by the

1939 Triple-A Program

The 1939 Triple-A farm program has many features that fit the need of Minnesota's widely varied agriculture, according to Charles W. Stickney, chairman of the Minnesota State Agricultural Conservation committee.

Special attention has been given to problems of small farmers and changes in the program have been made to more closely conform to their needs. In class A areas where the total soil-depleting allotment is less than 20 acres, the farms need not be given general soil-depleting allotments. Payments will be earned through soil-building practices rather than by planting within the allotment.

On farms for which a wheat acreage allotment has been established, any acreage planted to wheat, except mixtures, will be considered wheat unless some other use is made of the land before December 15, 1938. Formerly, wheat used for certain purposes could be exempted from the soil-depleting classifications.

Acreage planted to flax will not be classified as soil-depleting if used as a nurse crop, or if flax acreage is matched with an acreage of soil-conserving crops. Farmers in the western part of the state requested that this provision be inserted in the new program.

In line with recommendations of the recent national vegetable conference in Washington at which Minnesota was represented, commercial vegetable growers in designated areas will receive allotments. Allotments will be established on the average acreage in commercial vegetables in 1936 and 1937. The provisions are intended to stablize acreages of vegetables and to discourage increases on farms with reduced acreages of major crops, says, Stickney. On any non-allotment farm, 3 acres of commercial vegetables may be grown without deduction in payments.

As a result of reductions in acreage allotments, proposeed payment rates for wheat will be higher than under the 1938 program, while rates on corn, potatoes and most types of tobacco will be lower.

Crop payments will be made on the normal yield of the 1939 acreage allotments, farmers will receive on corn a conservation payment of 9 cents a bushel, plus a price adjustment payment of 5 to 6 cents a bushel, or a total payment of 14 to 15 cents per bushel. On wheat they will receive a 17-cent per bushel conservation payment, plus a 10 to 12-cent per bushel price adjustment payment, or a total of 27 to 29 cents. On potatoes the payment will be 3 cents per busnel. Final determination of rates will be early in February, 1939.

Other payments which may be earned on soil-building practices include $1.50 per acre in the commercial vegetables area, $1.10 per acre for general crops in area A, and 50 cents per acre on soil-conserving crops in area A. The rate for soil-building practices is $1.50 per unit. These payments will be based on compliance with the acreage allotments. Farmers who exceed their allotments will be subject to deductions.

Nine Ask Lease Renewals

Nine applications for extensions covering twelve leases on state owned iron mining properties have been filed with the State Department of Conservation, according to Commissioner Herman C. Wenzel. These applications are filed under the terms of the 1937 law providing that all leaseholders desiring an extension must apply withing 18 months of the approval of the act, or October 26, 1938.

Under the terms of the law, all leases negotiated must terminate January 1, 1965, or 25 years after their effctive date, January 1, 1940. Royalties or payments to the state under the renewed leases may not be less than 50 cents per ton, whereas the present leases are on the basis of 25 cents per ton. The old leases were made for a period of 50 years. The first of these expire in 1942.

Where no ore is shipped from a property, under the new leases, the state will receive an annual rental of $8,000. Under the old leases, this amount was $1250 per year.

Of the nine applications received, seven are on active mines, while two cover undeveloped properties.

The Oliver Mining Company submitted applications covering the Misabe Mountain, two leases on the Minewas mine at Virginia. and two on the Leonidas at Eveleth. The present leases on these properties expire in 1942.

The Oliver Comany also submitted applications for extension of two leases on the Prindle mine at Virginia which expire in 1951, and on the Oliver Reserve at Mountain Iron which expires in 1952.

Pickand, Mather and Company made application on the Scranton mine at Hibbing, which expires in 1950. The Inter-State Iron Mining Company applied for extension on the Grant mine at Buhl, expiring in 1942.

The Hanna Ore Mining Company applied for extension on the Stein Reserve mine at Keewatin expiring in 1943; and the Warben Land Company on the Warben property located at Vermillion Range, which expires in 1957.

The total remaining ore in the five Oliver properties is estimated at about 28 million tons, and there are about 17 million tons reserve in the other four properties, or a total of 45 million tons for the nine mines.

Shipments to-date, for all properties involved, amounts to 91 million tons, and 80 million tons of this was shipped from the Oliver Iron Mining Company properties.

New royalty rates, which may not be less than 50 cents per ton, will be determined after a study has been made of the information that has been submitted with each extension application. Final approval of all lease renewels rests with both the Conservation Commissioner and the Executive Council.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been of the finest winter weather that we could expect to have in this part of the state. We have enjoyed sunshine and warm weather every day this week. Over the week end we had London weather with a lot of fog. On Wednesday we had a big thaw when the thermometer jumped over the forty mark.

New Mayor Elected Tuesday

The largest village election that has been held here since 1926 was held on Tuesday when 64 voters turned out to cast their ballots for village officers for the coming year.

One new member was elected to the council when Hartley Peterson, local telephone man, was chosen president of the Village Council. He received 49 of the 64 votes cast. His opponent, Walter Larson got the remaining 15 votes.

In the race for councilman for three years, Sam Lorentson and H. O. Hanson ran a close race with Hanson winning the post by one vote. Lorentson got 31 and Hanson 32.

Geo. Fricker was re-elected as Village Clerk for two years. He had no opposition.

Hjalmer Peterson, who has acted as Village Treasurer the past year, was elected for one year. He was opposed by C. H. Gunheim. Their votes were: Peterson 44 and Gunheim 20.

Marvin Sandberg who was appointed as village assessor last spring, was elected for one year. He had no opponent.

Hilmer Erickson was elected Justice of the Peace for two years and Joseph G. Nelson was was elected constable for two years.

The were a few scattered votes cast for others for offices of Justice and Constable.

This was the most interest shown in a village election by the voters for many years. There is no money in being on the village council but some one must hold the jobs and take care of the village affairs and it is only fair that the burden be shifted around so that all the citizens of the village serve a year or two at some time.

Walter Larson, Sam Lorentson and Mr. Hanson have all served as presidents of the council in past. Mr. Lorentson has also been councilman the past three years and served two years as assessor.

Hjalmer Peterson and Gilbert Sanoden are also past presidents of the village council.

Holt Pioneer Woman Passes

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon from the Nazareth Lutheran church for Mrs. Christine Elefson, pioneer of Holt township.

Mrs. Elefson was born Christine Marie Sandberg on May 11, 1860 in Ostermark, Varmland, Sweden. Her parents were John and Marie Sandberg. She was baptised and confirmed in the Lutheran Church at Mora, Sweden. She was married to John Johnson, also of Vermland, Sweden, who preceeded her in death in the year 1889. She emigrated to America in 1884 and for a short time lived in Otter Tail county, coming to Holt Township in June 1885. She passed away peacefully at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hjalmer Johnson, on December 2, at 5:45 p. m.

Left to mourn her loss are 11 children: Hilda, Mrs. Fred Johnson, Thief River Falls; Anna, Mrs. F. W. McMurray, Oregon; Esther, Mrs. Frank Gordon, Yelm, Washington; Oscar; Hjalmer; Clara, Mrs. Carsten Sagstuen; Carl; Victor; Ruth, Mrs. Chas. D. Wilson; all of Holt; David, of Fargo; Lillian, Mrs. Bill Johnson of Hazel. One son, Daniel preceded her in death in June, 1916 at the age of 28.

She is also survived by 37 grandchildren; and 6 great grand children; Two sisters, Mrs. Tilda Crowley of Minneapolis and Mrs. Marie Herien of Milwaukee.

She had reached the age of 78 years, 6 months and 21 days.

Honorary pall bearers were C. E. Smith, H. A. Fosholm, Otto Johnson, Guy Anderson, C. O. Saastad, Hilmer Moberg, T. B. Folden.

Active pall bearers were her five sons and her son-in-law Carsten Sagstuen. Rev. T. C. L. Hanson officiated assisted by Rev. Thv. Myhrer.

Interment was made in the cemetery northwest of Holt.

Raymond Sagstuen was rushed to Physician's Hospital at Thief River Falls Wednesday evening where he underwent an operation for appendicitis that same evening.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses the Child Who Has a Lagging Appetite; Tells What to Do for the Finicky Eater

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

IT HAS been well said that with the knowledge of nutrition now at the command of practically every mother, there should not be one ill-nourished child in our land. Unfortunately, statistics show that possibly one-half of the children in this country are either underweight, undernourished or malnourished.

Many factors may be responsible for this state of affairs. Some children are fed incorrectly owing to the fact that the family income is small and the mother has not learned how to utilize low-cost foods that are rich in protective minerals and vitamins in place of those that are higher priced. In other families, the mothers do not realize the importance of providing a well-rounded diet for growing children. But the problems of these homemakers are more easily remedied, perhaps, than those of mothers who plan a well-balanced diet, but find that their child lacks interest in, or even refuses to eat the food that has been prepared so carefully.

Developing the Right Attitude

Strange as it may seem, such difficulties often arise because a mother fails to give the necessary consideration to developing in the young child a proper attitude toward food. Some children need to be taught that they must eat enough food for their body requirements. It is part of the training they should have in early childhood, so that they develop a willingness to eat what is put before them, to try new foods when offered, and to become increasingly independent in making a wise selection at mealtimes.

If a child has been properly conditioned in these respects from his earliest years, mothers will seldom find themselves faced with a "child who will not eat."

Problem of Anorexia

All normal children will, at times, exhibit a lack of appetite. We are not concerned here with occasions when a child who usually eats well feels no desire for food. Such lack of appetite may mean the beginning of a cold or some other illness and should be carefully investigated. Unfortunately, however, many mothers of young children are faced with a chronic lack of appetite in their children—a condition that physicians describe as anorexia. In order to correct this condition, it is necessary to understand its causes and to use wisdom in helping to remove them.

Find the Causes

When a child chronically lacks interest in food, the mother should set about systematically to learn the reasons why. Possibly the cooperation of your physician will be required, for sometimes obscure physical causes may be responsible, such as faulty elimination, diseased tonsils or teeth or some other focal infection. On the other hand, it frequently occurs that a changed attitude on the part of the mother in presenting food is all that is necessary to alter completely a child's attitude in regard to his meals.

It is interesting to note, however, that in studying a large group of children with poor appetites, one investigator found that 82 per cent of the children were more than average in height and narrow in body build.

Faulty Diet May Destroy Appetite

Frequently, a child's lack of interest in food may be traced directly to poor choice among the foods presented to him. It has been repeatedly demonstrated, for example, that when the diet lacks vitamin $B_1$, appetite decreases, so that there is less desire for food of any kind. Then, too, when a child's diet contains too much fat, digestion may be delayed and this in turn may interfere with the appetite for the next meal. While some children thrive better with a between-meal feeding, in others it seems to destroy appetite for the meal that is to follow. And with some children, "fussiness" at mealtimes may be due to the fact that their diet contains too many concentrated foods, too few crisp raw ones that stimulate appetite.

Fatigue a Factor

Occasionally, a child does not eat well merely because he is too tired. Even though he obtains adequate sleep at night, too much or too prolonged exercise or excitement may result in fatigue during the day. If a child spends too much time with adults, overstimulation may be the result. And in the case of older children, their school work may be troubling them.

Another frequent cause of lagging appetite is the constant nervous tension to be observed in some households. If a child is allowed to become unhappy, angry, or worried over some uncompleted school assignment, it may interfere seriously with his appetite and consequently with his nutrition. With younger children, the fact that they are able to attract favorable attention from adults by refusing to eat often stimulates them to repeat their refusal as long as mother shows concern over their antics.

Parents' Attitude Important

This brings us to perhaps the most important factor in dealing with the young, finicky eater who eats sparingly and whose dislikes usually far outnumber his likes. Such a child must be encouraged tactfully to eat a wide variety of foods, but mothers must not be over-solicitous, nor must they become obviously angry or irritated when the child refuses food. Scolding, punishment and threats of punishment should be avoided, as they defeat their purpose. Remember, too, that precept is a powerful teacher, and that a child's dislike for certain foods may have been instilled by a none-too-guardedly expressed dislike of a similar food on the part of an adult.

Some Helpful Hints

It may be necessary for the entire family to live more quietly, in order to give the finicky eater a chance to be quiet and relaxed. There must be regularity of meals and mealtimes must be peaceful. Keep the table conversation general and impersonal in character before older children. See to it that younger ones eat by themselves.

Often a short rest before meals will help a child to become relaxed completely. And frequently, a new method of presenting foods will result in a changed attitude on the part of the child.

Foods for young children should not be seasoned too highly. In general, condiments should be avoided. Strong-flavored vegetables, as a rule, are not well liked, and if introduced in the young child's diet should be combined with some familiar, and mild-tasting food. In cooking vegetables, keep the pieces large enough so that the child can identify what he is eating. Include a crisp food in each meal.

Finally, remember that a child's eating habits cannot be changed overnight. Changes should be introduced gradually, so that he is scarcely aware of what is going on.

HOW TO SEW

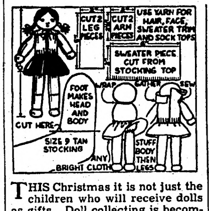
by Ruth Wyeth Spears



THIS Christmas it is not just the children who will receive dolls as gifts. Doll collecting is becoming a popular hobby for grown-ups. The most valued dolls are of whatever materials may be at hand and reflect the individuality of the person who made them. Rag babies of all kinds have an important place in such a collection. You will enjoy making the one shown here. Book 2 offered herewith also offers many suggestions for making and dressing dolls from scraps of materials.

If you want to make the stocking doll, clip these directions and keep them as this doll is not in either of the books offered here. The head and body are made of the foot of the stocking cut off where the heel begins, as shown. Stuff this part with cotton or bits of soft clean rags, sew across the bottom and then wind a thread around so that the toes of the stocking will form the head. Fold the leg and arm pieces lengthwise, stitch, turn and then stuff. Wrap thread around to make divisions for hands and feet. Sew the legs to the body, then add the skirt. The arms are sewn on top of the sweater piece and the sweater collar is turned down over this sewing.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, has helped thousands of women to use odds and ends of materials and their spare time to make things to sell and to use. Book 1—Sewing for the Home Decorator is full of inspiration for every homemaker. These books make delightful Christmas gifts. Mrs. Spears will autograph them on request. Crazypatch quilt leaflet is included free with every order for both books. Order by number, 25 cents each book. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Dem-G.O.P. Coalition Gesture May Be 'Middle Ground' Trend

—By Joseph W. La Bine—

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Politics

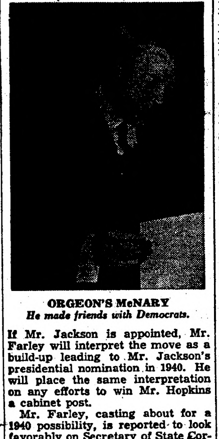
America's political pendulum swings periodically from conservatism to liberalism and back again. Coolidge-Hoover conservatism was followed by Roosevelt liberalism, but the return swing to conservatism that started last November 8 is more apt to stop in the middle of the road, than to veer violently back to rock-ribbed Republicanism.

Washington observers, who claim President Roosevelt has discarded middle-road New Dealers in favor of "left-wingers" like Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Jackson and WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, predict the President must either abandon this policy or lose the support of Postmaster Gen. James J. Farley. The President's answer will come when he names a successor to Attorney Gen. Homer S. Cummings.



ORGEON'S McNARY

If Mr. Jackson is appointed, Mr. Farley will interpret the move as a build-up leading to Mr. Jackson's presidential nomination in 1940. He will place the same interpretation on any efforts to win Mr. Hopkins a cabinet post.

Mr. Farley, casting about for a 1940 possibility, is reported to look favorably on Secretary of State Cordell Hull, the only cabinet member who has refrained from casting his lot with any factional element within the Democratic party. Mr. Roosevelt's choice apparently lies between running for a third term or endorsing some middle-grounder like Secretary Hull.

Evidence is already piling up testifying to the political expediency of this middle road position. Republicans, who will at last make themselves heard in congress next month, are inclined to assume such an attitude rather than fight for a return to the traditional G. O. P. conservatism. In the senate, where Republicans now have 23 members, they need the support of only 26 Democrats, Farmer-Laborites, Progressives or Independents to hold a majority.

By catering to the middle-ground idea, the President can possibly forestall the rising tide of Republican strength which is being built on this very platform. He can also avert a revolt in Democratic ranks, which otherwise will almost certainly rise to the surface during next congress. A meeting of Republican and Democratic minds is already evident on curtailment of governmental expenditures and a new policy for administering relief.

Oregon's Sen. Charles L. McNary, Republican minority leader, has announced that "Republicans will join with other groups" on such a program. One of his plans, that of turning relief administration over to bipartisan state boards, finds expression in the bill being drafted by North Carolina's Sen. Josiah W. Bailey, a Democrat. His political cohort, Sen. Edward R. Burke of Nebraska, has announced that although the Bailey proposal is a "Democratic move," Republican support will be welcomed.

Foreign

Snugly ensconced in his Bavarian mountain aerie at Berchtesgaden, Adolf Hitler can await Christmas morning knowing his stocking will be full. Established in 1938 as the master of Europe, Der Fuehrer is now able to sit back and watch the spoils of his diplomatic and military conquests mount throughout Europe. Among the latest spoils:

(1) Little Czechoslovakia, reduced to vassaldom, has agreed to let Germany build two canals and a superhighway across her, connecting Germany proper with Austria via a new short route. Both canals (one on the Moldau, the other on the Oder) will join with the Danube river and furnish an unbroken waterway from the North and Baltic seas to the Black sea. Thus will Hitler's economic grip on central Europe be strengthened.

(2) With Great Britain definitely frightened, Hitler has won a peace treaty with Britain's ally, France, whereby a barrier is erected between these two great European democracies. More important still is the fact that France's current economic and political chaos is a direct result of war preparations necessitated by Germany's aggressive policy. To put down a strong Communist uprising, Premier Edouard Daladier has been forced to exercise an iron hand that looks dangerously like Fascism.

(3) It is quite probable that Rumania's King Carol, having shopped unsuccessfully for financial aid in Great Britain, will accept Hitler's promise to buy Rumanian wheat and oil in return for German manufactured articles. This would give Germany a new wedge in her economic drive to the southeast.

The only unpleasant note in an otherwise happy Bavarian Christmas will be Poland's attitude. Although Hitler safeguarded his path to the southeast by blocking a proposed Hungarian-Polish plan to annex Ruthenia from Czechoslovakia, the victory has brought him Poland's undying hatred. Poland will oppose Der Fuehrer's plan to create a new Ukraine republic in Sub-Carpathian Russia, and will also tighten its friendship bonds with Russia at Germany's expense.

International

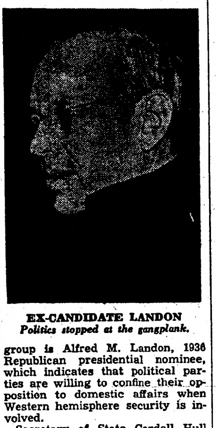
One day 115 years ago, President James Monroe stuck out his chin against the "holy alliance" then threatening the world in general and South America in particular. His statement: "We could not view an interposition for oppressing them (the Spanish-American republics) or controlling in any other manner their destiny, by any European power, in any other light than as a manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

In the century that followed, the U. S. has clung tenaciously to its Monroe doctrine, sometimes blushing guiltily at charges of "dollar diplomacy" in South America. But in 1938 there has arisen a threat far greater than the holy alliance, namely, the Fascist-Nazi triumvirate of Germany, Italy and Japan.

How far these nations have penetrated into South America is debatable, but few observers deny the threat. Though the triumvirate may have no territorial ambitions in Pan America, it is significant that Nazi-Fascist foreign trade success runs hand in hand with political success. Diplomat and commercial salesman are often one and the same person.

U. S. weapons to fight this aggression are trade agreements, a Pan-American "league of nations" and co-ordinated Western hemisphere defense. To offer these weapons, a U. S. delegation is attending the eighth Pan-American conference in Lima, Peru, which opens strategically at a time when American nations are anxious to air their troubles. Notably included in the U. S. group is Alfred M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee, which indicates that political parties are willing to confine their opposition to domestic affairs when Western hemisphere security is involved.



EX-CANDIDATE LANDON

Secretary of State Cordell Hull has already memorized his proposals, but his presentation will be staged so elaborately that South American nations themselves will voice the plans. Reason: If the U. S. were to take outright lead in defending the Western hemisphere, the "dollar diplomacy" charge would again appear. That Mr. Hull will succeed in solidifying Pan America is conceded by most observers, who recall that in 1933 he injected an incredible spirit of optimism into the forlorn Montevideo conference.

Religion

The near-fatal heart attack which seized Pope Pius XI recently leads persons close to the Vatican to believe he will soon issue an encyclical on world issues, reaffirming his pronounced stand against armed conflicts, Germany's Jewish persecution and communism. The pope is believed anxious to make such a restatement immediately because he is convinced another heart attack may prove fatal.

Santa Claus Really Has a Post Office

This is the doorway to Santa Claus land, a real village resting in the Indiana hills which has become world-famous because of its Christmasy name and also because Abraham Lincoln lived there from his seventh to twenty-first years. Santa Claus is an unincorporated village but its post office does a land-office business each December because thousands of people send their letters there to be cancelled with the famous Santa Claus postal stamp.

For 28 years James F. Martin was postmaster at Santa Claus, taking it easy each summer and working like a fiend during the Christmas rush. Finally the pressure grew so great that his office was rated as a third-class post office, a ranking usually enjoyed only by much larger communities. Above is the Santa Claus post office and general store, famous throughout the world.

Succeeding James Martin when he died was the present postmaster, Oscar Phillips, forty-one. To him has fallen the duty of making thousands of children happy. Each day he receives hundreds of letters containing enclosures which are to be cancelled carefully with the Santa Claus stamp and sent on to all parts of the world.

As he should be, the real Santa Claus is the patron saint of this little Indiana community. This 25-foot statue of St. Nicholas stands all year in a little park, attracting visitors from all parts of the country. Yes, Santa Claus does have a post office!

Make a Pretty New Dress for Holidays

THESE two designs bring you brand new fashions for mid-season dresses you'll thoroughly enjoy wearing to all the luncheons and festive afternoons of the holidays. They're so easy and simple to do that you can finish them in plenty of time. Choose truly lovely materials, in colors that make you happy and flatter your eyes—you can be extravagant about the fabrics, when you save by making your own with these patterns (detailed sew chart included with each).

Drape-As-You-Please Dress.

This is not only new—it's the very newest, a real sensation, and so easy to make! It is made with a straight back and bias cut front that you can wear with the fullness at the sides, fullness all round, like a dirndl, or fullness concentrated in front, as the picture shows it. Then fasten the belt around your middle, creating a soft, bloused line above! The shirred shoulders and square neckline are just as flattering and smart as they can be! For this, choose silk crepe, velvet or thin wool.

Girdle-and-Panel-in-One Dress.

Of course that midriff section isn't really a girdle—it just looks like one, and the way it is extended into the front skirt panel simply makes the pounds melt from your appearance. This is a beautifully slenderizing dress, and so elegant-looking, designed with such good taste! It fits beautifully. Gathers above the middle section and below the shoulder give just the right amount of fullness to the bodice front. You'll feel so grand, and look so slim, if you make this of velvet, wool broadcloth, satin or silk crepe.

The Patterns.

No. 1647 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14 requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material.

No. 1634 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. With long sleeves, size 38 requires 5 yards of 39-inch material. With short sleeves, 4⅝ yards; 1¼ yards of trimming.

"Swan Song"

The term, "swan song," is familiar to all for a farewell performance, or the last creative effort of an artist. The allusion is to the song popularly believed to be sung by a swan when dying. The origin of the metaphor is found in the "Epigrams" of the famous Latin "Martial," probably Marcus Valerius Martialis, who is believed to have lived from the year 40 to 102 A. D. And a well-known use of it is in Shakespenre's "Merchant of Venice."

select four blue ribbon winners. I was one of those four blue ribbon winners competing for the championship in our one class. Three other classes—cottons for school, woolens for school or sports, and party frocks were judged in the same manner as the "best dress girl."

"We, 1200 4-H boys and girls, were not expected to be on duty all the time. Quite the reverse, we had a heavy schedule of the best entertainment awaiting us.

"The first entertainment on our Week's program was the Magic Key Broadcast. The weekly broadcast was brought from New York in order that the Congress delegates may have the privilege of hearing and seeing it.

"Following this, we 4-H people were guests of Thomas E. Wilson and Company. An excellent program of acrobatic dancing, ventriloquism, jitterbugs, impersonating, and singing was presented in the Medinah Temple. Dinner was also served us by the Wilson Company.

"In the evening, the Minnesota group paraded with the entire delegation in the arena of the International Livestock Exposition. The national winners were distinguished by riding in the "wagon of success." Minnesota was proud to have two people in this group.

"I visited a most facinating place with the other 4-H girl delegates. This was the Adler Planetorium and Astronomical Museum. Here we witnessed the reproduction of the heavens in motion on a dome 68 feet in diameter. There are only three others in the U. S. and 25 in the world. Miss Maude Bennet, director, gave a fifty-minute lecture on the amazing architecture of the heavens.

"Continuing to the Field Museum of Natural History, we were given a glimpse of plant and animal life of the remote past, by the colorful murals and fossils. The strange plants and insects, ancient fishes, armoured lizards and dinosaurs, skeletons of mammoth, sabre-toothed tigers, and the three-toed horses brought the story closer to our own times.

"The annual 4-H club Congress banquet was held in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens Hotel. The program was the production "When Old Songs Were New."

"Wednesday, the delegation visited and dined at the world's largest farm machine factory, the International Harvester Co. The company traces back to the invention of the reaper by Cyrud Hall McCormick in 1831.

"The Public National 4-H Dress Reveu was held in the Trianon. It was centered around "The Kingdom of Good Posture" with the king and queen leading the procession. Minnesota had the distinction of having one of its delegates as the king. After the coronation each of the 40 state dress revue winners was introduced. The ribbons were presented to the girls in the white, red, and blue groups by Miss Jane Alden, stylist in the Chicago Mail Order Co. The girls in the revue recessional were assisted by boys, acting as escorts, from each state.

Miss Alden invited the girl delegates to a breakfast at the Chicago Mail Order Company. In the program that followed, we met Lulu Belle and Scotty from WLS, Fonda and St. Clair, besides seeing a colorful reveu from Jane Alden's school of fashion.

"We left immediately for the Stevens Hotel where the farewell banquet was served by Sears, Roebuck and Company.

"From here, we continued to the Union Depot to board the Hiawatha for the homeward journey. To me, this trip has been the most enjoyable and most the educational of any past experience."

Exchange Must Await Law

Requests to exchange lands under the terms of the land exchange amendment passed in the recent election, have already arrived at the department of conservation, according to Ellery A. Foster, director of the division of forestry.

No exchange can be made as yet, however, for the amendment voted on at the election was an enabling act, which would permit the legislature to enact laws providing the machinery for exchange of lands. The legislature will nodoubt consider such laws early in the coming session. This is one of the subjects that will be discussed at the forestry interim commission at their meeting on December 8, 9, and 10.

When an exchange law is passed, provision will be made for application forms and machinery set up for appraisal and exchange of lands until such a law is passed by the lesislature, however, the department is not in a position to handle requests, except to file them and ask people making the requests to await the action of the lawmaking body.

The weather the past week has been wonderful here. Just a little breezy a couple of days but otherwise very pleasant. The outlook is now for nice weather during the holiday season.

County F-L Convention

Farmer-Laborites of Marshall County will hold their convention at Warren tomorrow, December 17th, for the purpose of selecting delegates to the District and State conventions. The date of the district convention has not been announced but the State Convention will be held January 27th and 28th.

The announcement of the date of the County convention was made by County Chairman Emil Morberg and Secretary Alve Johnson. Only card holding members will be seated, it was announced.

On off-numbered years the Farmer-Laborites hold conventions to promote educational work while on even numbered years they hold their endorsing conventiens. State conventions on even numbered years are held the last Friday and Saturday of March and on off-numbered years they are held the last Friday and Saturday of January.

The State convention is very important as the course that is adopted at this convention will effect the effectiveness of the movement in the campaign of 1940. Already several possible candidates have made their appearance on the scene and Hjalmar Peterson will undoubtedly attempt to gain control of the movement.

Marshall County is entitled to five delegates to the State Parley. The same delegates will also attend the District parley, which will name the members of the State Central Committee and also select members on the various convention committees from the district.

Several men from here were at Thief River Falls on Wednesday and had a blood test so they could give Tom Risdal some transfusions for his next operation at the Physicians hospital. Mr. Risdal has had one operation and is doing nicely.

At a recent meeting of the Nazareth Lutheran Ladies Aid the following officers were elected: President: Mrs. Joseph Nelson; Vice President, Mrs. G. Sanoden; Secretary, Mrs. O. H. Nohre; Treasurer, Mrs. J. P. Augustine.

Card of Thanks

Chommie Spoke At Club

Attorney H. O. Chommie of Thief River Falls was the main speaker at the monthly meeting of the Men's Club held Tuesday evening. He gave a very fine address on the Constitution of the United States, pointing out many things that are not noticed or appreciated by the average person. There were two selections played by H. Ruby of Thief River Falls, and Leonard Ness. There was a fine attendance in spite of the cold weather. It was decided to continue the meetings throughout winter months. Plans are already in the making for the January 10 meeting.

Fishing Season Closes

All Minnesota streams and lakes will be closed to taking game fish December 31, according to Conservation Commissioner Herman C. Wenzel. The order closing all inland waters follows the recommendation of the technicians of the division of game and fish and the University of Minnesota, and was approved Friday night by the statewide conservation advisory council.

Under the order, game fish only are protected, and rough fish, including card, dogfish, redhorse, sheephead, catfish, suckers, eelpout, garfiish, and bullheads of any size, and whitefish not less than 15 inches in length may be speared only. Hook and fishing of rough fish is not permitted. The rough fish may be speared from fishhouses or without a fishhouse.

Lake trout may not be taken, according to the order, between January 1 and May 15, 1939.

The order closing all inland waters is effective from January 1, 1939, until the following regular date for the opening of the fishing season next spring. The order does not apply to boundary waters, including the Mississippi and St. Croix rivers where they form the boundary between Minnesota and Wisconsin, Lakes Big Stone and Traverse on the South Dakota border, and the north boundary lakes and streams.

All lakes that have been open to fishing during the summer season are open until and including December 31, when the closing order becomes effective.

At the advisory council meeting Friday night and Saturday, at which action was taken on the closing order, fifteen of the nineteen organizations composing the council were represented, and there was only one dissenting vote when the rollcall was taken.

It is pointed out that closing lakes to taking game fish January 1 cuts approximately one month from the regular season. During the winter months the female fish are developing spawn and are feeding more than normally for the benefit of the eggs. Experiments have shown that a large majority of game fish taken by hook and line during the winter months are females, filled with spawn. It is to protect these fish for propagation and for the restoration of abundant fish life in our lakes that the closing action is taken, according to this factual survey, which mas approved by the advisory council.

"Furthermore, because of the constant increase in the number of fishermen in the state, our lakes cannot stand the long summer and winter season until such time as our increased production plans, which are now under way, are brought about," says Mr. Wenzel.

Amateur Show & Fiddlers Contest at HOLT on Fri. Nite, Dec. 23
Any person wishing to take part should be at the Hall at 7 o'clock p. m.
Prizes will be given. Free dance after contest. Free lunch will also be served.

Held Adult Confirmation

A group of 7 adults were confirmed at the Nazareth Lutheran church at private services held Wednesday evening. This class has met twice a week to prepare for their confirmation. They were instructed by Rev. Hanson who officiated at the ceremonies.

Those confirmed were: Esther Lufkin of Thief River Falls, Ludvig Sagstuen, Mr. and Mrs. Lars Ring and son, Lawrene, Mrs. Henry Nohre and Mr. G. W. Karvonen. Besides the Confirmations, there were two Adult Baptisms, Miss Lufkin and Mrs. Nohre. Next fall, another class will be organized.

The participants and Rev. Hanson are to be congratulated on this type of work done in our community and no doubt opens a new pathway for the advancement of church work.

The Farmers' Cooperative Creamery have now installed one of the latest types of water pumps on their new well at the creamery. The old pump, which has been in service for many years was getting pretty well worn out and was not furnishing a very steady flow of water for the institution. The new pump has a much larger gallon capacity per minute and is a fine addition to the equipment at the creamery.

Friends and relatives of Mrs. Ed Horien gathered at her home and surprised her on her 70th birthday Wednesday evening. The evening was spent socially after which lunch was served by the self invited guests.

Farmers Must Act Quickly

The attention of the farmers who contemplate making wheat loans is directed to order issued by the Commodity Credit Corporation that all applications for wheat loans must be in the State office by December 31. This means that any farmer desiring to borrow money on wheat stored on the farm must make his application for a loan to the County Office not later than Dec. 17. This date has been set by the County Committee in order that samples may be obtained and sent into the State Office and returned so that the final papers can be completed by and be in the State Office by Demember 31.

Palace Depression

The Palace Depression is in Vineland, N. J. It was built by George Daynor who, arriving in that town with no funds, settled in an automobile junk yard. Without plans or tools he began constructing the house from discarded materials such as automobiles, rocks, logs and clay. He cleared the swampy, mosquito-infested land and beautified it with plantings of flowers and shrubbery.

After three years' work the house was opened to the public on December 25, 1932. Thousands of visitors come to see the place, which is a monument to the ingenuity of man.

Mishap Season Gets Early Start

The season for accidents like this is well under way in many cities. Mishaps, frequently amusing to the more fortunate, happen often on icy streets, and they're by no means confined to cities. In New York the worst early fall snowstorm in years brought grief to many a pedestrian, and impeded traffic in the busiest sections. Accidents on slippery streets each year result in an alarming number of deaths, and exact a costly toll in damaged automobiles.

Do Not Need Bifocals

Man, apes, monkeys, marmosets and lemurs are the only creatures that can focus their eyes and distinctly see both near and distant objects, says Collier's Weekly.

Undie Set and Day Dress

THE undie set goes so quickly and easily, in fact, that you can finish it for a gift in time for Christmas—and you'll certainly want to make it for yourself. The house frock is a diagram design that you can finish in a few hours. It's a mighty nice thing to be wearing when people run in unexpectedly, as they're sure to be doing, frequently, during the holiday season. You can feel right in it, and work comfortably, all day long.

The Undie Set.

Slip, panties and brassiere are all included in this one simple design that even the inexperienced can make with no difficulty. Make it up in fine quality materials—satin, crepe de Chine or flat crepe—and you'll save money not only in the first place, but in the long run, because the undies will wear and wash so long and so well. The slip has a beautifully fitted line over which your doll-waisted clothes will look their best. The brassiere provides support and uplift that you need for a definite bustline, and the panties are unusually smooth-hipped, because they fasten with a zipper.

The House Dress.

This full-skirted frock is such a pretty thing that you'll be wise to make it up in flannel or challis for shopping as well as in calico, gingham and percale for around the house. The bodice has darts just above the waist to create becoming fullness over the bust, the sleeves are puffed high at the shoulders, and the neckline, outlined with a double row of braid or ribbon, is extremely flattering. This is one of the most satisfactory house dresses that anyone in the 12 to 20 size range can possibly choose!

The Patterns.

No. 1649 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 16 requires, for the slip 2¾ yards of 39-inch material; for the panties, 1⅛ yards; for the brassiere, ½ yard.

No. 1650 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 4⅔ yards of 35-inch material; 11 yards of ribbon or braid to trim.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Never did Nature say one thing and wisdom another.

A bachelor may be merely a man who overvalues his personal liberty.

One of the "lures" of the vamp is to express sympathy for the man who is sorry for himself.

Quaint Cross-Stitch Pincushions for Gifts

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE Town Improvement association was giving a sale to raise funds in a village where we were visiting. Our hostess had been to the sale early in the day and triumphantly displayed tiny cross-stitched pincushions purchased for Christmas gifts. They were so colorful and quaint that we went in search of some. We found them, but on every one was pinned a ticket "SOLD"! The lady had scored a hit who made those little three-inch pincushions as her contribution to the fancywork booth. They were kept for display even after they were sold.

BACKING OF BRIGHT BLUE VELVET

The top of the cushion should be made on tapestry canvas or round thread art linen so that the threads may be counted easily in making the cross-stitches. This foundation material should be marked off in 1-inch squares as shown in the diagram at the upper right. The numbers indicate the color used for cross-stitching each square. The velvet used for backing adds the richness that all small gifts should have. Sawdust or hair from an old mattress are most satisfactory for stuffing.

If you would like to make some of these cushions for gifts or for your next bazaar, clip these directions and keep them as they are not in either of the books offered below.

Italy Follows Hitler Technique To Trounce Weakened France

—By Joseph W. La Bine—

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

France

In his widely quoted "Mein Kampf," Adolf Hitler avers that once a nation shows signs of weakening, its enemies should seize the opportunity to press every demand. This year he has followed that policy successfully in Austria, Czechoslovakia, Great Britain and France. Now his Fascist cohort, Italy, is using the same tactics against France.

First French capitulation to Italy was the recent recognition of Mussolini's conquest in Ethiopia. This was followed closely by French internal strife, when the radical Popular Front attempted to defeat Premier Edouard Daladier's drastic reform program. In the midst of this turmoil, it was strategic for Italy's chamber of deputies to launch a tumultous campaign for three French possessions which Mussolini covets: the African territory of Tunisia, the island of Corsica and the Franco-Italian border city of Nice. Later came a rebirth of demands for French-owned Djibouti, which would give Ethiopia an ocean outlet.

FRANCE'S AFRICAN TUNISIA
One concession invites another.

France's answer has been a firm negative, but this can hardly be construed as final. There is every indication that the Djibouti claim will be granted, since France was ready to make this surrender last summer. What complicates the situation is the "friendship" pact which France's ally—Great Britain—has just instituted with Italy. Although this treaty respects a territorial status quo in the Mediterranean, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is going to Rome next month with an apparent blank check to appease Mussolini as he sees fit. If Mr. Chamberlain approves Italy's new demands, France will be left helpless.

Only hope in an otherwise befuddled situation is that Germany may break with Italy. After helping Hitler reach into the European grab bag for new territories, Italy is beginning to wonder where her share is coming from. But Germany, happy over her new non-aggression treaty with France, may ask Mussolini to look elsewhere for new colonies. The new crisis certainly proves no more than what sane observers have maintained since last spring: that France and Britain merely whet the Italo-German appetite each time they offer a concession.

Domestic

Last spring the New York legislature passed a bill which potentially effects every citizen in the U. S. Reducing from 6 to 5 per cent the interest which life insurance companies may charge on policy loans, the Piper-O'Brien bill has necessitated nation-wide revision of interest rates because insurance companies cannot charge different rates in different states.

Upshot is that most companies are boosting their premium charges from 10 to 20 per cent on policies written after January 1, although many firms made the change December 1. Policies in effect before the readjustment will not be affected, but in addition to lower interest rate and higher premiums, the following additional revisions will be made on most new policies: (1) reduction of guaranteed interest rates to beneficiaries; (2) lower interest rates on dividends left with companies; (3) increased premiums on endowment annuity policies; (4) withdrawal or substantial change in certain types of contracts.

By reducing policy loan interest charges from 6 to 5 per cent, insurance firms will lose annual revenue totaling $50,000,000. Other factors necessitating higher premiums include the difficulty of finding satisfactory capital markets, and the small amount of new financing now being done.

Business

Until this year, depression-ridden U. S. did not bother to ask why the nation's economic cylinders had grown rusty. Government and business alike were more interested in oiling the machinery than in replacing or adjusting misfit cogs. Moreover, both worked from different directions: government thought the cure rested in greater U. S. regulation; business thought it rested in less regulation. Not until last year, when an unexpected recession slapped convalescing industry in the face, did both government and business decide it was time to face the problem with less bias and more objectivity. By the end of 1938 this new attitude is finding expression at Washington and on the U. S. business front, though mutual agreement is still far from realization.

Washington: Government's efforts currently center around the $500,000 temporary national economic committee, which has just opened a two-year hearing under Wyoming's Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney. Though business has feared the quiz will degenerate into a "witch hunt" and anti-monopoly drive (since the justice department's trust buster, Thurman Arnold, is a committee member) Mr. O'Mahoney has given assurances that his group seeks only "economic facts."

"Facts" presented thus far, by the labor department's Dr. Isador Lubin and one-time WPA Economist Leon Henderson, purported merely to give a background but ended with expressions of opinion which failed to harmonize.

Dr. Lubin's report: That the 1929-38 depression cost the U. S. $113,000,000,000 in national income, plus $119,000,000,000 in wages, $20,000,000,000 in stockholder dividends, $38,000,000,000 in farm income and 43,435,000 in man hours of work. Though industry can be stepped up to meet consumer demand, it is more important to improve the standard of living, since U. S. population is reaching a stationary stage. Durable goods industries should be stimulated to boost the average income by $750 per year.

Mr. Henderson's report: Growth of U. S. economic activity has been halted, and even a return to 1929's peak (which Mr. Henderson believes should be regarded as a low base, not a peak) would leave 7,000,000 unemployed. Unlike Dr. Lubin, who believes insufficient purchasing power is the cause of our ills, Mr. Henderson places responsibility on lessening of competition. True competition, he believes, could not allow wage increases at a time when millions are unemployed.

Even as Messrs Lubin and Henderson were speaking, Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the federal reserve system was offering New York bankers another U. S. idea on business. One reason for 1937's setback, he said, was a sharp withdrawal of government spending, which throttled consumer buying power. Plumping for looser credit restrictions by banks, Mr. Eccles hinted that their failure to follow this plan would result in government credit agencies. Summing up statements by Lubin, Henderson and Eccles, observers saw that government's efforts for business revival are still far from clear.

DR. ISADOR LUBIN
His cure: higher living standard.

Business: More tangible and optimistic is the reform program of U. S. industry, heartened by the current economic upturn and willing to make peace with government. Meeting in New York, the National Association of Manufacturers keynoted for "co-operation—to make America click." Its points: (1) peace with labor; (2) acceptance of social responsibility; (3) acceptance of regulation, in general theory; (4) end unemployment; (5) please the consumer with higher quality, lower costs and public-minded policies.

Business' requests to government: (1) Wagner act modification: (2) limitation of armament expenditures to avert unnecessary diversion of funds; (3) no encouragement of foreign trade at cost to domestic industry.

People

The name of Masaryk, famous in Czechoslovakian history since Thomas G. Masaryk founded the nation 20 years ago, will leave that nation's officialdom forever on January 1. Jan Masaryk, son of the Czech "father" and minister to Great Britain for 14 years, has announced his retirement in protest to his country's capitulation to Germany.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Counsels Wise Eating During the Holiday Season

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THE advent of the holiday season marks the beginning of one of the most difficult periods of the entire year for the homemaker.

To begin with, she is busied with the hundred and one details of Christmas shopping, the planning of holiday entertainments . . . and the preparation of extra food for parties. Secondly, the health and comfort of every member of the family depend to a considerable degree upon how they eat and what foods she serves during the weeks between now and January first.

Guard Against Lowered Resistance

Unfortunately, statistics show that the common cold and other similar ailments greatly increase in number directly after the first of the year. That is also the period when we find more people suffering from fatigue than at any other season. Both conditions are frequently traceable to faulty habits of eating and faulty hygiene during the holiday season.

The person who is forewarned is usually forearmed. Therefore, every homemaker who has the interests of her family at heart should plan, now, to arrange activities so that strain and fatigue will be reduced to a minimum. And more specifically, she should see to it that she formulates a sound eating program. Far too many people, at this season of the year, suffer the ill effects of lowered resistance brought about by unwise eating and by overeating.

Overeating of a poorly chosen diet is inadvisable at any time because it tends to overburden the digestive system. But it is particularly undesirable during the winter season when almost everyone tends to stay too long indoors, frequently in overheated rooms, and to take too little outdoor exercise.

Regularity in eating a carefully balanced diet, containing sufficient bulky foods to help promote regular health habits, is of the utmost importance if resistance is to be maintained at a high peak during the holiday season.

Keeping Body Machinery Efficient

One should always remember that the body is a machine working as regularly and as accurately as a clock. Any good mechanic knows that a fine mechanism requires the same type of care day in and day out. Homemakers, too, should remember that the body does not function differently just because we celebrate a holiday with age-old customs. Thus, to keep every member of the family well and rested, try not to allow the holiday celebrations to upset the ordinary routine of your household.

Late breakfasts, heavy dinners, and suppers taken at odd hours do not constitute the best possible menu-planning. The unfortunate over-emphasis on rich foods on special occasions may easily result in digestive disturbance, unless great care is taken to avoid dietetic indiscretions, and to maintain always the ideal of a balanced ration.

Child's Diet Especially Important

During the dark days of December, the children's diet requires extra thought and care. Too close confinement indoors and the lack of sunshine may easily have an adverse effect upon the temper and vitality of young children. Then, too, the excitement of anticipating Christmas is bound to add to their general fatigue.

Children seldom complain of fatigue, which makes it all the more necessary for mothers to be on guard against, or to look for, the first intimation that it may exist. A child who is tired is very apt to be irritable. More than likely his appetite will be poor, and when he does eat, he may not be able to care properly for the food he takes. You may find, if you allow him to become overtired or feed him unaccustomed foods, that it will be a struggle to get him to bed, and even then he may not sleep soundly. And it is generally recognized that disturbed sleep, plus unwise eating, may have most unfortunate consequences.

The Ideal Holiday Diet

Holiday or no holiday, both children and adults should have at least two fruits daily, one of which should be a citrus fruit or tomatoes, to help provide adequate vitamin C; there should be two vegetables besides potatoes, one of which should be of the green, leafy variety; an egg daily, or at least three or four weekly; a quart of milk for every child, and a pint for each adult.

If your meals are built on this foundation, there will be less room for the rich heavy foods which should only be taken in moderation, and after you have helped to satisfy the appetite with the protective foods. By making a point of eating generously of fruits and vegetables, and by including a crisp raw salad in the daily diet, you will be much more apt to consume sufficient bulk or cellulose to help maintain regular health habits.

Christmas Confections

We can scarcely speak of the holiday diet, particularly where children are concerned, without saying a word about Christmas confections and other goodies. These are a part of the holiday tradition. No homemaker would wish to deprive her family of such pleasures, but it does devolve upon her to simplify the other meals in the day so that her children do not suffer when they eat a large holiday dinner.

Similarly, she should make it her responsibility to either prepare the special Christmas treats from ingredients which she knows to be pure and wholesome, or to purchase them from a reliable source. If these goodies are then given to children at the end of a well-balanced meal, and not indiscriminately between meals, there should not be the upset digestions that make Christmas a bugbear to some mothers instead of the joyous occasion it should be.

By following out these suggestions, you can help your family to enjoy the holidays without regret. You will feel fit and your good health will be the basis of good cheer.

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. M. B.—Your letter was the first of a large number I received on the subject and I am therefore answering you, though my reply is also directed to all the others who have inquired concerning a recent announcement that cereals might be harmful to the teeth.

I have seen reports on this subject by two investigators and I know that other investigators are now endeavoring to check their work. As soon as there is further progress to report, I shall be glad to comment.

In the meantime, I would not hesitate to follow the advice of leading nutritionists and give your children cereals, at least half of which may well be served in the whole grain form.

Safetygrams BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

Many times in this column I have pleaded for sane and sensible enforcement of traffic laws. We must have officers on our highways and streets to properly enforce the regulations pertaining to driving. More, we must have judges in our courts who can appreciate the danger involved when people become reckless in their driving habits.

Recently, in my own country, two cases of drunken driving were dismissed by the court. This is not only discouraging, but it is a deplorable condition and one that should not exist. When the evidence clearly points to the fact that drivers were picked up because of drunken, reckless driving and that the officers were unbiased in their opinion, the court should enforce the laws on the statute books.

It is the duty of every citizen to protest lenient decisions on the enforcement problem. Leniency only encourages the man who has no respect for the rights of others and who, on the highway, is a menace to the safety of ourselves and our children.

Please, Mr. Citizen, help enforce the traffic laws.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

WHAT two words on human tongue are more heart-warming than those! They not only represent a friendly greeting, but in them are summed up the whole spirit of the Yuletide—brightness and laughter, joy of living and joy of giving, health and happiness, peace on earth and good will to all men.

It is a greeting which we will hear often in this community of ours during these happy days of the Christmas season. We will hear it on our streets, in our stores, along our country roads and in our homes. For ours is a friendly community and nowhere is that friendly greeting more sincere. It is not possible, however, for each of us to say "Merry Christmas!" to everyone and thus complete the happy circle of Yuletide good cheer.

But there is one who has that rare privilege, one who has been a welcome visitor at the firesides of the homes in this community throughout the year and who now claims the right to be the first to wish you joy at this joyous time. That one is your Home Paper.

So your Home Paper carries from you to all the community and from all the community to you this friendly greeting:

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

—THE PUBLISHERS

Tiny Toys Taboo for Tiny Tots

* * * * *

Christmas toys for the younger children should be selected with the children in mind rather than the tastes of fond uncles and aunts.

The Minnesota State Medical Association's Committee's Committee on Public Health Education cautions enthusiastic shoppers for infants and small children first against buying tiny objects such as toy soldiers, tiny toy engines and automobiles. Generally speaking, according to the doctors, the younger the child the larger the toy should be. Doctors who make a specialty of bronchoscopy could furnish a small toy shop with the toys they have been called upon to remove from the stomachs and lungs of children. It is especially surprising, according to the bulletin, how large an object small children are capable of swallowing. Sometimes it is many months before the cause of the resulting cough and distress is discovered.

Toys for young children should never have sharp or rough edges and points of any kind should be taboo. The doctors advice the kind that can be scrubbed frequently. Also, the paint should be proof against chewing and sucking.

For older children, toys which require the development of a small skill are ideal - - a bat, a ball, a tricycle or skates, or for indoor use, a builder toy, paints scissors and paste books, dolls to dress, toy railroads.

Toys form an important adjunct to child-play in general and should be of great use to growth and development. At Christmas time, especially, they should not be purchased carelessly or without thought as to the safety of the child who receives them.

Given Reception

Safetygrams BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

Home for the holidays! What a happy thought and what happy expectations! Do not mar this vacation by thoughtless driving. Visiting friends and relatives always brings happiness and pleasure to all, but one thoughtless act of ours on the highway might bring suffering and grief.

Roads might be slippery. Weather conditions might not be ideal for driving. Therefore, it behooves every one of us to drive safely during the holidays.

Safety preserves Happiness.

Proof of Fine Minnesota Weather

Reports have been made of a mosquito in Warroad in December, a butterfly in November at Hector, a caterpillar at Morristown, cotton growing in Atwater pussy willows at Clarissa, and a garter snake out for a lively stroll in Starbuck. All that can be said is that these animals and plants have no calender and when this territory enjoys May weather in the winter they really can't be blamed for thinking spring is here.

Make This Useful Bag on a Hanger

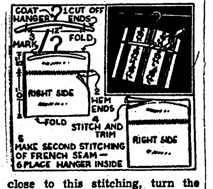
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THIS bag has been a great success. Several others can be made for different purposes. They are good to hang in the closet or the sewing room for patterns or small equipment. When traveling I find a little bigger one perfect for laundry. The size shown here requires ⅜ yard of bright ticking. You will notice in the sketch that French seams are used. This makes the first stitching of the seams on the right side. Trim close to this stitching, turn the bag inside out and stitch the seams again so that the raw edges are covered. Punch a small hole in the center top for the hanger hook. Clip today's lesson and add it to the many gift suggestions contained in the books offered below.



NOTE: Mrs. Spears' Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, has helped thousands of women to use odds and ends of materials and their spare time to make things to sell and to use. Book 1—Sewing, for the Home Decorator, is full of inspiration for every homemaker. These books make the most delightful gifts. Mrs. Spears will autograph them on request. Books are 25 cents each. Crazypatch quilt leaflet is included free with every order for both books. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Or What?

Police Sergeant—Give the prisoner a bath and clap him in irons.

Crook—Gosh! First I was collared, now I'm being washed and ironed. Is this a police station or a laundry?

The Guide—Yes, it must be over a thousand years old. You can take it from me they don't build such ancient castles nowadays.

Before and After

Robinson—I think a sharp nose usually indicates curiosity.

Brown—And a flattened one may indicate too much.

It's a Dress

"My wife is very busy. She's going to address the women's club."

"I suppose she's working on the address."

"No, the dress."

We Must Eat

He arrived home to find his young wife weeping bitterly.

"What's the trouble, my dear?" he asked.

"Boo-hoo," she wept, "the cooked meat shop is moving from the corner."

"Never mind," he said, gently, "we can move too, you know!"

Reveals Process for Pumping Coal in Pipes

Dr. Robert E. Burk of Western Reserve university, Cleveland, Ohio, recently disclosed a process which he said might revolutionize American heavy industry by enabling great mill furnaces to receive powdered coal piped direct from mines miles away. The powdered coal would be suspended in a soapy solution, pumped from mine to mill, and the soap removed by applying lime.

As 76th Congress Prepares to Convene

Lindley G. Beckworth, left, 25-year-old Texan, will be the youngest house member in recent years when congress convenes in January. A former school teacher, he unseated Rep. Morgan Sanders, veteran of 18 years in the house, in the Democratic primaries. Carter Glass of Virginia, center, oldest senator, will celebrate his eighty-first birthday January 4. Rep. Joseph Martin Jr., right, of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, is almost assured of election to the leadership of the minority in the congressional session. He will succeed Bertrand Snell of New York, who did not seek re-election.

CHRISTMAS MORNING ECSTASY

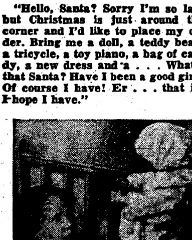
"Hello, Santa? Sorry I'm so late but Christmas is just around the corner and I'd like to place my order. Bring me a doll, a teddy bear, a tricycle, a toy piano, a bag of candy, a new dress and a . . . What's that Santa? Have I been a good girl? Of course I have! Er . . . that is, I hope I have."



"Look at that doll! Santa WAS here last night, wasn't he, mummy? Guess I must have been an awfully good girl to deserve a doll like this! Brown eyes, real hair, a pretty dress . . . 'n everything!"

"What's this? Another doll! Kind of hard to get it out. Wonder what else is in this big stocking . . . maybe it's the candy I ordered from Santa Claus."

"Whee-e-e! Some tricycle Santa left me. There's so much to play with that I hardly know where to start. Wouldn't it be nice if Christmas came every day? But maybe that would be too much work for Santa Claus, and, after all, maybe I'd get kind of tired, too."

"Here it is bedtime already. I've had a busy day but I'm really not tired. Better go to bed, though, 'cause mummy says I should . . . and I really ought to be a good girl after this wonderful Christmas. Thanks a lot, Santa Claus!"

The Tallest Tree

The long-disputed claim as to the whereabouts of the tallest tree in the world is now officially settled. Records of the United States forestry service at San Francisco showed the world's loftiest tree is located in California. Government computations fixed the height of the record holder, a Sequoia in Humboldt State park, at 364 feet.

Unconfirmed reports, circulated for several years, told of Australian eucalyptus trees 400 to 500 feet tall. World forestry statistics, however, limit the highest known eucalyptus to 325 feet.—Cleveland Plaindealer.

G.O.P. Keeps Election Promise, Drafts New Pension Measures

By Joseph W. La Bine

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Congress

As the U. S. becomes a nation of older men and women (caused by declining birth rate) federal-state support of the indigent aged is no longer a political football but has emerged as an acute problem recognized by Democrats and Republicans alike. The present social security setup was a New Deal inspiration, but 1937's recession proved even this revolutionary step was insufficient. This month almost every congressman converging on Washington carries a new plan in his portfolio, foreshadowing the most heated battle to confront the seventy-sixth congress.

Many Republicans would like to forget that 40 of their 81 new members were elected this year on promises to support the Townsend measure or bring the pension issue to a vote. But one who refuses to forget, and who will undoubtedly fire the opening gun in next month's pension argument, is Massachusetts' Rep. Allen T. Treadway. Ranking minority member of the house ways and means committee, he will embarrass his political partisans by offering a resolution for hearings on Townsendism.

When pension arguments are sifted down, Washington observers expect Townsendism to drop from the picture, to be followed by a clear-cut Democrat-vs.-Republican debate on how social security shall be amended. In this argument the most surprising feature may be Republican support of a $30-a-month federal old age contribution, featuring a 60-year age limit as against the present limit of 65 years. If states could equal the $30 federal contribution, pensioneers would then receive $60 a month.

Where the federal government could raise $30 a month, or where states could raise even less, is a moot problem. There are currently 1,656,700 persons on pension rolls, costing the U. S. about $238,500,000 for the fiscal year. States pay $250,129,000. This gives each of the 1,656,700 indigent an average of $19. If all eligible persons were added to the rolls, the number would swell to more than 3,000,000. Since the U. S. is already using social security payroll taxes as fast as they come in, and since most states are unable to raise their $15 monthly share for each pension, any plans to increase payments must be preceded by plans for financing the system.

While Republicans are attempting to iron out their pension program, the administration prepares to offer congress a sweeping plan for revising the present old age insurance system. Probable recommendations:

(1) Monthly payments to widows and dependent children of workers covered by social security, plus $200 funeral expenses to families of "covered" workers who die before 65.

MASSACHUSETTS' TREADWAY
Promises will not be forgotten.

(2) Payments to wives and dependent children of men who have retired at 65, but whose monthly income under social security is insufficient.

(3) Starting old age payments January 1, 1940, instead of January 1, 1942.

(4) Immediate inclusion in social security of 2,600,000 seamen, bank employees, charitable and religious workers; inclusion in 1941 of 6,000,000 farm and domestic workers.

(5) Provision for payments of $10 more each month to married men than to single men.

Europe

The long-cherished hope that Great Britain would eventually discover the futility of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's dictator "appeasement" policy is at last bearing fruit. Faced with a new series of crises, Mr. Chamberlain is presumably being forced to reverse his stand or resign. Most significant was the dinner at Lord Stanley Baldwin's home, attended by King George VI and a group of right-wing Labor leaders, all strenuous opponents of the Chamberlain government.

Even as the king broke bread with this crew, another anti-Chamberlain leader was en route to the U. S. where he leveled veiled criticism at the man whose cabinet he left in anger. Anthony Eden, one-time foreign minister, told the National Association of Manufacturers that democracies must resist "false complacency" in viewing international perils, that "the survival of democracy must depend on the faith which it inspires . . . the results which it can achieve."

Within a few days the long-awaited results of Mr. Chamberlain's Munich "peace" treaty became despairingly apparent on three fronts, making the prime minister realize he must either turn about-face (if it is not too late) or resign to be followed by Lord Baldwin or Mr. Eden:

ANTHONY EDEN
Mr. Chamberlain's successor?

Memel. Detached from German East Prussia by the Versailles treaty, later ceded to Lithuania, this 943-square-mile territory on the Baltic is being absorbed back into the Reich without consultation with—or protest from—the four guarantors of the Memel statute (Britain, France, Italy and Japan). Using "Sudeten" methods, Germany first provoked Memelites to cry for autonomy. Following a victorious plebiscite came the cry for "anschluss" (union) with the Reich. Although Hitler announced after the Munich treaty that he had no more European territorial claims, no one doubts his agents are behind the Memel coup.

Ukraine. While world attention has been focused on the Franco-Italian crisis (see below) Hitler has quietly but effectively begun agitation for his projected Ukraine republic, to be carved out of Poland and Russia. A Nazi-inspired autonomy move in the Polish Ukraine, the first step, is being correlated with activity of German agents in the Russian Ukraine. The latter step is especially well timed, since meager reports out of Moscow indicate the Soviet republic is weakened by internal strife. Not content to stop there, Hitler has opened negotiations with Persia and Afghanistan for German exploitation of oil and wheat lands. In the Balkans, Jugoslavia has practically renounced the little entente to follow pro-Nazi Premier Milan Stoyadinovich.

France. No observer believes the recent French-German treaty is worth anything, because the Reich has actually increased anti-French activity since it was signed. France has alliances with Poland and Russia, both of which have been ignored in Germany's Ukrainian drive. France dominates the little entente, which Hitler has defeated in Jugoslavia and is undermining in other Balkan countries. And—most important—France resents Germany's support of Italian demands for Tunisia, Corsica, Nice and Savoy. Current opinion holds that France will surprise Germany and Italy with a strong and unexpected resistance to these territorial demands. In the end, however, Italy may get partial control over the Suez canal and a share in French Somaliland, offering an outlet to the sea from Ethiopia.

International

Any shift in world military power is invariably followed by economic changes. One of these is world trade, in which Great Britain finds her position threatened by aggressive Germany. Taking a thoroughly revolutionary position, England has now broadened her government trade insurance plan to safeguard exports of materials ordinarily refused as poor risks. Beginning January 1, the export credits department may incur liabilities up to $375,000,000 instead of the present $250,000,000. To cover special risk items, another $50,000,000 has been set aside. The latter policy, incidentally, will facilitate shipment of war goods to China.

If this aggressive British position has caused Germany any worry, Berlin can rejoice in a $17,000,000 barter deal with Mexico, under which she will buy oil in exchange for manufactured items. In this case, Germany's gain is Britain's loss, since London has almost completely severed diplomatic and trade relations with Mexico over expropriation of British-owned oil lands.

Asia

The possibility of a major Far Eastern crisis involving Japan, China and Russia becomes more imminent each week. Far from denying it, Japan has taken new hitches in her economic belt and settled down for a struggle which may begin shortly after January 1. Having made supplementary army-navy appropriations of $1,634,400,000, Japan faces a probable Russ-Chinese alliance forcing her to desperate measures to protect what gains she has already made in Manchuria and China.

Having penetrated deep into the vast Shansi province, Jap troops are confronted with guerrilla attacks which in 10 days cost 6,000 lives. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who is already getting supplies from Russia, promises the guerrilla warfare will continue. That Japanese are at a disadvantage fighting so far from their base of operations is evidenced by Chinese recapture of several key towns near Canton.

Two clashes with Russia form the basis for a new war scare. The first concerns Japanese fishing concessions in Russian waters. Though Russia refuses to renew the concessions, which lapse January 1, Tokyo threatens to continue fishing even though an armed patrol is needed. The second dispute centers on Sakhalin island, where the Japs charge Russia is seeking to expel Nipponese oil workers. For her part, Moscow is demanding Japanese payment for the Russian interest in the Chinese eastern railroad, seized when Japan took Manchuria.

Meanwhile Japan has substantiated the belief held by observers for many months, that China's "open door"—guaranteed by the nine-power treaty—is about to be closed. Seeking to liberate Japan and China from dependency on foreign markets, finance and raw materials, Tokyo has virtually dictated what Great Britain and the U. S. can henceforth expect in the way of trading privileges. Shrugging its shoulders over still another treaty broken in 1938, the U. S. state department has called home Nelson T. Johnson, ambassador to China, to see what can be done about it. Since Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy has also been called home from London, it is thought the U. S. may solicit British support for a unified protest against Japan's economic activity in China. Probable result: nothing.

JOBS WANTED

MAYOR—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, may retire from office to run for Democratic nomination as Chicago's mayor.

PRESIDENT — John Nance Garner, vice president of the U. S., is being boomed for the presidency by his boyhood friends at Detroit, Texas. One claim to fame: the mud-chinked log cabin where Garner was born.

SECRETARY—Anthony Eden, who retired as British foreign secretary in opposition to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, may return to the cabinet next month as dominions secretary.

LEADER—Massachusetts' Rep. Joseph Martin will be elected house Republican leader on the first ballot next month, since 109 of the 169 G. O. P. partisans have assured him their support.

Pan-America

Before they left to attend the eighth Pan-American conference at Lima, U. S. delegates spoke optimistically of efforts to unite the Western hemisphere into a solid bloc opposing European or Asiatic aggressors. But the picture looked vastly different from below the equator. At Lima they found representatives of 20 other American nations who exhibited justified coolness toward the "colossus of the north" whose President has taken the lead in what they think might be another attempt at "Yankee imperialism." U. S. delegates discovered that South American nations have their cultural centers in Rome, Paris and Madrid; that despite any U. S. ambitions to the contrary, Pan America will insist on maintaining its trade relations with Europe.

Thus, although Secretary of State Cordell Hull received a warm reception, he could not expect much to come from the conference. South American nations are generally agreed that totalitarian propaganda must be stopped, but they neglect to consider that Nazi trade and propaganda travel together, that countries accepting one must also take the other. This is the principle weakness of a proposal introduced by the Venezuelan delegation, which calls for co-operative action against military aggression but fails to consider methods of blocking political aggression.

A prerequisite to hemispherical defense plans is hemispherical cordiality, which occupies an important place on Mr. Hull's list. Stumbling blocks here are Mexico's communistic policy of expropriating U. S. oil and farm lands, and Argentina's desire for more trade and better relations with Italy and Germany. At best, Pan-American endorsemen of President Roosevelt's New world defense plan will be in principle only, though the conference is undoubtedly giving German, Italian and Japanese interests considerable worry. Their agents are busily at work among delegates.

C. Houston Goudiss Asks How Do You Get Your Vitamin D? Relates Need for and Sources Of This Necessary Vitamin

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THERE is scarcely a mother of a young baby today who has not at one time or another been told to give her child cod-liver oil. Perhaps she does not know this substance must be given to the baby for the vitamin D that it contains. But she has heard that there is something in cod-liver oil which makes it valuable to the baby's health.

A generation ago, cod-liver oil was given to children in the winter time, "to build them up" after colds or various other respiratory illnesses. It was not until 1921, however, that a long series of painstaking investigations, terminating in the discovery of vitamin D, made it clear that cod-liver oil is valuable as a source of vitamin D, and also why this vitamin is essential in the diet of growing children, as well as adults.

Discovery of Vitamin D

After years of patient work and many thrilling and dramatic experiments, seven forms of vitamin D have been revealed by science. And scientists have also solved the mystery of how such widely separated factors as cod-liver oil; sunlight; a diet that is rich in, and carefully balanced with calcium and phosphorus; and ultra-violet light, all can perform the same service for the body.

Readers of this column may have observed that the discovery of a number of the vitamins came about chiefly through the efforts of investigators to discover a method of treating or curing obscure nutritional diseases. In most instances, however, carefully controlled laboratory experiments played their part in reaching the ultimate goal after some clue had been found as to what the mysterious substance might be that helped to control a baffling nutritional disease. The discovery of vitamin D was no exception!

Vitamin D and Rickets

Vitamin D is associated intimately with the prevention and cure of rickets, the most devastating nutritional disease of children in temperate climates. Indeed, it is the moderate, and in some cases the small amount of sunshine in the temperate zone that accounts partially for the presence of rickets.

Historians have given us reason to believe that this disease may have existed in England even before the Roman conquest. Certainly it appeared in a serious form, both in England and in other North European countries, in the Seventeenth century. In fact, early literature refers to it as the English disease, and the early attempts to fathom its causes were written in Latin by English and Dutch doctors during the 1600's.

In rickets, the child's head grows large and out of proportion to the body, while the leg and arm bones, and in severe cases even the ribs, are bent and twisted out of their normal shape.

Need for Calcium and Phosphorus

The two principal minerals required for constructing the bones and teeth are calcium, obtained chiefly from milk, cheese and green leafy vegetables, and phosphorus, found in generous amounts in eggs, whole grain cereals and dried legumes. But one of the things that made it so difficult for scientists to determine the cause of rickets was the fact that apparently well fed children, who had plenty of calcium and phosphorus, frequently developed the disease.

Mystery of Cod-Liver Oil

Cod-liver oil had been used for many years because of its supposedly "tonic" or "building" properties; when it was observed that regular doses of cod-liver oil not only cured rickets in children, but also cured the corresponding disease in adults, called osteomalacia, in which the bones become soft as the calcium and phosphorus already deposited in them are withdrawn and excreted.

Fat and Vitamin D

One of the strangest paradoxes to the scientists in their early investigations was the fact that while cod-liver oil appeared to cure rickets, another substance high in fat—butter fat, did not. More research work was necessary before it was discovered that while butter was rich in vitamin A, cod-liver oil contained two vitamins, one of which was later named vitamin D.

Effect of Sunlight

More work was necessary and it took years of patient effort before science unraveled the mystery of how sunlight could have the same apparent effect in preventing rickets as cod-liver oil.

Once nutritionists understood how sunlight acting on a fatty substance in the skin could produce vitamin D, however, it was not difficult to carry the process a step further and learn how to fortify foods with a satisfactory content of vitamin D.

Today we have at our disposal irradiated milk, or milk to which a vitamin D concentrate has been added. Margarine, too, has been enriched not only with vitamin D, but with vitamin A so that this moderate-priced spread for bread has been made an effective vitamin carrier.

Natural Food Sources of Vitamin D

The richest natural sources of vitamin D are the fish-liver oils, including the liver-oil of the tuna, swordfish, rock fish, salmon, halibut, mackerel, cod and haddock. The body oils of many fish also furnish substantial amounts. That accounts for the fact that canned salmon has been regarded as such a splendid food in the diet of children and adults. It is not only a good source of protein and of energy values, but it contains substantial amounts of the minerals, calcium, phosphorus and iodine, and has been found to be an unusually good food source of vitamin D.

Egg yolk contains small amounts of vitamin D, and when eaten regularly, the quantity is enough to have a significant effect in the diet of children.

Vitamin D Requirements

So important is vitamin D considered, that the United States Children's Bureau advises that cod-liver oil or some other form of this vitamin be supplied to all babies, beginning at the age of two or three weeks.

Mothers should be guided by the advice of their physician in determining when to start the use of a vitamin D preparation and what quantities to give. But if they want to give their babies the blessing bestowed on them by the scientists who discovered vitamin D, they must not overlook this important substance.

As guardians of the health of both children and adults, mothers should see to it that vitamin D is supplied regularly through the use of eggs and salmon; irradiated foods and those fortified with vitamin D; and if necessary, fish-liver oils or concentrates.

Questions Answered

Miss G. M. L.—Yes, it is true that sweet potatoes contain a small amount of protein. In fact, their protein is composed of four amino acids known to be essential to nutrition. Some of the protein may be lost if the potato is boiled, but it is entirely preserved when the potato is cookked by dry heat.

Mrs. M. B.—Both cooked lentils and baked kidney beans contain over 20 per cent of carbohydrate. Low carbohydrate vegetables include cabbage, celery, cauliflower, kale, lettuce and spinach.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Lintless Tea Towels.—Tea towels will not leave lint on china and glassware if they are passed through a weak starch solution when laundered.

• • •

Removing Indelible Ink Marks.—Equal parts of turpentine and ammonia will remove indelible ink marks from white fabrics when everything else fails.

• • •

Repairing Torn Clothing.—Triangular tears in garments may be neatly mended if the edges are first worked with a buttonhole stitch, then caught together through the stitches instead of the material.

• • •

Removing Smell.—A piece of lemon peel in the washing-up water will take away the smell of onions, fish, burnt meat. It will add a gloss to china, soften the water, and keep the hands smooth and white.

• • •

Saving Boards From Splitting.—Boards, such as are used for rough shelves, often split when nails are driven into them. To prevent this hold the nail upside-down with its head on the ground, and give the point a tap with the hammer to blunt it. Nails thus treated rarely, if ever, split the wood.

• • •

To Judge Grapefruit.—Notice its firmness, weight, and shape as well as the thickness of the skin. Good quality fruit is firm yet springy to the touch. It is well shaped, thin skinned and heavy for its size.

Dressy Midwinter Fashions

HAVE something brand new and smart, to cheer you up during the after-holiday time when you feel a little let-down. Here are two of the very smartest things you can wear, both just as pretty and new as they can be! And they're so easy to make that you'll enjoy doing it.

Soft Afternoon Dress.

This is a lovely design, very smart and new. It does very nice things to your figure. The wide girdle makes you look doll-waisted, the gathered bodice fills out your bustline, and the full skirt is extremely graceful. The high neckline is scalloped to make it softer and more becoming. In velvet, silk crepe, satin, or thin wool, this will be one of the prettiest afternoon dresses you ever owned!

Suspender Skirt With Jacket.

Here's a perfectly charming new princess skirt, in suspender fashion, topped by a short little tuxedo jacket. You can wear the skirt with your own blouses, or just with the jacket, so that you'll find it very useful. See how tiny it makes your waist look, and notice the cute, crescent-shaped pockets. Very simple to make, like all two-piece styles. Choose tweed, wool crepe, plaid or flannel.

The Patterns.

No. 1641 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 4⅝ yards of 39-inch material.

No. 1646 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 3⅛ yards of 54-inch material with long sleeves.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

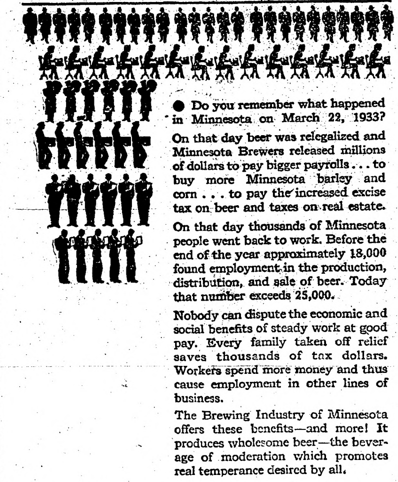
25,000 JOBS



● Do you remember what happened in Minnesota on March 22, 1933?

On that day beer was relegalized and Minnesota Brewers released millions of dollars to pay bigger payrolls . . . to buy more Minnesota barley and corn . . . to pay the increased excise tax on beer and taxes on real estate.

On that day thousands of Minnesota people went back to work. Before the end of the year approximately 18,000 found employment in the production, distribution, and sale of beer. Today that number exceeds 25,000.

Nobody can dispute the economic and social benefits of steady work at good pay. Every family taken off relief saves thousands of tax dollars. Workers spend more money and thus cause employment in other lines of business.

The Brewing Industry of Minnesota offers these benefits—and more! It produces wholesome beer—the beverage of moderation which promotes real temperance desired by all.

Life Of Charles A. Davis

The people of this community were shocked on Monday morning to hear of the sudden death of C. A. Davis. Mr. Davis retired from farming a year ago because of ill health and has lived in the village since that time.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday from the Nazareth Lutheran church on Wednesday with Rev. Hanson officiating and Carlson Funeral Service having charge of arrangements.

Charles Arthur Davis was born March 1, 1877 near Adel, Dalles County, Iowa. He passed away December 26, 1938 at his home in Holt. He was at the time of his death 61 years, 9 months, and 25 days.

At the age of 14 he was baptised and united with the Panther Creek Baptist church of Adel.

On August 3, 1910 he was united in marriage to Mary B. Johnston.

In March 1904 he moved to Missouri where he lived until 1916 when he and his family moved to Minnesota. They moved to their farm north of Holt in 1920 where he was a prominent dairy farmer of this community for several years.

Those left to mourn his death are his wife and two children, William and Margaret, one brother T. R. Davis of Viking and eight sisters.

The pallbearears were Carsten Sagstuen, Ingval Fosholm, Guy Anderson, Rudolph Smith, Marvin Sandberg, Ludvig Sagstuen.

Interment was made in the Ridge cemetery in Holt.

FCIC Publication Disiributed

The most recent publication of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation. "Wheat in Your Bin", is being distributed to Marshall County farmers this week thru the Corporation's local office.

"Wheat in Your Bin Every Year" is a 26-page pamphlet, effectively illustaated and written in a manner that explains the subject simply and clearly. It explains why the farmer needs insurance, what wheat crop insurance is, and how crop insurance works. Printed in very readable type, and only 5¼x8 inches in size—small enough to fit into an ordinary pocket — it should be very popular with the Marshall County Farmers.

The cover shows a farmer with a contagious smile, standing in a full bin of wheat. Subsequent photos show the farmer and the county supervisor looking over the wheat land on the farm; the farmer signing an application for crop insurance, loading his wheat for the premium, paying the premium, the farmer and his family reaidng a newspaper which tells of crop damage, and the back cover shows a farmer looking at a large terminal in which are housed the reserves of the FCIC. The pictures are actual photos of a wheat grower near Horton, Kansas.

Distribution is first being made to policy holders and applicants. However, if the supply is sufficient a general distribution will be made to those farmers who have not as yet contacted the local office with a view towards insuring their 1939 wheat crop.

In Memoriam

In memory of Lyle Marvin who passed away Jan. 4th 1924, and Wendell Gordon who passed away Dec. 29th 1937.

The Weather

Last week we had the shortest days of this year. From now on the days will get longer and chickens will lay more eggs.

The fine weather that we had enjoyed all fall stuck right with us here until Christmas Eve. On Saturday afternoon it was near thawing on the sunny side of buildings. On Christmas Day the weather broke and we have had a cold spell this week. Many predict that it will not last long and that we will soon have a warm spell again. We hope so.

The snow that fell during the fore part of the week blocked a few of the secondary roads. Canada had heavy snow in many places and up to 45 below zero weather in many places.

We had 30 below zero here yesterday morning.

Card of Thanks

The following Card of Thanks comes from Joyce Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson, who has now been in a cast about four months for an ailment of the hips. She has to be treated that way for nine months.

I wish to thank Miss Plymire and her pupils of Pioneer School, and Christine Peterson and her pupils of Sunnyside School for the lovely gifts which they sent me for Christmas. Also all the others who have sent me cards and presents. I again wish to thank you one and all.

Reversal of Foreign Policy Seen In U. S., British Loans to China

By Joseph W. La Bine

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of the newspaper.

International

Although U. S.-British sympathies in the Chinese-Jap war have always been with China, industrialists of both nations have gladly profited by selling arms to more prosperous Japan. In the U. S., this activity continued unabated until last June 11, when Secretary of State Cordell Hull asked that it be discontinued. Still later came a serious blow to U. S. prestige when Japan, having conquered Shanghai, Canton, Hankow and Nanking, proceeded systematically to shut China's "open door" in violation of the nine-power treaty. Obviously, U. S.-British supremacy in the Orient was at an end unless the two nations would reverse their soft-stepping policy and take military or economic recourse against Tokyo. After weeks of undercover negotiation between London and Washington, the recourse now emerges as economic. Still acting without apparent co-operation, the two capitals made similar news on the same day:

Washington. The government-operated Export-Import bank advanced $25,000,000 in credits to a New York company for exporting U. S. agricultural and manufactured goods to China. Recognized as a very thinly veiled government loan, most funds will be used for automobile trucks and gasoline to haul munitions over the new Chinese gateway from Burma. To mature in five years, the loan is guaranteed by the Bank of China. Chief U. S. negotiator was Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

JESSE JONES
His bank answered Japan.

London. Now en route through parliament is an allotment of 10,000,000 pounds for export credits to protect Great Britain's far-flung foreign trade from Nazi encroachment. Already earmarked is an initial credit of 450,000 pounds for the Chinese government, to purchase trucks and roadmaking equipment for the new Burma gateway. Also under consideration is a British loan to the Chinese exchange equalization fund to help China's dollar.

While Chinese officials hailed the simultaneous moves as a "diplomatic victory," while Tokyo wondered what recourse to take, while Chinese government bonds showed good strength, Germany's foreign office commented in its official mouthpiece, Diplomatische Korrespondenz: "The United States' new policy furnishes food for thought. It shows that Washington apparently pursues aims which go beyond its old-established policy of good relations with other countries . . . No opportunity is missed for directing attacks or innuendos against authoritarian states."

Rumania

Of all the lesser European nations subjected to Nazi Germany's political-economic pressure, Rumania has alone stood up on its feet and barked back. Reason: Rumania has been able to buy her imports anywhere she desires, but Germany must have Rumanian wheat and oil. Until last fall this upper hand served King Carol well, but the ring of Nazi-dominated nations around Bucharest has now grown so powerful that he must bow to Berlin or risk economic starvation.

Thus Rumania watched anxiously as German aggression in Austria and Czechoslovakia threatened to wipe out her prospering trade with those two nations. Since most of Rumania's Czech imports came from Sudetenland, now a part of Germany, the Reich gained an enormous advantage through this territorial acquisition.

To woo Rumania successfully, Germany must only meet the dilatory competition of Great Britain, whose promise to buy part of King Carol's wheat surplus is overshadowed by a German offer to buy all of it. Thus heartened, Rumania has signed a trade agreement whereby the Reich will take almost a third of its exports, meanwhile buying half its imports from Berlin.

How long Rumania can remain independent of Germany's beck-and-call is problematical. Like a child who wants cake but won't brush its teeth, King Carol has successfully smashed the rising Nazi party within his borders. Yet he followed this coup with a totalitarian declaration under which Rumania becomes a one-party country politically similar to Germany. Likewise, while begging for German trade he has started an intensified program of fortification against German aggression.

Spain

On a gloomy November day in 1931, Spain's parliament stripped King Alfonso of his citizenship and properties. Already, the previous April, Alfonso had left for France, soon taking residence in Italy where Premier Benito Mussolini has not been unfriendly to his once-royal guest.

Since the loyalist government that ousted Alfonso is now fighting a losing battle to Generalissimo Francisco Franco, moreover since Italy and Spanish royalists are on Franco's side, observers have long thought Alfonso has a good chance of returning to the throne some day. Franco hinted as much last spring, indicating that he might retain for himself the premiership and thus make the throne a puppet post.

This theory is now strengthened by action of rebel Spain's council of ministers, not only restoring Alfonso's citizenship, but his lands as well. How soon—if ever—the ex-king will return to Spain is still a secret, but pessimists regard Franco's gesture as merely an insincere bid for continued royalist support which has been dwindling in recent months. Still others think Alfonso would never return to the throne, that his job would be taken instead by Prince Juan, compromise candidate of both royalist factions—the Carlists and Rennovacion Espanolists.

Politics

Smart politicians lay their campaign groundwork well in advance, swapping favor for favor, smelling out the trail that will most likely lead to success. Thus official Washington has started buzzing with rumors following (1) resignation of Commerce Secretary Daniel C. Roper and Attorney General Homer Cummings, and (2) Vice President John Nance Garner's return to the capital. That Mr. Garner visited President Roosevelt the same day Mr. Roper resigned gave an added zest to the game.

While both the President and vice president look to 1940, they apparently look in opposite directions. No public utterance followed the conference but it is quite obvious that Mr. Garner looks fearfully on the projected appointment of WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins to succeed Mr. Roper. The Roosevelt program: To strive for more New Deal gains such as governmental reorganization, and to give Harry Hopkins a build-up for presidential nomination in 1940. The Garner program: To consolidate the administration's position, to unite arguing factions and make a record in congress which will win public approval.

Both programs lead to 1940, but each goes down its own trail. In the inevitable compromise, it is expected that Mr. Hopkins will be named commerce secretary, but that in return congress will demand drastic revision of relief administration.

VICE PRESIDENT GARNER
He also looks forward to 1940.

How this solution could clarify the 1940 presidential issue is not apparent; moreover, conservative elements in the Democratic party doubt that the commerce department's immediate charge, U. S. business, will like the man whose job has been to dispense $9,500,000,000 since 1933.

While gossiping over this morsel, Washington's politicians have let pass almost unnoticed an equally important bit of groundwork leading to 1940. John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chieftain, has spoken publicly against a labor-sponsored third party, choosing instead to broaden his Labor's Nonpartisan league. Its program: To elect delegates in the presidential primaries who will assure nomination of "progressive candidates." This means that C. I. O. endorses continuation of the New Deal, and that a move to the right would cause the Lewis front to bolt from the Democratic convention.

Congress

Last winter Texas' Rep. Wright Patman offered congress a measure to tax chain stores out of existence. Its gist: To levy graded assessments from $50 per store on small chains to $1,000 per store on large chains, each store tax to be multiplied by the number of states in which the chain operated. Sample: A chain operating in 48 states plus the District of Columbia would pay $49,000 per store annually on each store over 500.

Though boasting 73 co-sponsors, Mr. Patman's bill failed. Also defeated was a New York state chain store tax, which signified that chains had more friends than their foes had expected. But an apparently dying issue was revived as congress adjourned, for Mr. Patman announced his bill would be introduced in January, 1939, as House Resolution No. 1. Battle lines since formed presage a bitter contest next month, as chains and anti-chain agitators review their cases:

WRIGHT PATMAN

Anti-Chain. Supporting Mr. Patman is a once-potent national trend (now questionable) which caused 21 state legislatures to enact chain store taxes. Another state, Colorado, last month rejected a referendum to kill a similar levy. Having won passage of his Robinson-Patman act, also an anti-chain measure, Mr. Patman bases his new attack on familiar charges that chains (1) force independent merchants out of business; (2) cause low farm prices; (3) take money out of the community.

Pro-Chain. U. S. census figures show a decreasing number of chain stores and more independents, while federal trade commission statistics credit chains with distributing $8,000,000,000 in goods at an average 10 per cent saving to consumers. If the Patman bill passes, resultant taxes (with the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company, they would total more than half 1937's gross sales) would destroy practically all chains, would reportedly wipe out 30 per cent of the farmer's market, throw nearly 1,000,000 chain employees out of work and force a sharp rise in retail prices. Chains point proudly to their two-year campaign of helping farmers move surplus crops like lamb, beef, walnuts, apples, and canned grapefruit juice. Anti-Patmanites include the American Federation of Labor, speaking for its 5,000,000 members (who charge the measure would increase living costs and unemployment), and the National Association of Retail Boards, which termed it "vicious."

Counting noses on the eve of congress' opening, Mr. Patman finds his 73 original co-sponsors dwindled to 32 through election defeats, while another (New York's Caroline O'Day) has withdrawn support. If the Patman bill succeeds in reaching the house floor, political observers wonder whether continually mounting sentiment will not bury it in a protest vote.

People

Lost, by the duchess of Windsor, the title of world's best dressed woman, accorded annually by Parisian dressmakers. New title holder: Mme. Antenor Patino, daughter-in-law of Bolivia's Simon Patino, tin millionaire.

● Resigned, from the New York stock exchange's board, President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, because the board refused to re-open its quiz of Financier Richard Whitney's "criminal conduct."

● Sold, by Franklin D. Roosevelt, 1,000 Christmas trees from the farm on his Hyde Park estate.

FORECAST

CANCELLATION of the 1933 concordat between Germany and the Vatican, to precede enactment of Nazi laws directed against the Roman Catholic church.

REVITALIZATION of Japan's drive north and west of Canton, to strengthen Tokyo's position in the event of a Russian war, which is expected very soon.

INCREASE in lending power of U. S. Export-Import bank to expand trade with Latin America.

CANDIDACY of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Presidency, not in 1940, but in 1944.

REQUEST by small businessmen for congressional creation of a system of credit banks to meet the needs of "little business."

BOWL BUSINESS . . .

Football's biggest event comes on New Year's Day in this modern world. Bowls of all flavors attract several hundred thousand spectators. Here are last year's bowl games, where huge crowds gather again this New Year's Day.

Oldest of the New Year games, Pasadena's Rose Bowl dates back to 1916. Last year it attracted 90,000 spectators who watched California defeat Alabama by a score of 13-0. Above is an aerial view of the 1938 crowd. The spectacular tournament of roses always precedes the game, featuring a parade of colorful floats down Pasadena's tropical boulevards.

Shriners sponsor the annual East-West all-star game at San Francisco each New Year's day, an event that drew 65,000 football fans last year at Kesar stadium. The game ended in a scoreless tie. Brilliant pageantry featured the between-halves period.

At Miami, Fla., 18,000 attended last year's annual Orange Bowl game where Auburn defeated Michigan State 6-0. Halfback Sits (No. 11) carried the ball for many of Auburn's gains. The Orange Bowl is fast becoming a major gridiron attraction.

Santa Clara beat Louisiana State 6-0 at the New Orleans Sugar Bowl last year. Two other "bowls" attracted attention. At Dallas' Cotton Bowl Rice beat Colorado 28-14 before 37,000 fans, and at El Paso a crowd of 13,000 watched West Virginia nose out Texas Tech, 7-6. Truly, "bowl business" is becoming "big business," and one of the most outstanding sports attractions.

Double Bedspread of Luxurious Taffeta

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I have long been wanting a taffeta spread for a double bed. I figure that, if I can make one from 10 yards of 39-inch taffeta, it will cost about half as much as one of the same quality ready made. Will you be good enough to tell me how to cut the material so there will be no waste? This is important as I must economize. M. G."

Here are cutting dimensions for a double bedspread of 39 or 40-inch material. You will need a little less than your 10 yards—9¾ yards will be enough, and this makes the spread long enough to cover the pillows nicely. Cut the center panel first, then divide the material that is left as shown in the upper diagram. Join the two pieces of ruffle material to make one long piece, then divide it evenly; for the two ruffles. These cutting dimensions allow generous seams. Enough material may be taken from the seam edges to cover cords for welted seams if desired. A very narrow machine stitched hem should be used at the bottom of the ruffles.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Offers New Year's Resolutions Concerning Foods and Nutrition. Suggests How to Help Make Your Family Healthier and Happier

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

IT HAS been customary for a long time to mark the beginning of a new year with the ringing of bells, with merry-making, and with the hope expressed to one's friends that they will enjoy greater health, happiness and prosperity in the forthcoming twelve months.

Though greetings are usually exchanged in a spirit of gayety, the occasion frequently does, as indeed it should, have an undercurrent of solemnity. For it is quite fitting that we should view the close of one year and the beginning of another as both an Ending and a Beginning, even though we recognize that life goes along in an unbroken stream. The magic hour of midnight may well mark the end of certain of our mistakes, and the beginning of greater wisdom in acting, thinking, and living.

It seems to me that the week in which we celebrate New Year's is a particularly appropriate time for mothers to resolve to take stock of the program of daily living that they have outlined for their families; and if necessary, to alter it so that every member may gain a more generous share of well-being and contentment.

Questions for a Homemaker

I believe that every homemaker owes it to her family to pause for a few moments at this season to look backwards along the road that she and her family have traveled in recent months.

Have you taken advantage of the knowledge offered by modern nutritional science? Can you conscientiously say with conviction that you have given your husband and children all the different food elements that are necessary for buoyant, radiant health?

If you have grown as you should in the past year . . . and no homemaker who is doing a really first class job ever remains static; she moves with the times . . . then it is inevitable that there has been a gradual change in the character of the food that you have put on your table three times a day. But can you feel confident those meals have been right in every respect? Have they included the necessary protein, fats, carbohydrates? Have they included at least 12 minerals; the six known vitamins; and sufficient bulk or cellulose to help maintain regular health habits?

Time to Take Inventory

Do not be too discouraged if you cannot answer yes to all of these questions, because the chances are that many other homemakers may also find it necessary to give a partially negative answer. Mothers especially are busy people, and many of them feel that it is difficult to keep pace, as they would like to do, with the fast-moving science of nutrition.

Now, during this season which brings us the beginning of a new year, now is a time—after taking inventory of what you have or have not done—to look forward, to survey the road that lies ahead.

Before every wife and mother hangs the curtain of the future that will be slowly drawn aside, revealing the destiny of herself, her husband and her children, as the future becomes the present, as tomorrow becomes today.

And as your loved ones travel the road of life, it is you who have it in your power to help them attain strong vigorous bodies; alert, efficiently working minds.

Now is the time for you to determine to make the power of food their power, so that they shall not flag in their travels along the highway, but draw new strength for each day's journey every time they sit down at your table, sit down, as I have said before, to Life!

The Tremendous Power of Food

What they are going to be tomorrow is indeed influenced by what they eat today, for there never was a truer statement than that man is what he eats. And that does not mean that physical prowess and mental superiority may result only when the table is set with luxuries! On the contrary, malnutrition, which means not necessarily under-nutrition but improper nutrition, is found in the homes of the wealthy as well as in the homes of the underprivileged. The power of food is determined, not so much by what you spend, as by what you choose.

One need not spend a great deal for food to provide the milk and other dairy products, fruits and vegetables that should be consumed in abundance. There is always evaporated milk for those who do not care to buy bottled milk, or who prefer to use it as a supplement to bottled milk. And since large numbers of fruits and vegetables are now in season practically throughout the year, it is almost always possible to choose varieties of these mineral- and vitamin-bearing foods that are inexpensively priced.

Be It Resolved:

I should, therefore, like to urge every homemaker to make at least one New Year's resolution: to resolve that she will build her family diet in 1939 first of all around the protective foods, milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables.

It will be my privilege each week to help interpret for you the amazing discoveries of nutritional science; and to show how you can utilize the newer knowledge of nutrition to help increase the mental and physical efficiency of your family.

Together then, let us resolve to travel along the highroad of well-being in 1939.

They're New and Different!

EACH of these new designs is a treasure trove of clever ideas. You'll enjoy making them, during long winter evenings to come, not only because they're so attractive when finished but because they're no trouble at all to do. Each pattern includes a detailed sew chart for the guidance of beginners, so you don't need experience. Just follow the easy, explicit directions, and see how quickly you'll have them finished.

Five-in-One-Dress Fashion.

Just look at the different personalities this smart dress has—and every one of them is charming! You can make it as shown in the large sketch, with high neckline and sash. Also, as shown in the little sketches, either with a round collar or with turnback revers, with shawl collar and wrap-around sash—or with high neckline, and beltless. The basic line is lovely. It has shrugged-shoulder sleeves, a softly gathered bodice, a doll-waistline cut high in the front, and a slim-hipped skirt. Silk crepe, velvet, thin wool or print are pretty materials for this.

Four-in-One Closet Set.

A laundry bag, combing cape, hanger cover and a pair of pretty slippers comprise this gay closet set that you'll like as well for its looks as its usefulness. Make them of chintz, cretonne, sateen or calico, in the gayest colors and prettiest patterns you can find.

The Patterns.

No. 1597 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. With short sleeves, dress without collar or belt requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch material. With long sleeves, 4⅛ yards. Specific requirements for collars, revers and belts appear on your pattern.

No. 1644 comes in one size—medium. Cape requires 1⅛ yards of 36-inch material, with 4¼ yards binding; 1¼ yards ribbon for bows. Hanger requires ½ yard of 36-inch material, with 2¼ yards binding. Bag requires 1 yard, with 4¼ yards binding. Slippers require ⅓ yard, and ⅓ yard more to line. Purchase the soles and pompoms.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Lacy Daintiness in Jiffy Knit

Pattern 6188.

Something different—something dainty as a cobweb—to make for baby—this jiffy-knit jacket and coverlet. Done on large needles the jacket is in one piece—all straight edges — with just side seams. Both it and the coverlet are lined with soft georgette! Pattern 6188 contains instructions for making the jacket and cover; illustrations of them and of stitches; materials needed; photograph of pattern stitch.

To obtain this pattern, send 15 cents in coins to The Sewing Circle, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th St., New York, N. Y.

Please write your name, address and pattern number plainly.

Changing Dances

From 1776 to 1911, American social dancing was virtually confined to six dances: the polka, reel, square dance, minuet, waltz and two-step, reports Collier's. From 1911 to 1938, more than 25 new dances have been introduced, among them being the turkey trot, grizzly bear, Texas tommy, bunny hug, hesitation, tango, maxixe, one-step, Castle walk, fox trot, Charleston, black bottom, Lindy hop, rumba and the big apple.

A Complete Theater

Everybody has his own theater, in which he is manager, actor, prompter, playwright, sceneshifter, boxkeeper, doorkeeper, all in one, and audience into the bargain.—Hare.

Are Women Better Shoppers Than Men?
GRANTING a woman's reputation for wise buying, let's trace the methods by which she has earned it. Where does she find out about the advantages and details of electric refrigeration? What tells her how to keep the whole household clean—rugs, floors, bathroom tiling—and have energy left over for golf and parties? How does she learn about new and delicious entrees and desserts that surprise and delight her family? And where does she discover those subtleties of dress and make-up that a man appreciates but never understands?
Why, she reads the advertisements. She is a consistent, thoughtful reader of advertisements, because she has found that she can believe them—and profit thereby. Overlooking the advertisements would be depriving herself of data continuously useful in her job of Purchasing Agent to the Family.
For that matter, watch a wise man buy a car or a suit or an insurance policy. Not a bad shopper himself! He reads the advertisements, too!

What about "Fixed Charges"

Borrowing is a "normal incident" with most farmers. Few are able to get along entirely on their own capital.

And only under unsound conditions do debt and interest run you into trouble. The same is true of a railroad.

● The rate of interest you pay must not be too high.

The government has seen to it that the farmer can borrow at low interest rates. The rates paid by the railroads also are low, even though almost all of the money they owe was borrowed from private investors.

"The average rate is about 4½ per cent," said the Federal Coordinator of Transportation in his 1935 report.

The average rate of interest paid by the Great Northern on its bonded indebtedness is less than 4¾ per cent.

● Your indebtedness must not be too high in proportion to the value of your property.

Government lending on farms and homes has been limited to about three-fourths of their value. The total bonded indebtedness of the railroads is less than half of their value.

The Great Northern Railway's bonded indebtedness is only 46 per cent of its investment, less depreciation.

● The property must produce a reasonable profit.

And right there is the "nut" of the troubles of both the farmers and the railroads.

It is not "excessive fixed charges," nor "excessive bonded indebtedness," nor "overcapitalization"—except in a few isolated instances which have been widely publicized, and those roads already are in receiverships and undergoing "reorganization."

The trouble is that between rigid government regulation on the one hand, and on the other, competition that is supported by direct and indirect subsidies and exempted from equal regulation and taxation—the railroads are unable to earn a reasonable profit.

Explodes Debt Myth

"The fact is that debt is a normal incident of any business as well as of the Government of the United States . . .

"If they (the railroads) were able to earn anything like the return which the constitution gives them the right to earn, if they can, they would have no difficulty with debt."

—From an address last June by Commissioner Eastman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, who served as Coordinator of Transportation by appointment of President Roosevelt.

Hagen On Tri-State Commission

Harold C. Hagen, secretary to Congressman R. T. Buckler, was given an appointment recently to the Tri-State Waters Commission for the term ending June 30, 1939. The commision meets only occasionally and Mr. Hagen's membership and work on the Commission will not interfere with his duties as secretary to the Ninth District Farmer-Labor Congressman.

Representative Buckler and his family left early last week for Washington, D. C., while Mr. Hagen and Mrs. Hagen left later in the week. Mr. Buckler attended some meetings and conferences in Washington before the opening of Congress on Tuesday this week.

According to reports received here late last week from Warren Harry S. Beckwith of Argyle was declared a winner by five votes over Emil Morberg in the recount for representative in the Legislature. These were the findings of Judge M. A. Brattland who checked the recount.

Safetygrams
BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

1939 is just before us. Many people who started out in 1938, who paid little attention to their driving habits or were reckless and careless in their conduct on the highways, were unable to see the end of '38.

Do not let this happen to you in 1939. Face the year with a determined effort to drive safely, to drive carefully, and to drive courteously.

A resolution such as this will not only stimulate your own interest in safe driving, but will be an example to your associates and friends.

Make 1939 the safest year!

HOW TO CURB HOG CHOLERA LOSSES

$20,000,000 Annual Toll Is Needless

—Prepared by American Foundation for Animal Health

Voluntary reduction of the hog population by corn-hog quotas is one thing, but uncontrolled death losses of several million head of swine annually from inroads of hog cholera is a needless and costly sacrifice. Like lightning, it strikes without warning when least expected. And this loss is entirely needless.

Almost thirty years ago Drs. Dorset, Niles and McBryde of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry made their epochal announcement of the discovery of the true cause of hog cholera, and the development of a protective serum. Shortly after this the so-called simultaneous or double method of immunizing hogs through injection of the protective serum and a small doze of virulent hog cholera blood or virus was instituted. Thanks to this discovery, hogs can now be immunized for life. Inasmuch as it is necessary to use the virulent or infective virus-blood to confer a durable, lasting immunity, all authorities have advised that the treatment be administered only by veterinarians. A farmer takes too much chance with his herd if the vaccination is not done by a competent veterinary practitioner.

In Canada hog cholera is practically non-existent, and when it does appear the Health of Animals Division of the Canadian government immediately appraises and slaughters infected herds. However, in the United States, universal vaccination of the annual pig crop near weaning time is the only practical, logical and economical method of handling hog cholera in the hog belt states.

Millions of dollars in annual loss could be avoided by seasonal vaccination of the pig crop. When farmers wait until hog cholera outbreaks are widespread, the sudden heavy demand may create shortages of needed serum and virus with consequent disastrous losses.

The only safe policy is to vaccinate while one's herd is healthy, before it is too late to save the toll which cholera always takes once it starts.

5th Birthday Of Local Co-op

A year end anniversary that marks an important event for farmers of northern Minnesota will be Dec. 29, the end of the first five years since organization of the Thief River Falls Production Credit association.

The counties of Red Lake, Pennington, Northern Beltrami, Lake of the Woods, Roseau and the eastern half of Marshall comprise the territory, in which during the last five years cooperative borrowing has furnished farmers $670,000. Almost half a million dollars has been repaid in that time, and the outstanding loans on the books are approximately $179,000.

While the 441 members, and many other farmers who have been members at one time or another during that period, are all interested, the 5th anniversary has special significance for F. S. Erdman of Red Lake Falls, president, and F. D. Voth of Holt, vice-president, for they took active part in getting the association started, and are still on the board having served as directors throughout that time.

Among other farmers not on the board, but who are still active and who devoted time and work to getting the association launched are Hans Anton and S. E. Hunt of Thief River Falls.

Robert J. Lund, secretary-treasurer, in taking note of the anniversary date, says:

"Our members hold stock which they paid for in cash to the amount of $11,655, and the association has built up a legal reserve fund and undivided profits of $13,310. In this section loans have been made chiefly for the purchase of dairy cattle, to finance the growing and marketing of crops, and for making repairs and improvements. We have also loaned a good deal to our members for refinancing of other farm debts."

In addition to the president and vice-president, the association's board comprises E. H. Pomerenke of Mavie, and Alfred Longren of Thief River Falls, who have been directors since March, 1937, and Bert Grahn of Roseau, elected to the board in January, 1936.

Three members of the board act as a loan committee, and the entire volume of $670,000 which has been loaned since the establishment of the cooperative, had to be approved by the committee. The committee also plans with each borrower how and when he will repay the loan. The fact that out of the $670,000 loaned, $491,000 has been repaid, and that the reserves and undivided profits amount to better than 114 per cent of the members' paid in capitol stock, are points the association is congratulating itself upon as its anniversary approaches.

The office force that has handled all this business is the same as it was when the office was set up early in 1934: Mr. Lund secretary-treasurer, John Eastby, assistant secrerary-treasurer and Miss Margaret Stadum, stenographer.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Peterson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Peterson and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Johnson gathered at the O. T. Ness home Monday evening to help Mr. Ness celebrate his 44th birthday anniversary. The self invited guests served a rome-grot supper.

Farley-Garner-Hull Alliance Arises to Plague White House

—By Joseph W. La Bine—

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of the newspaper.

White House

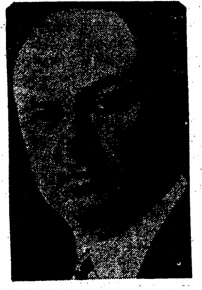
As chief of the Works Progress administration Harry Hopkins has spent more money than any previous U. S. citizen, yet that was precisely what Franklin Roosevelt hired him to do. If this job as federal Santa Claus gave Harry Hopkins a bad name among conservative Democrats and Republicans, the bad name grew bigger during 1938's electioneering. But the campaign expenditures committee of Texas' Sen. Morris Shepard found Harry Hopkins generally blameless of using WPA funds for political purposes.

Considered a spendthrifty scapegrace, Mr. Hopkins is to U. S. business what a public executioner is to a pious churchman. With this reputation it is therefore considered bad taste and bad political judgment for President Roosevelt to name Mr. Hopkins secretary of commerce. Regardless of Gen. "Ironpants" Hugh S. Johnson's opinion that Mr. Hopkins will be the best commerce secretary ever, political observers think the appointment foreshadows a serious, permanent rift between Rooseveltian Democrats (Hopkins, Solicitor General Jackson, Interior Secretary Ickes, Brain Truster Corcoran) and middle-of-the-road Democrats (Vice President Garner, Postmaster General Farley, Secretary of State Hull).



POLITICIAN FARLEY

A month ago, when Homer S. Cummings retired as attorney general, Chairman Farley warned that his potent political organization would be swung to one side or another, depending on who was named to succeed Mr. Cummings. By choosing Solicitor General Bob Jackson, President Roosevelt would show left-wing tendencies and thereby lose Farley support. As it happened, the commerce vacancy appeared and was filled before Mr. Roosevelt got around to the attorney generalship, so this post became the weathervane. Mr. Farley's current opinion: That President Roosevelt, by naming Mr. Hopkins, is boosting him for the presidency in 1940; that Bob Jackson, the alternative for 1940, will be named attorney general; that some New Dealer, like Michigan's ex-Gov. Frank Murphy, may get a Supreme court post. If this happens—and the wind is now blowing in that direction, Farley, Hull, Garner, et al will bolt from the New Deal.

Whether the President dares to thus bite the hand that feeds him is doubtful. Vice President Garner carries tremendous prestige in the South; Jim Farley runs the most tremendous powerhouse in U. S. history; Cordell Hull is the New Deal's most popular cabinet member, with Democrats and Republicans alike. If these men bolt, there is a possibility that either 69-year-old Mr. Garner or 67-year-old Mr. Hull will head a presidential ticket in 1940, with Farley as running mate.

Transportation

Last autumn President Roosevelt's railroad fact-finding committee ruled against a wage cut to help sorely pressed carriers on the ground that its benefits would be only temporary. But this did not minimize the problem of high operating costs vs. low income, and the President agreed to ask congressional consideration for any readjustment program railway management and labor might offer.

Therefore, just as congress prepared to open, a six-man committee offered its plan, indirectly laying part of the responsibility at the President's own doorstep. The committee's explanation of rail troubles: (1) government's favoritism to competitors, such as barge lines; (2) lack of centralized transportation regulation.

The remedy: Regulation of all forms of transportation by (1) the interstate commerce commission, which would fix rates, regulate services, valuation and accounting; and (2) an independent transportation board which would handle all other regulations. Also recommended is a federal transportation court to handle reorganization plans.

In addition, the committee offered four other complaints which could be remedied by legislation. It asked removal of restrictions on RFC loans to carriers, repeal of the long-and-short haul rate clauses (which prevents rails from charging a lower rate for a long haul than for a short haul over the same route in the same direction), elimination of low rates for government freight, and discontinuation of government-operated barge lines.

Briefly, carriers want less red tape and more efficient government regulation over their industry. Against President Roosevelt's probable approval of the general program, observers stack Montana's Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, chairman of the interstate commerce committee.

Chief comments to date come from President John J. Pelley of the Association of American Railroads, who calls the report "the most comprehensive and constructive ever made," and President Alexander F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. The Whitney opinion: "It's just another smoke screen to tickle the public chin."

Defense

The satisfaction of U. S. speechmakers from denouncing Nazi Germany is equalled only by Nazi Germany's satisfaction in making reply. Yet each outburst and retort invites wider rupture of the already strained German-American diplomatic relations, started during November when each nation withdrew its ambassador over the Jewish persecution issue. Returning from Europe just as protests and replies were charging from Berlin to Washington and back, Illinois' Sen. J. Hamilton Lewis commented that the U. S. must stop its "hate wave" against European dictatorship, must instead substitute peace through conciliation and conference.

What prompted Mr. Lewis' statement was the remark a week earlier by Secretary of the Interior Harold S. Ickes, to the effect that Henry Ford and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh should be ashamed to "accept a decoration at the hand of a brutal dictator (Hitler), who with the same hand, is robbing and torturing thousands of human beings." Result was a German protest, followed by the state department's refusal to apologize. This latter action was contrasted with the hasty apology last spring when New York's Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia similarly cursed Nazidom. Its significance: That the U. S. has decided to handle Adolf Hitler with boxing gloves, not kid gloves.

Such a revolutionary diplomatic stand requires military-naval backing. Last fall, when the European threat first became imminent, President Roosevelt hinted at the desirability of a two-ocean navy to give our Eastern seacoast the protection now enjoyed at our back door. At the same time he suggested the U. S. might enlarge its defense program to encompass the entire Western hemisphere. As the new year started, the state department's stiffened attitude and Mr. Roosevelt's hints could be seen taking form in smoke clouds over the Panama canal.

ADMIRAL BLOCH
Purposes, announced and otherwise.

Eastward from the Pacific came the entire fleet (except a small submarine and destroyer squadron at Honolulu), led from the battleship New Mexico by Admiral Claude O. Bloch. Its intent: To stage the first Atlantic naval maneuvers since 1934, and the second largest in U. S. history. From January to May 140 combatant boats will play hide-and-seek from Brazil to Cuba.

The announced purpose: "To afford the maximum amount of fleet training, training of personnel and tests of material." Added, unannounced purposes: (1) To focus U. S. attention on naval requirements while congress is debating armament appropriations; (2) to stage a show for the benefit of any ambitious European dictator who might be watching; (3) to court Latin-American friendship by showing how Uncle Sam's battlewagons would protect South America as well as North America.

Balkans

Obviously Italy has resented Germany's economic invasion of the Balkan states, for while the Rome-Berlin axis is her most important alliance, Italy nevertheless has long-standing ambitions in Yugo-Slavia, Albania and Hungary. Therefore correspondents have watched, with tongue in cheek while Italy's Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister and son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, stresses his diplomatic relations with Hungary. While apparently attempting to draw Hungary into the Rome-Berlin axis and the Italo-German-Japanese anti-communist pact (at expense of the League of Nations), Count Ciano is probably more interested in making his Balkan neighbors dependencies of Italy.

Likewise, Rome has watched with interest Yugo-Slavian Premier Milan Stoyadinovitch's victory in the December general election, which probably paves the way for a Yugo-Slavian Fascist state. While Count Ciano works on Stoyadinovitch, that gentleman has crawled into his shell to wait the outcome of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's January conference with Premier Mussolini. If Mussolini emerges victorious, Yugo-Slavia will probably lead the Balkans in a pro-Italian movement; if he loses, the anxious Balkans will line up with Western democracies.

ITALY'S COUNT CIANO
For the cause, or for Italy?

For Great Britain and France, who also covet Balkan friendship, a messiah has appeared in Grigore Gafencu, 47-year-old World war flier named as Rumanian foreign minister. Once an influential Bucharest newspaper man, Gafencu has long advocated closer co-operation among Yugo-Slavia, Hungary and Bulgaria, thereby averting dependency on either Germany or Italy.

Germany

Since German policies began antagonizing world democracies, the obvious prediction has maintained that German foreign trade would suffer. It then follows that Germany must increase her domestic production to become independent of foreign imports. The difficulty of the task was first emphasized in late November when Col. von Schell was named "general plenipotentiary" of the automobile industry to speed production and standardization, and institute necessary economic measures. A few days later Dr. Karl Lange was given similar powers over Germany's machine industry. Next came Dr. Fritz Todt as "general plenipotentiary" in charge of all road building.

Such industrial "czarships" smell amazingly like communistic Russia's commisar system, and the idea was probably borrowed from that good neighbor. To give the entire system added impetus, Dr. Walther Funk, salesman-like economics minister, has been named czar of all German industry, with supervision over Herren von Schell, Lange and Todt.

Always closely supervised, German industry will now feel official domination even more severely. How an apparently communistic method of industrial overlordship will work in a nation which still supports private enterprise, remains to be seen.

Germany's foreign trade has suffered. In 1937 Germany built up a favorable balance of $168,000,000. In 1938 this was wiped out and imports were $159,200,000 more than exports.

Great Britain

A solidified empire is the United Kingdom's goal since Nazi-Fascist states began threatening her position. Among the empire's weakest features is the string of miscellaneous possessions centering in the Caribbean sea, who individually and collectively have thus far received too little attention from London. One of them, Jamaica, recently heard agitation for annexation by the U. S. Still more recently it was suggested that Great Britain might pay its $4,000,000,000 war debt by ceding her Caribbean islands to the U. S.

Belatedly recognizing some valuable property, London now proposes to group all the West Indies into a new dominion. Its composite parts: British Honduras, Bahamas, Jamaica, Leeward islands, Windward islands, Barbados, Trinidad, British Guiana, Kingston, centrally located capital of Jamaica, would be dominion headquarters.

The United Kingdom's new empire would include 2,000,000 people, mostly descendants of one-time Negro slaves, who depend chiefly on agriculture. Main trouble point the past year has been Kingston, where a royal investigating commission was recently welcomed by a strike of gas workers, throwing the entire city into darkness.

HOW TO SEW

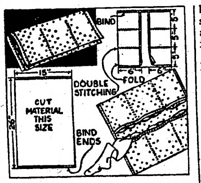
by Ruth Wyeth Spears



THINGS that will have a ready sale at a fair or church bazaar; things that may be made quickly from odds and ends of material on hand; colorful, useful things for gifts—these are the requests that come in the mail.

Here is another suggestion that has stood the test of practical use —a flat case that holds six pairs of stockings. What a relief not to have them all mixed up with underwear and other things in dresser drawers.

This case may be made quickly on the sewing machine. A piece of cretonne or bright ticking or other cotton material of the dimensions given here, and about two yards of contrasting bias binding are the materials needed. The diagrams given here in the sketch, explain each step in cutting and making the case.

If a more elaborate case is desired, silk may be used with ribbon for the bindings. A quilted silk case of this type would make an exquisite gift. Machine quilting may be used for this purpose.

Be sure to clip and save these lessons as they are not in either Book 1 or 2. These books are full of still other useful ideas, with complete cutting and sewing directions for each item clearly illustrated. They save the price of many patterns and you will use them constantly for references and inspiration.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, has helped thousands of women to use odds and ends of materials and their spare time to make things to sell and to use. Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, is full of inspiration for every homemaker. These books make delightful gifts. Mrs. Spears will autograph them on request. Books are 25 cents each. Crazy-patch quilt leaflet is included free with every order for both books. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Perhaps Guest Would Prefer Glass of Water

A new waitress at the cafe had been given strict instructions that she must do everything to please the customers and give them exactly what they wanted.

On her first morning a gentleman sat down and called for something to drink.

"Tea, coffee or milk, sir," asked the waitress.

"Tea, please."

"Will you take green or black, sir?"

The man decided on green.

"With cream or lemon, sir?"

"Cream," replied the guest, thinking that must be the end of the matter.

"Yes, sir. Jersey or Guernsey?"

Air View of Golden Gate Exposition

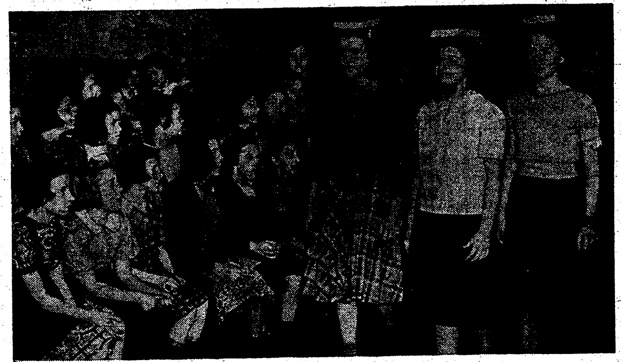
This air view of the setting for the 1939 Golden Gate International exposition on Treasure island, San Francisco bay, gives a "magic carpet" impression with the varied pavilions of many lands on exhibition. In the center is the familiar theme Tower to the Sun. In the upper left, jutting into the bay, are ferry boat slips, where passengers will leave boats from San Francisco.

Charm School Opened for Tenth Avenue 'Debs'



Three days each week New York's Tenth avenue girls assemble at a recently opened "Charm school" to cultivate beauty, charm and culture. The Hell's Kitchen debutantes will study the art of walking and talking correctly. "Dem's" and "dose's" will be eliminated from their vocabularies. Here three girls practice walking gracefully by balancing books on their heads.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses the Diet of Expectant Mother. Some General Rules for Wise Eating at This Important Time

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

DISTINGUISHED writers and sociologists, both here and abroad, have concerned themselves in recent years with the writing of a Children's Charter and a Baby's Bill of Rights. These efforts are commendable because they demonstrate a forward-looking attitude . . . a genuine attempt to better the lot of the next generation. Indeed, they represent a concerted effort to do for children in general what mothers have always tried to do individually for their own children.

Before a Baby Is Born

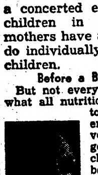
But not every mother realizes what all nutritionists know—that to a not inconsiderable degree, the very foundations of good health for the child are laid down before he is born. For it has been well said that good nutrition for the infant begins with good nutrition for the mother.



Unfortunately, many people, even in this enlightened age, still cling to superstition and old wives' tales when it comes to choosing the proper foods for those important months before a baby is born.

Some Common Fallacies

As a result, some expectant mothers overeat, frequently of the wrong kinds of food; others do not take enough of the foods that are required to maintain top health for the mother and build the baby's body soundly; while still another group believes such antiquated notions as the idea that a woman may eat whatever she "craves" during this period.

In view of the fact that recent nutrition work has given us more knowledge than ever before of how and what the expectant mother should eat, dietetic errors during this period are particularly deplorable.

Building Better Babies

Every expectant mother should be under the care of a physician, and usually he gives specific advice concerning the foods that may be eaten and those that might better be avoided. But every woman will be a better mother if she understands something of the functions and fate of foods, with particular reference to this period.

Don't Overeat

Generally speaking, the same foods that are required for a well-balanced diet under ordinary circumstances are the ones that will best serve the needs of mother and child during the months before a baby is born. There are, however, certain modifications of the diet that may well be taken into consideration.

First, a word about the amount of food consumed: It is not necessary to eat more than is required to satisfy the normal appetite, in the belief that large quantities of additional food are needed. Nutritionists have demonstrated that the energy requirements of the expectant mother increase only during the last three months of gestation. Thus, it is not necessary to increase the caloric intake for the first few months, though toward the end of the period a gradual increase in caloric intake may be made under the direction of the physician. It is advisable, however, to emphasize that the character of the additional food consumed, as well as the amount, should always be taken into consideration.

Building Materials

It is important to pay special attention to the amount and kind of protein that is eaten, since over the entire period the baby grows tremendously, even though almost half of the weight of the new-born child is added during the final two months before birth.

Recent investigations also indicate that the prospective mother is best able to maintain her nutritional reserve if the amount of protein in her diet is carefully calculated. It is desirable likewise that the protein be of the highest quality.

Milk is even more important in the diet of the expectant mother than in that of other adults—not only for its protein, but because of its minerals and vitamins. As a rule, the expectant mother should take a quart of milk a day, whereas the usual diet for adults calls for a pint of milk daily.

Minerals and Vitamins

In addition to requiring protein to help build tissue for her baby, the expectant mother must have a generous amount of minerals. Calcium and phosphorus are required especially for the formation of the baby's bones and teeth. Construction begins on all the teeth before birth, and at birth, all 20 of the first set are completely calcified within the jaw.

Besides providing the necessary minerals to help construct bones and teeth, it is also important to include in the prospective mother's diet an adequate supply of vitamins. Vitamin D is essential if the calcium and phosphorus are to be utilized properly, and it has also been indicated that vitamins A and C are likewise most important at this time.

The mineral iron is also required in significant amounts and this may well be obtained from eggs, dried fruits, whole grain cereals and green leafy vegetables. It has been found that the thyroid gland is unusually active in the expectant mother. And in those sections of the country where the drinking water and soil are deficient in iodine, physicians frequently recommend the use of some food such as iodized salt.

Adequate Bulk or Cellulose

It is most desirable that enough bulky foods be included in the diet to help maintain regular health habits.

This requirement should be taken care of automatically if generous amounts of fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals are consumed. For in addition to their minerals and vitamins, all these foods likewise supply bulk which aids in promoting regularity.

The wide use of fruits and vegetables will also help to build up a liberal alkaline reserve, which helps to safeguard health during the period of gestation.

If all these factors are taken into consideration, the expectant mother will not only help to preserve her own health, but will take constructive measures to give her baby the blessings of a sound start in life. Then as the healthy, contented infant grows into the healthy, happy, active toddler, and later becomes the healthy, well-adjusted school boy, the mother can indeed be proud of her handiwork!

Questions Answered

Miss E. D. M.—Yes, in most of the foods containing vitamin G, this vitamin is associated with vitamin B. White of egg is the only food in which it is definitely known to date that vitamin G occurs without vitamin B.

Mrs. S. D. L.—It is true that nuts furnish protein similar in quantity to that found in cream and top milk. Nutritionists do not agree, however, that the protein is the complete equal of milk protein in quality.

Indoor and Outdoor Ideas

ONE of these designs gives you four gay little extras to freshen up your dark dresses and suits —an accessory set comprising a fitted jacket, a soft, roomy bag, a tailored ascot scarf and a pair of those new boxy-figured gloves. The other is a practical house dress, so comfortable and so good-looking that you'll want it for shopping and runabout as well as for home work. Make the frivolous accessory set—make the useful house dress! Both are easy, and you'll enjoy them both!

Four Matching Accessories.

It will make your clothes seem like lots more, if you vary them with bright accessories in just the colors you want. Don't be afraid to tackle the gloves. They're easy, with the detailed sew chart included in your pattern and so smart! Lots of women who haven't sewed any more than you have are making their own, with this design. Choose flannel, jersey, or suede.

Slenderizing House Dress.

This is such a trim, tailored style, with darts at the waistline for slimness, and a gathered bodice to give fullness over the bust. The skirt has an action pleat for greater comfort. The plain V neckline, finished with edging, is very becoming. All in all, this dress fits so well and looks so well that you should have it in flat crepe or polka dot print as well as in tubfast cottons like calico, percale, gingham and linen.

The Patterns.

No. 1652 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. With long sleeves, size 38 requires 4¾ yards of 35-inch material; with short sleeves, 4⅝ yards; 2¼ yards of edging.

No. 1643 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 1⅝ yards of 54-inch fabric for the jacket; ⅓ yard for the gloves, with ⅛ yard contrast; 1⅛ yards for the scarf and ⅝ yard for the bag.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

AROUND the HOUSE — Items of Interest to the Housewife

Care of Aluminum.—Aluminum is one material which is apt to warp if cold water is run into it after it has been removed from the fire and is still very hot. Either wait a bit before putting the pan to soak or run boiling hot water into it for soaking.

* * *

Hints to Carpenters. — When driving nails into hard wood touch the end of the nails with lard or tallow, when they will be found to go in much more easily.

* * *

Squeaky Carpet Sweeper. — If your carpet sweeper squeaks, apply oil on a feather or from a small oil can. Use the oil on the bearings and around the wheels. Then run the sweeper over a paper to catch any surplus oil so it won't drip on your rugs.

* * *

To Whip Evaporated Milk.—Evaporated milk can be whipped by this method: Cover can with two inches of cold water, bring to boil and boil for five minutes. Then cool and chill the can thoroughly, pour milk into cold bowl and whip with a cold beater.

Shining the Stove. — Before blackening the kitchen stove go over it with a cloth dipped in vinegar to remove all the grease.

* * *

For New Griddle.—To prepare a new aluminum griddle for use, first wash well in warm water and soap suds and remove any labels. The griddle is hot enough on a range when a small piece of paper placed on top will brown. Lower the heat and start baking. Cakes often stick if the griddle is too hot. Wash the griddle after it has been used in plenty of hot soapy water and wipe perfectly dry before storing.

* * *

Beautifying the Hands.—After using lemons, don't forget to wipe off your hands with the skins. They will remove all stains from vegetable paring and soften and whiten the skin.

* * *

A Blanket Note.—To keep the tops of blankets and quilts clean, bind the edges with pieces of cheesecloth about 16 inches wide. These can be tinted to match the blanket, and removed when soiled.

The Widespread Industry Of Minnesota

Industry is found in every part of Minnesota. It is found in the great counties of northeastern Minnesota where many are dependent upon the forest products and mining industries. It is found in metropolitan communities and at county cross roads.

Industry is, by no means, confined to the large cities of the state. From census facts it may be shown that 53 per cent of the manufacturing employment of Minnesota is found in the three large cities of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth. Forty-seven per cent is found outside of these three large cities.

The largest single industry in Minnesota is the processing or preserving of agricultural products. This is found wherever farms are found.

There are 78 communities in Minnesota with a population of over 2500 people. A large part of the population of these communities is supported primarily through activities founded upon business and industry.

This information compiled by the Inter-Organization Committee for the retention and development of industry and business in Minnesota.

Karvonen Spoke At Mens Clnb

The Holt school, and its future was the topic discussed by Supt. G. W. Karvonen at the Men's Club on Tuesday evening. After the talk, an open discussion was held and ways and means were discussed how the individual citizens could be of service in exerting proper influence in such a way that the high school may be continued for years to come. Mr. Karvonen, through the authority of the local school board, stated definitely that there will be a high school here next year. Even if the ruling became law under which it would not be possible for the local high school to operate, that would not take effect before Sept. 1940.

Mr. Paul Lundgren, county attorney of Pennington county, was scheduled to speak but on Tuesday he notified the officers that he could not be present due to unforeseen circumstances.

Plans for the next meeting were also made in that it was decided to have a debate on the question of the "Munich Agreement". The next meeting will be on Feb. 14. C. A. Larson and O. T. Ness served lunch.

Nils Fosen Passed Away

Word was received here Monday that Nils Fosen, pioneer Mud Lake farmer, had passed away last Thursday at the home of his sister Mrs. G. O. Erickson at Moorhead. ## Tom Mooney Gets Pardon

Thomas J. Mooney, labor's long-imprisoned symbol of "class persecution", went free Saturday on a gubernatorial pardon and dedicated the rest of his life to peaceful building of "a new and better social order."

California's new "liberal" governor, Culbert L. Olson, officially absolved Mooney of all guilt in the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness day parade bombing - - a sensational crime for which the labor leader spent more than 22 years in prison.

Mooney stood to receive the document, mounted the rostrom by Olsen's side and said:

"Governor Olson, I shall dedicate the rest of my life to work for the common good in the bond of democracy. Dark and sinister forces of Fascist reactionism are threating the world.

"The present economic system is in a state of decay - - not just here but throughout the world. It will be replaced, and, I hope, by a new and better social order. To that end I pledge my efforts and to work for the common good."

Engen Opens Law Office

Nels M. Engen, retiring Superintendent of Schools, announced this week that he will open law offices on the second floor of the Peoples State Bank Building in Warren this week. Mr. Engen was admitted to the Bar several years ago.

Mr. Engen served for sixteen years as Superintendent of the County Schools and during that time executed the office in a business like manner. He is recognized as a well informed attorney.

Mr. Engen extends a personal invitation to the public to call on him in his new quartes and get better acquainted.

The Weather

Bergman Naned Chairman

Ole Bergman, Commissioner from the west end of the county was elected to head the County Board for the ensuing year. The annual meeting of the commissioners was held at Warren last week. The meeting was opened by County Auditor Levi Johnson, after which Mr. Bergman was elected to head the Board.

Mr. Bergman has formerly served as Chairman of the Board having held that position in 1934. Each year the chairmanship is changed giving each member of the board a chance to be the head of the board. Arthur Sommers of Radium served as chairman of the county board for 1938.

Committees for 1939 were named by Chairman Bergman to act in that capacity are:

Building—J. J. Pagnac, A. W. Sommers, Gunsten Skomedal.

Health—Arthur Anderson, A. Sommers, Dr. Holmstrom.

Stationary and Printing — Anderson and Pagnac.

Roads — Sommers, Bergman, Pagnac.

Bridges—Skomedal, Anderson.

Ditches—Ole Bergman, Skomedal, Pagnac and Anderson.

This year three new county officials took office. H. M. Hanson took office as Register of Deeds, Miss Thora Skomedal as Superintendent of Schools and Gunsten Skomedal as Commissioner from the Fifth District.

This is the first time in twenty-five years that the commissioner has been elected from the west end of the district.

Local Band Reorgtnized

Minutes of the Reorganization Meeting of the Holt Community Band.

Meeting was called to order by Einar Loven, acting chairman.

Motion by Nelson and seconded by Peterson that new officers be elected. Motion carried.

The following officers were elected: Pres. W. C. Paskewitz with a total of eight votes to seven for Joe Nelson and five for Loven.

For Sec'y Joe Nelson with a total of nine votes with seven for Loven and four for for H. Gunheim.

For Treasurer Stilof Anderson with a total of thirteen votes to seven for Marlan Augustine.

Motion made by Nelson and seconded by Risberg that Norman Peterson and Louis Sagstuen act as two directors. Motion carried.

Motion made by Harlan Gunheim and seconded by Louis Sagstuen that Joe Nelson act as Librarian. Motion carried.

It was brought up that dues were to be set at ten cents per meeting per person whether or not the member be present, this money to be used for the purpose of paying the director or whatever expense the Band may have. The dues to be increased in case less than thirty members were signed up.

The next meeting of the band was set for January 12th at eight p. m. in the school house.

There being no further business the motion was made and carried to adjourn.

Mrs. O. B. Johnson was pleasantly surprised on Thursday, her birthday, when friends, relatives and neighbors gathered at her home and gave her a party. She received gifts and a cash purse and the self invited guests served a delicious lunch.

Cardiff Leiran of Thief River Falls is visiting at the L. Sagstuen home.

Kolden-Anderson Wedding

Miss Thelma Kolden and Mr. Victor N. Anderson were married at the Holt parsonage at 8:30 on Saturday evening, Jan. 7. Rev. Hanson officiated using the single ring ceremony. Their only attendants were Miss Bernice Kolden, sister of the bride, and Mr. Oscar Anderson, brother of the groom. Mrs. Anderson is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thorval Kolden, living northwest of Holt. She has spent her entire life in this community. She attended Holt high school graduating from the Thief River Falls high school and a year later the Normal Department at the same place. For the past two years she has been teaching school and will continne to do so until the present school year is over.

Mr. Anderson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Anderson of Middle River. He is engaged in farming.

NEW DISEASE IS THREAT TO SWINE

—Prepared by American Foundation for Animal Health

Another new and serious livestock disease has recently been recognized in this country, and American farmers will do well to be on their guard against it.

This disease is the virulent form of Swine Erysipelas. For many years it has been well-known in European and South American countries. In fact, Swine Erycipelas has outranked Hog Cholera in Europe in the destruction of swine. Knowing the deadliness of cholera, American farmers can judge from this fact the seriousness of this newer disease, and the ravages it might cause, if it were allowed to make headway.

There has been a mild or chronic form of swine erysipelas in this country for a long time. But the killing form of the disease has now appeared in recent years in widely separated parts of the country. A most confusing fact is that, in some forms of the disease, the symptoms and tissue changes are very similar to those of hog cholera. The animals run a temperature, lose appetite, sometimes have difficulty in moving about, and separate themselves from the herd.

Satisfactory control of the disease is possible when proper measures are promptly employed but, in many untreated herds, the losses have been very serious.

Another fact which swine raisers should note is man's susceptibility to the same germ which causes swine erysipelas. Handling swine affected with the disease, or products of swine which have the disease, may result in a person contracting it, with serious consequences.

The only safe course, where swine show evidences of any of the above symptoms, is to call a veterinarian for immediate and accurate diagnosis and treatment.

The similarity between swine erysipelas and hog cholera symptoms is very close, and delay in proper diagnosis may result in a heavy loss. Cholera of course, can be prevented by vaccination. The safest precaution is to have hogs immunized against cholera, and to procure a quick, accurate diagnosis of any herd disease affecting swine.

The National Youth Administration has approved a recreation project for the local community. Kenneth Larson has been assigned as recreation leader. His work will consist of general supervision of the skating rink, taking charge of the warming house, organize cleaning groups for the rink, and to observe rules outlined for the use of the rink. Expenditures for the above project are estimated at about eighty five dollars of which the federal funds will assume a large proporation. Holt is one of the few communities in Marshall county to have a recreational project of this type. We should appreciate this fact and cooperate with Kenneth Larson in making the project a success.

It's Time to Sew For Now and Spring

IT'S fun to sew during the long winter evenings, when you use these simple patterns, each including a detailed sew chart, so that you can follow them with no trouble, and listen to the radio at the same time. Right now, the stores have grand bargains in fabrics, too, so it's certainly the time to get some sewing done. You can make such pretty things, and save so much money, by doing it.

Two-Piecer for Girls.

Here's a charming dress that girls in the 10-to-16 size range will love for school, and it's so easy to do that those who like sewing can make it themselves. The basque blouse hugs in (by means of darts), to make the waist look small. The skirt has such a pretty flare. Both can be worn with other things. Choose wool crepe, flat crepe, silk print or moire.

Three Pretty Aprons.

Make this dainty, useful set of aprons now, and have it ready when spring weather arrives and people begin to drive up unexpectedly for meals. You'll enjoy having the aprons right now, too, when you serve refreshments to your club. This set is a nice party prize, and a gift idea for your friends who are brides-to-be. It includes two practical pinafore styles, both made so that they cannot slip off your shoulders when you have your hands in the dish water. Also, a sweet little frilly tie-around. Choose dimity, linen, percale or dotted Swiss.

The Patterns.

No. 1657 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, and 16 years. Size 12 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material for long-sleeved blouse; 1⅝ yards for short-sleeved blouse; ⅓ yard for contrasting collar and 1⅞ yards for skirt.

No 1639 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 34 requires, for apron No. 1, 2 yards of 35 inch material and 12 yards of braid. For apron No. 2, 2¼ yards of 35 inch material and 9 yards of braid. For apron No. 3, 1⅛ yards of 35 inch material and 3 yards of pleating.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

Operatic Star Suggests New Line of Export

NEW YORK.—This writer, encountering Frederick Jagel of the Metropolitan Opera at luncheon the other day, quizzed him about his season at Buenos Aires, from which he recently returned. He thinks cultural penetration of South America might be more effective than our trade and diplomatic missions, in which he is inclined to believe we aren't getting anywhere.

South America has long had the idea that we were a nation of hard-boiled money-grubbers. Any creditable performance in the arts, he believes, will be our best line of export. He said he found the Argentines most generous and appreciative hosts. Once they find you haven't an extra ace in your cuff and you measure up to their standard of propriety, they wear their hearts on their sleeve.

Incidentally, Mr. Jagel's singing makes audiences weep, but no one meeting him ever feels sorry for him. He is a businesslike, compact Brooklynite, formerly an actuary with the Mutual Life Insurance company, long before he took his perch in the old red plush aviary, where, on occasion, he still hits high C.

As an actuary, young Mr Jagel, charting other careers, began to think of his own career. He tossed his insurance job out of the window, found a backer, sang in movie houses up and down Broadway and proved to all and sundry that he had a voice. He studied with Portanova in New York and with Caladini in Milan. Making his operatic debut in Milan, in "La Boheme," he hit Rodolfo's high C with a bull's eye that greatly improved Italo-American relations. He sang for four seasons in Italy, before making his New York debut as Radames, on November 8, 1927. He knows about 40 roles, and 26 of them he can sing offhand and on the slightest provocation.

With the precision and clarity of a man trained in business, he tells you of the superiority of our South American competitors in their specialty of quid-pro-quo trade economics. Hence, his talk of "cultural penetration" isn't just ivory tower stuff. If Secretary Hull could sing as well as Mr. Jagel can talk international trade, he, too, would be in the Metropolitan.

Mr. Jagel thinks we have the making of a grand musical renaissance in this country, with talent, teachers and a fine national appreciation vastly enhanced by the radio.

Mystifier Says Mystagoguery Just 'Ain't So'

THE amiable white magic of John Mulholland once enabled me to deal myself four aces against another's four kings, which, of course, revived faltering hopes of the existence of kindly elves with whom Mr. Mulholland was wired in and whom he could summon in behalf of his friends. But now one of the cleverest magicians in the country—the cleverest, to this none-too-seeing eye—publishes a book, "Beware Familiar Spirits," in which he banishes all trolls and makes all magic just manual dexterity and technique. It isn't exactly a debunking book. He leaves the door open for faith in the occult, if you think you have evidence, but, as to prevailing mystagoguery, he reduces it to fraud or to honest self-deception, aided by slow eyesight.

He sold school books and was a teacher of dramatics and industrial arts at Columbia university, before he became a full-time magician and vice president of Society of American Magicians. He has performed and lectured in about 40 countries.

Nobody, anywhere, ever had more fun. He likes to shepherd four or five friends through a subway turnstile, with one nickel, making it reissue from the slot each time and click through the next man. That brings the change dealer roaring from his den. Mr. Mulholland hands him a half-dollar, the wayfarers take their train, and then the dealer finds he has an aluminum disk with a rabbit in a silk hat on it. He usually screams and butts his head against the wall. But, in each case, the subway already has its full count of sound nickels.

As to the above poker hands, it happened at a luncheon table of five or six men. Mr. Mulholland sent for a new deck of cards and asked me to shuffle them and deal four hands. It couldn't have been a trained deck. It was thoroughly shuffled. Mr. Mulholland never touched the cards, standing with his back turned a few feet away, and never said a word. The hands fell as he ordered, the orders apparently issuing silently from the back of his head.

Sugar Cane Harvesting Is Modernized

Pretty Jeanette Peltier, Cajun miss of the Bayou Teche in the Evangeline country, Louisiana, helps her father get his sugar cane to the warehouse. In sharp contrast to the old manner of harvesting cane is the new Thomson machine. Screws straighten the cane so that rotating knives can lop off the tops. It then cuts the cane with a three-inch spaced blade saw at its bottom. The tops of the cane are sent through the chute. The harvester cuts about 20 tons per hour.

Shadowless Groundhog

Groundhog day, February 2, is a perennial calendar joke on people who persist in belief in the Sign of the Shadow. For their little rodent prophet never fails to deceive them by sleeping while they watch. The groundhog is one of the soundest of all winter sleepers, and has never been known to emerge from his cozy winter quarters until long after his shadow could be a matter of public concern. He appears about the end of February in the more southerly part of his range, as late as May up in the mountainous northwest.

Make Quilted Pads For Dresser Drawer

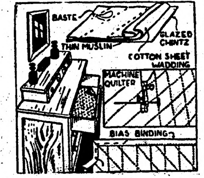
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS.

THERE seems to be no corner in the house where the decorators' art is not applied. Closets used to be drab and dreary places but now they are bedecked in scalloped shelf edgings, gay garment bags and bright hat boxes. Dresser drawers are also perking up. Time was when a clean newspaper was put in the bottom of a drawer every so often, and the date of the one removed proclaimed how long it had been since this housewifely task had been performed. Now, we make pads to fit the drawers. We scent them with our favorite sachet and find infinite joy in their soft colorings.



Machine quilting is just the thing to give the pads the stiffness and body they require so that they will lay flat in the bottom of the drawer and not wrinkle up. Glazed chintz in a plain soft blue with darker blue bindings is used for the pads made to fit the chest of drawers shown here. Thin muslin is used for the backing and sheet wadding for the padding. When all three layers of material have been cut the right size, baste them together. The first row of basting is run diagonally across the center and then the rows are spaced about six inches apart as shown. Here also is a sketch of a machine quilter in operation. It is merely a foot with an indicator attached. The end of the indicator runs along each previous row stitched making an accurate gauge for the spacing of the quilting. After the pads are quilted, bind the edges as shown.

Wang Ching-wei's Declaration Forces China to Air Troubles

—By Joseph W. La Bine—

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Asia

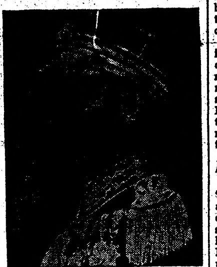
War-torn China's biggest boast is her constantly growing national unity, a product of necessity that has made Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek the strongest Chinese ruler in modern history. But despite this well-publicized unity, China has not been able to make much of a showing against her Japanese invaders. Indeed, foreign military observers find Tokyo's paper-thin front lines so vulnerable that they say 30,000 American, British or French troops could put the enemy to rout. But in Jap-occupied territory are 270,000,000 civilians and 1,250,000 armed guerrillas whose spirit of national unity is still not strong enough to inspire a sudden, inevitably successful attack.



GENERALISSIMO CHIANG

Better than the national unity argument is the theory that smart General Chiang has been staging a fake show of Chinese nationalism, offering a good front at the expense of his wavering government. Though Chungking headquarters are overrun with nepotism, corruption and inefficiency, many abuses have been tolerated to make the outside world think China is strong. In the end General Chiang wangled handsome loans and credit arrangements from both the U. S. and Britain, proving the stunt was working, at least temporarily.

Not anticipated, however, was the walkout of one-time Premier Wang Ching-wei, who celebrated New Year's by reaching peace terms with Japanese Premier Fuminaro Konoye. Long a silent bulwark of China's Kuomintang (Nationalist) party, Mr. Wang reportedly met at Hongkong with Japanese agents and reached terms which would make him China's head man, leaving General Chiang out in the cold. Terms: (1) China should open diplomatic relations with Japanese puppet state, Manchukuo; (2) China should agree to economic "co-operation" with Japan; (3) China should adhere to the Jap-Italo-German anti-Communist agreement; (4) China should accept Japanese garrisons while the anti-Communist pact was in force.

Interpretations of the Wang demarche have come thick and fast. In Tokyo, happy Japanese thought it meant a breakdown of the Kuomintang and the spotlight of publicity on China's internal troubles. With Chiang weakened, Japanese puppet states would no longer seem pointless. In Shanghai, still Chinese despite its Japanese ownership, observers thought the Wang declaration was a well-timed Jap move to counteract U. S. and British credits to General Chiang. Whatever the cause, it was a happy day for Tokyo because China has been showing hardened resistance the past few weeks.

With the die cast, General Chiang no longer saw need for hiding his troubles. From Chungking came word of a wholesale purge from the Kuomintang of some 200 peace partisans. Expelled was Deserter Wang, charged with having attempted to gain support from military leaders in Szechuan and Yunnan provinces.

Politics

When Purge failed, when President Roosevelt's favoritism for Left-Wingers Corcoran, Hopkins, Jackson and Oliphant began bothering conservative New Dealers, forecasters saw a coming split in the Democratic party. Veering away from the White House were Vice President Garner, National Chairman Farley and Secretary of State Hull, any of whom might be a conservative 1940 presidential candidate. With two cabinet vacancies to fill, President Roosevelt had a chance to widen this breach by naming left wingers.

What forecasters overlooked was the always-present possibility of concession, both by Garner, Farley, Hull, et al, and the White House. Result: President Roosevelt has named Harry Hopkins to the commerce secretaryship and former Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan to the attorney generalship, at the same time retaining party leadership.

Roosevelt strategy: Until just before congress opened, the White House reserved comment on what every legislator knew was a certainty, namely, drastic revision of such New Deal brainchildren as social security, the Wagner act, relief administration and neutrality legislation. The President also knew such revision was a certainty, but the trump card was held back. Then, with the Hopkins and Murphy appointments apparently due for congressional opposition, the White House was able to soothe ruffled nerves by promising he would do no more bill drafting. Consequently both appointments are being approved, though Hopkins must appear before a committee investigating relief irregularities, and Murphy before the senate judiciary committee to explain his attitude toward sit-down strikes.

What cannot be avoided, however, is the feeling that White House concessions outweigh those of Mr. Garner and other rebels. Having committed himself to a political back seat while congress is in session, Mr. Roosevelt must find some way to recapture the driver's seat or risk political oblivion by convention time next year.

Defense

During the World war German "U" boats made naval history by approaching U. S. Atlantic coast cities. Last September German submarines were still a menace, helping to force blockade-wary Britishers into the embarrassing peace of Munich. In January, German submarines again made headlines because Berlin announces her determination to equal Great Britain's strength in submarine tonnage.

Under the Anglo-German naval pact of 1935, Germany has this right under emergency, but London fails to understand what emergency faces the Reich today. Now built, under construction or appropriated for are 71 German submarines; smaller than average, their tonnage is only 31,282. Britain, with 73 submarines weighing 75,904 tons, finds many of her heavy underwater craft obsolete. Not only is London frightened by Germany's numerical superiority if the Reich builds up to parity, but also because Germany intends to build several large ocean-going submarines of 1,000 tons or more.

This program has tremendous significance on the international picture. It can only stimulate the world arms race, since England must now build more ships capable of convoying her ocean steamers. In France, where the Anglo-German naval agreement has always been unpopular (because, claims Paris, London should never have recognized Germany's right to any naval strength), the Reich's new submarine parity has produced genuine alarm. Italy, always a big "U" boat builder, reflects that the combined German-Italian submarine fleets can now patrol the seven seas.

Convinced that a new diplomatic onslaught is behind Germany's move, certain British circles are capitalizing on their troubles to win U. S. military support. Their story: That Germany's 1,000 ton submarines are being built to cross the Atlantic, in retaliation for the cool reception Hitler tactics have been receiving in official Washington. If this danger—real or false—can be impressed on U. S. congressmen, Great Britain hopes it will result in a larger American navy.

Science

Outstanding among 1938's news stories was the growth and flourish of dictators. To casual investigators, this is a new and revolutionary phenomenon, but historians recall that regimentation is centuries old. By year's end, dictators had been placed on the defensive at least in the minds of democratic nationals in the U. S., Britain and France. And although 1939 may see more growth, more flourish, science has stepped in with a prediction.

The man: Dr. John R. Swanton of Washington's Smithsonian institution.

The forecast: "In spite of the efforts of political, social or clerical groups to coerce the spirit of man, man has always been able to resist and reassert his freedom . . . Christianity, the great revolution of the Eighteenth century and the growth of science have been man's answer to all attempts to dominate him."

Miscellany

For the first time in its history, New York's Sing Sing prison has executions every week during January. Total for the month already scheduled: 10.

● U. S. correspondents returning from eighth Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru, have reported censorship, intimidation and spying unlike that ever before seen at a Pan-American assembly.

● Army participation in the U. S. navy's three-month Atlantic fleet maneuvers has been cancelled because of friction, army officials claiming the exercise offers little value for its officers and men.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Suggests the Part Played by Diet In Helping to Prevent the Common Cold

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

STATISTICS compiled over a period of years indicate that during the months of January and February, the number of colds and other respiratory infections continually mounts. Usually a peak is reached in late February or early March.

It is during the next eight or ten weeks, therefore, that, in the light of past experience, more adults will lose time from their work and more children will be absent from school, as a result of colds, than at any other period during the year.

The Tremendous Cost of Colds

It has been estimated that colds cost the United States more than a billion dollars a year. That figure, of course, is only an estimate. It merely attempts to gauge the dollars and cents lost in wages; and in the money spent in an effort to overcome colds. It does not take into account the discomforts that may be caused by this common complaint. Nor does it allow for the possible after-effects of a neglected cold.

Cause and Cure Obscure

No scientists today are willing to state what causes colds or how they may be cured. Large numbers of clinical and laboratory tests have been performed throughout the world in an effort to discover why we catch cold. Numerous records have been made concerning colds in men, women and children, as scientific workers have patiently and persistently tried to investigate the cause of colds. They have sought even one clue that might help us to outwit this common enemy!

Various theories have been advanced. Many have been discarded, and others have been considered sufficiently plausible to investigate further. There is one point on which many authorities agree: that is a belief that a cold is caused by a germ so small that it cannot be seen by the most powerful microscope.

It has been suggested by a number of competent observers that whenever the weather becomes damp and raw, and wherever crowds of people gather together, the cold germ may find victims among those whose resistance is low.

Prevention Rather Than Cure

Though we may not know precisely what causes a cold, nor how to cure it once we have been stricken, we can and should help to build up bodily resistance, so that we develop strong reserves against the unknown cold germ and any others lurking about.

Inasmuch as a program for building up bodily resistance is one which encourages greater health and longevity, it is a program which all forward-looking homemakers should put into effect for their families.

Helping to Build Resistance

Such a program should include proper food, normal elimination, adequate exercise and sufficient rest and sleep so as to avoid fatigue. Just as food plays an important part in helping to promote growth, maintain health and increase the chances for longevity, so does it have a stellar role in the battle to prevent colds.

The Right Food a Strong Weapon

The well balanced diet, as I have previously stated, is one that is built, first of all, upon a firm foundation of the protective foods—milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. These are the foods that are richest in minerals and vitamins—substances which help to regulate body processes and help to guard against deficiency diseases.

There should be adequate protein to allow for the demands of growth and to help repair worn-out body tissue. There should be enough bulk or cellulose to help promote normal elimination. And there should be a sufficient amount of water and other fluids; for water flushes the countless channels of physical existence, as it passes from the body through the lungs and skin, as well as through the kidneys and the large intestine.

Significance of Vitamin A

Nutrition authorities are frequently asked, "Is there any specific food substance that may be said to be particularly helpful in preventing colds?" or "Is it true that vitamin A is especially valuable in combatting colds?"

Here is one answer to both questions: scientists have found evidence that vitamin A, which occurs most abundantly in milk and other dairy products, and in green, leafy and yellow vegetables, helps to keep the epithelial cells of the mucous membranes in good condition, so that the natural defenses are preserved.

One of our outstanding nutrition authorities has gone on record as saying that in his opinion, at least four times the amount of vitamin A required for apparent health may bring a good return in health protection.

It is important to remember, however, that the best single piece of advice that can be given regarding diet is to eat moderately of well balanced meals.

Don't Overeat

In addition to partaking adequately of the protective foods, those who are endeavoring to plan a program of living that will help to prevent the common cold should likewise guard against overeating.

One should also do everything possible to avoid coming in direct contact with persons who have colds.

Through a routine of correct eating and sound habits of hygiene, the homemaker can go a long way toward helping her family to prevent colds. Remember that here, especially, an ounce of prevention is worth perhaps more than a pound of cure!

Questions Answered

Mrs. L. A. C.—No, it is not essential to include an egg in the school child's breakfast, provided he receives an egg in some form during the day. An ample, and easily digested breakfast might include fruit, cereal with milk, toast and milk to drink.

Miss C. M.—Yes, it is true that molasses contains calcium. The amount in a tablespoon and a half has been compared to the amount of this mineral which can be obtained from one and one half cups of diced carrots.

FINDS WHY HOMES HAVE DAMP WALLS

U. S. Government Says Vapor Barrier Will Stop Formation of Winter Dew.

The reason so many new homes embodying the latest types of construction have damp walls and top-floor ceilings during cold weather has been discovered by the United States Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wis.

The trouble, according to L. V. Teesdale, the Laboratory's senior engineer, is dew, that beneficent friend of growing things. Nature is unable to distinguish between wanted and unwanted moisture. Finding conditions favorable, she has been using outer walls and top-floor ceilings to condense water vapor into troublesome moisture.

Because moisture in walls often rots woodwork, causes paint to peel and plaster to fall, and stimulates the growth of fungi, the government's findings are of major importance to home owners, architects and builders.

According to the government, the remedy for wet walls is a vapor seal or barrier in the warm parts of outer walls and ceilings. This prevents the water vapor in a house from entering the cold parts of walls and ceilings where it may be condensed into water.

Oddly, damp walls are aggravated by the most modern types of construction, Mr. Teesdale points out. He says that storm sash, insulation, weather strips and calking around windows and doors make the normal humidity or vapor pressure within a house higher than in one less tightly constructed. He adds that "improvements that add to comfort and health are worth while and should not be discouraged, but it so happens that they introduce the unanticipated moisture problem."

The physical phenomena which cause damp walls and ceilings in cold weather are explained by the government scientist.

All air contains water vapor. Warm air can carry more vapor than cold air. When moist warm air is sufficiently chilled, it will throw off some of its vapor in the form of water. This is dew. As water vapor will penetrate ordinary plaster and untreated insulating materials, it will, therefore, pass into the interiors of walls and ceilings, where in cold weather it will become sufficiently chilled for some of the vapor to condense into water. This condensation may take place within a building or insulating material, unless remedial action is taken.

The remedy is given in the government's report. It says:

"The most positive, and least expensive, method of control so far experimented with at the Forest Products Laboratory is the use of vapor resistant barriers near the inner face of the wall and under ceiling joists under the attic."

New building materials which follow the government's suggestion have been provided. A new cane fiber lath is vapor sealed on one side with coatings of asphalt and aluminum powder, the uncoated side having a texture to take plaster. The seal, in line with the government's findings, is placed in the warm side of the walls and ceilings where it resists vapor penetration to the cold areas where condensation takes place. Although combining insulation and resistance to vapor, the new product does not block the space between studs and permit walls to continue their normal "breathing."

Engineers have found:

1—Moisture which condenses in walls and top-floor ceilings comes from within the house, not from outside.

2—The simplest, surest way to prevent this condensation is by means of a properly located "vapor seal."

3—To be effective, this seal must be located on or near the warm side of the insulation itself or near the warm side of the wall.

Aardvark, First Animal Mentioned in Dictionary

Like something out of a dipsomaniac's dream is the aardvark. It is one of the strangest of extant animals—extraordinary in appearance, in structure and in habits. While not one of the animals most familiar to the average person, it enjoys, because of the spelling of its name, the unique distinction of being the first animal to be mentioned in the dictionary and its name is one of the first words of any kind to appear in lexicons. The name comes from the Dutch, means "earth pig," and refers to the creature's piglike snout and its habits.

However, in spite of its snout and its smooth, fat body, the aardvark is quite unrelated to pigs. In fact, according to Dr. Wilford H. Osgood, chief curator of the Field Museum of Natural History department of zoology, the animal has been something of a puzzle to zoologists and anatomists who have undertaken to find a logical place for it in schemes of classification of animals.

Aardvarks are common throughout much of southern and eastern Africa south of the equator. They live in relatively open, semiarid country wherever there is an abundance of the termites or so-called "white ants," upon which they feed almost exclusively. Individual aardvarks reach weights up to about 150 pounds and appear always fat and well conditioned. For such a large heavy animal to exist upon tiny termites is rather remarkable and testifies to the abundance of such food in Africa.

Osmium, Iridium, Thulium of Platinum Metal Group

Discovered in 1803, osmium is a rare, blue-white to gray metallic element, difficult to fuse, not affected by ordinary acids and insoluble in aqua regia. It is the heaviest of the elements. A member of the group of "platinum metals", it forms an alloy with iridium, labeled osmiridium, which is used in making fountain pen points.

Like osmium, iridium is a rare metallic element, conspicuously heavy, states a writer in the Kansas City Star. Silvery-white, iridium was discovered in 1804. It is important commercially for its alloys, which are used for making standard weights and parts of scientific apparatus which must withstand the action of the atmosphere and other factors; in electrical apparatus for contact points and other parts required to resist high temperatures and active substances, such as chlorine.

Among later elements found to be present in the sun, thulium is extremely rare, occurring in Nature with other metals of the rare earth's group. It forms a number of compounds, the characteristic color of which is light green. Discovered in 1879 thulium has no commercial use.

Red Honey Produced

Even reddish-brown honey can be produced, Paul Griswold Hayes writes in an article in Nature. Logwood blossoms on the island of Dominica in the West Indies produce a singular tasting variety, but the color comes from the sap of the tree, that contains a coloring principle much used in dyeing. Most famous of the dark honey of Europe is that from the Scottish heather, with a cheaper type being derived from the English heather. In Southern Europe the favorite honey is probably the Romarin, derived from the rosemary, and the Mt. Hymettus variety from the wild thyme of Greece. Although most ordinary honey crystallizes in six months after bottling, the white tueplo will remain liquid after 10 years. On the other hand, the blue-curl nectar granulates almost at once in the wax cells.

Monkey Business

"The Confusion in this City, occasioned by Counterfeit Copper English Halfpence amongst us, is almost inconceivable: for notwithstanding the l[illegible] Quantities of good Pence we h[illegible]ng had, there is now hardly any [illegible]um offered, but there are Counterfeit Ones intermixed; and to such a Degree of Suspicion, is the Common People raised, that many good Pence, which have passed current perhaps for above 20 Years past are now refused."—From the New York Post Boy of December 3, 1753.

The Great Dipper

The great dipper only appears to revolve, owing to the revolution of the earth. It makes an apparent revolution every 24 hours, the same as the sun. It is visible throughout the entire night because it is within what is called the circle of perpetual apparition, or that part of the heavens which is always in sight to the observer. This circle enlarges as one travels from the equator, where it is nothing, to the pole, where it takes in the whole Northern Hemisphere.

Walnut in Victorian Era

During the Victorian era walnut was used almost exclusively in the construction of practical furnishings—dining room and bed room pieces especially — though handsomely carved whatnots and other living room items, settees, small tables, occasional chairs and massive hall chests were also fashioned of the light-toned wood.

Local Bank Reelects Officers

The stockholders of the Marshall County State Bank held their annual meeting here at the bank last Thursday afternoon. The following officers were elected, Arvid Carlson, Middle River, President; A. L. Carlson, Argyle Vice-President; O. H. Nohre, Guy Anderson and O. T. Ness, Directors; Geo. Fricker, Cashier; Caroline Aspelin, Assistant, Cashier; and Stilof Anderson, Bookkeeper.

The local bank has done a fine business the past year which is shown by its statement as of December 31st, published elsewhere in this issue.

It means a lot to a community to have a bank with total footings of $271,616.54 such as shown by their statement at this time. You will note that the bank now has a capitol stock and surplus fund of $25,000. The bank had footings of over a quarter of a million a year ago and have this year increased this amount to the present figure.

Trovatten Gets Appointment

R. A. Trovatten last week was appointed state commissioner of agriculture, dairy and food, to succeed Commissioner Charles Ommodt. Governor Harold Stassen, announcing Trovatten's appointment, said the new commissioner had appointed Edward Thye, as deputy commissioner to succeed Sam Hauge.

Ferne Peterson who has spent her Christmas vacation here at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peterson returned to Thief Lake on Sunday evening to commence her school there on Monday.

The Weather

The weathe the past week has been very moderate here. On Wednesday it was cloudy and damp so everything was decked out in a fine cover of frost.

Karvonen Makes Statement

Education is a State function. Every child should have an equal opportunity, as far as possible, not only to attend school, but also to attend a good school. The State of Minnesota has recognized this important obligation, and has given liberal aids to school districts in order that every district may have a reasonable good school. According to the Clerk's report of June 30, 1938, the local district received $6,256.66 in State Aids last year. The amount received from local taxes including levy for bonds and interest, was $5,485.42. Thus we can see the important part state aids play in our school.

In order to be eligible for State Aids, many conditions must of necessity, be met. We must have standard equipment, offer a precribed course of study, adequate room facilities, competent teachers, and enough students to satisfactorily maintain a good high school. By September 1940, the high school department must have a minimum of forty in order to be allowed to function. This is a new ruling (not legislative as yet) of the State Board of Education to come into effect in September 1940.

Our local school system does meet all the requirements of the state with the exception of the new enrollment minimum. Are we going to allow the High School to be taken from us? On the whole, there are two courses of action against such a situation First, to work against the possibility of enactment of lesislation that would eliminate our High School; second, to endeavor to increase our enrollment by getting more rural pupils to attend. All of us will agree that the High School is an asset to the area, not only to the village.

The question is often asked, will there be a High School in Holt next year? Yes, there will be next year, and it is the hope that there will be for many years to come.

The local board and the superintendant will be glad to discuss this problem with any one interested in it. Feel free to direct your questions and opinions to them.

Mrs. J. P. Augustine returned home Monday from St. Luke's hospital at Thief River Falls after spending a week there after becoming ill at home.

Mrs. Fred Peterson resumed school at the Sunnyside Monday.

Minnesota's Grass Seed Best

Grass seed from Minnesota's most northern counties was judged among the nation's best at the seed show held in connection with the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, last month. Alsike clover samples from the area won first, second, fourth and eighth premiums, and a sample of alfalfa was awarded grand championship while another placed third.

The counties of Roseau, Koochiching, and Lake of the Woods in this area comprise one of the most promising seed growing sections of the country and produce as high as 200 carloads of good forage seed annually.

Part of the success of these growers is due to the organized effort made to improve the quality of the seed through proper cleaning before marketing. To this end, the Northern Farmers Cooperative Exchange was formed, seed cleaning machinery secured, and a plant located at Williams, Minn.

Through the aid of the Farm Security Administration, the cooperative's membership and capital was increased during the past year until, at present, there are 300 farmer members. The Farm Security Administration, in addition to its major program of loaning funds to low-income farmers for the purchase of livestock and machinery, also, thru its cooperative section, makes individual loans to farmers enabling them to participate in their local cooperatives. One hundred twenty-three Farm Security loans were made to new members of the cooperative.

During the past year the Northern Farmers Cooperative Exchange received and cleaned over two million pounds of alfalfa, alsike, and sweet clover seed. The best grade of seed is being put up in 30 and 60 pound bags and labeled "Border King" brand. Under a plan of field inspection by farmer representatives of the cooperative, the high quality of seed will be maintained. The field inspection encourages, among other things, the weeding out of all foreign seeds.

"Border King" seeds will not only be clean, but because of their origin, will be the most hardy obtainable. All the seed handled by the cooperative originates within a radius of 160 miles of Williams. Points from which large shipments come are Skime, Blackduck, Big Falls, Little Fork, Greenbush, Badger, Roseau, Warroad, Baudette, and Ericsburg.

Growers deliver the seed to the plant for testing, receive a cash advance based on the test, and after processing, the cooperative sells the seed for the grower, deducting costs it has incurred through these operations. Buyers of alfalfa, quick to locate choice supplies, have already bought the entire supply while over a million pounds of sweet clover is being sold through dealers and other outlets.

Robert Davids, formerly of Bagley and a graduate of the Northwest School of Agriculture at Crookston, is manager of the cooperative at Williams.

Life Of Mrs. Birgit Monson

Mrs. Birgit Monson, Marshall county resident for the past 35 years, passed away at her home Saturday morning, January 7th, at the age of 70 years. Funeral rites were held on Thursday of last week from the Monson home in Moose River Township, Rev. Egen of Wannaska officiating, and interment was made in the Moose River cemetery.

Surviving relatives include four daughters, Mrs. John Green and Mrs. Ann Burell, both of Loven, Wyoming; Mrs. Ray Simmons of Gatzke; and Mrs. Calbert Engen of Grafton, N. Dak., and six sons Ludvig of Holt, Theodore of Fort Deven, Mass., Gust and Edwin of Gatzke, Henry of Grafton, and Thomas of Crookston. Twenty grandchildren and three great grandchildren also survive. Deceased relatives include the husband and two sons.

The Monson family were former residents of Holt, having lived here for some time several years ago.

Mrs. Monson was a kind and loving mother, a helping friend and neighbor and will be long remembered by all whom knew her.

Sunnyside School Notes

By Margie Swan and Delores Larson.

School reopened Monday after a three weeks vacation.

The Citizens League met Monday. New officers were elected as follows: President - Margie Swan. Vice President - Elroy Benitt. Secretary - Betty Swan. Treasurer - Delores Larson.

We are writing "Thank You" letters and will open the box January 27.

The boys sold more Christmas seals than the girls so the girls will give a party on Friday January 27. A committee consisting of Delores Larson and Margie Swan will make all arrangements

Joan Benitt is on the sick list.

The boys are filling the woodshed with wood this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Larson and family were supper guests at the Mrs. Frank Carlson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Swan and girls visited at the Alfred Larson home Friday evening.

Mr. an Mrs. Ole Larson and family visited at the Anton Rodahl home Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Larson and family visited at the Mrs. Gust Peterson home Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Furr and Hazel visited a the Art Conklin home Sunday.

Kenton Anderson visited at Anton Rodahl's Sunday.

Scouts Spend Night Camping

Several of the older boys of the local Boy Scout Troop No. 112 spent Friday night camping out in their log cabin in the woods a mile south of town. These boys have spent many winter nights out in this fashion and are getting to be real pioneers in camping.

Beckwith Is On 5 Committees

H. S. Beckwith, our Marshall county representative in the lower house of the legislature, has been given assignments on five leading committees of the house, according to word from St. Paul this week, and so will take an active part in the work of the house.

Representative Beckwith will serve as a member of the Agriculture committee, Commerce, Manufacture and Retail Trade committee, Crime Prevention committee, Elections committee and Taxes and Tax Laws committee.

All the committees in the two houses of the legislature now are formed and will begin their work at once. Much important legislation is to be considered this session, and legislative leaders want to get it under way as early as possible. Much of the actual work of putting legislation into shape must be done in committees.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Lorentson and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hanson and Caroline Aspelin visited at the G. Sanoden home last Thursday evening and helped Mr. Sanoden celebrate his birthday.

Many Cars Go Into Ditches

The icy condition of the highway here on Saturday was the cause of two automobiles going into ditches. While motoring here from Middle River Mr. and Mrs. August Peterson and daughter Maybelle spun around near the Hjalmer Peterson home and upset in the ditch. No one hurt and the car was only slightly damaged on the fenders.

Another car went into the ditch later when the driver skidded into the highway ditch near the Moberg farm a half mile from town. A party from Newfolden took a real turnover on the turn just south of Steiner and their car landed near the Great Northern tracks after hurtling the highway ditch. The car had the top caved in but the occupants were only shaken up a bit.

Visit The Local Skating Rink

Have you been down to the skating rink to see the youngsters skate? We now have some very good skaters and the Hockey teams too are good. Take a walk down there. Not only will it do your heart good to see the young people enjoying such fine sport but the old reliable "Fresh Air Tonic" will do you good. Then too, how about giving those who have had so much work and worry in getting the rink in such fine shape, a hand next time you see them?

Several people from here attended the hockey game at Thief River Falls on Tuesday evening.

Germany

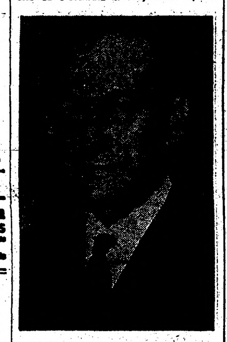
Two events on one bleak January day, one at tiny Munkacs, Hungary, the other at lofty Berchtesgaden, Germany, gave puzzled European observers the key to future plans of the Rome-Berlin axis. The events:

Berchtesgaden. To Adolf Hitler's Bavarian eyrie came another visitor, Poland's Foreign Minister Joseph Beck. Colonel Beck was frightened because: (1) Germany has shown outright hostility by fomenting revolt in Polish sections of the vast Ukraine; has been busy Nazifying Lithuania's Baltic seaport of Memel; has Nazified the free city of Danzig and made other threats at closing Poland's precious "corridor" to the Baltic; (2) because one of Poland's allies, France, refuses to help her in wartime; (3) because another ally, Russia, is far away and would be of questionable assistance.



POLAND'S COLONEL BECK
He sought and found security.

Colonel Beck left Berchtesgaden after discovering he had much in common with the master of Europe. Though unannounced, the conference results are quite discernible. Having been granted security at Germany's mercy, Poland will play an important role in the Reich's campaign to create a Ukrainian republic, also serving as a rear guard while Berlin turns its attentions to helping Friend Mussolini win Mediterranean territorial concessions from France. Poland will lead in forming a band of armed, neutral states from the Baltic to the Balkans, protecting Germany from Russia. Poland will permit a German railroad and highway from East Prussia to Germany proper, across the Polish corridor. Most important, Poland will probably lead in Pan-Ukrainian agitation, serving as a "front" nation for the Reich.

Munkacs. Bad blood has stood between Czechoslovakia and Hungary since last November 2, when a German-Italian commission remarked the southern boundary of Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) and gave added territory to Hungary. Unpopular with Germans and Czechs alike was one Italian demand, that strategic Munkacs be ceded to Hungary. Munkacs is a key city in Germany's plan for vast Carpatho-Ukrainian fortifications, slyly planned as a threat to keep Russia intimidated while the Reich turns its attentions to winning concessions from France and Great Britain, both for itself and Mussolini.

When Czech-Hungarian hostilities broke out at Munkacs, the inspiration was obvious. This time using Czechoslovakia for a "front," Hitler was stirring up trouble which will lead to a re-demarcation of the Czech-Hungarian frontier, bringing strategic Munkacs back into his power. This done, the Reich has only to placate little Hungary. Then the chain of pro-German states will extend from Baltic to Balkans.

These things happened just as British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain left for Rome, where observers expected him to make a deal with Mussolini. The probable deal: France would give Italy Suez canal rights and joint use of the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad. In return Italy would guarantee security for British shipping in the Mediterranean, also helping settle Britain's Palestine headache. But with Hitler once more turning his eyes westward, this could be interpreted as only the beginning. After helping Mussolini win his demands, the Reich will probably demand gigantic economic and financial concessions from the democracies, even going so far as to demand return of World war reparations. Mulling over these prospects, European democracies have good reason to fear 1939's eleven remaining months.

Races

Germany originally planned to finance deportation of Jews by making foreign powers buy her goods. The plan: Jewish emigrees would trade their money for—or be financed in the purchase of—German export products. This plan won little sympathy from either Britain or the U. S., but it at least offered a basis for negotiation by which the intergovernmental refugee committee could deal both with Germany and Italy. Since Italy's Jewish persecution is far less severe than Germany's, President Roosevelt contacted Premier Mussolini shortly after January 1, asking him to urge more leniency on Chancellor Hitler. Also suggested was the settling of Italian Jews (who must leave by February 1) in Ethiopia.

A week later, as Prime Minister Chamberlain left on his "appeasement" journey to Rome, it looked like President Roosevelt had inadvertently given the Rome-Berlin axis another weapon to hold over Democracy's head. Smart Mussolini, probably on advice from the even smarter Hitler, was willing to discuss the Roosevelt program with Mr. Chamberlain. Observers thought he would agree, but only if Mr. Chamberlain hastens French capitulation to Italian territorial claims. Meanwhile George Rublee, American director of the refugee committee, left for Berlin to negotiate with Hitler, apparently willing to consider a modification of the Reich's program to blackmail democracies into accepting unwanted Jews.

Interesting as a sidelight was the announcement of an Italian repatriation commission, whose duty is to make 10,000,000 racial Italians return from foreign countries, partly replacing the Jews now being ousted. But the drive's real purpose is to give Italy an uncomfortable surplus population, thereby backing her territorial claims in Africa.

Spain

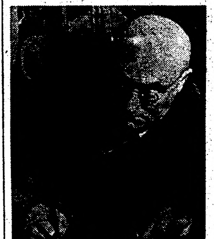
Just before Prime Minister Chamberlain left London for Rome (See GERMANY), Premier Mussolini sent orders to Spain's Rebel Generalissimo Francisco Franco. The orders: Start an immediate major offensive, aimed to show Mr. Chamberlain that Loyalist Spain is collapsing and should therefore be sold out.

Aided by Italian troops, also by Italian and German planes and guns, General Franco started driving into northeastern Catalonia two days before Christmas. A fortnight later his offensive was sprawled over a 100-mile front, creeping slowly and painstakingly toward the coastal city of Tarragona. Though he boasted 300,000 troops, though his attack resembled the World war's Verdun, the showing was still too unimpressive to make Mr. Chamberlain jump through a hoop.

What made matters worse was news from south central Estremadura, where Loyalist Gen. Jose Miaja's Loyalist army had made a spearhead advance of 50 miles in five days, capturing rich mining lands on which General Franco depended for buying war materials abroad. Thoroughly angry, Franco ordered removal of his famous "radio general," Gonzalo Queipo de Llano, famous for his lusty broadcasts from Seville. Then he took steps to protect the Loyalist objective, the Seville-Salamanca railroad which connects northern and southern Spain. The only Franco recourse seemed to be withdrawal of thoroughly tired troops from the Catalonia front, which undoubtedly meant a loss of the bloody gains Rebel Spain has made in that sector since Christmas.



GEN. JOSE MIAJA

Medicine

Bright and dark sides feature Surgeon General Thomas Parran's annual report on the nation's health:

Dark Side. Some 40,000,000 U. S. citizens cannot provide for medical care during serious illness. About 360,000 more hospital beds are needed. Only a few states have satisfactory programs against pneumonia and cancer; tuberculosis and malaria are also serious. Venereal disease control appropriations must be increased immediately.

Bright Side. Death rate fell from 11.3 per thousand in 1936 to 10.9 in 1937, then to 10.8 in 1938's first six months. Infant mortality fell from 57.1 per thousand live births in 1936 to 54.4 in 1937. Most contagious diseases are decreasing.

Chief causes of death in 1937 (as usual) were heart diseases, cancer and other malignant tumors, pneumonia, cerebral hemorrhage and softening, nephritis, accidents (except automobile) and tuberculosis.

C. Houston Goudiss Reports Some Current Knowledge of Vitamin G, a Substance Essential to Growth and Normal Nutrition

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

A NUMBER of the vitamins have been discussed in these columns from time to time. The latest findings of nutritional science have been related, together with suggestions made by outstanding authorities concerning the amounts of different vitamins required to help maintain top health.

So far vitamin G has not been discussed specifically. Yet a knowledge of some of the functions and sources of this vitamin should be possessed by every homemaker. For eminent authorities are of the opinion that it has a far-reaching influence upon health.

Possible Effects on Longevity

The avowed objectives of modern nutritional scientists are to help humanity to enjoy happier, healthier and longer lives. If any one vitamin could be said to have more influence than any other on longevity, the distinction most certainly would be accorded—so far as present knowledge is concerned—to vitamin G.

Extensive laboratory experiments by investigators who are paramount in their field seem to indicate that vitamin G has a pronounced effect upon the maintenance of health and vigor at all ages. It has been demonstrated with experimental animals that a diet containing more vitamin G than is required for normal growth resulted in greater vigor, a postponement of the onset of senility and a comparatively short period of the mental and physical infirmities we usually associate with old age.

Effect on Digestion and Nerves

Laboratory experiments have also indicated that when there is a shortage of vitamin G, digestion is usually impaired. In this respect, a shortage of vitamin G has a slightly different effect than a deficiency of vitamin B. A definite lack of vitamin B causes an abrupt and complete loss of appetite. Withholding vitamin G appears to affect the desire for food, so that experimental animals consume only about two-thirds as much as they would normally take.

A form of nervous depression may occur when the diet is low in vitamin G for any protracted length of time. Other unfortunate consequences may be a decline in the health of the skin. Studies with animals indicated that when the vitamin was withheld, not only did a loss of weight occur, but there were other signs of nutritional failure. These included an inflammation of the mouth, a loss of hair, a thickening and in some cases, a cracking and scaling, of the skin.

Vitamin G and Healthy Eyes

Studies with a variety of experimental animals resulted in the startling disclosure that on diets lacking vitamin G the health of the eyes was distinctly affected.

Not only was there a loss of hair around the eyes, but the eyeball developed a whitish appearance which was determined to be cataract.

At present, scientists are not prepared to say whether these laboratory findings may be confirmed clinically. But certainly when we know that in many ways, the food requirements of experimental animals are comparable to those in man, it would be distinctly to our advantage to make sure that we do not lack for adequate amounts of vitamin G.

Sources of Vitamin G

Because vitamin G is closely associated with vitamin B, some homemakers occasionally confuse the two. This is not surprising, inasmuch as it was some years following the initial recognition of vitamin B that scientists established beyond a doubt that there was more than one growth-promoting vitamin. Subsequently, they learned that while the substance, later named vitamin G, was frequently found in close association with vitamin B, such was not always the case. For example, vitamin G is known to occur without vitamin B in egg white.

Milk, Meat, Eggs, Greens

The richest sources of vitamin G are the concentrates of yeast, yeast extract and wheat germ. Almost equally well supplied with this vitamin are liver and kidney. Muscle cuts of meat contain vitamin G, but in lesser amounts than liver and kidney.

The vitamin is also found in young green plants, and it is interesting to note that the vitamin is formed during the growth of the plant and decreases with maturity. The amount of the vitamin has been found to vary with different parts of the same plant. In broccoli, the flower buds are said to contain only half as much as the leaves, while the stems contain even less. Among the greens, turnip tops and beet tops have been found to be unusually rich. Investigations indicate that weight for weight, they are twice as rich as eggs, though eggs are considered a good source.

Homemakers will be glad to learn that heating does not appear to destroy vitamin G. Canned foods are therefore as good a source as though they had not been processed.

Milk must not be overlooked. For all practical purposes, and chiefly because of the amounts in which it is consumed, it is probably our most important source of the G vitamin.

One thing is certain. Homemakers should strive—not for diets that are merely adequate in vitamin G . . . but for a surplus to help build high resistance. One authority has advised a ration that contains four times the amount considered absolutely necessary.

The surplus should help to provide a headstart toward the goal of buoyant health.

Lovely and Simple Designs

LONG winter evenings, when you're home a lot anyhow, offer a splendid time to get some sewing done. You'll enjoy it, when you use these simple designs, each accompanied by a step-by-step sew chart for the guidance of beginners. So start right now.

With Bias Skirt.

The swirling dress with bias skirt is fashion news—decidedly. It's so simple, and so lovely. The tiny waist, the square neckline, the puff sleeves and rippling skirt, all have the romantic charm of an old-fashioned portrait. Make this of flat crepe, silk print or thin wool and trim it with lace or embroidery. Both will be very smart for spring, when feminine fashions are all the rage.

Three Pretty Aprons.

This set will come in mighty handy when company drops in unexpectedly for meals, or when you serve refreshments to your club. Make several sets for gifts, too—bridge prizes, tokens for brides to be, and so on. All three of them fit exceptionally well, so that they protect your frocks without adding a bit of bulk. Each requires so little material that you can make them from remnants left over from house frocks and daytime cottons.

No. 1659 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material; 2⅛ yards of embroidery or lace banding.

No. 1595 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires: for No. 1, 1⅞ yards of 35-inch material with 6 yards of braid; for No. 2, 1½ yards of 35-inch material with 5¼ yards of braid; for No. 3, 1⅝ yards of 35-inch material, with 11 yards of braid.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Fringed Celery.—Celery looks much more attractive on the table when fringed. To fringe, cut celery into two inch lengths. Fringe each stalk within a quarter of an inch from the center. Put into ice water to which a slice of lemon has been added and let stand until ends are curled.

HOW TO RELIEVE COLDS

Simply Follow These Easy Directions to Ease the Pain and Discomfort and Sore Throat Accompanying Colds

1. To ease pain and discomfort and reduce fever take 2 Bayer Tablets—drink a glass of water. Repeat in 2 hours.

2. If throat is raw from cold, crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Tablets in ⅓ glass of water . . . gargle.

Try it. Then—see your doctor. He probably will tell you to continue with the Bayer Aspirin because it acts so fast to relieve discomforts of a cold. And to reduce fever.

This simple way, backed by scientific authority, has largely supplanted the use of strong medicines in easing cold symptoms. Perhaps the easiest, most effective way yet discovered. But make sure you get genuine BAYER Aspirin.

How to Curtain a Group of Windows

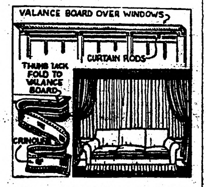
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I want to tell you how much practical help I have received from both of your books. I have been sewing for years but these books have explained many points that I never understood before. I am now planning new draperies to dress my living room up a bit. One group of three windows is especially difficult as the davenport has to be placed in front of them. Can you give me a suggestion? I think I would like a plain valance without gathers or pleats across the top. How should this be made and hung? I have just made a beige slipcover for the davenport with green pipings and bands.—A. D. W."



I would use plain cream colored glass curtains for all three windows and overdrapes at the ends only. A striped material in tones of tan and green and blue would be nice for the draperies with a narrow fringe edging in green and tan or green and blue. A valance board at the top of the windows is essential when a plain valance is used. This board should be four inches wide and ½ inch thick. It is screwed in place with L brackets. Ordinary metal curtain rods are placed just under it for the glass curtains and side drapes. The plain valance should be long enough to fit around the ends of the board and should be about six inches deep finished. It should be stiffened with an interlining of crinoline, and an allowance should be made at the top for a tuck or fold to be tacked to the board as shown. Be sure to save this lesson as it is not in either of the books offered below.

FARM TOPICS

HELP HENS BOOST WINTER EGG YIELD

Adequate Quarters, Rations Are Most Important.

By Dr. W. C. Thompson, Poultry Husbandman, New Jersey Experiment Station. WNU Service.

The old idea that high egg yields are unusual and difficult to obtain in winter has changed with the times. A yield of 50 per cent or greater is now a normal and requisite part of present day egg farming.

It has been firmly established that winter yields are partly a matter of inheritance of precocity, or early starting tendencies, partly a matter of surrounding well-bred birds with comfortable and adequate winter quarters, and partly a matter of furnishing those birds with well-balanced forcing rations. Winter season egg prices are generally relatively high and there is comparatively less competition from remote sections of the country. Poultrymen should attempt, therefore, to obtain high yields in this season. A more rigorous selection of the individuals housed and kept over winter is advisable. It is not a time when egg farmers can afford to keep boarders in their flocks, that is, hens which eat but do not lay. Adopt a high standard of quality for the layers now in winter quarters. Sell or eat the rest. Having done this, go over the laying quarters, making sure that they are clean, sanitary, draft-proof, comfortable, and that they provide sufficient room.

Crowded flocks are under a handicap. Uncomfortable birds rarely eat normally or lay heavily. Environment is an important factor in obtaining winter egg yields, particularly since outside weather conditions are so apt to fluctuate severely from day to day. The closer one can keep interior poultry house conditions normal, the better are the chances for prolonged, continuous, high egg yields.

Poultrymen must see to it that every layer has an unhindered opportunity to eat grain-mash and mash and drink water whenever she desires. Inadequate hopper and water fountain spaces and crowded conditions frequently make it impossible for otherwise good birds to perform satisfactorily as egg producers.

Greater Feeding Value In Dry-Rendered Tankage

Dry-rendered tankage is more palatable, has higher quality of protein and greater feeding value than wet-rendered tankage. It also has higher quality protein and greater feeding value than meat and bone scraps. Wet-rendered tankage and meat and bone scraps, however, may be fed satisfactorily by mixing them with vegetable protein supplements. Such additions do not improve the feeding value of dry-rendered tankage, says E. F. Ferrin, division of animal husbandry, University Farm, St. Paul.

When linseed oil meal or soybean meal furnish nutrients more cheaply than dry-rendered tankage, a mixture of 25 per cent dry-rendered tankage and 75 per cent linseed meal or soybean meal may be fed. It is advisable to feed a mineral supplement to supply calcium when such a high proportion of vegetable protein is fed.

Twilight for Hens

A new idea in artificial lighting for hens comes from Mr. and Mrs. William F. Ahlgrim, successful poultry keepers of Valparaiso, Ind., who have been turning out 500 eggs a day and selling them at top prices, according to Country Home magazine. The Ahlgrims use electric lights to prolong the feeding day, but found that suddenly turning them off on dark winter evenings made it difficult for the hens to find the roosts. Now they switch on first a string of dim lights which produce an artificial twilight. Ten or fifteen minutes later, after the hens have "retired," these lights are switched off.

"Take the ROAD TO THE RIGHT"

Yes . . . MODERATION is the safe and sure road to True Temperance!

And the beverage of Moderation is BEER . . . as centuries of experience among civilized nations have proved!

SO . . . because repeal of prohibition definitely shows that Americans desire, need, and will have a mildly stimulating beverage . . . let's be wise and take the ROAD OF MODERATION by adopting beer as our national beverage.

Many great educators, editors, physicians and temperance workers now hold this view. James Truslow Adams, eminent historian, has said: "I have found greatest temperance among beer-drinking nations."

And the late Henry Watterson, one of America's greatest editors, said: "The introduction of beer in America has done more for temperance than all the temperance societies and prohibition laws combined."

MODERATION in all things is the keynote of wise living. Enjoy good beer, the drink of moderation . . . help authorities to enforce the laws . . . and Minnesota will have order, contentment, and prosperity.

Here is another question in line with some of our safe driving habits, or should I say careless or thoughtless habits?

In approaching a "stop" sign posted at a boulevard or though street, may the driver just slow up his car?

Here is the correct answer: No A driver must stop and make certain that there are no cars approaching the intersection before he proceeds again. Drivers on a through street expect cars to stop at "stop" sign insersections.

No doubt you will say, "Why everyone knows that!" bnt how many persons follow it?

That's the rule. That is the courteous thing to do. Many drivers approach these "stop" signs at a fast rate of speed to give the drivers on through streets a thrill. This is not only very discourteous, it is very dangerous, because sometimes overstep the line and cause the driver on the through to lose control of his car and an acciden results.

Approaching through streets slowly and "stop."

Julius Borchert of Mentor, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Hanson of Milan, and Rev. and Mrs. Hanson were supper guests at the G. Sanoden home last Wednesday evening.

Personal Property Tax List

We are this week publishin the personal property lax list for 1938 for the Villages of Holt and Grygla and the nine townships in the southeast corner of the county.

The Marshall County State Bank is paying the highest personal property tax in the eastern end of the county. Through some way their name was left off of the list this time but, their bank is taxed $1,057.73. The tax of $7.36 which is listed against them in the list is for the fixtures in the barber shop which they also own. It appears that the State Tax Commission had not certified their bank tax until after the copy for publication was sent out and therefore would not receive it in time to include them in the published list.

Other high taxpayers in the village of Holt are Alton Carlson $358.40; Farmer's Co'op Cry, $253.29; C. H. Gunheim, $294.39; Interstate Power Co., $196.24 and Northern Seed and Grain Co. $105.54.

The highest personal property taxpayer in Holt Township is O. H. Nohre, with Olaf Halvorson, Ole Maakstad and Ole Larson next in line.

Barley Growers Meet Feb. 1

Ninety-seven Marshall County barley growers will have opportunity to study the market grades of their own barley samples and those of their neighbors at a barley school to be held over at Argyle on Wednesday, February 1st. Various factors determining quality and grade of barley such as threshing, variety, disease, and climate will be discussed with growers by W. W. Brookins, Extension Agronomist of the University Farm, and A. B. Cambs, Marketing Specialist of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Through the county agent's office farmers submitted samples of 1938 barley to Federal Grain Inspection officials for grading. These samples, with the grade attached, will be used at the barley school.

The information and discussion of local problems relating to the production and marketing of barley of acceptable grade will interest elevator managers as well. With farmers and elevator men studying the situation on common ground, it is expected that a mutual appreciation of barley problems will develop.

Farmers and elevator men alike are urged to set aside February 1 on their calender now in order that they may attend this school. Film strips, charts and other illustrative material will be used in addition to the graded barley samples.

Gets Highway Appointment

M. J. Hoffmann, chief bridge engineer in the Minnesota Highwaf Department since 1925' has been named Commissioner of Highways by Governor Harold E. Stassen.

Commissioner Hoffmann succeeds N. W. Elsderg, who resigned office Jan. 3 after being state highway commissioner since 1932.

Commissioner Hoffmann, who is 49, is a veteran in the Highway Department, having joined it in 1914. With the exception of a two year absence while in the service during the World War, he has continued with the department ever since. He is a graduate the University of Minnesosa and a resident of Saint Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Hanson, who had spent the past 2 months here, returned to their home at Milan on Sunday. They were accompanied by Rev. and Mrs. Hanson. Rev. Hanson left on Monday from there to St. Paul to attend the Convocation week at the Seminary there, while Mrs. Hanson is spending the week at Madison visiting her mother, Mrs. Martha Oppegaard.

Minnesota's Deepest Lake

The deepest lake thus far found in Minnesota is Lower La-Salle, seven miles north of Itasca Park, which measures 215 feet. Loon Lake on the Gunflint Trail is 298 feet, while Big Saganaga, a boundary lake, is 540 feet on the Canadian side, according to a Division of Game and Fish survey that has already covered over 1,000 of Minnesota's lakes, and including all those known or reported to be deep.

The lakes already surveyed have been mapped as to contous, depth, kind of bottom, and vegetation growths. The work is a part of the statewide survey and classification of lakes that is being carried on by the Division of Game and Fish of the Conservation Department, in cooperation with the University of Minnesota and various federal agencies, to determine a scientific basis for fish propagation and and distribution. Dr. Samuel Eddy of the University is in charge of the work.

Results of the survey show that there are seven different types of lakes in the state, which are classified according to the species of fish life for which they are best suited. Lakes studied are classified as: trout lakes, pike-bass lakes, two types of pike lakes, and river-lakes. The river-lakes contain both rough and game fish and have more kinds of fish than any other type of water in the state.

"With this scientific basis for planting fish where they will thrive, and an increase in the hatching facilities to nearly one and one-half billion fish annually we are determined to bring back an abundant supply of fish to Minnesota waters," says Conservation Commissioner Herman C. Wenzel.

Beckwith Sponsored Tax Bill

Representative H. S. Beckwith, our Marshall county member in the lower house of the legislature, is sponsoring a bill to continue the special state aid given school districts where lands have been taken over by the state department of rural credit.

The bill, introduced during the past week, provides that the state pay to each school district where lands were exempt because of this fact in 1937 and 1938 an amount equal to what they would have received if the lands were taxed. The bill contains provisions for an appropri of $200,000 to make these pays.

Shortage Of Seed Flax

A number of events indicate that there may be a considerable demand for flax seed for spring planting in 1939. The supply on farms probably will not be sufficient to meet the demand. The extension office is prepared to assist in making up a seed list on the available seed stocks on hand in this county.

In order to obtain this information, all farmers having seed flax for sale are requested to send to the various Smith-Hughes instructors in the county or to the county agent's office, their name and address, and the variety and number of bushels of flax which they have for sale.

A number of ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. C. L. Sandberg last Thursday afternoon and gave Mrs. Marvin Sandberg a birthday party.

Partridge Make Comeback

From all over the north country native habitat of the ruffed grouse or Minnesota partridge, come reports that the gamey bird is making a remarkable comeback after its rapid decline starting from a high point of popultation in about 1934 and '35 acoding to Harry E. Speakes, director of the division of game and fish.

"The natural phenomenon of the rise and fall in the population of wildlife is an unsolved mystery of the wild, and game managers are not agreed as to the cause of the decline of bird life after it reaches what is called a "saturation point". However, Minnesota partridges reached this point, and the fall in population was so rapid that after a year or two, very few of the birds were seen in any of their former haunts.

Some game managers are of opinion that regulated hunting seasons, with the length of the seasons and the bag limits determined according to the available supply, and thereby controlling the population so that it would never reach the saturation point, would prevent the rapid decline of birds after the high population point. Pennsylvania is carrying out this policy with satisfactory results.

The rabbit cycles have been studied for a long time, and the bird cycles seem to follow those of rabbits. Whether disease or predators are the major factor in the cycles has never been definitely determined.

Regardless of the causes of the cycles, Minnesota sportsmen are happy to see the return of the partridge to the fields, the woods and the swamps of the state.

FSA Made Many Farm Loans

During 1938, the Farm Security Administration made loans to 12 additional Marshall County farm families who were unable to secure adequate credit for livestock, feed, machinery and other necessary farm and home operation requirements, reports E. Clarence Weckwerth, FSA Acting Supervisor, Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Practical farm and home management plans providing for maximum production on the farm of the family's living supply as well as crop and livestock provide the greatest net cash income have been worked out by each FSA borrower and his wife, with the aid of the supervisor. All loans are based on plans designed to meet the individual family's needs and the type of farm operated.

As a productive farm, and satisfactory rental arrangements are among the primary requirements for a FSA loan, assistance in working out improved leases and rental agreements on a written basis, has been extended to all borrowers. These written agreements, designed to improve the relationship between landowners and renters not only contribute to the security and stability of the tenant, but at the same time aid in stimulating good farm management and soil conservation, Mr. Weckwerth said.

Progress of the 141 Marshall County farmers now operating under the FSA loaning program indicates that although they could not get credit elsewhere, the majority of these borrowers are regaining independence and repaying their loans.

Hagglund's Moved To Texas

Mr. and Mrs. Ben C. Hagglund left Friday for Pelly, Texas, where Mr. Hagglund has been offered a position with the Community Printing office there.

Mr. Hagglund has been employed as printer at the Tri-County Forum at Thief River Falls for the past several years.

Life Of Nels A. Fosen

Funeral service were conducted Tuesday, Jan. 10, for Nels A. Fosen, 68, of Holt former Litchfield resident, Rev. C. J. Field officiating. Interment was made in the Ness cemetery.

During the services Mrs. Lloyd Schnee and Rev. Field sang hymns. Pallbearers were Theodore Lien, Ed Kittelson, Louis Halvorson, Joseph Kaiser, Oscar Ness and Frank Olson.

Nels A. Fosen was born February 13, 1870. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Nelson Fosen, pioneer resident of Meeker County. His father was county treasurer for several years. He lived in Litchfield until 1905 when he moved to Holt where he operated a farm until three months ago. Because of poor health he moved to Moorhead to be with his sister, Mrs. G. O. Erickson and died there Thursday Jan. 5. Mrs. Charles Lindberg, his sister helped care for him during his illness.

Surviving are five sisters Mrs. L. M. Mortenson and Mrs. W. B. Carlson of Moorhead, Mrs. C. F. Larsen of Butte, Montana, Mrs. G. O. Erickson of Moorhead and Mrs. C. F. Lindberg of Litchfield

His brother Arthur (Jim) Fosen passed away Oct. 2, 1938.

In every line of activity nine-tenths of the prescription for success consists of plain, every-day, honest hard work.

No amount of talent will free a man from the necessity for hard work. You can have as much success as you like, but you've got to be willing to pay its price in the only coin that passes current in the market where success is sold—hard work.

Hard work alone will accomplish remarkable results. But hard work with method and system will perform seeming miracles.

Safe Winter Driving

Safe counsel for bad driving weather, according to police officials and safety engineers, is "when in doubt, use tire chains."

This warning was issued with winter driving conditions prevailing, following a recent revelation by the National Safety council which said: "One fifth of all the people killed in traffic accidents in the United States throughout the entire year die in November and December alone!" Police assert there is even a greater percentage of personal injuries and property damages directly traceable to snow and ice.

Because of the conceded safety advantage of tire chains on snow or ice, police and safety engineers this year are urging their use when necessary in the interest of public safety, and because they provide the most positive anti-skid and traction yet developed.

They have lived for 12 years in their completely equipped trailer, visiting Samoa, Africa, Canada, England, Norway, Sweden and Iceland. Mr. Allsop is a retired architect who worked and studied hard while he was young, according to his story, so that he and his wife might later indulge their wanderlust. # Star Dust

★ Pick of the New Crop

★ Kerrigan Still Leaving

By Virginia Vale

IF YOU don't believe that "Motion pictures are your best entertainment," but that only really good pictures can come under that heading, you'll be interested (I think) in knowing which ones an expert has selected as the best of the new crop.

The expert is W. G. Van Schmus, managing director of the Radio City Music Hall, in New York. Mr. Van Schmus is on a spot, always. Visitors to New York, as well as natives, troop to his theater. He can't let them go away saying that the show was good but why in the world did he select that picture to go with it!

Ushering in the new year with "Topper Takes a Trip," co-starring Constance Bennett and Roland Young, he picked "There's That Woman Again," (Melvyn Douglas and Virginia Bruce), to follow it. Then "Trade Winds," (Frederic March and Joan Bennett), "The Great man Votes," (John Barrymore, Virginia Weidler), "Gunga Din," (Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen, Douglas Fairbanks Jr.), "Made for Each Other," (co-starring Carole Lombard and James Stewart), "Love Affair," (with Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer), and "Stage Coach" (with Claire Trevor, John Wayen, Andy Devine, John Carradine, and Louise Platt).

Each film is scheduled for a week's run. The theater accommodates an audience of more than 6,000 persons; the picture is shown five times a day. It has to be good, you see!

Franchot Tone bobs up all over New York these days; leaving Hollywood certainly didn't mean leaving the limelight. He is appearing on the stage in a new play, doing a bit of radio work, and recently shared honors with Abe Lyman and Dick Foran as a celebrity at the first of the International Casino's "Sunday Night Informals," dedicated to celebrities.

FRANCHOT TONE

When J. M. Kerrigan arrived in Hollywood eight years ago he said that he'd stay long enough to play the film role he'd been engaged for and then he'd go back to Ireland. He was then one of the Abbey players. He's still in Hollywood, (a role in "The Great Man Votes" was the most recent bait), and still thinks that, as soon as he can get away, he'll go back to Ireland.

Edward Small is in favor of giving new people a chance in his pictures. It was he who brought Robert Donat to this country to appear in "The Count of Monte Cristo," and recently he made Louis Hayward a star in "The Duke of West Point." In his current production, "King of the Turf," starring Adolphe Menjou, it's 15-year-old Roger Daniel who gets the big break. With radio and stage tempting movie stars to lose interest in motion picture-making, it's a wise producer who can spot talent and cultivate it—and put it under contract!

By the way, in "The Duke of West Point" you'll see some old-timers—Mary MacLaren, William Bakewell and Kenneth Harlan.

All of the music that Frank R. White, organist on Dr. William L. Stidger's "Getting the Most Out of Life" program, writes for the Stidger hymns must stand up under Mrs. White's "24 hour test."

When he writes a new hymn tune Mrs. White plays it twice on the organ. Then if she's able to play it from memory the next day White feels sure that the public will remember the tune without any effort. But does he make allowances for the fact that Mrs. White probably has an unusual memory?

ODDS AND ENDS — Joan Fontaine can claim to be one girl in a thousand; the cast of "Gunga Din" numbers about 1,000, and she's the lone female in it . . . Gabriel Heatter has a private telephone number, but this host of "We, the People" gives it to so many friends that it might as well be in the phone book . . . Lum and Abner frequently telephone former neighbors in Arkansas in order to keep the right vocal inflections for their radio work . . . Richard Himber's commitments for this year include three different programs on the three different networks for three different sponsors.

Wait, Mother-Ask Your Doctor First
Never give your children unknown "Bargain" remedies to take unless you ask your doctor.
A mother may save a few pennies giving her children unknown preparations. But a child's life is precious beyond pennies. So—Ask your doctor before you give any remedy you don't know all about.
And when giving the common children's remedy, milk of magnesia, always ask for "Phillips'" Milk of Magnesia.
Because for three generations Phillips' has been favored by many physicians as a standard, reliable and proved preparation — marvelously gentle for youngsters.
Many children like Phillips' in the newer form — tiny peppermint-flavored tablets that chew like candy. Each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid Phillips.' 25¢ for a big box.
A bottle of Phillips' liquid Milk of Magnesia costs but 25¢. So—anyone can afford the genuine. Careful mothers ask for it by its full name "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Analyzes the Food Values of Nuts; Discusses Their Place in the Menu

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THERE is one food that can lay claim to being almost universal. It is eaten with relish by people in almost every quarter of the globe. It forms a main article of diet for the natives of some tropical countries, and is said to have been important in the dietary of early settlers in America. I refer to nuts.

Nuts, of course, are seeds. But unlike most other seeds used for food by man, they grow in a hard shell that does not open naturally when ripe. This forms a sealed package which makes nuts easy to store, and comparatively easy to keep.

A Concentrated Food

Nuts are a highly concentrated food and provide a large amount of food value in a small, convenient form. Once they are shelled, there is very little waste in using them. It has been suggested, therefore, that they might profitably appear in the daily menu far more frequently than they do.

There are many different kinds of nuts, and they vary in composition. Some of them contain large amounts of both protein and fat. Others contain a preponderance of fat, while a third group is starchy.

The protein of many nuts has been found to be rather similar to that in meat and fish. In fact, most nuts are classed as complete proteins, meaning that their protein is of a type which is capable both of supporting growth and repairing worn-out body tissue.

Comparison With Grains

Because they are somewhat similar in nutritional character, nuts have been compared to various grains. In regard to protein, however, they may be said to serve as a supplement to the proteins of some grains.

The high fuel value of many nuts is due to their fat content. Coconuts, pecans and walnuts are especially rich in fat, containing respectively 50.6 per cent, 70.5 per cent, and 64.4 per cent of fat. A few varieties, such as chestnuts and lichi nuts, so popular with the Chinese, are more notable for their carbohydrates. Like most starchy foods, chestnuts are improved by cooking, and therefore, are preferably roasted before eating. Fresh chestnuts contain a little over 42 per cent and dried chestnuts a little over 74 per cent of carbohydrates.

Mineral and Vitamin Values

The amount of mineral salts in nuts varies with the type. Generally speaking, however, nuts are considered a rich source of phosphorus and a good source of manganese and of copper and iron, required for the formation of the hemoglobin or red pigment in the blood.

Most nuts are considered a poor source of calcium; or at best only a fair source of this mineral which is required for helping to build teeth and bones. Two noted investigators, however, determined as a result of careful experiments, that in adults the calcium of almonds was fairly well utilized by the body. It is not as well utilized, however, as the calcium of milk.

Nuts are not regarded as a significant source of any vitamin except B, though some kinds have also been found to contain vitamin A. As they are frequently served in combination with fruits, however . . . in salads and as desserts . . . the fruit-nut combination usually supplies a substantial amount of minerals and vitamins.

Place in the Menu

Because of their content of protein and fat, nuts are frequently compared with meats and may be used interchangeably with meats. They make a splendid protein food to serve at lunch, supper or even dinner. They are especially good when combined with vegetables, or a carbohydrate food such as rice or noodles, and made into croquettes, patties, and casserole combinations that constitute a one-dish main course.

Nutritionists are of the opinion that nuts might well constitute a larger part of the American dietary . . . chiefly because they are such an economical source of protein and of energy values. Though they can be used for a main dish as an alternative to meat, it is not advisable to allow them to replace milk or eggs.

It is highly desirable, however, that homemakers and their families regard nuts as a food and not as a tidbit to be served at the end of a meal that is already nutritionally adequate.

Thorough Mastication Desirable

It is also important to encourage the thorough chewing of nuts, as this helps to make them more easily digestible. For children, nut butters are especially desirable. Some nuts are also prepared in the form of meal or pastes. In these forms it is not difficult for the digestive juices to penetrate them, and nuts may be considered as easily digestible as other foods of similar composition. Because they are highly concentrated, as we have seen, it is also advisable to include foods containing a generous amount of bulk or cellulose when nuts are included in a menu.

Smart Advance Fashions

THESE pretty dresses will be exactly as smart for spring as they are right now! So get a head start on your sewing for the coming season by making them while the winter weather is keeping you indoors so much anyhow. These designs are so easy to make that you'll enjoy working with them; a detailed sew chart is included for the guidance of beginners, and you will enjoy your clothes much more when the fabrics are of your own selections.

Blouse-With-Skirt Fashion.

Here's a smart design that you will repeat time and again in different fabrics for every season of the year. Blouse-with-skirt dresses, like all two-piece styles, are much in favor right now, and this one is unusually smart and becoming. The skirt flares from a lifted, princess waistline. The blouse, on classic shirtwaist lines, has bosom fullness and high-shouldered sleeves to make it more becoming. Make it for right now of flannel or wool crepe, and later on, in tie silk or flat crepe, or with a silk or cotton blouse and wool skirt.

Monastic Dress for Girls.

This is the success of the season—the most exciting of all new fashions—and it's the easiest thing in the world to make with the diagram. It hangs loose and straight from the shoulder yoke, and drapes into soft, graceful fullness when the belt is fastened round it. Every girl who wears 10-to-16 sizes should have this charming new fashion—in silk print, flat crepe or thin wool.

The Patterns.

1664 is designed for sizes, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14 requires 1¾ yards of 39 inch material for short-sleeved blouse; 2⅛ yards for long-sleeved. 2 yards of 54 inch material for the skirt.

1661 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. With short sleeves, size 12 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material; with long sleeves, 4 yards; ⅝ yards for contrasting collar and cuffs if desired 2½ yards of braid.

Fragrant Incense

When gratitude overflows the swelling heart, and breathes in free and uncorrupted praise for benefit received, propitious Heaven takes such acknowledgment as fragrant incense, and doubles all its blessings.—Lillo.

Constipated? You Should Get at the Cause!
Lots of people think they can't be "regular" without frequent trips to the medicine chest. "I just dose up and get it over," they tell you. But doctors know they don't "get it over" at all—until they get at the cause of the trouble!
Chances are it's simple to find the cause if you eat only what most people do—meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.
If that fits you, your ticket is a crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin $B_1$.
Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Quickly Memorized Squares

Use up those odd moments crocheting this square that you'll know by heart in no time. Six inches in string, an excellent size for cloths and spreads, it also lends itself effectively to many small accessories in finer cotton. Pattern 1849 contains directions for making the square; illustrations of it and of stitches; materials required; photograph of square.

Send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) for this pattern to The Sewing Circle, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Ave., New York, N. Y.

Sun Down, Accidents Up

When the sun goes down, traffic accidents go up. More than 60 per cent of all fatal traffic accidents occur at night, the National Safety Council reports. Since about a third of the driving is done at night, it estimates, the number of traffic deaths per mile is about three times as great at night as during the daytime.

In the past seven years, night accidents have increased 60 per cent in rural districts, the report says, and only 17 per cent in cities. Adequate lighting and divided highways tend to reduce headlight glare and accidents, the council said. Some states are experimenting with new reflector buttons placed along the side of the road to show the alignment of the highway on curves, hills and other hazardous places.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK. — Mushing along with Jim Titus, an old desert rat, about twenty miles southeast of Tonopah, many years ago, this scrivener was alarmed by the approach of what seemed to be a savage sandstorm. Old Jim, who seemed to know everything, reassured me.

Case-Hardened Diplomat, Ticket on Key Pittman

"It's that young feller Key Pittman. He's runnin' around in that big rattletrap automobile of his tryin' to get up a telephone company. Just kickin' up a dust—that's about all. No peace for anybody around here."

Mr. Pittman roared on through the greasewood, to set up his new telephone company, sluice a tidy little fortune out of that and sundry mining ventures, and to become chairman of the foreign relations committee of the United States senate. He backs up the President.

"Why shoot a man when you can starve him to death?" says Mr. Pittman, indorsing the hint of "financial sanctions" against world outlawry in the President's address. He readies his committee for action.

In Nome, Alaska, Mr. Pittman was a charter member of the Ornery Men's club, organized at Tex Rickard's bar. Years later, Ole Elliott, Tex Rickard's partner, reorganized the club in Tex's northern saloon in Goldfield. I believe Mr. Pittman's affiliations were with the Montezuma club, down the street, but he was a highly esteemed alumnus of the Alaska chapter and he found enthusiastic "sourdough" backing in his financial and political enterprises. Since 1913, Nevada has been sending him regularly to the senate.

He has been steadily against Japan—that is, against strong-arm Japanese trade and military aggression—and quite as fervently for silver. Well up in the headlines today is the conjecture that the President's new trade and credit militancy will move first in the direction of Japan.

Born in Mississippi, educated in Tennessee, practicing law in Seattle, Mr. Pittman landed in Dawson, Alaska, with a Canadian dime in his pocket. He manned a unilateral bucksaw for a few months before he was appointed district attorney. Jack London and Rex Beach found in him a rich pay streak of copy.

THE son of a Buffalo dock worker, one of nine children, who had seen labor wars in his youth and through his lifetime, has sought ways to end them, was influential in bringing about the truce in the New York taxicab strike. He is the Rev. Father John Peter Boland, chairman of the unique New York State Labor Relations board since June, 1937. During his incumbency, New York has attracted the attention of the nation in its industrial mediation.

Priest's Fight on Strikes Gets Eye of Nation

"Stop them before they get started" is his formula, as he quotes the pope's encyclical, advising priests to "go to the workingman." When he was appointed to his present post, he retired from his parishes of St. Lucy and St. Columba, with the blessing of his bishop, the Rev. John A. Duffy of Buffalo. He became profoundly interested in techniques of labor mediation while studying for the priesthood in Rome. He urges regular meetings between employers and employees and continuous and constructive effort, rather than emergency action when trouble comes.

◆

WHEN the young German immigrant, Max J. Kramer, landed in New York and slept on a park bench, he had no "Don't Disturb" sign. Hence a policeman wakened him by whacking his feet with a nightstick. It was really opportunity knocking. The policeman, who happened to speak German, steered him into a carpenter's job, and, before long, he was buying and building hotels with the facility of a child handling building blocks. That was the only time he ever slept out.

Opportunity, as a Cop, Knocked With Nightstick

Last May, his wife, Maria Kramer, bought the 30-story Hotel Lincoln for $7,000,000 cash, tooling it over into the black in less than six months. She is a linguist, has made a career as a fashion expert and interior decorator.

Mr. Kramer, who had $3.50 when he landed, built more than 500 tenements, and, in 1925, had more than $10,000,000 worth of buildings under construction.

HOW to SEW

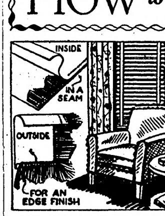
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS



"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: With the help of Book 1, I have just made a slip cover for a wing chair. I never would have tried it if your directions had not been so clear. I am now planning another slip cover and draperies which I would like to trim in fringe. Will you please show me with a sketch how I should sew the fringe? Also should the draperies and chair match?—M. J. N."

So here we have the sketches showing how to apply fringe in the seams of slip covers and also for an edge finish. The raw edge of the material in the lower sketch is turned to the right side and fringe is stitched over it.

If figured draperies are used, the best effect is obtained if not more than one slip cover in the room is of figured material. Plain slip covers may match one or more of the colors in draperies, rug or wall paper.

NOTE: Now is the time to give your house a fresh start. Crisp new curtains; a bright slip cover; a new lampshade; or ottoman will do the trick. Make these things yourself. Mrs. Spears' Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, shows you how with step by step, easy to follow sketches. Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, will give you a new interest for long winter evenings. It contains complete directions for making many useful things. Books are 25 cents each; if you order both books, Patchwork Quilt Leaflet is included free; it contains 36 authentic stitches illustrated in detail. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

The Sporting English

In few things have the Americans always differed from their English cousins as in sports. A young preacher, out hunting, sees another fall from his horse, but instead of stopping to render assistance the preacher cries out, "Lie still!" jumps his horse over him and pursues his sport. Nor is the fallen one vexed. On the contrary, he thinks the preacher has the right sporting instinct and did just the right thing to go on after the fox.

COST OF GROWING CROPS REDUCED BY SOIL KNOWLEDGE

Science Learns More About Chemistry of Land.

CHICAGO.—Restoring "sick" soils to fertility is a science that is increasing the yield of farm crops per acre and lowering the cost of production, according to a report made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"A century ago, man knew little more about the chemical composition of the soil and its relation to plant growth than was known in the time of Moses," says the report.

Study Soil Structure.

"Today knowledge of the soil is becoming a more exact science. Soil is no longer looked upon as a mass of mineral and organic matter that combines in some mysterious manner with rain and sunshine to produce the food we eat. It is regarded as a distinct body which has a form and composition of its own.

"The soil might also be likened to a warehouse in which are stored plant food and water available to growing crops. Plants draw on this supply of nutrients and water.

"If the supply of plant food is depleted or insufficient, the crops are underfed and the farmer harvests a poor and unprofitable yield.

Rebuild Fertility.

"Here is where science's knowledge of the soil aids the farmer to improve his land and rebuild its fertility. It is possible to test a given soil in a few minutes and learn a great deal about what its fertilizer needs may be.

"Not only in soil testing, but in the entire field of fertilizer use, progress is being constantly made. Farm machinery manufacturers are providing better machines for applying fertilizer. Soil scientists of universities and government departments, county agents and teachers are giving farmers up-to-date information on the best types of fertilizers to use. Experts in the laboratories of fertilizer manufacturers, through constant study and tests, are improving their product.

"Farmers generally recognize that the yield per acre of crops is the most important factor influencing the cost of production. Higher yields mean lower production costs. Thus they are becoming increasingly aware that the use of fertilizers is the most profitable means of increasing their crop yields per acre."

Safetygrams BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

Right here I am going to propose a change in the method of driving automobiles that may seem revolutionary. I should like to see the horn or other warning signals eliminated from every automobile, truck and motor vehicle. I recommend this as a safety measure.

No doubt there will be many arguments proposed against this recommendation on the belief that the horn is absolutely necessary to warn motorists and pedestrians of approaching car.

On the other hand, if you had no horn on your car, you would drive with extreme caution and in a safe manner. Rome tried it in certain sections of the city and found a big drop in automobile accidents.

Before criticizing this suggestion, think it over.

Mrs. G. Sanoden returned home Saturday after a few days visit with relatives at Mentor.

The agricultural college goes to the farmers, who study new methods of increasing yields, improving quality and reducing costs aboard a Farm Demonstration Train. This is one of the many ways in which the Great Northern Railway cooperates with agricultural interests in its territory.

You'll Miss One Answer!

How important is the Great Northern Railway to you?

Your answer probably will have something to do with your need for railway transportation.

Or you may realize how important are the taxes the Great Northern pays. In Minnesota, the gross earnings taxes paid by the Great Northern for 1937 were $1,796,474—$5 out of every $100 the railroad received for transportation services within the state.

Another answer you might make would be the importance of the payrolls and purchases of the Great Northern.

But the answer you probably have overlooked altogether, relates to services which match any of these in importance, and which no other kind of transportation gives you.

● It is what the Great Northern does to help you get bigger yields per acre, at less cost. To raise products that will bring greater returns. To find new markets for what you raise. To help you get better prices.

● It is what the Great Northern does to encourage methods of farming that are best adapted to conditions in your territory. To help you contend against crop pests, weeds, droughts, and other adversities.

● To establish new industries—sugar beet factories, canneries, etc.—which will increase your income.

These and numerous similar activities are carried on by our Agricultural and Development Department. At a cost which runs in excess of $100,000 a year, the Great Northern maintains a staff of agricultural and development experts whose sole job is to help you.

For the transportation of what you produce, the Great Northern must compete with forms of transportation that are distinctly favored with direct and indirect subsidies and exempted from comparable regulation and taxation, but in this constructive business of helping you, your railroad has no competition from these sources.

Issued Weekly From The Home Of The Biggest Co-operative Creamery In Marshall County

H. O. Hanson, Publisher; Mrs. Mabel Hanson, Editor & Bus. Mgr. Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota, Friday, Feb. 3, 1939. Volume 28, Number 40.

Appointed Land Use Man

The appointment of Mr. A. D. Wilson, veteran agricultural authorithy and a dirt farmer in his own rigth, as land use planning specialist to work with county agricultural agents in the forest region of Minnesota, is hailed by officials of the state conservation department as a step holding "major promise" for the development of a constructive land use and conservation program for the cutover region.

"The development of a constructive conservation program on lands unsuited or unneeded for farm use first requires that somebody decide definitely which lands are in this class and which should be developed for farming. This job should be done by local people themselves with the aid and advice of land use, farming, and forestry specialist", says Herman C. Wenzel, Conservation Commissioner.

"Agricultural Extension Director, Paul E. Miller, could not have made a better choice, in my judgement, than that of A. D. Wilson, to take the lead in the work through county agricultural agents, Mr. Wilson is known as a man who thoroughly understands northern Minnesota land use problems, and is practical in his approach. His work as director of the Beltrami Island and Pine Island settler relocation projects of the federal government during the past several years has made his name familiar to people throughout the state", says Wenzel.

Mrs. Nyval Given Shower

Mrs. Robert Nyval (nee Gertrude Voth) bride of a few weeks, was guest of honor at a shower given Saturday afternoon at the Fred Stienhauer home. About 50 friends and relatives were present. The afternoon was spent in a social way and lunch was served. Mrs. Nyval was presented with many lovely shower gifts.

Winter Shows Next Week

The Northwest School Farmers' Week and Red River Valley Winter Shows will be held at Crookston next week, February 6 - 10. T. M. McCall, President of the Board of Managers, states that committees have everything arranged for the contests, educational programs, and evening meeting. Advance reports from the officers of the cooperating organizations indicate that a program of more than usual interest will be presented at the 1939 show.

The Northwestern Minnesota Singers' Association will depart from tradition by giving their concert on the opening night, February 7, instead of Friday night as in previous years. The male chorus will be augmented this year with outstanding women's chorus groups from the Red River Valley counties.

Sunnyside School Notes

That the girls were cheerful losers in the Christmas Seal drive showed by the fine party they gave the boys Friday afternoon. Games were played, thank you letters were distributed by Donald Larson acting as postmaster while Milton Conklin and Kenton Anderson were mail carriers after which cake, sandwiches, fruit salad, cookies, nectar and homemade cake was served by the girls.

Dolores Larson had the misfortune of spraining her ankle while skiing Friday noon.

Joann Benitt had 100 in Spelling last week.

County Superintendent Thora Skomedahl called at our school Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Alfred Larson and Lois visited with Mrs. Peterson at the schoolhouse Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Furr and Hazel visited at the Leonard Swan home Sunday afternoon.

Norman Peterson and sons and Lloyd Larson visited at the Alfred Larson home Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Johnny Nelson visited at the Ludvig Monson home last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Melvin Larson spent the week end at the Ole Larson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Rodahl visited at the Art Conklin's Saturday evening.

Ed Furr's called at the Conklin home Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Larson and family visited at the Henry Nohre home Sunday evening.

Little Twin Boy Called Home

The people of this community were saddened to hear of the death of one of the twin boys of Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Peterson on Monday evening. The twins were taken sick over the week end with pneumonia and were rushed to the St. Lukes hospital at Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Peterson are spending the week at the hospital with the remaining twin who is at this writing improving from his ailment.

David Richard Peterson was born August 4, 1938, and would have been six months old this week end. Funeral services are being conducted today from the Nazareth Lutheran church with Rev. Hanson offiiating.

Cardboard Windows Ruled Out

Orders have gone out to the Highway patrol of the Minnesota Highway department to stop all drivers who operate motor vehicles where broken windows have been replaced with cardboard or other opaque materials.

The Uniform Traffic Law requires that windshields and windows be such as not to obstruct driving vision. Replacements must be made with safety glass. W. F. Rosenwald, traffic engineer. urges persons using cardboard and the like for car windows to consider their own and public safety and to immediately repair with the proper type glass.

The Weather

The weather the fore part of this week was on the stormy order. We have had a lot of snow and wind.

Many of the eastern sections of the United States had the heaviest snowfall they have ever recorded. In one of the New England states they had 37 inches of new snow in one snowfall. Chicago had the most there in eight years. In fact the entire mid-west had a heavy snowfall this week. Some say this will make away with the drought for 1939 and that crop conditions will be good.

Pioneer School Notes

School opened again Monday after a four week's Christmas vacation. A few have been absent because of the measels, otherwise we have had good attendance.

Miss Thora Skomedahl visited our school on Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Plymire gave the pupils health charts and soap samples on Tuesday. They have started their health contest. We all want to get gold stars for being clean.

Mr. Tweten was an afternoon visitor on Monday.

We have been busy in Art class making valentines.

We also have made Washington decorations for the windows.

Disastrous Peace Treaty

The treaty of Cateau Cambresis, 1559, following the battle of Gravelines, was called the Disastrous Peace treaty. It was signed by France, Spain and England, and by it France ceded the Low Countries to Spain, and Savoy, Corsica, and 200 forts to Italy.

Farmers Meet Here Feb. 10

Several meetings at which the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program will be discussed with Marshall County farmers are being held during the next two weeks throughout the county.

In its entirety the 1939 program differs little from the 1938 program, although there are various administrative rulings, crop classifications, payments, deductions and definitions which have been changed materially. These points will be discussed and explained.

The meetings scheduled here for the farmers will be held at Holt on Friday, Feb. 10 at 10:00 o'clock a. m.

TREE OF LIFE

NEW YORK—This is a picture of a 60-foot statue being carved from an elm tree at South Windsor, Conn., by Lawrence Tenney Stevens. It will symbolize a great ethereal spirit and, with two smaller companion pieces representing man and woman, will be placed in a plaza at the New York World's Fair 1939.

The Stockholders of the Farmers Cooperative Creamery here will hold their annual meeting here on Thursday next week. At that time they will elect two directors to the creamery board, hear reports, and transact other business.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Horien and family visited at the Walter Wegge home Friday evening.

Old Time DANCE at HOLT on Sat. Nite, Feb. 11

Cash award will be given to couple holding out in Marathon Polka Dance

Every ticket will have a chance on a cash purse.

Life Of Mrs. John Olberg

Funeral services were conducted from the Thief Lake church Thursday afternoon, Rev. P. B. Trelstad officiating, for Mrs. John Olberg, pioneer woman of Whiteford township.

Anna Tufte was born November 26, 1871 at Lordahl, Prestjel, Norway.

In 1885 she immigrated with her parents Agrim and Anna Tufte to America. They settled at Northfield, Minnesota.

She was confirmed at the age of 14 at Holden church by Rev. Kildahl at Northfieid.

November 8, 1890 she was united in marriage to John Olberg in Little Norway church at Fertile, Minn.

They resided at Woodside near Fertile until 1902, at which time they moved to Middle River Minnesota, Whiteford township, where she remained until her death Saturday Jan. 21st at 1:00 o'clock.

She is survived by her husband and ten children, namely: Mrs. Sophie Kolden, Thief River Falls; Mrs. Richard Neprud, Flandreau, So. Dak.; Mrs. Lewis Evans, Longview, Washington; Mrs. Jul Kilen. Middle River; Mary Olberg, Gary; Adolph, Clarence, John, Arthur, and Walter at home.

One sister, Mrs. Susie Tweten, Kelliher; One brother, Peter Tufte, Grand Forks; nineteen grand children and one great grand child.

Interment was made in the Thief Lake cemetery.

In memory of Mrs. Olberg the following was contributed to the missions:

| | |
|---|---|
| Mr. Olberg and children | $5.00 |
| Albert Knutson, Gary, | 2.00 |
| Mrs. Tweten and children | 5.00 |
| Ladies Aid | 5.00 |

Mrs. Olberg was highly respected by all who knew her and had an active part in church work in her community. A grand pioneer who with her husband has suffered the hardships of pioneer life and came through a conqueror of it all.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Sanoden visited at the H. O. Hanson home Friday evening.

Brita Saim Passed Away

Mrs. Brita Seim, pioneer resident of this community since 1913, passed away on Wednesday morning at the farm home of her son Martin, with whom she has always made her home. Mrs. Seim was about 75 years old.

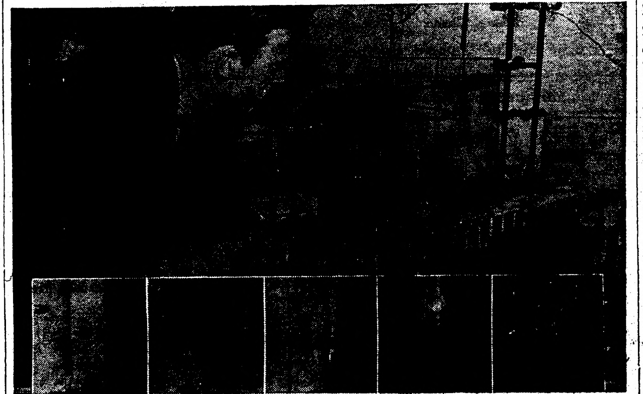
Super Speed Pictures Show Bullet in Flight



Extremely rapid photographs, taken at one-millionth of a second, were demonstrated recently by Dr. F. W. Godwin of the Armour Institute of Technology. The process of photographing a bullet in flight (inset) as it breaks through a pane of glass was accomplished by shooting the bullet so that it passes just below two poles of a spark gap; the gases from the firing of the bullet trail the missile, thus setting off the spark gap, which in turn causes a discharge of 38,000 volts in a partial vacuum, for the necessary illumination. An ordinary miniature camera was used in the experiment.

Treasury

In 1934 congress gave President Roosevelt two broad monetary powers. Under one he could reduce the dollar's gold content by 50 per cent, though since 1934 the rate has been 59.06 per cent. Under the other power the President created a currency stabilization fund with increment accruing from the government's revaluation of gold holdings. Originally estimated at $2,000,000,000, the fund is used to protect the dollar's value on international exchange, preventing undue fluctuations.

Both powers expire June 30 and the White House has already asked that they be renewed until the current presidential term expires January 15, 1941. Although lawmakers consider neither grant dangerous, the mere fact that gold devaluation and the stabilization fund are "powers" is enough to make this year's fiery-eyed congress balk.

Biggest opposition will grow out of the treasury's refusal to divulge even the size of the stabilization fund, the two-billion-dollar figure being only a guess. Though softened by well-substantiated reports that the government made about $6,000,000 profit on the fund last year, Michigan's Sen. Arthur Vandenburg is expected to demand a full public accounting before voting to continue the President's power.

Taxation

Two former U. S. treasury secretaries, Andrew W. Mellon and Ogden L. Mills, condemned the inequity of tax exempt federal, state and local bonds. Since his "soak-the-rich" revenue proposal of 1935, President Roosevelt has fought tax exempt securities and one other unpopular exemption, that on federal, state and local employees' salaries. If these exemptions could be abolished the U. S. government figures it would net eventually $300,000,000 annually from government securities, plus $16,000,000 from employees' income taxes.

One day before the President offered this program to congress in a special message, he sent Treasury Undersecretary John W. Hanes to pave the way before a special senate committee. Said Mr. Hanes: "The time for action has come."

The Constitution's Sixteenth amendment gives congress power to "lay and collect taxes on incomes from whatever source derived," therefore the administration thinks statutory enactment rather than constitutional amendment will suffice. Later, after congress has spoken, the courts can decide whether its action is constitutional. Argued Mr. Hanes:

Tax exempt securities now permit many large-income persons to escape income taxes entirely, therefore they are unfair. The $65,000,000,000 in tax exempt securities now outstanding (of which some $50,000,000,000 would be taxable) is so formidable that it discourages investment in private enterprises involving risk. Thus industry cannot compete. As for income tax exemptions, the U. S. Supreme court has already set a precedent by ruling that salaries of such quasi-public agencies as the Port of New York authority are subject to federal taxation.

As might be expected, state and local groups jumped into the fight overnight. Argued the Conference of State Defense: Tax yield would not approach the immediate treasury estimate of $70,000,000 a year. Moreover it would work hardship on states and municipalities by increasing financing costs. The statutory procedure would be unconstitutional. Most important, once congress' power to tax income of state and local securities has been established, a situation could arise in which congress would attempt to tax state revenues. Argued the U. S. Conference of Mayors, in a similar vein: Federal and state governments may recoup from income taxes the higher costs to municipalities in interest on their bonds.

TREASURY'S HANES
"The time for action has come."

Observers thought income tax exemption could be repealed easily, but were less confident about tax exempt securities.

People

In Rome, Premier Benito Mussolini happily announced that 1,031,000 Italian babies were born in 1938, an increase of from 22.7 per thousand in 1937 to 23.6.

● In Paris, the duke and duchess of Windsor moved into their modest new home, leased for two years.

SAFETY TALKS

Crossing the Road

HERE'S the modern counterpart of the ancient chicken poser:

Why does a pedestrian cross the road—at the wrong places and without looking?

That's what the National Safety council is trying to find out after an examination of its records which proved that at least a third of the pedestrians killed in rural areas and 40 per cent of those killed in cities were crossing at places other than intersections.

In 1937, the loss of life from these classifications mounted over the 5,600 mark.

Knitted Rag Rug to Make in Soft Colors

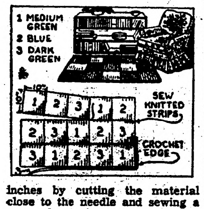
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

HERE is news for those who have been writing me for more rag rug designs. A special Rug Leaflet has been prepared for you. It will be included free upon request with your order for the two books offered herewith. If you already have these two useful books, send 6 cents in stamps for the Rug Leaflet.

Wooden knitting needles ⅜-inch in diameter are used for this rug. Cut or tear the rags ¾-inch wide and knit them in strips 10 inches wide, changing colors every 10 inches by cutting the material close to the needle and sewing a new color to it.



When three strips have been knitted with the colors arranged as shown here, sew them together on the wrong side with heavy carpet thread. Use a crochet hook of about the same size as the knitting needles for the edge of single crochet.

NOTE: Be your own decorator. Make new draperies; curtains; slipcovers; bedspreads and dozens of other things for every room. Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book No. 1—"SEWING, for the Home Decorator," shows you exactly how, with step-by-step illustrations. Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, shows you how to make fascinating things from odds and ends and will save its cost many times. Books are 25 cents each; if you order both books, the Rug Leaflet is included FREE. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Star Dust

★ Smart Claire Trevor
★ The Beadle Is a Fox!
★ Marg Wins Over Dad

By Virginia Vale

CLAIRE TREVOR'S experience shows plainly that it's a wise movie actress who has a radio contract up her sleeve. If she hadn't all signed and sealed for that "Big Town" program with Edward G. Robinson she might still be making B pictures for 20th Century-Fox.

That's what she was doing when she was given the rather small role of "Francie" in "Dead End," the Goldwyn picture. She played it magnificently, everybody raved about her performance—and then she went back to her own studio, and into B pictures again.

She couldn't persuade Darryl Zanuck that she ought to break away from the type of thing that she had been doing for his company. So, last May, she stepped out. She was convinced that, as a free lance, she could get the kind of picture work that she wanted. If she couldn't, she'd do without it. After all, there was always that radio salary, rolling right in!

One thing that she wanted, and got, was the leading feminine role in "Stage Coach." One thing that she didn't want, and didn't take, was a long contract with Warner Brothers. One more thing that she wanted very much and took was marriage, last July, to Clark Andrews. He directs that radio program that has played such an important part in her life.

Cary Grant

Ever since they told Cary Grant that he'd be the beadle on that new radio show entitled "The Circle" he's been asking other people if they knew what it meant. He does (he looked it up immediately,) but he's gauging other people's intelligence by their replies. First he queried the other star performers on the program — Ronald Colman, Carole Lombard, Lawrence Tibbett, Groucho and Chico Marx and Robert Emmett Dolan. His private quiz program brought out an amazing amount of misinformation. One girl said a beadle was something that hung on a necklace. And everyone was disappointed when they heard that a beadle is just a herald.

Hal Roach has given his daughter, Margaret, a full-fledged dramatic role in "Captain Fury." That marks a victory for 17-year-old Margaret. Her father didn't want her to be an actress, so she went out and got minor roles in pictures made by other producers. She also sang in a night club. He finally gave in, and now she is happy, and all set to play an Australian settler's daughter who provides romance for John Warburton in the picture.

From Jean Hersholt, who is president of the Motion Picture Relief fund, comes a story on the "Screen Guild Show," which is broadcast by CBS every Sunday 7:30 to 8:00 p. m. eastern standard time. Practically all of Hollywood's famous folk, as well as many of those behind the scenes, are contributing their services to it.

They receive no salaries for their work. The money which ordinarily would go to the artists, writers, producers and technicians is turned over to the Motion Picture Relief fund. It will be used to build a home for the aged and needy of the motion picture industry.

Be sure to listen to this program if you want to hear your favorite screen stars; they are all booked to appear sooner or later.

Nelson Eddy

Nelson Eddy, whose marriage to Mrs. Ann D. Franklin, former wife of Sidney Franklin, motion picture producer, recently came as a surprise to studio officials, is taking a vacation from that coffee program. That is, if you call making a concert tour taking a vacation! He will return to it later in the year.

While he is gone Donald Dickson takes his place. He made several appearances on the program last season. Dickson is one of the few important singers who have come to the top by the radio route. He was singing regularly on a radio program when he was signed by the Metropolitan Opera company; before that he sang in local operatic productions in Cleveland, Ohio.

ODDS AND ENDS—The latest Cinderella story from Hollywood concerns young Dana Andrews, a lad from Texas . . . It's said that Samuel Goldwyn discovered him when he was piping gas and wiping windshields at a service station not far from Hollywood . . . James Ellison has been ordered to grow a beard for "Picardy Max," and his wife would like to use one of his razors on the man who cast him for the picture.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Touches Upon the Food Values of Fish and Shellfish; Shows How They Can Help to Improve Nutritive Quality of the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

A PRESENT-DAY nutritionist might easily quarrel with the traditional distinction between fish, flesh and fowl. For the flesh of fish, cattle, swine, sheep and poultry is commonly referred to as "meat;" and the nutritive values of all these foods properly may be considered together. Their composition is very similar, consisting principally of protein, water and fat, with the chief variation occurring in the fat content. They also average about one per cent of minerals and contain some of the vitamins in varying amounts.

Fish vs. Other Flesh Foods

There is a wide variation among the different kinds of fish in the amount of fat they contain. In general, fish have less fat and more water than other forms of meat. Their tissue fibers are also shorter, which makes for ease of digestion. In many cases, their flavor is less pronounced because there are fewer extractives. For this reason, fish is considered less stimulating, and that is also why it is often served with some sort of sauce, or with a lemon garnish to point up the flavor.

The proteins of fish are regarded as equally useful with other forms of meat for helping to build and repair body tissues. Most lean fish are richer in minerals than fatty fish; in this respect, they resemble lean meats.

Salt water fish are notable as a source of iodine, required for the proper functioning of the thyroid gland. It is desirable that this mineral be included in the dietary to help prevent simple goiter.

The Cattle of the Sea

The most significant difference between fish and most other flesh foods is that with the exception of certain shellfish which are produced under government regulation, "crops" from the sea are neither planted by man, nor cultivated by him.

Unlike the farmer or the cattle man, the fisherman gathers his "harvest" without the previous effort of sowing seeds or cultivating plants; without the necessity of providing shelter or fodder.

To a man or woman who has never enjoyed the experience of catching fish for dinner, the sea may suggest nothing but an expanse of blue-green water. But to those who are familiar with the habits of its denizens, the sea is a fascinating place . . . teeming with life. It contains many forms of vegetable materials, of which seaweed is the best known. These provide food for the lower forms of animal life which inhabit the waters. They, in turn, are eaten by larger creatures. In the final analysis, all forms of animal life in the sea, as on land, are dependent for their sustenance upon the sun, which stores up energy in green plants.

Fish as a Source of Vitamin D

The sun is concerned, too, with the production of vitamin D, as it is by means of sunshine that our best source becomes available. Fish liver oils are the richest natural sources of vitamin D. This vitamin is necessary for the proper utilization of calcium and phosphorus in building strong bones and sound teeth. We prize highly the liver oils of the cod, halibut, salmon, swordfish and tuna for their fine amount of this precious vitamin.

The body oils of certain fish are also valued for their vitamin D. Some varieties that are notable in this respect are salmon, herring and sardines. It is agreeable as well as economical to obtain vitamin D by serving seafood, because fish supplies so many other valuable nutrients at the same time.

Fish Is Universally Available

There are perhaps more varieties of fish than any other type of first-class protein food. A government bulletin has listed 40 kinds besides smoked and salted fish and the various shellfish.

Thus the use of fish provides ample opportunities for varying the menu. Moreover, though fish is more perishable than other flesh foods, it is available today in every town and hamlet, however remote from the waterways.

No matter where she lives, the homemaker can choose from a wide variety of canned, dried, smoked, salted and quick-frozen fish. And both transportation and refrigeration have been so improved that fresh-caught fish are distributed far inland.

The quick-frozen fish should be handled as carefully as fresh fish, kept under refrigeration, and used within a reasonable time after purchasing. Canned fish, naturally, requires no refrigeration, and a supply can always be kept on hand both for everyday use and for emergencies.

The most important canned fish, in terms of the amounts packed and sold, is salmon. This flavorsome fish is an excellent and economical protein food which is also notable for its energy value; its calcium, phosphorus and iodine; and as a source of vitamins A and D. Other canned seafoods that are sold in volume include tuna, sardines, shrimp and clams. Canned crab and lobster meats and oysters are also to be found upon the shelves of most grocers, together with other varieties of seafood, some packed in tomato sauce.

When using canned salmon and other kinds of fish that have been put into the cans before cooking, it is advisable to conserve the juices which cooked out during the sterilization process, as these contain valuable nutrients.

Varieties of Shellfish

Clams, oysters, shrimp and scallops differ somewhat from other forms of seafood, chiefly in that they contain some carbohydrates. They have very little fat. Oysters are rich in iodine and they might be compared to the glandular organs, such as liver and kidney, as a source of three vitamins, A, B and G.

Place of Fish in the Diet

The most important contribution of all forms of fish is their proteins, which as we have seen may be used interchangeably with those of beef, pork, lamb, veal and poultry. The iodine of seafoods and shellfish is also extremely important, and in some varieties, the content of vitamins A and D. The more fatty fish, including mackerel, salmon, eels, herring, catfish and shad are comparatively rich in energy values. The fuel value of cod, flounder, perch, smelts and haddock, which are low in fat, and halibut and whitefish which have a moderate amount, may be increased through the use of a rich sauce, or they may be cooked in fat.

Taking into consideration its food values and economy, and when the preserved forms are utilized, its ease of preparation, the homemaker who desires to feed her family well should serve fish or shellfish, in some form, much oftener than once each week!

The President's Salary

The salary of the President of the United States is set by law at $75,000 a year with an additional $25,000 for traveling expenses. The wife of the President is allowed $25,000 a year for housekeeping expenses and can usually obtain further appropriation if more is needed. The government pays the salaries of head butler, housekeeper, valet and wife's secretary. The President's wife has at her call several young officers of the army and navy, known as social aides.

Wonderful "suds-booster"
in New 1940 Rinso — added at no extra cost to you!
THE New 1940 Rinso contains a marvelous "suds-booster" that makes it give far richer suds in hardest water. A few years ago we couldn't have added this wonderful ingredient to Rinso without increasing Rinso's price. We predicted that we could give it to you by 1940. But today the price of this amazing ingredient has been so reduced that we've been able to add it to Rinso a year ahead of time—at no extra cost to you.
In tub washing, Rinso's lively, long-lasting suds soak out dirt—quickly and safely—without hard scrubbing or boiling. Clothes last longer washed this safe, gentle "no scrub" way. The New 1940 Rinso is recommended by the makers of 33 famous washers. Rinso is America's biggest-selling package soap. Try it—and see why. Get the big economical household package today.

Safetygrams

BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

Here are some suggestions for driving that should help to prevent accidents and bring you safely to your destination;

1. Before starting on a trip check the condition of tires, horn mirror, brakes, lights, and windshield wiper. Make this a habit.
2. Have any mechanical trouble fixed. Do not drive with makeshift repairs.
3. Abide all signs and signals.
4. Never pass vehicle on a blind curve or when approaching the crest of a hill and especially not at an intersection.
5. Even if you have the right of way, give the other driver plenty of room at intersectins. He may need it!
6. When there is a choice between speed and safety, choose safety every time.

Mrs. C. Hagglund, Morlan and Arthur Kolden attended the funeral services at Thief Lake last Thursday.

PACIFIC FIR GOES TO NEW YORK FAIR

NEW YORK (Special).—"Good old Douglas fir" from the Pacific Northwest will provide the foundations for the most spectacular of wonders at the New York World's Fair of 1939.

This was learned when the Fair Corporation offices in the Empire State building announced the purchase of more than $100,000 worth of fir pilings from the National Pole Treating Company. This particular lot of fir sticks will be driven into the ash fill of the 1216½-acre exposition site to guarantee the support of the two unique structures forming the Theme Centre of the "Nation's Fair." These are the 200-foot Perisphere, a globe seemingly supported on the waters of fountains, and the Trylon, a 700-foot triangular needle or beacon and broadcasting tower.

Shipments of the 1280 sticks, 95 to 90 feet in length, are taking place this month, after creosote treatment has been accorded them either at the National Pole and Treating Company's plant at Hillyard, Washington, or at the Minneapolis yards.

This is the Fair's second purchase of fir from Northwest sources. An order for 770 sticks of similar length was filled early this year from Oregon cuttings. This earlier shipment of piling supports the Fair's $900,000 Administration Building already erected on the grounds.

Banks Hold the Bag

Nearly 60 per cent of the national debt of $34,500,000,000 is owed to the banks of the nation. According to Senator Glass, a drop of ten per cent in the price of government bonds would put 90 per cent of the banks out of business. He says the New Deal forces the banks to buy.

The agricultural college goes to the farmers, who study new methods of increasing yields, improving quality and reducing costs aboard a Farm Demonstration Train. This is one of the many ways in which the Great Northern Railway cooperates with agricultural interests in its territory.

You'll Miss One Answer!

How important is the Great Northern Railway to you?

Your answer probably will have something to do with your need for railway transportation.

Or you may realize how important are the taxes the Great Northern pays. In Minnesota, the gross earnings taxes paid by the Great Northern for 1937 were $1,796,474—$5 out of every $100 the railroad received for transportation services within the state.

Another answer you might make would be the importance of the payrolls and purchases of the Great Northern.

But the answer you probably have overlooked altogether, relates to services which match any of these in importance, and which no other kind of transportation gives you.

● It is what the Great Northern does to help you get bigger yields per acre, at less cost. To raise products that will bring greater returns. To find new markets for what you raise. To help you get better prices.

● It is what the Great Northern does to encourage methods of farming that are best adapted to conditions in your territory. To help you contend against crop pests, weeds, droughts, and other adversities.

● To establish new industries—sugar beet factories, canneries, etc.—which will increase your income.

These and numerous similar activities are carried on by our Agricultural and Development Department. At a cost which runs in excess of $100,000 a year, the Great Northern maintains a staff of agricultural and development experts whose sole job is to help you.

They Work for You

E. C. Leedy, General Agricultural and Development Agent - - - St. Paul
C. C. Morrison, Asst. Genl. Agricultural and Development Agent - St. Paul
Geo. J. Cannon, Asst. Genl. Agricultural and Development Agent - Spokane

Traveling Agricultural and Development Agents

James J. Hare - St. Paul
Paul C. C. Wagner, Grand Forks
E. B. Duncan - - Havre
Fred Sanborn - Great Falls
E. R. Griner, Okanogan, Wn.
W. S. Weber - - - Chicago
F. H. Reeves, Wichita, Kan.
Wm. Blonder, Omaha, Neb.

For the transportation of what you produce, the Great Northern must compete with forms of transportation that are distinctly favored with direct and indirect subsidies and exempted from comparable regulation and taxation, but in this constructive business of helping you, your railroad has no competition from these sources.

Farm Short Course At Warren

An illustrated lecture on "The Tradgedies of Europe" by Dr. M. Mecklenburg, pastor of the Wesley Methodist Church, Minneapolis, will feature the Friday evening program of the 16th annual Farmers Short Course in Warren at the high school auditorium which will be held February 17 and 18.

Doctor Mecklenburg is a nationally known lecturer and traveler and each year he fulfils speaking engagements from coast to coast. During the past summer Dr. Mecklenburg traveled extensively in Germany, Austria, and Checho-Slovakia and took thousands of feet of motion pictures in color which he will use in his lecture at Warren next week.

The 1939 mid-winter farmers event will include the Great Northern Farm Day on February 17, when four cars of exhibits showing the use of fertilizers, equipment, potato production and grasshopper control will be open during the day. In the afternoon a program consisting of scientific discussions will take place in the high school auditorium.

Two programs will be presented Saturday afternoon, the women's program featuring an address on "Women of Russia" by Dr. John A. Bekker of Moorhead State Teacher's College. The men's afternoon program will feature a discussion on "New Varieties of Wheat" by R. S. Dunham, agronomist of the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, and a discussion by W. J. Durbahn, Angus farmer, who recently attended a National Wheat Conference in Washington as a delegate from the spring wheat area and who will speak on the future of the AAA.

The Saturday evening program will be presented by the faculty and students of the Northwest School of Agriculture Cronkston, and will also include an address by T. M. McCall, superintendent of the Crookston school, who will speak on "Trends in Agriculture." Farm clubs from Warren community will close the short course with a number of stunts.

In addition to platform programs, the annual Marshall County Grain and Seed Show in which farmers will compete for premiums totaling $60.00 will be in progress during the short course. Farmers throughout the Northwest are invited to participate in this seed show.

Mrs. Hj. Johnson and Mrs. H. O. Hanson called at the Lawrencce Christianson home Friday

Minn Lowered Highway Deaths

In the face of an increase in miles traveled by motor vehicles, Minnesota reduced its traffic death total in 1938, although at first glance several states in its class appear to have better accidents records if the year's decrease figures are taken alone.

However, a survey of traffic fatality totals in the Minnesota Highway department files for the past five years places Minnesota in the "top flight" in traffic safety. During that period its traffic death rate has consistently been considerably under the national average.

An examination of safety records discloses that, while some states had a greater percentage of decrease in traffic fatalities in 1938, it was because their death rate in 1937 was so much higher than Minnesot's fatality rate, according to W. F. Rosenwald, traffic engineer of the Minnesota Highway department. In the majority of instances those with a greater decrease from 1937 to 1939 still have a higher death rate than Minnesota's.

Comparing 1938 with 1934, traffic fatalities in the state have decreased 3.5 percent in number despite a 26.5 percent increase in motor vehicle travel. Based on gas consumption the rate declined 13.4 percent for the five year period - a mark few states can boast.

A three year review of statistics show that in 1936, 649 persons died on the streets and highways of the state, a rate of 13.9 persons for each 10 million gallons of gas consumed; in 1937, 630 perished, a rate of 12.8 persons for each 10 million gallons of gas; while in 1939 official figures reveal that 619 were killed in traffic smashes for a rate of 12.1 persons for each 10 million gallons of gasoline burned

In short, Minnesota had a "head start" on the majority of states in traffic safety - - and, according to Mr. Rosenwald, intends to keep in the van in that field if it receives the vital aid of the various safety groups and the driving and walking public.

Celebrate National Boy Scout Week

Responding to the theme "Scouting Carries on American Ideals" more than a million and a quarter Scouts and Scouters (adult leaders) launched a series of activities commencing Wednesday this week, in celebration of Boy Scout Week, marking the 29th birthday of the Boy Scouts of America, first incorporated in the District of Columbia on February 9, 1910 and later granted a Federal Charter by Congress. Since the earliest Scouts were enrolled a total of 8,400,000 boys and men have been members of the Boy Scout Movement in this country and have participated in its constructive program of participating citizenship activities, of which the current plans are typical.

The Scout Birthday, will, according to Scout tradition, be the time when former and active Scouts and Scouters will be expected to repledge themselves to the Scout Promise, in their own homes or in their Troops and Patrols, as a demonstration of the way Scouting and Cubbing both seek to supplement and support the influence of the American home. It is expected that important national broadcasts will mark this phase of the Scout celebration.

Friday, February 10, will be Scout Brotherhood Day, when every Scout Troop meeting that night has been urged to have Scout guests from one or more other Troops especially for the purpose of demonstrating the Scouting truth that a Scout is a brother to every other Scout, regardless of race, creed or class. Hosts and guests alike will vie with each other in creating conditions designed to breed permanent friendships as a living manifestation of the American way of living together in harmony and cooperation.

On Saturday, February 11, Troops and Senior Scout groups, including Sea Scout Ships, will carry out useful projects illustrating the well-established fact that "A Scout is Helpful." These events will mark Scout Service Day, on which Scouts will be alert to discover and execute service enterprises of value to their own communities or to dramatize, in store windows or on prominent street corners, the sort of service that mark their pledge to "Do A Good Turn Daily" as a part of their Scout Promise.

Scout Church Day, Sunday, February 12, or, in the case of Scouts of the Jewish faith, the previous Friday or Saturday, will offer each Scout and Scouter an opportunity to fulfill his solemn obligation to the twelfth part of the Scout Law— "A Scout is Reverent—he is faithfull in his religious duties and respects the convictions of other in matters of their custom and religion" More than fifty per cent of all Troops, Cub Packs and Sea Scout Ships are sponsored by churches, religious bodies and societies and Scouting recognizes and actually supports the place of religion in American life.

Scout Dedication Day, Monday, February 13, has been planned especially for Senior Scouts, including Sea Scouts, Explorer Scouts and Rover Scouts. For this group there has recently been written a "Senior Scout Citizenship Dedication" by Chief Scout Eqecutive James E. West and so they are planning ceremonies of dedication either in their meeting places or at convenient patriotic shrines or points of historical interest. In many cases these formalities will take place as part of an outdoor campfire at the climax of a one or two-day hike or camping trip.

The final day of Boy Scout Week, Tuesday, February 14, will be devoted to events showing Scouting's contributions to American life as a leisure-time program offering boys and young men wholesome recreation and has been designated as Scout Fun Day. In addition to Troop parties and Senior Scout social activities many other ways of furthering the so-called "play way" of Scouting are being planned by leader's groups.

Grygla Pioneer Buried Here

Interment rites were held at the Ridge cemetery Tuesday afternoon for Thor Larson Granddokken, farmer of the Grygla community.

He was born on December 22, 1870 in Aal Prestegald, Norway. He was the son of Lars and Annie Gunderson. He grew to manhood in Norway, being confirmed in the year 1886. He emigrated to America in 1905 and made his home at Grygla for many years until two years ago when he removed to Fergus Falls where he passed away on Friday February 3.

The only surviving relatives are a cousin Thor Hagen of Grand Forks and A. T. Hagen of Holt. Rev. Hanson officiated and Carlson Funeral Service had charge of arrangements at the interment rites. Pallbearers were: A. T. Hagen, Jesse Sorum, W. S. Risberg, A. P. Thompson, John Hagberg and Ludvig Sagstuen.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been of the cold order. On Tuesday we had another snow storm and on Wednesday it was about 35 below zero in the morning and was cold all day with about 20 below. Most of the secondary roads are now blocked for the winter and auto traffic is at a standstill. Yesterday the weather had moderated with only 17 below in the morning.

Rev. and Mrs. Hanson Return

Rev. and Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson returned home Thursday of last week. Rev. Hanson spent a week in St. Paul attending the Convocation at Luther Theological Seminary. On Sunday, Jan. 29, he was the guest preacher at Gethsemane Lutheran Church, Minneapolis, and on Tuesday he he attended the funeral of his cousin, Halvor N. Halvorson at Milan. Mrs. Hanson spent most of the time visiting her mother Mrs Martha Oppegaard at Madison.

Scouts To Serve L. League

In keeping with the celebration of Boy Scout week, the local Boy Scout Troop No. 112, which is always active, will serve Luther League at the Nazareth Lutheran church on Sunday evening, Feb. 12. The boys have also arranged the program.

Scoutmaster Hartley Peterson secured the speaker which will be Mr. Morris Bye, Superintendent of Schools of Thief River Falls. Mr. Bye is a well known speaker who has had many years of experience in working with young people and will have a message of interest to all of us.

Debate At Mens Club

The argumentation at the Men's Club meetings at the Nazareth Lutheran Church will be more organized and more formal on Tuesday evening, Feb. 14, when a debate has been arranged. The question of the debate is "Resolved, that the Munich Agreement is a factor in establishing world peace". This is a question of importance in the world today and the opinions are equally divided. Mr. G. W. Karvonen and Mr. Emil Kaufert will argue for the affirmative side while Mr. Harold Nohre and Mr. Einar Loven will uphold the negative. As usual, lunch will be served and a general invitation goes out to all who may wish to attend.

Star Dust

★ Two 'Happy Endings'
★ Another British Girl
★ Tex Ritter Shuns Horse

By Virginia Vale

THEY'VE been having "happy ending" trouble with "Idiot's Delight." In the play, the hero and heroine prepared to die together. But that didn't seem to work out too well when the picture was previewed, so another ending was prepared, to be used if other pre-release audiences liked it better than the original one.

Now that Vivien Leigh is scheduled to shoot into stardom (if "Gone With the Wind" turns out well for her), some of the pictures in which she appeared in England will be released again over here.

Meanwhile we have the word of Ernie Westmore, the demon make-up man, that another girl from the British isles will "burn up Hollywood." Her name is Maureen O'Hara, for screen purposes; in real life it's Maureen Fitzsimmons. She hails from Dublin, is 18 years old, and is the discovery of Erich Pommer, discoverer of Marlene Dietrich. She is working in London in the new Charles Laughton picture, "Jamaica Inn" as Laughton's leading lady.

Tex Ritter, Monogram's singing cowboy, is on a two months' personal appearance tour, with four members of the musical unit used in his pictures. They are traveling by car, with Tex in his trailer, and expect to stop in 52 towns before they return to the studio and another series of westerns.

There's to be a new hair cut for the ladies, named for Ina Claire; it will be launched with tons of publicity. Of course, Miss Claire has the kind of hair that will take and hold any kind of hair-do, and can have it whipped into shape by an expert three or four times a week, or even every day, which makes things tough for her imitators.

George Raft's departure from Paramount was not exactly unexpected. It came as a result of his refusal to play the lead in "Magnificent Fraud." Lloyd Nolan has formed the habit of stepping into the parts that Raft doesn't want, so he did it this time. Last August, when Raft refused a role in "St. Louis Blues," the same thing happened.

To this desk came a touching story about a cocker spaniel named "Rudy," given to Tommy Riggs by Rudy Vallee a year ago. According to this little tale from the press representative, the dog always listened to the Riggs Saturday night air shows. It began to pine in a corner when a dog character was introduced on the program, not knowing that the dog was played by Brad Barker, an animal imitator.

And, ran the story, a doctor friend of Riggs' claimed that, when "Rudy" died the next day, it was because of "the nearest thing to a broken heart that he had ever seen in an animal."

That doctor should have consulted the elevator boy in Riggs' apartment hotel, who confided to me the fact that the dog died of distemper. But distemper doesn't make a touching little story for press agents.

Got any hobbies? Dave Elman, conductor of "Hobby Lobby," declares that, according to statistics, the life of modern man is prolonged for several years through intelligent use of leisure time in cultivating them. If Elman himself doesn't look out he'll need something more than a hobby to prolong his. Since none of his "Hobby Lobby" guests arrive in New York before Monday morning, he works from nine o'clock Monday morning until at least midnight Monday night interviewing them and preparing the material for his broadcasts.

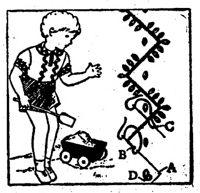
A Bit of Embroidery For Small Son's Suit

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: Those pages of embroidery stitches in your Book 2 have interested me greatly. I can never remember from time to time how to do even feather stitching. It is ingenious the way you show how to make each kind of stitch, and I turn to your book often. I have a small son now four and a half years old, and have always enjoyed making his clothes and trimming them with little touches of embroidery. Do you think he is too old for this? B. H."



You still have a year or so if you keep the suits smart and boyish. I am sketching an embroidered trimming idea for you here. The thread should match the color of the trousers. Mark an outline for the embroidery with pencil as at A. Work over this with tiny chain stitches as at B; then make larger chain or loop stitches as at C and D.

Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroideries, contains 48 pages of step-by-step directions which have helped thousands of women. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Order by number, enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both, a crazy-quilt leaflet with 36 authentic patchwork stitches will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Enlightening Dictionary

It is rarely one finds much in the way of humor in dictionaries. When one does, they are sometimes quite refreshing.

In "Chambers' Twentieth Century Dictionary," for example, its compiler, Reverend Thomas Davidson, gives these definitions:

Sea-Serpent.—An enormous marine animal of serpent-like form, frequently seen and described by credulous sailors, imaginative landsmen, and common liars.

Land o' the Leal.—The home of the blessed after death—Paradise, not Scotland.

Smart Dresses for Home and Runabout

HERE'S a practical, slenderizing dress that large women will thoroughly enjoy for their busiest days of housework. And a trim little bolero frock that's gay and fresh as a spring morning, just the thing for shopping, business and general wear.

Comfortable House Dress.

This dress is so easy to make that you'll turn out half a dozen of it in practically no time; it's a diagram design that you can complete in a few hours. And it's so easy to work in that you won't be satisfied with less than half a dozen. Wide armholes, a darted waistline that looks slim, a skirt with sufficient width, all assure freedom for action. It's easy to put on, too, as well as to iron, because it buttons down the front. Percale, calico and gingham are good materials for this.

Tailored Bolero Dress.

Even without the sleeveless bolero, this dress is a charming style for runabout and street wear. The darted waistline makes you look slim and supple. A scalloped closing, edged with braid or binding, and puff sleeves narrowed into the arm by shirring, complete the effect of youthful charm. Make this right now of flat crepe, silk print or thin wool. Then repeat it later in summer cottons; it's a design that you'll use many, many times.

The Patterns.

No. 1615 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 35-inch material, with ⅓ yard for cuffs in contrast.

No. 1674 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14 requires 5¼ yards of 39-inch material, with 3⅞ yards of braid to trim.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

The Giver

For the soul that gives is the soul that lives, and bearing another's load doth lighten our own, and shorten the way, and brighten the homeward road.

ACHING COLDS
Relieve Their DISTRESS This Easy, Quick Way!

To bring speedy relief from the discomfort of chest colds, muscular rheumatic aches and pains due to colds—you need more than "just a salve"—use a stimulating "counter-irritant" like good old warming, soothing Musterole. It penetrates the surface skin breaking up local congestion and pain resulting from colds.

Even better than a mustard plaster—Musterole has been used by millions for over 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. In three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild) and Extra Strong, 40¢. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. All druggists.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Offers Timely Advice on Keeping Children Well in Winter; Warns of Several Dangers

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ONE of the ways by which her community judges a woman's success as a mother is by the health and well-being of her children. If they are energetic, rosy-cheeked normal boys and girls who have a high resistance to infections, such as the common cold, and if they display the good dispositions that we usually associate with buoyant health, then the verdict of friends and neighbors is usually that of a job well done.

To help her children maintain top health and vitality, a mother must constantly be alert to the various factors that help produce this ideal estate. And at the same time, she must likewise be on guard against the common conditions that may contribute to lowered resistance, especially fatigue and improper diet.

Winter Hazards

It has been said that in winter the body is on trial—and this is as true of children as of adults. Extremes of temperature require adjustments on the part of the body, and in most parts of the country, children are called upon constantly to switch their environment from a house which is all too frequently overheated to an outdoor temperature that may be below freezing.

While cool, outdoor air is stimulating to children in normal health, some children withstand it much less successfully. This is particularly true of those who are improperly nourished; who are over-fatigued or suffer from poor circulation.

When it is very cold outdoors, it is wise to have children come in from their play periodically to warm up. And if a child appears to suffer from the cold unduly, it is wise to have a physician check up on his health.

Guard Against Frostbite

Over-exposure must be avoided, particularly in cold, damp weather. For under these conditions, doctors warn, there is always a danger of frostbite. They say that whenever the temperature falls below 8 degrees Fahrenheit, children should not be permitted to play outdoors. If they do, the cold may act upon the tissues so that part of the body is deprived of its blood supply. This is most likely to occur in the fingers, toes, nose or ears which thereupon become frozen. The combination of wind and low temperature is especially dangerous and frostbite frequently occurs at temperatures up to 14 degrees Fahrenheit when there is a strong wind.

Mothers should be on guard against frostbite when the temperature is below 24 degrees Fahrenheit, however, and at all times during the winter, see that children are warmly clad. This need not mean that they are so bundled up as to preclude the possibility of active play. Suitable clothing consists of garments which provide warmth and protection against dampness, without constriction at any point.

Two layers of wool, such as that provided by a woolen sweater and playsuit are considered preferable to one too-bulky garment. Feet and hands should, of course, be well protected.

Don't Overheat the House

Only a little less serious are the consequences of dry, overheated indoor air. It is unfortunate that so many people keep their rooms entirely too warm in winter. This not only widens the gap between indoor and outdoor temperatures, but may be extremely irritating to the delicate membranes of the nose and throat. Most authorities consider an indoor temperature of about 68 degrees Fahrenheit satisfactory.

Is Your Child Lazy?

We often hear mothers complain that their children are lazy in cold weather . . . and they seem to have less pep and energy than in other seasons. If by that they mean that their children are less active, it may be that this can be attributed in part to the bleak, shorter days that do not always invite outdoor play. But sometimes a child displays such a reduction in his activities as to appear indolent. Then the mother must seek the physical or emotional factors that may be responsible. For true laziness suggests a body that is not functioning normally.

Quite possibly the child's diet is not meeting his bodily requirements. An undernourished child usually tires easily and is disinclined to exert himself. The food may be adequate as to quantity, but not as to quality. For example, a diet that is too highly concentrated, contains too little bulk or cellulose, may cause a tendency to faulty elimination. This, in turn, is frequently responsible for lassitude. The remedy is often a simple dietary change—the addition of a salad to the daily diet; or possibly the use of stewed dried fruits in addition to a fresh fruit or fruit juice daily. Of course, the child should also have two servings of vegetables besides potatoes, one of which should be of the green leafy variety. Also a quart of milk daily; breads and cereals, at least half of which may preferably be the whole grain variety; an egg daily or at least three or four weekly; one serving of meat, fish or chicken, and another serving of a protein food, such as cheese. Some form of vitamin D should be included in the diet of young children, especially during the winter months.

It is also most important that children follow a daily routine that includes plenty of time for sleep. And for younger children a daytime nap is usually advised.

Children Need Healthy Mothers

Mothers must give attention to the children's health. But let them give some consideration to their own. The tired, nervous mother is very apt to transfer some of her own fatigue and nervousness to her child. So in arranging your child's rest periods and diet, in looking after proper habits of elimination, make sure that Mother, too . . . and better still every member of the family . . . follows this same sound health program.

Questions Answered

Miss B. W. J.—As a rule, no special consideration need be given to the amount of sulphur in the diet. That is because sulphur in food is found almost entirely in the form of protein, and in a well-balanced diet which supplies sufficient protein, the requirements for sulphur will be adequately met.

Mrs. B. F.—Between the ages of 60 and 70, and indeed thereafter, there is a gradual decrease in the need for energy. All the body processes function more slowly. The amount of proteins, minerals and vitamins is also less, as no new tissue is being formed. An excess of food is less readily handled by the body in later years, so it is advisable for older people to guard carefully against over-indulgence in food.

SAFETY TALKS

Rural Traffic Accidents Increase

Traffic accidents in the rural districts are mounting by leaps and bounds. Since 1924, the National Safety council says, motor vehicle fatalities have increased 172 per cent. In cities over 10,000 population they went up but 30 per cent.

Of course, the council points out, a large part of this increase may be the result of much-increased rural travel. But most traffic authorities believe, however, that the more favorable city record can be traced to the more effective traffic control measures in municipalities.

In 1937, the loss of life to traffic accidents in rural districts and cities under 10,000 population was 27,400. In cities over 10,000, there were 12,100 killed.

While collisions with pedestrians constituted the major fatal accident problem in cities, rural districts had their greatest difficulty with collisions between two or more motor vehicles.

AROUND the HOUSE

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Baking Apples.—Apples should be slit with a sharp knife in three or four places before baking, so that the skins do not wrinkle up while in the oven.

• • •

When Washing Glass.—A little starch added to the water used for washing windows, mirrors and glassware not only helps remove dirt but gives a lasting polish.

• • •

Fillings for Baked Apples.—Varied fillings for baked apples might be: brown sugar, jelly, jam, maple sugar, raisins, nuts, figs, prunes, dates, coconut, mince meat or sausage.

• • •

Rearranging Furniture.—When rearranging furniture in a room, new ideas may come easier if all the pictures, mirrors, wall hangings, plants, lamps, cushions, and other small articles are moved to another room.

• • •

Damp Brushes and Cloths.—Cleaning brushes and cloths should never be put away until they are entirely dried out. They are most attractive to roaches in their dampened state and almost always become rank and unpleasant, and of no further use in the cleaning line.

• • •

To Blanch Nuts.—To remove thin brown skin covering from nut meats, cover the meats with boiling water and let them stand five minutes in a covered dish. Drain and then quickly rub off the skins with the fingers. A small sharp knife may be needed on brazil nuts.

For Baby's Safety.—Never try to carry baby in one arm and some other hard-to-manage article in the other when going down stairs.

• • •

The New Frying Pan.—Boil a few potato parings with a little water for a few minutes in the new frying pan. Food cooked afterward in the pan will not be so apt to stick.

• • •

To Reseal Envelopes.—If you have forgotten the inclosure in a letter try to open the envelope carefully by rolling a pencil under the envelope flap towards the edge. Add the inclosure and reseal by painting the flap with liquid nail polish and pressing the flap down tightly.

Chap Found Swankin' It Required Some Effort

Sir Cecil Fitch on his trip to Hollywood told the story of a chap who suddenly got rich somehow. One day a piano was delivered at his cottage. A neighbor said on seeing it arrive:

"You're fair swankin'. But you won't keep that long, mark me!"

The very next day the newly rich chap wheeled his piano out on a hand cart and started down the road.

"Ho, ho!" laughed the neighbor as he saw him. "I told you you wouldn't keep it long."

"Shut yer face, fool," said the other. "I'm off to take me first lesson."

"WON'T YOU BE MY - - - - ?"

TWO hearts, one dart—they have come down the ages to say Won't-You-Be-My-Valentine and to remind us that in an age which bristles with dollar-signs and flaunts sophistication, Romance is not dead.

Then why not give a Valentine party with all of the fol-de-rols which are supposed to be old-fashioned and which your guests will gloat over? Herald the event with a lacey valentine. If your shops are too modern to carry them, make the invitations by pasting paper lace on the edge of a red cardboard heart with two hearts and a dart drawn in the center. Place your initials in one heart and the initial of your guest in the other heart, and write underneath:

Guess Who Is Inviting You
To a Valentine Supper

For a contest game, give the guests bows and arrows to shoot at a heart target. The winner should be presented with a heart-shaped box filled with heart-shaped nut cookies, and each loser who failed to hit the target might be consoled by being allowed to kiss one person for each arrow that went astray.

A Supper That's a "Honey"

Set the Valentine supper table with a lace cloth, red candles and a red heart-shaped box of candy at each place. And here is the supper menu with tested recipes:

Chicken and Ham Shortcake
Cranberry Jelly cut in Heart Shapes
Grapefruit Cream Sherbet with Cherry Garnish
Cocoanut Kisses Coffee
Fairy Gingerbread

Chicken and Ham Shortcake: Make a white sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one and one-half cups milk and the contents of two 6-ounce cans of evaporated milk. Add one slightly-beaten egg yolk. Then add the contents of one 12-ounce can of chicken which has been diced, one cup of diced cold boiled ham and two tablespoons diced pimiento. Add two tablespoons cooking sherry and season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve between and on top of split, hot baking powder biscuits which have been buttered. This serves eight persons.

Grapefruit Cream Sherbet: Soften one tablespoon gelatin in two tablespoons of cold water. Dissolve in grapefruit juice from a No. 2 can which has been brought to boiling. Add one and one-third cups sugar. Dissolve and cool. Add three tablespoons lemon juice and one well-beaten egg. Pour the cold fruit juice mixture slowly into one cup cream and freeze at once in refrigerator trays or in an ice-cream freezer. Stir often if you use the refrigerator. Serve garnished with chopped cherries. This serves eight persons.

Pioneer School Notes

The school was presented with a Bible from the Guideon Camp in Minneapolis.

The fourth grade has finished the study of France. Now we are going to start the study of Switzerland, the playground of the world.

The seventh grade finished the study of "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" by Washington Irving in Literature.

The eighth grade has completed the following pieces of Literature: "Charles Dicken's Christmas Carol", "Longfellow's Evangeline" "Whitman's O Captain! My Captain!" and "Dyke's America For Me."

The first and second graders are enjoying the new modeling clay that was just received. Some good animals have been modeled.

The valentine box was decorated by the two eighth grade girls. We can now start filling it with valentines.

Those that received 100 in spelling were:

Joyce Movick, Marilyn Movick Lawrence Folden and Lorraine Skjerping.

The fourth grade has received a new history book, which we enjoy very much. The book is entitled, "Gopher Tales."

Card of Thanks

A VALENTINE BRIDGE TEA

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY refuses to be relegated to the era of lavender-and-old-lace. In spite of its heritage of lace-paper valentines packed away in scented boxes, the envelopes bearing handwriting in fine old script of another day, this day of romance and delightful surprises continues in favor with each generation.

Tea-and-Talk

Today, with the vogue for bridge teas, instead of the more elaborate bridge luncheon, Valentine's Day comes along as a particularly seasonable date for entertaining with a Valentine Bridge tea. Possibly one reason for the popularity of the bridge tea is the fact that it can include not only bridge fans of your acquaintance but also other friends who wish to come in late in the afternoon for tea-and-talk. This does not interfere with the game which can be started early in the afternoon, so that the real bridge enthusiasts have plenty of time to play before the later arrivals.

It will give your tea a touch of days-gone-by if you make a point of sending invitations, instead of resorting to the telephone. If you can't find old-fashioned pink lacey valentines in your shops, make some by using a light cardboard stock, cutting it heart-shaped, covering with a heart-shaped piece of lace-paper dolly and then pasting two small pink hearts on top of the lace-paper, in the center of the valentine. Write two lines of the invitation on each heart, letting the lines read thus:

Be my Valentine guest.
Please arrive
For bridge at two,
Or tea at five.

If you would like a game for those who come a little early, but who don't play bridge, try "Sweet Scents," which is an appropriate Valentine contest to see whose nose knows. Get samples of perfume from the favorites of your various friends. Place a bit of cotton, previously dipped in the perfume or sachet in a small bottle tightly corked. Each bottle should be numbered. Let each one smell each kind and write down the fragrance which they detect, writing down also the number of the bottle. It is surprising how difficult it is to distinguish the odors after smelling a variety of them. Instead of perfumes, if you prefer, you can use spices from the pantry—clove, cinnamon, sassafras, almond extract, etc. The prize should be a small bottle of good perfume.

Here is a simple but delightful Valentine tea party menu with tested recipes:

Frozen Fruit Salad
Shrimp and Caper Sandwiches
Piquant Ham Sandwiches
Tea Candy Hearts Cashews

The following recipes are simple to prepare and designed to serve eight persons:

Frozen Fruit Salad: Cream one package of cream cheese, add two-thirds cup mayonnaise and one cup of cream beaten, mixing until smooth. Soften one-half teaspoon gelatin in one tablespoon cold water. Add two tablespoons sugar to one cup of crushed canned pineapple, bring to boiling and pour over the gelatin mixture, stirring until dissolved. Cool. Add this to the mayonnaise and cream mixture. Then add one banana, cut in small cubes, and one-half cup of halved, canned, red pitted cherries. (Substitute maraschino cherries, if you prefer). Then add one-half cup of chopped nuts. Freeze in refrigerator trays. Serve on crisp lettuce hearts. This serves eight persons.

Shrimp and Caper Sandwiches: Drain one can of shrimp and mince finely. Add two tablespoons chopped capers, one-eighth teaspoon salt and five tablespoons Thousand Island Dressing. Spread between thinly sliced and buttered whole wheat bread.

Piquant Ham Sandwiches: Mix the contents of a small can of deviled ham, one teaspoon chopped mustard pickles, one tablespoon chopped walnuts and one tablespoon mayonnaise. Spread between buttered slices of white bread.

Issued Weekly From The Home Of The Biggest Co-operative Creamery In Marshall County

Farm Short Course At Warren

An illustrated lecture on "The Tradgedies of Europe" by Dr. M. Mecklenburg, pastor of the Wesley Methodist Church, Minneapolis, will feature the Friday evening program of the 16th annual Farmers Short Course in Warren at the high school auditorium which will be held February 17 and 18.

Doctor Mecklenburg is a nationally known lecturer and traveler and each year he fulfils speaking engagements from coast to coast. During the past summer Dr. Mecklenburg traveled extensively in Germany, Austria, and Checho-Slovakia and took thousands of feet of motion pictures in color which he will use in his lecture at Warren this week.

The 1939 mid-winter farmers event will include the Great Northern Farm Day on February 17, when four cars of exhibits showing the use of fertilizers, equipment, potato production and grasshopper control will be open during the day. In the afternoon a program consisting of scientific discussions will take place in the high school auditorium.

Two programs will be presented Saturday afternoon, the women's program featuring an address on "Women of Russia" by Dr. John A. Bekker of Moorhead State Teacher's College. The men's afternoon program will feature a discussion on "New Varieties of Wheat" by R. S. Dunham, agronomist of the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, and a discussion by W. J. Durbahn, Angus farmer, who recently attended a National Wheat Conference in Washington as a delegate from the spring wheat area and who will speak on the future of the AAA.

The Saturday evening program will be presented by the faculty and students of the Northwest School of Agriculture Cronkston, and will also include an address by T. M. McCall, superintendent of the Crookston school, who will speak on "Trends in Agriculture." Farm clubs from Warren community will close the short course with a number of stunts.

In addition to platform programs, the annual Marshall County Grain and Seed Show in which farmers will compete for premiums totaling $60.00 will be in progress during the short course. Farmers throughout the Northwest are invited to participate in this seed show.

The local school was closed on Friday and also on Monday due to stormy weather and blocked roads. The bus drivers are having a hard time to get thru with their loads on drifted and heavy roads.

Annual Creamery Meeting Held

The stockholders and patrons of the Farmers' Cooperative Creamery here held their annual meeting at the Community Hall last Thursday afternoon. A very small crowd came to the meeting due to cold and stormy weather.

The annual report of the creamery was read and explained by Walter Larson, manager of the institution and proved very satisfactory to the patrons.

The patrons of the creamery in 1938 produced 184,630 pounds of butterfat which they delivered to the creamery here. From this they received $57,887.45. The average net price received for butter manufactured was 25.18c.

Mr. Lager, field man for this district of Land O'Lakes creameries spoke on the good business this creamery had done the past year and said he believed the farmers could look forward to a much better year in 1939.

E. O. Waagedahl, chairman of the board of directors of the creamery presided at the meeting. Carl Johnson and Oliver Nohre whose terms expired at this time were reelected to the board. Other farmers who are serving on the board are T. B. Folden, J. P. Augustine and E. O. Waagedahl.

The local creamery has total assets of $18,467.34. The total liabilities of the institution amounts to only $2,230.81 which leaves the creamery with a net worth of $16,236.53. It was brought out in the annual statement that the creamery showed a net loss for the period of $306.39. This was, however, due to the fact that money which was due the creamery on rebates from wholesale firms with whom they deal, did not reach here in time for the annual statement. When this money is received the creamery will show a net profit of about that amount for the year. The creamery showed a net income of $562.62 from all allied lines handled the past year.

Other important business transacted was a motion made and carried to move the date of the annual meeting down the calander for next year. This was done to try to get away from the bad weather which always hits about the middle of February. The annual meeting for 1940 will be held the second Thursday in March.

After the meeting was over the creamery served free lunch to its patrons and others attending the meeting. The local Ladies Aids served the lunches.

Neighbors and relatives of Mrs. J. Hagberg visited her on Monday afternoon and helped celebrate her birthday.

Farmers Notice

Through requests for forty-five per cent Anaconda Phosphate, we are planning on getting a carload to be taken right off the car on track here. Leave your bookings at the creamery. Will have the prices in a few days.

Safetygrams
BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Because automobile drivers in the country have been aroused to the need for safe driving, Ameriea reduced its automobile fatalities in 1938 by at least 7,500. Accurate figures are not yet available but the first 11 months of '38 showed that reduction.

All you readers have helped to establish this fine record. The saving of 7,500 lives proves that by concentrated effort a further reduction is possible in 1939.

That is your job. Safety is an individual problem. States, counties and cities can inaugurate safety programs but actual application of safe driving is the responsibility of the man behind the wheel.

Safety is 99 per cent thoughtless hurry.

It's smart to drive carefully.

We are this week publishing the Delinquent Tax List for Marshall County for the year 1937. Included in the same supplement is the official proceedings of the county board for their February meeting.

Only a short time ago people talked about how little fuel they had used this winter — now the question is, where can I get some more good fuel?

Local Band Gave Fine Program

The newly re-organized Holt Community Band, under the able direction of O. J. Peterson of Thief River Falls, made their first appearance last Thursday when they played several numbers at the Annual Creamery Meeting. That they have progressed wonderfully was the decision of all who heard them.

Einar Loven spoke in behalf of the band and made a plea for the support of the band by some organization in the community.

Let us all do our bit to boost the band. Still better if some organization will sponsor it.

Lenten Services at N. L. Church

The Nazareth Lutheran church will again this year hold its annual Lenten mid week services beginning on the evening of Ash Wendesday, Feb. 22. All other meetings will be on Thursday evenings. The theme for the series as selected by the pastor this year will be: Seven Questions on the Lord's Passion. The topic of the first services will be: "Art Thou the Christ, the Son of God?" These services have been very well attended in the years past and it is expected that it will continue so again this year. These services will be held in the church parlors and a general invitation is extended to all who wish to attend these meetings.

Ice Skating Revue at T. R. F.

The Third Annual Ice Skating Revue sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce will be staged in the Winter Sports Arena at Thief River Falls, Saturday February 18th, featuring the well known Winnipeg Winter Club, including such excellent skaters as Archie Duncan, Vera Willis, John Whitehead and many others. A novelty specialty number will be presented by Syverson and Stensgaard, local comedians, and a solo Skating Act by Selmer Dicken. The matinee performance will be held at 3:00 p. m. and the evening performance at 8 p. m.

Gunder Schie Passed Away

According to word received here from Newfolden, Gunder Schie, pioneer resident of this community was found dead in bed in his little home south of Newfolden last week. The local mail carrier noticed that Mr. Schie did not call for his mail so he investigated and found the aged man dead in bed. Mr. Schie moved to Newfolden about a year ago from his farm northwest of Holt where he spent many years.

Funeral services were conducted on Saturday from Newfolden.

Many Forfeit Drivers' License

If January is any portent, a record number of dangerous drivers will be taken off the road this year by municipal and district courts and by the drivers license unit of the Minnesota Highway department.

During the first month of 1939, drivers licenses were ordered away from 120 persons, as against 75 for January, 1938.

In addition, suspensions of licenses were ordered in 76 instances.

In the age group from 21 to 30 were the highest proportion of drivers who lost their right to drive.

Hennepin county had 24 revocations, Ramsey county 22, St. Louis county 11 and Dakota and Otter Tail counties 4 each. Of the total revocations for the state all but two were for driving while under the influence of liquor.

Forty licenses were returned to drivers whose suspension periods had expired.

The Weather

The weather has been of the most fridgid variety. The week end was more or less stormy and since then it has been plenty cold. All parts of the state felt the last blizzard that traveled southward last week. Most roads were blocked and traffic came to a standstill.

Tiny Mercury Arc Lamp Will Light Airport

A new mercury arc lamp, about the size of a kitchen match, which alone will light an airfield, being demonstrated by Cornelius Bol, research scientist at Stanford university, Palo Alto, Calif., who developed the light. It is in a tiny mercury vapor tube of quartz, and is encased by an outer tube containing water at high pressure to keep it from bursting. The light generates a temperature within of 4,000 degrees greater than the sun's surface in an interior pressure of 15,000 pounds per square inch.

CLAM CHOWDER PURIST

Rep. Cleveland Sleeper Jr., Rockland, Maine, presented a bill to the state legislature that would make it illegal to add tomatoes to Maine clam chowder. He stated that "the union of tomatoes and clams is an unholy one." He said that "the infiltration of foreign ideas of cookery will throw chowder from its pinnacle and doom it to mediocrity."

Paralysis Victims Open Co-Operative Shop

Fourteen young men, all of whom were crippled by the 1916 infantile paralysis epidemic, have opened a multigraphing shop in New York, where they plan campaign letters, make layouts and do address work. All are high school graduates, and several have college educations. They obtained capital for their enterprise by forming an orchestra and playing for dances. Due to their physical condition they were forced to provide jobs for themselves.

This particular store, located at Waverly Barracks, Essex, contains complete equipment for a searchlight battalion and two anti-aircraft brigades.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

THE other day a letter came with an unusual request. "I wonder if you could tell me some way to use empty cans?"

Fortunately we have a very long memory. There came to life the picture of a fat little girl sitting on a small footstool in a very Victorian parlor while her Great Aunt rocked and visited. And there was something about that footstool—yes it had cans inside. The cans were filled with sand to make the footstool heavy. The cover was red carpet with handles of the carpet material at the ends. So we saved six cans. We substituted a piece of upholstery material for carpet, and here is a step-by-step sketch of the footstool we made. It is a great success.

Now is the time to give your house a fresh start. Crisp new curtains; a bright slipcover; new lampshades; or an ottoman will do the trick. Make these things yourself. Mrs. Spears' Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, shows you how with step-by-step, easy to follow sketches. Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery will give you a new interest for long winter evenings. It contains complete directions for making many useful things. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books, a crazy-quilt leaflet is included FREE; it illustrates 36 authentic embroidery stitches in detail. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Little Man Found More Trials Were to Come

A big man and a little man were having an argument on the bank of a canal. They got very hot about it. At last, the big man said, "I could pick you up and throw you across the cut."

The little man replied: "You couldn't. I bet you a dollar you couldn't."

The big man said, "Done," picked him up, whirled him round, and pitched him right into the middle.

The little man scrambled out, and said: "Where's my dollar?"

The other replied: "Dollar be blowed. I'm going to do it if I stay here all day."

FIRESTONE triumphs again! This time with the new Firestone Champion, the tire that sets the safety standards for 1939. This new tire provides a combination of safety features never before built into a tire. It is a completely new achievement in safety engineering.

From the experience gained on the speedways of the world and in the Firestone laboratories, Firestone engineers have developed a revolutionary new type of cord body called Safety-Lock, which provides amazingly greater strength. This outstanding achievement makes possible the use of a thicker, tougher, deeper tread which assures much greater non-skid mileage. Because of this new Safety-Lock Cord body and Gear-Grip tread, the modern streamlined Firestone Champion Tire establishes completely new standards of blowout protection, non-skid safety, silent operation and long mileage.

The Firestone Champion Tire embodies the famous Firestone Triple-Safe construction — you get the exclusive and patented Firestone construction features of Gum-Dipping, two extra layers of Safety-Lock cords under the tread and Gear-Grip tread design. Never in all the history of tire building has there been such a triple-safe combination to protect you against the dangers of blowouts, punctures and skidding.

Call on your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store and equip your car with a set of new Firestone Champion Tires—the only tires made which are safety proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Gives Some Timely Hints on How to Keep Up Fuel Value of Winter Diet; Discusses New Methods for Quick Baking

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

MIDWINTER weather calls for energizing breakfasts to get the day off to a good start . . . energizing midday meals to help keep children and adults functioning efficiently . . . energizing, but easily digested ,evening meals to satisfy bodily requirements without over-taxing the digestive system.

In addition to the need for supplying meals that are adequate as to energy values and other nutritional requirements, the homemaker has two other important factors to consider; she must satisfy the appetites of various members of her family . . . and she must keep within her food budget.

Breadstuffs—The Staff of Life

One of her greatest aids is bread in various forms. Breadstuffs, or other foods made from grain, are undoubtedly the largest single item in the dietary of the majority of people throughout the world. They appear in some form at almost every meal. And they are also highly satisfactory as a between-meal lunch for rapidly growing school children.

Breadstuffs are notable for their energy values and for their ease of digestion. They contain some protein and minerals, and under some circumstances, they may also carry other significant food values.

Bread and rolls combine well with milk, cheese, butter and meat. They make good eating and give a comfortable feeling of satisfaction afterwards. Such simple combinations as bread and cheese, or rolls and milk, are highly effective in satisfying hunger. And they go a long way toward meeting nutritional requirements.

A Notable Food Team

Nutritionists have a high regard for the combination of bread and milk. Breadstuffs are generally source of energy and protein in the diet. Milk is our most nearly regarded as a most economical perfect food. And the proteins of milk supplement those found in the grains of which bread and rolls are made.

Children especially should consume some form of bread, toast, or well-baked rolls at every meal. These easily digested foods supply the fuel values that most active youngsters require in abundance. Rolls and bread with a well-baked crust have the additional advantage of encouraging thorough mastication.

During adolescence, the energy requirements are especially high. Boys sometimes eat more than their fathers, and it is desirable that the extra calories be provided in the form of such easily digested and wholesome foods as breadstuffs. This is also an advantage to the homemaker, from the point of view of economy, as breadstuffs rank as one of our most reasonably priced foods. Adolescent girls, on the other hand, frequently develop finicky appetites and strange food habits. They may wish to go to school without breakfast—a practice which must be discouraged as it may lead to undernutrition from which "nerves" may develop.

Adolescents Like Variety

One way to help growing girls to be energetic is to encourage them to eat some form of bread at every meal. This will help to keep up the fuel value of the diet at very little expense.

Mothers must, however, guard against loss of interest in breadstuffs by various members of their families, as a result of monotony. Luckily, there is no reason why this should occur in any home. For it is possible to provide breadstuffs in such a variety that the same kind need not be served twice in succession within the space of one or two weeks.

You can add variety to the diet by preparing bread from graham, whole wheat or rye flour. Rolls can be made from plain or sweet dough. Some of the more popular are Parker House rolls, sandwich rolls, finger rolls, cinnamon buns, butterscotch rolls and pecan rolls.

A New Leavening Agent

Some homemakers may feel that it is too costly to purchase such fancy breads outside the home. And they may feel that they cannot spare the time required for home baking. Such arguments might have been valid in the past. But not any more!

Recently a new kind of yeast has been developed which makes it possible to prepare a variety of hot breads at home—more quickly than ever before. Thus, home baking follows the trend of the times and becomes quick-baking.

One reason why modern homemakers have been reluctant to make bread and rolls at home, I believe, has been the difficulty of obtaining a leavening agent that was both quick-acting and possessed good keeping qualities.

Yeast is the most satisfactory leavening agent for bread and rolls. Heretofore, only two types had been available. Fresh, or compressed yeast, and dried yeast. Both of these products are composed of yeast plants combined with cereal.

Fresh yeast has a higher moisture content, however, and because of this, spoils rapidly. Hence, it must be purchased fresh, kept well refrigerated, and used within a few days. Dry yeast keeps several weeks at room temperature and has, therefore, been regarded as more practical. Its great disadvantage has been that it acts less quickly, owing to the fact that some of the yeast plants are destroyed during the drying.

Keeps and Is Quick-Acting

But nowadays homemakers can buy a new kind of yeast. A new, fast, pure yeast that combines the keeping qualities of dry yeast with speedy action.

This product is a dry yeast that comes in the form of small granules. It softens promptly in water, and is then ready for use. Moreover, it keeps its strength and activity for several weeks, so that it can be kept on hand at all times.

Homemakers can bake whenever it is convenient. And what delicious bread and rolls they can make. Such wholesome combinations as prune bread, combining both white and whole wheat flour with seeded, uncooked prunes . . . refrigerator rolls, coffee cakes, raisin bread, wholesome raised doughnuts, waffles and buckwheat cakes.

It cannot be denied that bread is one of the oldest foods known to man. But just to prove that even our most basic foods may be improved—along comes this revolutionary yeast to provide a leavening that is more satisfactory than ever before, perhaps, to homemakers all over the country.

Patterns SEWING CIRCLE

HERE'S a very new and practical kind of every day dress for you, and an adorable party frock for little girls. They're both so easy to make that even if you've practically never had a needle in your hand, you can do it, and what satisfaction you'll feel when you see them emerging from your hands! Each is accompanied by a step-by-step sew chart that explains everything.

Little Girl's Party Frock.

You can make your small daughter so happy (and do it so easily) by making her this basque frock with the rippling skirt and contrasting bands. She's sure to be the belle of the party whenever she wears it. Bright little appliques bloom all round the hem of the very full skirt—hearts or tulips, whichever you prefer. Taffeta, silk crepe, organdy or batiste are pretty materials for this.

Button-Front Day Dress.

This is a new type of dress that you'll feel particularly well in, and wear endlessly for shopping and runabout. It's very nice to your figure, because it has tucks on the shoulders and just above the waist, to fill out the bustline. The skirt is slim over the hips and slightly flaring. The sleeves are smartly upped at the shoulders. It's a style you'll want right now, in thin wool, a pretty print, or flat crepe—and later on, for summer, in such cottons as gingham or linen.

The Patterns.

No. 1683 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2½ yards of 39 inch material, with 1¼ yards contrasting for applique and bands.

No. 1670 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material with short sleeves; 4¾ yards with long sleeves.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Into the Night

The party was dreadfully dull, and the guests were sitting round, looking and feeling very bored. The hostess, in an attempt to infuse a little pep into the proceedings, said, brightly: "Well, what shall we do next? Does anyone know a really good game we can play?"

"Well," a normally gay young man suggested, "I know a decent guessing game. How do we play? Well, first of all I go out—and everyone spends the rest of the evening trying to guess where I've gone!"

There Are Two Ways to Get at Constipation

Yes, and only two ways—before and after it happens! Instead of enduring those dull, tired, headachy days and then having to take an emergency medicine—why not KEEP regular with Kellogg's All-Bran? You can, if your constipation is the kind millions have—due to the lack of "bulk" in modern diets. For All-Bran goes right to the cause of this trouble by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this toasted nutritious cereal every day—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if your life isn't a whole lot brighter! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

A Friendly Calico Dog

Pattern 6202.

He's made to be hugged—you'll hate to part with him once you've finished him. But you can rest assured the one who gets him—whether he's to be toy or mascot will welcome him. Calico and this pattern that's easy to sew is all you need. You'll want to make a whole litter of them! Pattern 6202 contains a pattern and directions for making dog; materials needed.

To obtain this pattern, send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th St., New York, N. Y.

Beauty Recipe

A newspaper once offered a prize for the best recipe for making the hands beautiful. There was a deluge of answers from which the following was chosen:

"Soak the hands three times a day in dishwater while mother rests."

SAFETY TALKS

Walking on the Highway

IT'S an art, this walking along the highway, and not everybody who does it lives to tell about it afterward. At least a third of the pedestrians fatally injured in rural districts are struck while walking along the roadway, according to figures of the National Safety council. And about two-thirds of these were walking with their backs to approaching traffic.

In many places, sidewalks are being built parallel to the highways to segregate motor and pedestrian traffic, but in places where they aren't yet built, the council has these four suggestions to offer:

2—At night, carry a light.

3—Wear light clothing or at least some article of clothing that's white, to make it easier for the motorist to see you.

4—Walk on the shoulder of the road instead of the pavement, where possible, to keep from forcing cars into the path of oncoming traffic.

These Pictures Tell You What to Do for Amazingly Fast Relief

1. To ease pain and discomfort and reduce fever take 2 Bayer Tablets—drink a glass of water. Repeat in 2 hours.

2. If throat is raw from cold, crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Tablets in ⅓ glass of water . . . gargle.

Just Be Sure You Get Genuine BAYER Aspirin. You Will Feel Better in a Hurry

Try it. Then — see your doctor. He probably will tell you to continue with the Bayer Aspirin because it acts so fast to relieve discomforts of a cold. And to reduce fever.

This simple way, backed by scientific authority, has largely supplanted the use of strong medicines in easing cold symptoms. Perhaps the easiest, most effective way yet discovered. But make sure you get genuine BAYER Aspirin.

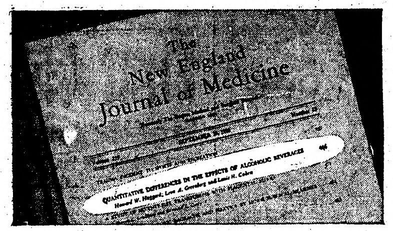
Leading Scientist Finds "That Beer In Reasonable Amounts is Essentially Non-Intoxicating."



The New England Journal of Medicine
Quantitative Differences in the Effects of Alcoholic Beverages
Howard W. Haggard, Leon A. Greenberg and Louis H. Cohen

● Exhaustive scientific tests made by Howard W. Haggard, M. D., Director of the Laboratory of Applied Physiology, Yale University, made valuable contributions to the promotion of sobriety by proving that:

"... 1 to 1½ quarts of beer may be taken at one time on an empty stomach without the concentration of alcohol in the blood exceeding 0.5 milligrams per cubic centimeter. This is the established official test for Norway.

"... after a meal, double these quantities can be taken with the same effect.

"... any one with a concentration of alcohol (in the blood) at or below 0.5 milligrams per cubic centimeter is sober.

"... alcohol, when taken as beer, is absorbed very much slower than when taken as spirits—and the maximum concentration is lower."

BEER PROMOTES PROSPERITY and MODERATION

THE CHERRY CLIMAX COMES IN FEBRUARY

CHERRIES are eaten all year round in this country, including February, but the peak of their consumption probably comes in this famous month not only because it is the month of George Washington's birthday and we are reminded of the story of his truthfulness about the cherry tree, but because "red" is a pretty color to put in party foods for St. Valentine's Day and Lincoln's birthday. A National Cherry Week is held annually, from February fifteenth to February twenty-second, this year, at a time when housewives are interested, too, in putting some fruit into the diet to offset the effects of the necessarily heavier winter foods.

A Thrift Opportunity

With the current sales of canned cherries it is a good time for the thrifty housewife to stock up on a variety of them. There are two principal types of canned cherries—sweet and sour. There are both black and white sweet cherries. Sour cherries are red. The most abundant black sweet cherries are the Bing and Windsor, and the most famous white ones are the Royal Annes. Sour cherries are usually either Richmond or Montmorency. Sweet cherries are canned unpitted. Sour cherries are always canned with the pits removed.

This is a good season, too, to check up on your cherry recipes, and make sure they include some of the best ways of serving these fruits. The sweet cherries are delicious and decorative for use in salads, and the sour are grand for making cherry puddings and also for serving with meats when their tart flavor is needed.

Here are two new cherry recipes which you will be glad to add to your repertoire:

Baked Cherry Pudding: Cream together four tablespoons butter and one cup sugar, add three-fourths cup of milk alternately with the following sifted dry ingredients: one and one-half cups flour, two teaspoons of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Pour into a buttered baking dish. Meanwhile boil together for five minutes the contents of one No. 2 can of pitted red cherries, one-half cup sugar and two teaspoons grated orange rind. Pour this on top of the batter, and bake for about thirty minutes in a medium oven—350 degrees. The dough will rise to the top, the cherries and syrup sink to the bottom forming a sort of sauce. Turn out upside down and serve warm with plenty of cream. This serves eight persons.

Cherry Queen of Puddings: Pour two cups of hot milk over one cup of dry bread crumbs which are fairly fine. Add one-half cup of sugar and two tablespoons butter. Let soak for five minutes. Then add the lightly-beaten yolks of three eggs, and pour into a buttered pudding dish. Bake in a slow oven—275 to 300 degrees—for from forty to fifty minutes, or until a knife, inserted, comes out clean. Meanwhile cook the contents of one No. 2 can of pitted red cherries with three-fourths cup of sugar until the syrup is thick, then cool slightly. When the pudding is done, spread this cherry mixture on top, cover with a meringue made of three egg whites and six tablespoons of sugar. Return to the oven for about fifteen minutes or until the meringue is firm and a delicate brown. Serve cold. This serves eight persons.*

Washington at 25

WHEN George Washington sat for this rare miniature, he was only twenty-five but he was already well on the way toward becoming Virginia's first citizen. His marriage to Martha, the wealthy widow of Daniel Custis, in 1759 and the death of his half brother, Lawrence, made George at twenty-nine perhaps the richest man in Virginia and certainly one of the richest in America. But before that—in his early twenties—he had made his mark as a soldier who could combine reckless courage with thoughtful purpose.

Pioneer School Notes

The eighth grade finished the studying of the Declaration of Independence.

The first grade received new reading books. They all enjoy reading about Dick and Jane.

The seventh grade has finished the study "Rip Van Winkle". They have memorized "Silver" by De La Mare and "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer.

Because of the small attendance last week due to cold weather, we did not have our Citizen League Club.

Francis Johnson was an all morning visitor at our school on Friday.

Those that have received 100 in spelling are: Elaine Johnson, Joyce Movick, Marilyn Movick, Lawrence Folden.

The lower grades memorized the poem "The Swing."

The middle grade memorized the poem "Barefoot Boy".

The recent heavy snow storm and northwest winds put so much snow on our main street that a crew of men with a truck were put to work to haul most of the snow away this week.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Severson on Monday evening, a boy.

DOG BEGS PENNIES MAKES OWN PURCHASES

Preston—Owned by the Adolph Brown family at Lanesboro is a fox terrier named "Pooch" who is a precocious dog to say the least. Mrs. Brown relates an instance several months ago at Lanesboro where most of the confectionery and grocery store clerks know Pooch and what to take out of the candy cases when he comes in with a penny. "There wasn't anyone but the clerk in a store when the dog entered, and dropped a penny on the floor in front of the candy case," she said. "A woman then entered, and the clerk ignored the dog to wait on her. The dog picked up the penny in its teeth, and trotted out the door and down the street to another store where the purchase was negotiated." "We know the story is true because it was told to us by the clerk who waited on the woman, although the dog was the next in line."

WHEN THEY DRANK THEY REALLY DRANK

Sleepy Eye—Chief of police Gene Clark says "Maybe there weren't so many women drinking back in the old days, but when they drank they drank. He proves his contention by showing an 1879 newspaper account of an accident which a drunken woman lay down on a railroad track near Winona, went to sleep, and was awakened only when a locomotive cut off one leg. Mr. Clark found the paper, an issue of the Minneapolis Weekly, dated June 20, 1879, between walls of his dwelling while remodeling the interior.

Commissioner Arthur Anderson offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Be it resolved that the Summary Statements, filing numbers, No. 358 and 359 for the expenditures of the County Highways be hereby approved and the Superintendent of Highways is hereby authorized to issue time checks in the following amounts: C. A. R. Maintenance $1,005.60, S. A. R. Maintenance $1,061.80.

Commissioner J. J. Pagnac seconded the motion and the same being put, was duly carried.

Motion was made by J. J. Pagnac that we accept the offer of Chas. Wandersee of $5.74 in settlement of Personal property tax judgments entered Nov. 22, 1937, and Nov. 29, 1938.

Motion was seconded by A. W. Sommers and duly carried.

Motion was made by Commissioner A. W. Sommers that we accept the offer of A. L. Thompson of $100.00 in satisfaction of personal property tax judgments docketed Nov. 24, 1936, May 5, 1937, and Nov. 29, 1938.

Motion was seconded by Arthur Anderson and duly carried.

Commissioner Arthur Anderson offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Whereas, Marshall County is constructing seventy miles of road within the county and also graveling seventy miles of additional road within the county with PWA money under the supervision of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads.

And, whereas, the Bureau of Public Roads requires Reflectorized Crossbuck Home Signs and Reflectorized Advance Warning Signs at all railroad crossings.

And, Whereas, the law requires the railroads to furnish the reflectorized signs at these various crossings.

Now, therefore, be it resolved that the County Board of Marshall County petition the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission to cause the Great Northern and Soo Line Railroads to install these signs at the following locations:

Two of each at the NW Cor. Sec. 4, Town 154, R. 50.

Two of each at the NW Cor. Sec. 3, Town 154, R. 50.

Two of each at the NW Cor. Sec. 5, Town 154, R. 49.

Two of each at the NW Cor. Sec. 6, Town 154, R. 48.

Two of each at the NE Cor. Sec. 25, Town 155, R. 47.

Two of each at the NW Cor. Sec. 29, T. 157, R. 44.

Two of each between Sections 22 and 27, T. 156, R. 48.

Two of each at the NW Cor. Sec. 11, Town 158, R. 43.

The above to be erected by the Great Northern Railroad.

Commissioner Gunsten Skomedal seconded the motion and the same being put, was duly carried.

Commissioner A. W. Sommers offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The County of Marshall has established a large number of gas tax roads and has recently entered into a contract under a P. W. A. grant for the grading anu graveling of 70 miles additional gas tax road, the construction of which is now under way, and,

WHEREAS, It will be difficult for the County of Marshall to maintain its gas tax roads and fulfill the county's part of the obligation in the P. W. A. project for the construction and graveling of said 70 miles additional gas tax roads if the gas tax is cut;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the Board of County Commissioners of the County of Marshall that we urge the members of the State Legislature to again enact a law providing for a 4c gas tax.

Commissioner Gunsten Skomedal seconded the motion and the same being put, was duly carried.

Commissioner A. W. Sommers offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, That $1,000.00 be appropriated to the Marshall County Agricultural Association to be used for the purpose of advertising the agricultural resources of the county through 4-H Club work and other methods.

Commissioner Gunsten Skomedal seconded the motion and the same being put, was duly carried.

Commissioner J. J. Pagnac offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, that the sum of $5,000.00 be transferred from the Road and Bridge Fund to the General Revenue Fund, and the sum of $1,000.00 be transferred from the General Revenue Fund to the Forfeited Tax Sale Fund.

Commissioner A. W. Sommers seconded the motion and the same being put, was duly carried.

The following applications were laid over: Harold Hvidsten, Wanger; and Gust A. Johnson, Comstock.

Motion was made and carried that meeting adjourn to Tuesday, March 7, 1939 A. D. at 10 o'clock A. M.

Attest: Levi G. Johnson, County Auditor,
Ole Bergman, Chairman County Board of Commissioners.

LEGAL SIZE HIGHWAY LOADS ARE DEFINED

It is illegal to move a vehicle on the highways of Minnesota that is wider, with or without load, than eight feet, higher than 12 feet six inches or that has an "over all" length of more than 40 feet, and drivers violating this law are subject to arrest under the Uniform Traffic code.

In certain instances permits are given for moving loads that are greater than the above specifications, such as heavy construction equipment and the like. These permits, issued by the Minnesota Highway department, however, in most instances specify at what hours and over what roads such equipment may be moved.

Farm implements and ricks of loose materials like hay, straw, and corn stalks do not come under the aforementioned limitations if the material is hauled by team or tractor. If hauled by a truck the load must conform.

For necessary economic reasons, pulpwood haulers in the timber country, are granted special permits to haul loads of pulpwood wider than eight feet as the standard length of a stick of pulpwood is 100 inches and mill machinery is geared only to take that length. Wisconsin and New York are two states known to great similar permits.

Loads can only extend two feet ahead of a front wheel or front bumper, regardless of their length, according to the law.

Overly wide, long or high loads tempt serious accidents and the patrol of the Minnesota Highway department is forced daily to apprehend drivers who ignore the width, height and length law.

NEW TOWER AT TWO RIVERS STATE PARK

Construction is under way of a new stone water and outlook tower at Two Rivers State Park at Bronson. The outlook tower will give the thousands of visitors at the new park on the shores of the artificial Lake Floyd Olson, a view of the entire countryside, and the self-contained water tank will furnish a water supply for picnickers.

One of Minnesota's newest parks, Two Rivers has increased tremendously in popularity, and thousands of people from Minnesota, North Dakota, and Canada have enjoyed outings there every summer Sunday as well as week days.

The new lake is the result of a dam constructed with the cooperation of the state division of drainage and waters and federal agencies, and was built primarily to hold a supply of water for the adjacent villages. Located in an otherwise lakeless area of the state, the place became so popular that a state park was established there. Improvements are made with the cooperation of the Works Progress Administration.

Mecklenberg To Speak at Warren

Illustrated Lecture on "Tragedies of Europe" To Feature Short Course Program

An illustrated lecture on "The Tragedies of Europe" by Dr. George M. Mecklenberg, pastor of Wesley Methodist Church, Minneapolis, will feature the Friday evening program of the 16th annual Farmers Short Course in Warren at the high school auditorium which will be held February 17 and 18.

Doctor Mecklenberg is a nationally known lecturer and traveler, and each year he fulfills speaking engagements from coast to coast. During the past summer, Dr. Mecklenberg travelled extensively in Germany, Austria, and Czechoslovakia and took thousands of feet of motion pictures in color which he will use in his lecture at Warren next week.

The 1939 mid-winter farmers event will include the Great Northern Farm Day on February 17, when four cars of exhibits showing the use of fertilizers, equipment, potato production and grasshopper control will be open during the day. In the afternoon a program composed of scientific discussions will take place in the high school auditorium.

Two programs will be presented on Saturday afternoon, the women's program featuring an address on "Women of Russia" by Dr. John A. Bekker of Moorhead State Teachers College. The men's afternoon program will feature a discussion on "New Varieties of Wheat" by R. S. Dunham, agronomist of the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, and a discussion by W. J. Durbahn, Angus farmer, who recently attended a National Wheat Conference in Washington as a delegate from the spring wheat area and who will speak on the future of the AAA.

The Saturday evening program will be presented by the faculty and students of the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, and will also include an address by T. M. McCall, superintendent of the Crookston school, who will speak on "Trends in Agriculture." Farm clubs from the Warren community will close the short course with a number of stunts.

In addition to the platform programs, the annual Marshall County Grain and Seed Show in which farmers will compete for premiums totaling $60.00 will be in progress during the short course. Farmers throughout the Northwest are invited to participate in this seed show.

HIGH PRESSURE COLLECTION METHODS OF LOAN SHARKS

Miss D, employed in a clerical position, has for years been the main support of her invalid mother and sister. Because of the many doctor bills she was forced to seek a loan to meet some of these obligations. She went to a small loan company in St. Paul from which she borrowed $20. Later she took out a second loan for the same amount and a third one for $25 on which she was to repay $3.25 twice a month for six months, making a total repayment of $39. Within a few months this latter loan was renewed for $25 and again five months later was renewed into a fifth loan, this time for $30 on which she was to repay a total of $46.56. When Miss D consulted the attorney of Family Service regarding the $34.92 the Loan Company claimed was due it was discovered that she already had paid more than the principal and legal interest due on these loans. Miss D was advised that the Finance Company was trying to collect a usurious rate of interest.

When Miss D upon legal advice refused to make further payments to the Loan Company the following quotations were received in a letter from the Loan Company by Miss D's aged mother on a letter head carrying the phrase, "Walk Half a Flight and Be Treated Right."

"Dear Mrs. D

Your daughter, Alice, borrowed $30 on November 16, 1936, with her promise to repay us within six months. To date she has only paid $11.64 on the account and will not pay us any more; knowing that we cannot garnishee her at the (X Company) and with the help of one of her friends at work, has offered us one dollar in full settlement of this statement, and has also taken a very sarcastic attitude toward us. Is this an honest way of doing business Mrs. D or does your church teach this sort of thing? She has not only done this with us but with two other companies in the city and only a short time ago tried to stick a fourth company for $100.

Mrs. D, what we are trying to convey to you is that, do you want your good name and that of the other members of your good family tainted by your daughter, Alice? If not please see that she stops this sort of racket and have her reimburse us, and other companies the money we gave her."

The attorney for Family Service's Legal Aid Department took Miss D's case to court to fight it on the ground of usury. The Manager of the Loan Company promptly pleaded to have the case dismissed, thus obviously indicating his knowledge of the fact that he was charging an exorbitant and illegal rate of interest.

It is to correct such abuses that the Legislature has been asked to pass a Small Loan Bill.

Public Health Association to Meet

A meeting of the Marshall County Public Health Association will be held at 1:30 P. M., on the 17th day of February, in the Probate Court Rooms at the Court House in Warren. The purpose of the meeting will be to elect officers and to plan a public health project for the county for the present year. This meeting is of general public interest, and all persons interested in promoting public health should attend.—Nels M. Engen, Secretary.

FLIGHT TRAINING FOR 20 STUDENTS OFFERED AT "U"

Minneapolis—Those whose memories go back twenty years or more to the stupendous efforts of 1917 and 1918 to train young men in every useful technique, from bread baking and tinsmithing to aviation ground work are now reading that the Civil Aviation Authority is financing the flight training of 20 student aviators at the University of Minnesota.

During the past week some 370 university undergraduates underwent physical examinations at the health service, and from among them twenty were chosen for immediate training and fifty more were placed on the reserve list. Actual flight training was to begin February 8, and the University of Minnesota will dispense money provided by the Civil Aviation Authority to pay for the flight training of the aviators in private aviation schools.

The University of Minnesota was selected as one of the six institutions in the country with an outstanding course in aeronautical engineering. The course, directed by Professor John D. Akerman, who was a Latvian flyer in the World War, has hitherto been restricted to ground training, and Minnesota has not departed from that policy. At the request of the government, however, the flight training outside the regular curriculum has been arranged.

Students who enroll pay a $30 incidental fee, but not the cost of flight training. The training will be completed by the end of the college year. Students will have eight hours of dual control instruction, plus nine hours of dual check-time, followed by 18 hours of solo flying. These will be arranged in the order calculated to bring about the best results.

Edward J. Noble, chairman of the Civil Aviation Authority, has informed President Guy Stanton Ford that the course should be started and carried through with all possible speed.

ATTORNEY GENERAL HOLDS 21 LEGAL AGE FOR BOTH MEN AND WOMEN

Twenty-one years is the legal age of majority for both men and women in Minnesota, according to a ruling by Attorney General J. A. A. Burnquist. Burnquist's decision is a reversal of former decisions by his predecessors in the attorney general's office.

Atty. General Burnquist said that under a Supreme Court decision, as handed down Jan. 20th, the age of 21 is the legal age for marriage for both men and women, and Clerk of Court A. C. Swandby has been advised not to issue marriage licenses to persons of either sex under the age of 21 without the consent of parent or guardian. Eighteen formerly was considered a woman's legal age as far as requirements for marriage were concerned, whereas the new ruling gives 21 as the legal age of majority for both sexes.

TWO WARREN YOUNG MEN ARE GIVEN PRISON SENTENCES

An indeterminate sentence in a state penal institution was meted out to two Warren young men, Kermit Olson and Canton Bergstrom by District Judge J. E. Montague at Crookston Monday night when they pleaded guilty to a charge of third degree burglary.

Early Sunday morning when Chief Ted Heyen was making his rounds in the business district, Heyen flashed his light into Bakke's Sweet Shop and found the two rifling the cash register. The boys made a dash to the back door, but Heyen had already identified them, but met one as he was leaving through the rear entrance.

The boys gained entrance into the cafe through the front door, Kermit having gone to his home, taking a key for the establishment from his brother's pocket, his brother being an employee of the cafe. Kermit's brother was sleeping at the time.

Sheriff Toftner will take the boys to St. Cloud this week where they will begin their sentence. Several other local crimes are being traced to the two young men.—Sheaf.

"U" EXPERTS TALK ON HOUSING THEME

Minnesota, producing a tremendous range of building materials that includes lumber, various wallboards, cement, granite, limestone, artificial roofings, sash and door products, along with other millwork, and nails and wire, will be interested in the series of four lectures on housing that are being given during February at the University of Minnesota.

Sigma Xi, an honorary scientific society which each winter conducts a series of four lectures on scientific subjects, has selected "Man and His House" as this year's theme. Last week Professor Roy Jones, head of the department of architecture, delivered the first talk, entitled, "Every Man's House". This week's lecture by Professor Frank B. Rowley, expert on insulation and heat transmission, will deal with, "Housing and Climate". On February 17, Professor Robert Jones will make the third address, "Housing and the Expanding City," discussing the relation of the home to a city plan, and as the last talk, Professor Frederic Bass, head of the department of civil engineering, will speak on, "Housing and the Construction Industry."

The lectures are open to the public and free. They are given in Northrop Auditorium at 8:15 P. M. each Friday.

T. B. Survey Planned for Schools

Staff members of Oakland Park Sanitarium will inaugurate a tuberculosis survey in all schools of Marshall county to begin about March 1st, preliminary plans for the survey being made at a meeting of the executive committee of the Marshall County Red Cross chapter held Tuesday evening at Warren. All pupils as well as teachers in the schools of the county will be given the Mantoux test for tuberculosis in the coming survey.

Washington's Home Is Tribute To Conscientious Workmanship

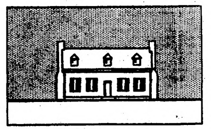
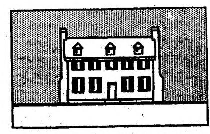
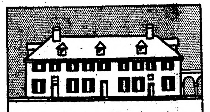
Long before America's current "planned economists" were born, George Washington was carrying out a careful program of expansion and development at his beloved estate, Mount Vernon, Va. This national shrine (above) stands in tribute to the nation's first President, whose birthday anniversary is being observed locally and throughout the United States.



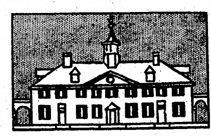
In 1757, George Washington inherited the above story-and-a-half house from his half-brother, Lawrence, who had named it Mount Vernon Villa. This was the nucleus from which he was to build today's Mount Vernon.



In 1759, George Washington married the Widow Custis and in her honor the roof was raised a full story, though the same architectural lines were preserved. In 1774 a right wing was added, and a covered walk in 1775.



In 1776 the left wing was added, giving the home a mansion appearance. Even during the Revolution George Washington reaffirmed his faith in the infant nation by continuing his program of expansion at Mount Vernon.



In 1787 came the crowning achievement, a cupola that gave Mount Vernon an added air of distinction. Meanwhile the grounds had also been improved. Note in the top photograph how a perfect symmetry was maintained.

Typical of Mount Vernon's simple yet elegant interior is the famous banquet hall, where hangs the famous portrait, "The Unknown." This is thought to have been made of Washington at the order of Governor Dinwiddie of Virginia, in recognition of his services in the French and Indian war. Dinwiddie disposed of the portrait upon learning his protege had joined the Revolution. Left: The equestrian statue of Washington standing in the Williamsburg bridge plaza, New York.

MARCH 1 DEADLINE FOR SPRING WHEAT INSURANCE

Growers of spring wheat who want to insure their 1939 harvests under the "all-risk" wheat crop insurance program must have their applications on file in County AAA offices by March 1, Leroy E. Smith, manager of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, announced today.

The deadline on spring wheat insurance applications will bring the national sign-up of applications to a close. Application-taking ended during the fall months for the various winter wheat areas, and as of January 16, a total of 279,560 applications had been reported to the Corporation from 30 states. Included in this total are approximately 71,800 applications already received in the principal spring wheat states and 206,753 from winter wheat states.

No final date has been set for receipt of premium payments from spring wheat growers, Mr. Smith said. The policies, under which growers may insure up to 75 per cent of their average yield against unavoidable losses, do not go into effect until the crop has been planted and the premium is paid.

The January 16 report of the Corporation showed that 112,583 growers, principally in the winter states, had paid the premiums due on their policies. The wheat reserve of the Corporation, accumulated as growers pay in premiums, had reached 3,436,000 bushels.

HOTEL GUEST NOT SATISFIED WITH MERE SPRINGS IN BED

Red Wing—If there's a Red Wing hotel supplying spring water, a Minneapolis resident is interested in staying there. The secretary of the Chamber of Commerce receives numerous odd requests, but one on information about hotels with spring water takes top place for oddity. The writer said he is bringing a guest with him to stay a number of days in Red Wing, but because of a stomach trouble the guest must drink spring water. The secretary wrote that there are numerous springs in the Red Wing vicinity, but none of the hotels has spring water on tap. Then he inserted a plug for Red Wing artesian water, which, like an advertised brand of soap, is 99.99 per cent pure.

OLDEST BARBER CUTS HAIR BLINDFOLDED

Northfield—H. Telford Budd, already known from one end of the country to the other as the oldest active barber in the United States, set out to prove that this barbering business is just second nature to him after more than sixty-eight years in the trade. It was appropriate that his customer in this unique demonstration in skill should be Riley Rice, for it was just thirty-five years ago that Tel cut Riley's hair for the first time. Consequently, Tel was blindfolded and he trimmed up Riley's hair in exactly the same style he wore in 1903.

WOMAN INJURED, CAR STARTS FIRE IN AUTO-TRUCK CRASH

Failure to stop at a "STOP" sign at the intersection of Highway No. 1 and 75 resulted in a crash which caused serious injury to Mrs. George Kluzak of Lankin, N. D., and a call to the Warren Fire Department to put out a small fire in the light Kluzak truck which became ignited after the crash Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Kluzak were driving east on Highway No. 1, but didn't notice the "STOP" sign on Highway No. 75. A big semi-trailer truck operated by the Elsholz lines was being driven north on Highway No. 75, a through route, the Kluzak light truck crashing into the side of the big truck. Kluzak's light truck was badly wrecked in the accident, while considerable damage was done to the freight truck.

Mrs. Kluzak was rushed to the Warren hospital where she is suffering from internal injuries, the extent of which is still indefinite. Reports from the hospital this afternoon stated that she is resting nicely. Mr. Kluzak received only minor injujries as a result of the crash.—Sheaf.

FARLEY TOWNSHIP FARM HAND FOUND FROZEN TO DETH

An inquest into the death of a man known only as Steve who was found frozen to death in Farley township Saturday morning may be instituted tomorrow by Polk county officials.

In an investigation Saturday Polk county officials learned only that the man's first name is Steve and that for the past year he had been employed by Joe Midlar, Farley township farmer.

Polk county authorities learned that Midlar and Steve had gone to Warren Friday with a team of horses hitched to a trailer. Enroute home in the early evening the trailer broke down and Midlar unhitched the horses and took the team to his home, leaving Steve and the trailer.

When Steve had failed to return by Saturday morning, Midlar took a stone boat and went to find his assistant. He found the body about 200 feet from the place where he had left him Friday, and took the body to a neighbor's house. Midlar told county officials that Steve was still alive when he found him, but county authorities doubt that the man had lived through the night.—Sheaf.

TWO CHICAGO VISITORS MISTAKEN FOR BANDITS

Sleepy Eye—Norbert Piertrus of Sleepy Eye and Urban Fecker of Springfield know how it feels to have a gun poked in their ribs in earnest. It all happened in Chicago last week where the two men were mistaken for two of the Windy City's underworld characters. While in the loop district Mr. Pietrus and Mr. Fecker stopped in a candy store to make a purchase. Unknown to them a candy store in the vicinity had been held up and robbed a short time before by a man who wore an overcoat similar to the one worn by Mr. Pietrus and who was about his stature. Suspecting the two men, the waitress flashed an alarm to police who followed the men from the candy store and finally commanded them to "throw up your hands". After showing identification cards, the men were permitted to go their way and the officers left them to continue their search for the real bandit.

STATION W L B NOTES

More than 17,000 students in schools of all grades are listening to the WLB programs of the Minnesota School of the Air, broadcast by the University of Minnesota.

These broadcasts consist of seven different subjects, Representative Authors, Current Events, Guidance for the Future Worker, Episodes in American History, Old Tales and New From Many Lands, Travel Talks, Dental Health, French and German programs.

In addition to the classroom broadcasts, the Minnesota School of the Air offers organized instructional programs for the general public, such as lectures on Music Appreciation, Child Welfare, and Political Science. A number of these are adaptable for classroom use also. The lectures will run for fifteen weeks commencing February 6, and will be heard at 11:05 A. M. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and at 2:05 P. M. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday.

MINNESOTA IS AT TOP IN LOWERING HIGHWAY DEATHS LAST 5 YEARS

In the face of an increase in miles traveled by motor vehicle, Minnesota reduced its traffic death total in 1938, although at first glance several states in its class appear to have better accident records if the year's decrease figures are taken alone.

However, a survey of traffic fatality totals in the Minnesota department files for the past five years places Minnesota in the "top flight" in traffic safety. During that period its traffic death rate has consistently been considerably under the national average.

An examination of safety records discloses that, while some states had a greater percentage of decrease in traffic fatalities in 1938, it was because their death rate in 1937 was so much higher than Minnesota's fatality rate, according to W. F. Rosenwald, traffic engineer of the Minnesota Highway department. In the majority of instances those with a greater decrease from 1937 to 1939 still have a higher death rate than Minnesota's.

Comparing 1938 with 1934, traffic fatalities in the state have decreased 3.5 per cent in number despite a 26.5 per cent increase in motor vehicle travel. Based on gas consumption the death rate declined 23.4 per cent for the five year period—a mark few states can boast.

A three year review of the statistics show that in 1936, 649 persons died on the streets and highways of the state, a rate of 13.9 persons for each 10 million gallons of gas consumed; in 1937, 630 perished, a rate of 12.8 persons for each 10 million gallons of gas; while in 1939 figures reveal that 619 were killed in traffic smashes for a rate of 12.1 persons for each 10 million gallons of gasoline burned.

In short, Minnesota had a "head start" on the majority of states in traffic safety—and, according to Mr. Rosenwald, intends to keep in the van in that field if it receives the continued vital aid of the various safety groups and the driving and walking public.

Walter Rancour Burned to Death

Charred Remains Brought to Argyle For Burial, Funeral Services Held Wednesday

Walter Rancour, 31, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Rancour of Argyle, was burned to death when fire destroyed a bunkhouse in which he was sleeping, early Sunday morning at Little Fork, south of International Falls.

Walter had been in the employ of Dan Corrivean at Little Fork since last fall working on a portable sawmill. When they had finished work Saturday and had supper, Walter and a son of Corrivean went to a bunkhouse on the farm to sleep for the night. They sat and talked until midnight when Corrivean decided to go to an adjoining bunkhouse to change clothes and after he got there decided to sleep by himself.

It is thought that the fire that destroyed the bunkhouse occupied by Rancour started from the stove. Foot prints of bare feet found in the snow outside the bunkhouse door indicated that Rancour had been aroused by the fire and rushed outside. His suitcase containing all his clothes and some money was under the bed, and it is supposed he went back in to save the suitcase and was overcome by smoke. His body, charred almost beyond recognition, was found partly under the bed with one hand grasping the suitcase.

When a message was received here telling of the tragic death, Mr. and Mrs. Henry and Albert Rancour left Sunday night for Little Fork and returned Monday with the charred remains.

Walter Rancour was born September 7th, 1907, at Kenmare, N. D., and came to Argyle when his parents moved here in 1919, and had since made his home here, though for the past two years he had found employment away from home.

Surviving with the aged parents to mourn his tragic death are seven brothers, Aruther, Albert, Clifford, Henry, Lloyd, Russell and Vernon, all of Argyle, and three sisters, (Rose) Mrs. Dave Dupont of Mamel, Minn.; (Sadie) Mrs. L. J. Hutmaker of Melrose, Minn. and Bernice at home.

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at 10:00 o'clock at St. Rose of Lima Catholic Church with Father Henry Rousseau officiating. Interment was made in St. Rose of Lima cemetery. Pall bearers were six brothers of the deceased: Arthur, Albert, Clifford, Henry, Lloyd, and Vernon Rancour.

Those from out of town attending the funeral were Mrs. L. J. Hutmaker, of Melrose, Minn.; Edward Bolduc and daughters Adeline and Blanche, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Bolduc and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Rynerson of Stephen.—Argyle Banner.

So. St. Paul—William Schweigel wondered for a few minutes one day recently whether he might not have shot a deer, even though he aimed at a rabbit. While hunting near Anoka, Schweigel pulled the trigger on a bounding cotton-tail. But he didn't know whether to pick it up or not. Protruding from between the ears were a pair of three-inch "horns" with seven antler points—not at all unlike those of a deer.

Houston—Nationalities have been confused again, this time in the case of a popular game, Chinkercheck, or Chinese Checkers, according to the Rev. George V. P. Shepard, LaCrosse. "It isn't Chinese at all—it's Swedish", he insists. The current game is almost identical with the old Swedish game of "Helma" and makes use of the same kind of board and the rules are approximately identical.

EXPLAINS HOW FARMERS EARN PAYMENTS UNDER 1939 FARM PROGRAM

Farmers who participate in the 1939 farm program will earn payment by following agricultural conservation practices and from price adjustment payments on certain crops, points out Tom Howard, Chairman of the agricultural conservation committee.

The agricultural conservation payment of a typical farm in the Red River Valley might come from keeping within wheat, potato, general soil-depleting allotments, and from a price adjustment payment on wheat.

To demonstrate how the operator of a typical Red River Valley farm might earn his payment in 1939, Mr. Howard has set up a sample farm.

Mr. D is a farmer in a commercial potato county. He runs a 320-acre farm, of which 275 acres are cropland and 45 acres non-tillable pasture and wasteland. Mr. D has 195 acres in his total soil-depleting allotment. His wheat allotment is 80 acres, his potato allotment 20 acres, and his general soil-depleting allotment 95 acres. In 1939 Mr. D will grow 20 acres of alfalfa, 40 acres of sweet clover and will summer-fallow 20 acres. Cropland in excess of the total soil-depleting allotment totals 80 acres, which, multiplied by 50 cents (the rate of payment on soil-conserving crops) gives him his soil-building allowance of $40. To earn this, he must put into effect 27 soil-building practice units (80 times 50 cents times two-thirds). The per cent of productivity for the farm is 110, the normal yield of potatoes 120 bushels, and the normal yield of wheat 12 bushels per acre.

With this set-up, Mr. D can estimate his 1939 payment as follows:

Agricultural Conservation Payment:
80 (wheat allotment) times 12 (normal yield) times 17 cents (rate of wheat payment ........ $163.20
20 (potato allotment) times 120 (normal yield) times 3 cents (rate of potato payment) ........ 72.00
95 (general soil-depleting allotment) times 110 (per cent of productivity) times $1.10 (rate of payment) 127.05
Soil-building allowance of $40 40.00
Maximum Agricultural Conservation Payment ........ 402.25
Price Adjustment Payment (approximate):
80 (wheat allotment) times 12 (normal yield) times 12 cents (price adjustment payment on wheat) .. 115.20

Mr. D's total estimated payment would be $517.45 (adding the maximum agricultural conservation payment of $402.25 to the approximate price adjustment payment of $115.20). Marshall County farmers will receive allotments and percentage of productivity for their farms in the near future. By using their own figures for the above method of estimating payments, they may estimate individual payments for maximum performance in the program.

Olaus Racine Olson Called

The people of this community were shocked on Sunday morning to hear of the death of Racine Olson of Thief River Falls. Mr. Olson was a former resident of this village having spent many years here operating an auto repair shop as president of the village council and for many years as chief engineer of the village light plant.

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday from the Trinity Lutheran church at Thief River Falls with Rev. R. M. Fjelstad of that city officiating assisted by Rev. T. C. L. Hanson of Holt. Burial was made in the Ridge cemetery at Holt. Many people from Holt attended the services. Larson Funeral Home had charge of arrangements.

Olaus Racine Olson was born at Newfolden on March 18, 1886. He passed away at St. Lukes hospital at Thief River Falls on Saturday, Feb. 18, at the age of 53 years and 11 months.

He lived at Newfolden until 1911 when he moved to Holt. He spent 16 years here before moving to Thief River Falls in 1927 where he has since been in the garage business. He was married at Holt in 1915 to Esther Mickelson. To this union two children were born, Marcella and Raymond. Esther passed away in 1919 leaving him alone with the two small children.

On June 30, 1921 he was married to Miss Hazel Barnes. To this union were born two sons, Robert and James.

He is survived by his wife, his aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul T. Olson of Holt, one daughter, Marcella of Fargo, N. D., three sons Raymond, Robert and James at home. Two brothers, and three sisters. Arthur C. Olson, and Mrs. Olaf R. Erickson of Newfolden, Miss Dorothy Olson and Mrs. K. O. Tideman of Fargo, and Theodore Olson of Spooner.

The News and people of this community extend their sympathy to the bereaved family.

Geo. Fricker is spending this week in Minneapolis on business.

Mrs. L. Wegge and Miss H. Boethin visited at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Hanson Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hanson visited at the G. Sanoden home Friday evening.

Mrs. Lars Ring and daughter visited at the Hartley Peterson home Monday afternoon.

Orlene Hagglund and Lucille Horien were week end guests at the H. O. Hanson home.

T. B. Survey To Be Held Here

A schedule of dates for Marshall county's public school tuberculosis survey during which period the Mantoux test will be given to all school children, teachers and employees, was announced today by Dr. Baldwin Borreson, superintendent of Oakland Park Sanatorium.

Doctor Borreson assisted by Miss Margaret Hessburg, R. N., sanatorium field nurse will give the tests throughout the county, the first test to be given at Stephen on March 6 with the final test to be given for Marshall county students in the Thief River Falls area on May 1.

The test will be given on Mondays, with readings on Wednesdays, while those having positive reactions will be transported to to the Sanatorium at Thief River Falls on Saturdays when X-ray pictures will be taken to locate the infection, said Miss Hessburg who was in Warren Monday making arrangements for the survey.

The survey is being made possible in the county by the Marshall County Red Cross Chapter which organization will be assisted by the Marshall County Public Health association if favorable action is taken at the latter organization here Friday afternoon.

"The Mantoux Tuberculin Test is a simple harmless skin test by which we can tell whether or not any person, child or adult, has ever received germs of Tuberculosis into their body", said Miss Hessburg. "If the test is Positive the person should have an X-ray examination immediately to find out if any damage has been done to the lungs. Tuberculosis is often found in persons who least suspect they have it".

The test will be available to all who wish to take it, but the main purpose is to check on possible Tubercular infections in all school employees and children in the county.

Bus transportation will be provided to take the Positive reactors to the Sanatorium for their X-rays. This service is free to the children, but adults showing a positive reaction to the test and wish an X-ray at the Sanatorium will have to pay the usual fee of $2.00 for their X-ray. There is no charge for the Mantoux test.

Teachers and parents, we ask your cooperation to arrange to have your children present at the closest point at the hour stated, Miss Hessburg urged. The following schedule sets the time for the test, reading of the test, and date when the X-ray will be taken if this is found necessary:

Holt, 1:00 p. m. - April 17, April 19, April 22.

Gatzke, 9:00 a. m. - April 24, April 26, April 29.

Horien & Sons Win Prizes

C. E. Horien and Sons, local farmers and dairymen, won high honors at the Red River Valley Winter Shows at Crookston last week. Their entry included a number of Guernsey cattle and were awarded the following places:

Guernsey, male senior calf, 1st; Male junior calf, 3rd; Cow 3 years or over, 2nd; Heifer, junior yearling, 1st; Heifer senior calf, 1st; Heifer, junior calf, 4th; Calf herd, 2nd; Get of sire, 1st; Produce of cow, 2nd.

Sunnyside School Notes

We did not have school Monday on account of blocked roads and cold weather.

Many beautiful valentines were exchanged at our valentine party last Tuesday.

Milton Conklin acted as postmaster. Lois Larson and Betty Swan were mail carriers. We were surprised and delighted with the valentines Joyce Johnson of Pioneer sent us and we are hoping that she will soon be well.

Carrol Ness and Ethel Larson sent valentines to us all which we also enjoyed.

Mrs. Peterson presented us with valentine candy.

The eighth grade studied Lincoln's "Gettysburg's Address" and Whitman's "Captain, My Captain" last week.

Mrs. Peterson attended institute at Warren last Thursday and Friday.

The Sixth graders are enjoying the story about Robin Hood.

We are sorry to report that Alfred Larson has been on the sick list the past two weeks.

We received a good bat and and dairies for selling Christmas seals.

Pioneer School Notes

Last week Fern Sagstuen, LaVerne and Marion Johnson visited with us on Monday afternoon.

We had a short program on Monday for Lincoln's birthday. Original stories were read. We also sang patriotic songs.

The Citizen League club had their semi-monthly meeting. The new officers elected were: President, Boyd Wilson, Vice President, Donald Skjerping and Secretary, Eloise Saugstad.

On Tuesday we had our valentine party. The postmistress was Yvonne Johnson. The helpers were Lorraine Skjerping, Joyce Movick, Willis Skjerping, Wilma Movick. A short program was given, the pupils told original stories about a valentine picture. We are sorry that some of the pupils were absent because of illness.

The pupils had a two day vacation because of institute.

Those having 100 in Spelling last Wednesday were: Keith Movick (First graders are now having spelling. They made little valentine spelling booklets), Eloise Saugstad, Isabella Tweten Joyce Movick.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been stormy and cold. We have had some days of nice sunshine but cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Schade of Goodridge spent the week end at the home of Rev. and Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson.

Emergency Crop And Feed Loans

Applications for emergency crop and feed loans for 1939 are now being received at Warren Co. Agents Office by O. T. Johnson, Field Supervison of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration.

The loans will be made as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain credit from any other source. The money loaned will be limited to farmer's immediate and actual cash needs for growing his 1939 crops or for the purchase of feed for livestock.

Farmers who can obtain the funds they need from an individual, production credit association, bank, or other concern are not elegible for crop and feed loans from the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration. The loans will not be made to standard rehabilitation clients whose current needs are provided for by the Farm Security Administration, formerly known as the Resettlement Administration.

As in the past, farmers who obtain emergency crop and feed loans will give as security a first lien on the crop financed, or a first lien on the livestock to be fed if the money borrowed is to be used to produce or purchase feed for livestock.

Where loans are made to tenants, the landlords or others having an interest in the crops financed or the livestock to be fed, are required to waive their claims in favor of a lien to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration until the loan is repaid.

Checks in payment of approved loans will be mailed from the Regional Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office at St. Paul, Minnesota.

The church basement of the Nazareth Lutheran church was well filled on Wednesday evening when the first meeting of a series of special Lenten services was held. A large number of young people attended.

Luth. Free Church Bible Camp

Plans are now well under way for a Bible Camp to be sponsored by the Thief River Falls Circuit of the Lutheran Free Church. The project was definitely accepted at the Luther League Convention at Greenbush last June, and the following men appointed a Committee for Investigations and preparations: Pastor Morris Eggen, Wannaska; Pastor G. P. Ronholm, Newfolden, Chairman, Mr. Albert Gudim, Newfolden. and Mr. Alfred Bredeson, Thief River Falls.

The above named committee met at the home of Pastor and Mrs. Ronholm at Newfolden on Monday Feb. 6th to work out details in connection with the project.

The camp will be in session June 20-25th at Warren. The Mission Covenant people of the Circuit who own the Camp Site and auditorium there, have very kindly consented to rent it, and this offers a most satisfactory and pleasant situation. The Camp set-up, according to present plans, include:

Camp Manager - Pastor Morris Eggen, Wannaska.

Recreational Director - Russel Quanbeck, Augsburg College, Minneapolis.

Dean of Women - Miss Lenorah I. Erickson, Badger.

Dean of Men - Pastor G. P. Ronholm, Newfolden.

Bible teachers - Pastor J. Ringstad, Northwood, N. Dak. and Evangelist Eddy M. Berg, Malung.

Evangelistic services - Pastor Sverre Torgerson, Morris.

The fee for the week has been set at $5.00 and this includes registration, lodging and meals. In case reservation is made bebefore June 10th, the fee is $4.50.

Those who realize the worthwhileness of definite study of the Bible, for the young people of today, as well as the value of a vacation in wholesome fellowship, look farward to a rich and successful summer camp, and extend a cordial invitation to young and old to attend.

BRAZILIAN DIPLOMAT

Recently arrived in Washington is Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, Brazilian foreign minister, whose visit to this country is expected to have significant results in examination of mutual economic and defense problems. Expected results are: (1) U. S. financial assistance to Brazil; (2) redivision of the world's cotton market; (3) increase of sales to Brazil; (4) examination of defense problems.

Desert Sun Bathers Enlist Science

Sun bathers at Palm Springs, Calif., have enlisted the cause of science in their behalf. The boxes enclosing their heads are made from sea shells, and are said to permit only beneficial rays of the sun to pass through them, protecting the shapely bathers from an overdose of the health-giving sunshine.

And How Do You Look While Sitting Down?

If ladies must smoke they should be graceful about it. At least according to models in Mme. Frances Dela Fortrie's Hollywood School of Modeling in Philadelphia. Mildred McCue (left) and Dorothy Mitchell teach in one easy lesson how to become a horrible sitting example. The awkward position of the feet, the stocking not drawn taut, and the clumsy, messy way of lighting a cigarette, combine to detract from personal charm. Pictured at the right is the correct way of sitting, and the graceful way of lighting a cigarette.

World's Fair to Feature Court of Peace

A colorful part of the New York World's fair of 1939 is the foreign nations and federal government zone area where the twin-towered Federal building and exhibitions of 62 nations center on a seven-acre Court of Peace. The $155,000,000 "World of Tomorrow" exposition will open April 30 as the host city makes lavish preparations to entertain millions of visitors during the coming summer months.

MILITARIZE CCC?

John Chrosniak, lieutenant colonel in the United States army reserve, is president of the newly formed American Conservation association, a group making an effort to organize the Civilian Conservation corps on a permanent basis, fully officered and supervised by reserve officers on permanent detail. If the association's efforts are successful, the new group will add another pressure unit in the political scene which might easily rival the widespread influence of the American Legion.

Kentucky Floods Win Race With Control Project

An outboard motorboat furnished transportation to these searchers in the flooded downtown section of Middlesboro, Ky., after the town was inundated by February mountain torrents. The flood came before Middlesboro's $500,000 flood control government project could be completed. Two aged men died from cold and exposure. Untold damages resulted in the stores and shops.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

BROWN CANDLEWICKING
YELLOW GINGHAM FOR CURTAINS AND RUFFLE—
USE A BOX FOR SEAT—PAD TOP WITH COTTON AND COVER WITH BROWN GINGHAM

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I am a bride of six months and your Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator has certainly been a life saver for me. I have turned to it for help when making things for every room in our little house. The guest room is next. I would like to use yellow to brighten it up. What color could be combined with this? My smart effects must be accomplished with spare minutes rather than expensive materials, so I would appreciate a helpful hint along this line.—M. S."

If you really want to make that yellow guest room smart, use touches of brown to add character. I have sketched an idea for you here. Mark your material apart and then make the tassels with little dashes about six inches as shown. For the bedspread, reverse the color scheme, using yellow tassels on brown material. Several rows of the tassels may make a border for spread or curtains instead of an all-over design if desired.

Now is the time for all of us to give our houses a fresh start. Crisp new curtains; a bright slipcover; new lampshades; or an ottoman will do the trick. Make these things yourself. Mrs. Spears' Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, shows you how with step-by-step, easy to follow sketches. Book 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, will give you a new interest. It contains complete directions for making many useful things. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books, a crazypatch quilt leaflet is included FREE; it illustrates 36 authentic embroidery stitches in detail. Address Mrs. Spears; 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Smart Animals

What is the smartest animal? The dog, says Dr. W. Reid Blair, director of New York city's Bronx zoo! He points to dogs' long association with humans, their adaptability, ability to endure hardships, faithfulness and willingness to forgive. Dr. Blair picks the chimpanzee and orang-utang as the smartest wild animals. The nervous chimpanzee wastes little time on a problem, solves it quickly or gives up. The methodical orang-utang will spend hours at one problem, never giving up if it is within his mental powers to solve. —Washington Post.

IT'S A HIT! The NEW Firestone CHAMPION TIRE

Because IT'S THE ONLY TIRE MADE WITH THE NEW SAFETY-LOCK CORD BODY and GEAR-GRIP TREAD

AB JENKINS
World's Safest Driver
Ab Jenkins, holder of 87 world records for safety, speed and endurance, who has driven more than a million and a half miles on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires without an accident, says, "On the speedway or on the highway, I insist upon the extra safety of Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires on my cars."

CAR OWNERS everywhere are acclaiming the extra blowout protection and non-skid safety of the new Firestone Champion Tire. And automobile manufacturers, knowing its outstanding performance, have adopted it for their new 1939 models. On every hand you hear, "It's the most effective tire we have ever had on wet pavement and in mud and snow!" It's the hit of 1939!

The Firestone Champion Tire is a completely new achievement in safety engineering and the result of a new and revolutionary means of locking greater safety into the cord body of a tire. This is accomplished first, by the use of a new type of tire cord called "Safety-Lock," in which the cotton fibers are more compactly interwoven to give greater strength. And then the fibers in each individual cord, the cords in each ply and the plies themselves are all securely locked together by a new and advanced Firestone process of Gum-Dipping, which provides amazingly greater strength—and greater strength means greater safety.

The new Safety-Lock cord construction gives the added strength that makes possible the use of the new thicker, tougher, deeper Firestone Gear-Grip Tread, which provides remarkably longer non-skid mileage. This sensational new tread is called "Gear-Grip" because of its unique design which has more than three thousand sharp-edged angles that grip the road with a sure-footed hold to protect against skidding and to assure a safe stop.

Have your Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store equip your car with a set of new Firestone Champion Tires, the only tires made that are safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Helps to Answer the Question: What to Eat During Lent?

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

A CLERGYMAN friend of mine once remarked that in his opinion, Lent lasts far too long. He had reference, I believe, to the fact that in a swift-moving age, people might be more apt to keep Lent faithfully, if it terminated in a shorter period than 40 days.

Many homemakers, I feel sure, would echo his sentiments, but for a rather different reason! Numbers of them, I know, find the six weeks of Lent the most troublesome of the entire year. Their difficulty lies in planning meatless meals that satisfy hearty appetites. And since the weather is often bitterly cold in late February and early March, families usually seem hungrier, and harder to satisfy, than at almost any other season.

A Chance for Variety

Lent does challenge the homemaker to exercise imagination and ingenuity. But it also provides a golden opportunity to get out of a menu rut, if you happen to be one of those people who follow a set formula most of the year. It may, likewise, offer a chance to make some significant savings in your food budget.

Most of us feel that meat makes the meal. And it cannot be denied that its savory extractives give it a most appetizing and intriguing flavor. But there are a number of other foods which contain proteins of equal biological value. Furthermore, nutritionists hold that it is desirable to obtain protein from a number of different sources. That is because different protein foods contain varying amounts of different amino acids; and by eating a variety of protein foods, we can best obtain a wide assortment of these "building stones" of the body.

For Meatless Meals

Fish comes to mind, first of all, as a main dish for the meal that does not include meat. For those who are far from the source of supply of fresh-caught fish, there are the quick-frozen varieties, the dried and salted fish, such as finnan haddie, shredded codfish and block cod, and 27 types of canned fish and shell fish.

Canned salmon is one of the least expensive of all protein foods. And so many things can be said in its favor that one nationally known food authority referred to it as the most nutritious animal food that could be had for children over six. It is a notable source of minerals, especially calcium, phosphorus and iodine, and contains vitamins A, D, and G.

Cheese in Many Forms

Cheese is another splendid source of protein that should be used more freely, not only during Lent but throughout the entire year. It is high in energy values. And in addition, it contains the milk minerals, calcium and phosphorus, and is a good source of vitamin A. Cheese is so flavorsome that it adds zest to any meal at which it is served. And it certainly should interest the homemaker with an eye to thrift. For a little goes a long way. It is, therefore, an ideal food around which to build nourishing, appetizing and economical meals.

Macaroni, Spaghetti and Noodles

Cheese is especially good when combined with such foods as macaroni, spaghetti or egg noodles. It affords a pleasing flavor contrast. And it helps to balance the menu—in two ways. First, the proteins of cheese supplement those found in wheat from which macaroni products are made. Secondly, cheese contains a substantial amount of fat, which teams well with high carbohydrate foods, such as any of those made from the cereal grains. Cheese may also be combined with vegetables, to make another balanced food team. The cheese contributes proteins, energy values, and minerals, while the vegetables are an outstanding source of cellulose or bulk, as well as vitamins and minerals.

Don't Overlook Nuts and Legumes

Legumes are one group of vegetables which are high in energy values. They also contain protein which is suitable for repairing worn-out body tissue. Dried beans, peas and lentils may therefore be used as a main dish at Lenten meals, replacing both meat and potatoes. There are many varieties of ready-cooked beans on the market, packed in both glass and tin. And dried lima beans are particularly well-suited to being made into croquettes, patties, loaves, chowders and ragouts.

Nuts are another possibility for Lenten meals that should be considered by every homemaker. They, too, can be used for croquettes and nut loaves, as well as souffles and casserole combinations. Nuts can be combined with vegetables for a main-course dish . . . with fruit for dessert. In the form of nut butters, they make a nourishing spread for luncheon sandwiches.

Moreover, each type of nut has a distinctive taste, and walnuts, peanuts, brazil nuts and pecans, for example, each make a thoroughly delightful dish, with a flavor quite different from the others.

Most homemakers will also want to use eggs more frequently during Lent, because they are so readily available and easily prepared. This is commendable, because besides being a fine source of protein, eggs rank next to milk as a protective food.

Only a few of the many possibilities for Lent have been suggested in this brief review. But surely they give a hint of the many good and nutritious foods a homemaker can choose on those days when she plans meatless meals.

Questions Answered

Miss E. W. B.—Just to show you that foods which are seemingly dry may contain large amounts of water—bananas, about which you ask, have been found to average 74.8 per cent water, and sweet potatoes 72.6 per cent water.

Mrs. F. H. H.—One glass of whole milk is said to supply about one-tenth of the day's protein requirement for a woman in normal health. A medium-sized egg likewise furnishes 10 per cent of the day's protein requirement.

SAFETY TALKS

Most Hazardous Occupation

MOST farmers probably would scorn the use of industry's steel-toed safety shoes, hard hats to protect their heads from falling objects, and goggles with unbreakable lenses to ward off sparks from the grindstone and splinters from the wood-cutting power saw. If this be true, it may possibly account for agriculture ranking first as the most hazardous of occupational enterprises.

The National Safety council reports that of 19,500 fatalities in occupational accidents during 1937, agriculture, or farm accidents, contributed 4,500. Trade and service industries were responsible for another 4,500 accidental deaths. All other industries experienced fewer accident fatalities during that year, the council said.

TIPS to Gardeners

Making the Garden Pay

VEGETABLE gardens are grown to provide fresher, more nourishing food for the family, and to conserve on food bills. Therefore, crops must be wisely chosen and systematically planted.

According to Walter H. Nixon, vegetable expert, the most important vegetables considered both for food value and garden space required are: Beans, cabbage, carrots, beets, squash, tomatoes, onions, peas and spinach.

To get the most from garden space, plant two crops of spinach, one in spring, the other in late summer. Plant Chinese cabbage and parsnips about midsummer in space occupied earlier by beans, radishes and peas. Make successive plantings of carrots and beets for a steady supply of small tender roots.

Plant bush beans and beets on both sides of tomato rows. When tomatoes need the space, those earlier crops will have been pulled and used.

Corn can be worked into the garden plan even though there is not such space. Plant spinach or beets or green onions between rows of slower-growing corn. Then grow pole beans (cornfield beans) to climb on the corn stalks.

Safetygrams
BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

A few weeks ago in this column I suggested that horns be eliminated from all motor vehicles. Some of my friends, in commenting on this, said the idea was to radical -- that such a change would immediately cause a tremendous increase in accidents.

Would it?

Whenever weather conditions are extremely bad for driving, such as fog, sleet, ice and snow, communities pride themselves that no motor vehicle fatalities have been reported during such a period. The reason is this: all drivers become more careful when driving conditions are bad If the elimination of the horn would control some of the thoughtless driving habits by slowing us down, then the idea cannot be too radical.

If you care to write, I shall be glad to receive your criticisms or suggestions. Please write me in care of this newspaper.

Health hints for LIVESTOCK

SWINE FLU TAKES HEAVY TOLL

—Prepared by American Foundation for Animal Health

This year has been a particularly bad one for Swine Influenza—and it behooves every hog-raiser to be on his guard against it.

Hog flu first shows itself in loss of appetite; the hogs run a high fever, and often become completely prostrated. Here is the farmer's first baffling problem—for those same danger signals are also symptoms of hog cholera.

If the hogs have been immunized against cholera—then the potential danger is reduced more than half. But if they have not been immunized, there is not only danger of the disease being cholera, but the added danger of the hogs contracting cholera, after being weakened by flu. So, again we see the advantage of cholera immunization, which should be one of the first tenets in any swine grower's creed.

In any case, the first thing to do when hogs show any of the above symptoms, is to call a veterinarian.

The next step is to impose rigid safety measures to prevent spread of the disease, as flu is extremely contagious. Do not visit your neighbor's hog lot, and don't allow him to visit yours. Keep dogs, other animals, and wagons out of your hog lot. Observe as strict a quarantine as you would in case of cholera. Do not allow the sick hogs to be exposed to drafts, and do not allow them to pile up.

While hogs usually recover from flu, the greatest danger is to the pig crop of sows which have been bred. Sows which have had flu frequently lose their pigs, or the pigs are born weak or dead. The result is disastrous to hog profits for the following season.

With hog flu ravaging many sections, all farmers should be on their guard against it—and at the first signs, should call a veterinarian to prevent unnecessary losses.

Minutes of Village Council for February

Minutes of the regular meeting of the Village Council of the Village of Holt which was held on Tuesday evening, Feb. 7, 1939.

The following newly elected officers qualified by taking the oath of office:

Hartley Peterson -- President of the Village Council.

H. O. Hanson -- Councilman for 3 years.

Geo. Fricker -- Village Clerk for 2 years.

The following newly elected officials have qualified as follows:

Hjalmer Peterson-Treasurer for two years.

Marvin T. Sandberg -- Assessor for one year.

The following members were present at said meeting: Hartley Peterson, H. O. Hanson, Gilbert Sanoden, O. T. Ness and Geo. Fricker.

Moved by Sanoden and seconded by Ness that the minutes of the November and December meetings be approved as read. Motion was carried.

Moved by Sanoden and seconded by Ness that the following bills be allowed and paid:

Moved by Hanson and seconded by Sanoden that Hjalmer Peterson be appointed Custodian of the Village Hall at a salary of $40.00 per year. Motion carried.

Moved by Hanson and seconded by Ness that the application of Jesse Sorum and Sidney Engstrom for the sale of both Off-Sale and On-Sale 3.2% beer be approved. The Off-sale license fee of $5.00 per year be paid in advance in full and the On-Sale License fee of $60.00 per year be paid in advance for a six months period. The total amount to be collected before license is issued be $35.00 from each applicant.

Motion carried.

The question of public dances was laid on the table with Hartley Peterson and Geo. Fricker being appointed members of the dance committee. The application fee was set at 50c per permit and the parties having dances must agree to furnish a dance police approved by the Dance Committee and pay his salary for policing the dance. It was again agreed that no public dances be allowed during the Lenten period.

H. O. Hanson agreed to run a news item in the Holt Weekly News with reference to the use of fire arms within the village of Holt, which will also include the use of air rifles by the children of the village. All parets are requested to advice their children that the use of fire arms or air rifles are not permitted to be used within the village limits.

There being no further business, a motion was made and carried to adjourn.

Geo. Fricker, Village Clerk.

"A Fair Field for All— Special Favors for None"

Boiled down, that is all the railroads ask.

And this they ask—not only for themselves—but for farmers and others who have to depend mainly on railroad transportation. They, too, are being injured by the subsidies and special privileges enjoyed by the railroads' competitors.

Existing inequalities result in an artificial diversion of large volumes of traffic away from the railroads. This reduces the income needed to maintain and operate them. It increases the cost of handling the business that must continue to move by railroad.

Besides, subsidies cost you money as a taxpayer.

Your interests—the railroads' interests—and the principle of fair dealing—all call for a new public transportation policy that will provide for fair and impartial treatment of all forms of transportation.

To this end, a special committee appointed by President Roosevelt from railroad management and railroad labor has made certain recommendations. Among them are:

- Equal regulation should be applied to all forms of transportation and administered by the same public authorities.
- Commercial transportation by highway should be required to pay its own way—that part of the cost of building and maintaining the highways which is fairly attributable to the use they make of them, as well as a proper share of those general taxes which go to support schools and other functions of government.
- Commercial transportation on improved inland waterways should pay tolls sufficient to meet the cost to the taxpayers of constructing, maintaining and operating them.
- The long-and-short-haul restriction, which applies only to the railroads, should be repealed.
- Land grant rates, under which railroads haul government traffic at greatly reduced rates, should be repealed. In theory, these rates apply only to about 7 per cent of the nation's railroad mileage, which was built with the aid of land grants. In practice, these reduced rates apply to all railroad mileage that is in competition with land-grant mileage.
- State laws, whenever they impose unjust burdens upon railroads as compared with other taxpayers, should be amended.

A brief and simple explanation of these and other recommendations, made by the President's Committee, is contained in a little book entitled "For Better Times—A Square Deal in Transportation". Any Great Northern agent or traffic representative will be glad to give you a copy.

Breeding Ewes Need Grain

Special attention to breeding ewes from now until the lamb crop arrives is of great importance to the sheep raiser, asserts W. E. Morris, extension animal husbandman, University Farm, St. Paul.

During the last 30 days before the lambs are born, they make a third of their growth. In this period the demands on the ewe's body are heavy, and the right feed will help her produce stronger lambs with better fleeces and will make her flow of milk heavier. Feeding one and one half pounds of oats per ewe daily is recommended at this time, particularly if the roughage is prairie hay or some other kind of common roughage. Good alfalfa or legume hay is a good winter ration, but even ewes getting this kind of roughage should have at least a pound of grain per day.

Minerals are required by ewes, says Morris, and salt should be kept before them at all times. Iodized salt helps prevent goiter in lambs by furnishing the iodine that is lacking in some parts of Minnesota.

When the ewes are fed grain, they will usually get all the phosphorus they need. If they receive good legume hay, such as alfalfa they will usually be getting both phosphorus and lime. Rations composed largely of common roughage, such as prairie hay, may be deficient in protien as well as phosphorus. Supplementing such a ration with one and one-half pounds of grain daily or one-fourth of a pound of protien supplement like linseed meal will take care of both mineral and protein needs.

Card of Thanks

To the people of Holt and vicinity who in any way helped to lighten the sorrow of the long illness and death of our beloved dusband, father and son we wish to express our sincere thanks.

Especially do we thank Rev. Hanson for his comforting words and all who called on him at the hospital. We shall not forget. May God bless you all.

Had Birthday Party

Mrs. Joe Nelson entertained a number of guests at her home on Friday afternoon Feb. 24, in honor of Vernon's fourth birthday. The little guests were Vernon Nelson, honor guest, Janice Risberg, Gloria Johnson, Ruth Larson, "Corky" and "Buddy" Sorum and Billy Loven.

Other guests included: Mrs. Lloyd Adams of Grand Forks, Mrs. John Hagberg, Mrs. Jesse Sorum, Mrs. Walmer Risberg, Mrs. L. Wegge. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. G. Karvonen, Miss Lyseng, Miss Boethin and Mr. Kaufert.

After a delicious lunch we listened to the birthday bells from Grand Forks.

Vernon received many beautiful gifts in rememberance of the occasion.

A bad chimney fire broke out at the Carlson's store Saturday morning and had most of the fire lads of the village on the job in a hurry. Considerable damage was done to the furnace pipes so that Mr. Carlson had them replaced the same day.

Supreme Court Upholds Tax Law

More than 60,000 acres of Marshall county farm lands and more than 50 village lots with buildings and several hundred vacant village and city lots were affected by a decision of the Minnesota State Supreme court Friday which upheld the 1935 tax forfeiture proceedings under which the delinquent properties had reverted to the state.

Marshall county commissioners preparing for a decision of this nature created the office of Land Commissioner at a meeting early this year and appointed Otto J. Johnson of this city, former county commissioner from the fifth district as the official land commissioner in charge of renting such properties.

Mr. Johnson has already established office quarters in the court house building in Warren, and persons desirous of renting any of the farm lands or properties for the approaching season are requested to make application with him at their earliest possible convenience. Lists of affected properties are being prepared in the office of Levi G. Johnson, county auditor.

The new land commissioner stated yesterday that last summer more than 400 quarters of land had been served on by the county, none of which lies in the conservation area created by the legislature in eastern Marshall county in 1938. There are auproximately 50 parcels of village properties with buildings and several hundreds of vacant lots, he said.

The decision, handed down in the widely discussed Aitkin county farm land case, affects more than 4,577,000 acres in the state and reversed a ruling of District Judge Alfred L. Thwing of Grand Rapids, who had held that the form of the notice of expiration of the period for redemption under which the land was forfeited was unconstitutional.

The case hinged on a 1935 law that outlined a skeletonized procedure for notifying owners of tax delinquent land that it would be forfeited to the state if they did not pay the taxes and penalties within a year. Under older laws, the owners had to be served with detailed notices of the expiration of the period for redemption, which had also to be published in a newspaper.

The new law required the county auditor to list the delinquent property in his office, and to publish a notice that the list had been posted, instructing owners of delinquent lands to inspect the posted list and pay the taxes or face forfeiture of the property.

The Aitkin county farm land company, owners of 680 acres of land in that county that had been forfeited under the terms of the law, protested that the form of notice constituted taking of property without due process of law, in violation of constitutional rights. The argument was that the owners were not sufficiently informed of the fact the land was to be forfeited.

The state contended the form of notice was legal, and in a brief filed as "friends of the court", 49 county attorneys joined in defense of the law, arguing that the revised form of notice was designed to slash the expense of getting tax delinxuent land back on the tax rolls through forfeiture to the state and subsequent resale.

The county attorneys said 4,577 000 acres, of which 3 million acres were in 11 northern Minnesota counties, had been forfeited under the procedure outlined in the 1935 law, and that the expense and confusion of restoring it to the original owners and readvertising it as tax delinquent "challenges the very existence of these counties and the future of their people."

In its decision upholding the state and confirming the validity of the 1935 law, the supreme court said that "nothing essential to due process was lacking". —Warren Sheaf.

Pioneer School Notes

The first and second graders have learned when to say Thank You, Excuse Me, and Pardon Me. We have dramatized the reasons for saying them in Language class.

Report cards have been given out. Those on the honor roll are: A minus, Harold Ness. B plus, Kieth Movick, Wilma Movick, Joyce Movick, Marilyn Movick, Lorraine Skjerping. B, Isabella Tweten, Yvonne Johnson. B minus, Boyd Wilson, Earl Ness, Gordon McCullough.

Eloise Saugstad has had perfect attendance so far. Isabella Tweten has missed one day this six weeks. The cold weather and measels have caused many absences. We hope to have better attendance next period.

In Art Class the lower grades made hatchets to represent the Cherry Tree story of Washington

We wonder who has had a nice new permanent.

Ruby Halvorson, Betty Johnson, Jules Johnson, Angeline Johnson and Francis Johnson visited school Monday.

Wednesday we had a George Washington program. The pupils found pictures of him. Original stories were read, songs were sung and courtesy rules of Washington were discussed.

The first graders received new readers.

Those having 100 in spelling: Earl Ness, Joyce Movick, Arthur Tweten, Marilyn Movick, Eloise Saugstad, Conrad Tweten, Dorothy Skjerping, Isabella Tweten, Lorraine Skjerping, Gordon McCullough.

The church basement of the Nazareth Lutheran church was well filled on Wednesday evening when the second meeting of a series of special Lenten services were held. Again many of the young people came to services.

Solution Depends On Public

Public policies are mainly responsible for the financial distress of the railroads, according to a statement which the railroads are making available to the public in booklet form. Copies may be obtained from C. A. Larson, local agent of the Great Northern.

"Public policy as to the railroads," the statement declares, "is that they should be fully self-supporting and taxpaying.

"Railroads must do more than merely meet the cost of providing, maintaining and operating their rolling stock and other equipment. They must also meet the cost of providing and maintaining the roadways upon which that equipment moves. In addition, they must pay taxes on both roadway and equipment-taxes which do not go to upkeep of railroad roadways, but go to help support the general services of government."

At the same time, the railroads point out, they must meet the competition of other forms of transportation which are not regulated to nearly the same extent and which do not have to meet the cost of providing and maintaining the roadways over which they operate.

Rev. Hanson will conduct services at Our Savior's Lutheran Church in Badger on Sunday morning

Pensions

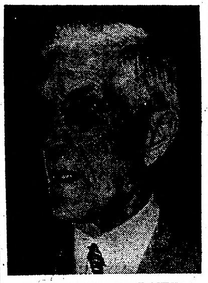
Last time he was called before a congressional committee, Pensioneer Dr. Francis E. Townsend refused, ending up with a 30-day jail sentence for contempt. President Roosevelt pardoned him, business got better and pension talk dwindled. But last summer Townsendism and a colorful assortment of other old age assistance plans blossomed with Recession. The administration fought this November election threat by promising to amend social security, but by the time congress assembled it was obvious pensioneers would have their say.

This time Dr. Townsend appeared as political theorist, economist and patriot before the house ways and means committee, defending his plan to provide up to $200 a month to persons over 60 by a 2 per cent transaction tax.



DR. FRANCIS TOWNSEND
Political theorist, economist, patriot.

Said Political Theorist Townsend: "If we can't establish a higher standard of living for the submerged one-half of our people than $40 a month, then certainly we're not going to be able to maintain our type of government much longer.

Said Economist Townsend: "We have not scratched the surface of our wealth and productive ability." (He added that pensions might eventually be boosted to $300 a month).

Said Patriot Townsend: "I wish you could hear the expressions of contempt against this great government of ours, a government I love and cherish with all my heart, a government I would die for . . . If this government is going to survive, it must not give occasion to these people."

Crux of Dr. Townsend's argument is that the profit system needs overhauling to avoid a spread of subversive agitation prompted by poverty. Well do committeemen know that U. S. poverty breeds ill will, but there is serious doubt that Townsendism will receive congressional precedence over the social security revision plans President Roosevelt offered several weeks ago, and which the California doctor terms "the height of absurdity."

Defense

Last December President Roosevelt's arms expansion program had more foes than friends in the still-to-convene seventy-sixth congress. Two months later it had more friends, thanks to clever White House publicity maneuvers and a lot of saber-rattling in Europe. The house passed 367 to 15 an administration bill to spend $376,000,000 extra on defense the next two years. (Same day, Great Britain voted about $1,000,000,000 more for arms.) Chief features are boosting the army's aviation force to 5,500 first line planes and making the Panama canal impregnable. Certain of passage was the Vinson naval expansion bill to spend $68,000,000 on naval air and submarine bases.

But there was little unity in this new strength. Closely allied to rearmament is the problem of U. S. military alliances with other democracies, since the threat that inspired American rearmament is the same threat that makes France and Britain jittery. After a California air crash revealed U. S. manufacturers were selling military planes to France, after President Roosevelt denied telling a senate military affairs committee that U. S. "frontiers are in France," the White House-congress foreign policy debate came out in full bloom. Questions: (1) Shall the U. S. keep its foreign policy secret? (2) Is President Roosevelt risking involvement in war through secret international deals?

After a week's debate there presumably were no longer any secrets about either the French deal or the administration's foreign policy. Actual cause of the rumpus was apparently removed, but not congressional resentment.

Thundered California's Sen. Hiram Johnson: "No epithets applied to senators or newspapers will relieve the situation of its secrecy . . . There is resentment among the administration that anybody should ask the facts. But if there comes a war it will not be fought by the President alone . . ."

Facts themselves are startling. Faced with U. S. military orders under the new defense bill, plane manufacturers already have their hands full with export orders. Starting with $25,000,000 in 1936, plane exports have roughly doubled annually, approximating $200,000,000 this year. In the past eight months France and Britain have ordered 1,200 ships. Chief congressional wonder is which orders will get precedence, U. S. or foreign.

★ Brushing Off Old Scripts

★ Got Breaks; Now Stars

By Virginia Vale

REMEMBER "June Moon"? It's going to return to the screen probably as "Lover Come Back to Me," with Nelson Eddy as its star, and perhaps with Miliza Korjus appearing opposite him. This is just one of the old pictures that will bob up before long in new versions. "Morocco," for instance, the first picture that Marlene Dietrich made in this country, with Gary Cooper as her leading man. Most of us think that it was also her best one. There may be a new "Show Boat." In fact, most of your old favorites will be back, for Hollywood is playing safe and brushing off many of the scripts that brought the public to the box office once upon a time.

MILIZA KORJUS

Given different directors, stars and sets, they'll practically be new pictures.

When you see "Captain Fury," (with Brian Aherne, Victor McLaglen, and June Lang,) you will see special dances that are authentic of the hectic period of American colonization in which the story is laid. You old-timers will recognize Betty Blythe as the wife of a colonial secretary; she is one of the stars of the silent screen who still likes to appear before a camera occasionally.

—*—

There'll be old fashioned dances in "Wutherine Heights," too. The dance director who's responsible for them is Jack Crosby, who once was a cowboy, and then was a railroad fireman.

—*—

"Dancing Daughters" made a star of Joan Crawford, and may do the same for Virginia Grey. Metro is going to give her a chance at it, at least. And since the original version appeared in 1928, a new screen audience has grown up who won't feel homesick for Joan when they see the 1939 one.

The European market for films may be shot to pieces, but the Latin-American one is more important than ever. Movita, the Mexican actress who was last seen in "Rose of the Rio Grande," will have the same sort of role in "The Girl From Rio," and will sing songs in both English and Spanish.

RKO is whipping up "The Girl From Mexico" with Lupe Velez as the Star. No doubt all the other companies will blossom out with pictures intended to please our good neighbors in South America before the year is over.

Kay Francis will appear on the air in a full length play for the first time in March. She has made few broadcasts in the past, but may turn to radio more frequently if she sticks to her decision to turn her back on the movies.

Many a radio star can thank a lucky break for the boost that brought success. Lanny Ross is one of them. Ten years ago he wanted to join NBC's legal staff. They told him they were looking for singers, not lawyers. He auditioned as a singer, and to his amazement, was engaged. He's never returned to the law.

Gabriel Heatter leaped into national prominence as a commentator when he handled the Hauptmann trial, although he'd been doing an excellent job long before that. Paul Whiteman just happened to hear Joan Edwards singing one day in a music publisher's office, and engaged her to sing with his band. Mark Warnow was a violinist in an orchestra that accompanied Morton Downey. One day the leader was ill, and Warnow substituted for him, with the result that Downey insisted that he conduct all his broadcasts from that time on.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

Advice to Homemakers on How to Feed Families During Coldest Days of Winter; Essential Nutritive Values Described in Terms of Everyday Foods

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

TOWARD the end of winter we sometimes experience some of the coldest weather of the entire season. Temperatures remain below freezing for days at a time. The air is often raw and penetrating, and blustery winds make it seem as if man is being persecuted by nature.

Moreover, this trying weather comes after months of short and often sunless days . . . days which many people have spent in overheated houses, and without sufficient exercise. So it is no wonder that the body is on trial . . . fighting to maintain health . . . to avoid the colds and other respiratory diseases that are so prevalent. This is, perhaps, one season when food has a mightier power than at any other time to influence physical well-being.

Food Your First Defense

In general, women seem to be more aware of the power of food than men. This is fortunate, because they are charged with the solemn responsibility of determining what foods their families shall eat. Since the right food sometimes makes the difference between sickness and health their husbands and children are the unhappy losers if they fail to recognize the need for even one essential food substance.

Occasionally the homemaker's task is made more difficult by men-folks who pooh-pooh the idea that meals should be planned scientifically, and who point out that generation after generation survived without a specific knowledge of nutrition.

People who hold this view fail to take into consideration that many of our ancestors consumed a satisfactory diet without knowing it.

Safeguarding Health

They should realize also that one can suffer from dietary deficiencies and live . . . though he may not live well! A man can exist upon much less than the amount of iron required for normal health . . . but he probably cannot escape secondary anemia. He may be able to get along on a meager supply of vitamins . . . but the chances are that his vitality will be greatly diminished. And he will face the constant threat of disease that follows in the wake of lowered resistance.

Nothing is more foolish than to suppose that what a man eats is entirely his own business! It is a matter of grave concern to his wife and children. For it has been suggested that fully one-half of the illnesses of the American people may be traceable directly, or indirectly, to dietary deficiencies.

Let no man, therefore, twit his wife for trying to feed him correctly!

Time for Good Eating

But don't imagine for a moment that correct eating and good eating cannot be synonymous. It is true that there is no time of year when correct eating is more important. But it is also a fact that there is no time of year when good eating is more distinctly indicated!

These are the days when breakfasts must be especially hearty . . . to satisfy keen appetites, to provide generous amounts of fuel or energy values. That means cereals always, and some form of breadstuff, pancakes or waffles.

Cereals are primarily energy foods, but they may also carry substantial amounts of precious mineral salts and vitamin B. Whole grain varieties are also a good source of bulk or cellulose . . . so necessary for regular health habits . . . so often overlooked in diets that are carelessly planned.

Eggs belong on the breakfast menu, too, because they are a top-notch protective food. And there must be fresh or stewed fruit—for vitamins, minerals and roughage.

Balancing the Big Meal

Whether the main meal of the day is served at noon or at night, it should be well-balanced, to help safeguard health, and appetizing, to make it so enjoyable that it will be digested efficiently.

It should be built first of all around a protein food: meat; fresh, canned, or quick-frozen fish; cheese, chicken, an egg dish, or a casserole of hearty baked beans. There should be an energy food such as sweet or white potatoes, rice, macaroni, or noodles, though frequently this can be combined with the protein food, as in cheese macaroni or beef stew. For variety and palate pleasure, occasionally serve baked bananas. They rank as an energy food, and also contribute important minerals and vitamins.

Vegetables—Raw and Cooked

There should be vegetables—one or two of them. Green leafy vegetables, either fresh or canned, should be served several times a week . . . for their iron and vitamins A, B, G, and sometimes C. These may be alternated with the yellow vegetables which are particularly notable for their vitamin A. Don't overlook onions—they are inexpensive, and a fine source of bulk. Served raw, they provide a substantial amount of vitamin C, the vitamin for which we especially prize oranges, grapefruit and tomatoes.

Include a salad at dinner, lunch or supper; it is well for most normal individuals to eat some raw food daily. In cold weather, dress it generously with salad dressing for extra fuel value.

Dessert may be pie, pudding or gelatin. The choice depends partly upon the other foods served at dinner, partly upon the dessert to be served at the third meal of the day. But here is a good general rule to follow. Serve a fruit dessert at one meal—and a pudding containing milk at the other. Of course, the fruit need not be served plain unless you wish. Fruit pies are splendid for cold weather meals, fruit and gelatin combine nicely, and fruit may be incorporated in cakes, as in apple sauce cake.

Whether the third meal of the day is lunch or supper in your household, it should round out the day's nutrition. If you need to get more milk into the diet, let your lunch or supper include a cream soup. If you haven't served eggs previously during the day, choose a souffle or a dish containing creamed eggs. A starchy food, a salad, a dessert and a beverage will complete a meal that both satisfies the appetite and meets nutritional requirements.

It is not difficult to obtain the day's quota of minerals, vitamins, cellulose, protein, carbohydrates and fats. These substances are to be found in delicious, wholesome foods. All you need to remember is not to serve too much of one food and too little of another.

Let the balanced diet be your ideal—and cold weather will prove a tonic instead of a possible menace to health!

Questions Answered

Mrs. G. M. L.—At the present time, nutritionists have not yet determined the exact amounts of vitamins G and E that should be supplied daily. It is known, however, that a diet which furnishes plenty of fruits, vegetables, whole grains and milk will protect the body against a shortage of either vitamin G or E.

Miss K. P. D.—Fatty foods have several important functions in the diet. They are a concentrated source of fuel; some of them are a good source of vitamin A; they improve flavor and texture in cookery; and they help to prevent hunger because they slow down the emptying time of the stomach. However, they are highly concentrated, and should be combined with other foods.

TIPS to Gardeners

Rock Garden Advice

SELECTION of flowers and their location in the garden can make or break your rock garden. Therefore, descriptions on seed packets must be read carefully when seeds are bought, and the plan of the rock garden must be carefully worked out.

Creeping plants, for instance, should be allowed to make carpets of color in the larger soil pockets. Erect plants may be used in flat spaces. Trailing plants should be allowed to droop over the face of rocks, or they may be placed at the top of the bank or wall.

In smaller crevices, tufted plants with rosettes of foliage and short flower stalks are suitable. Ordinary garden or bedding plants should be eliminated from consideration for the rock garden, it is advised by Gilbert Bentley, flower expert.

True rock garden plants grow less than 10 inches tall. Use only low-growing annuals and perennials that grow among rocks in their native haunts—those that belong by nature among stones.

HOW to SEW

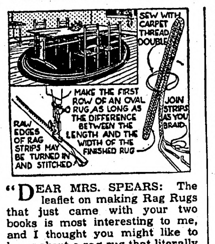
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS



SEW WITH CARPET THREAD DOUBLE
MAKE THE FIRST ROW OF AN OVAL RUG AS LONG AS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE LENGTH AND THE WIDTH OF THE FINISHED RUG
JOIN STRIPS AS YOU BRAID
RAW EDGES OF RAG STRIPS MAY BE TURNED IN AND STITCHED

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: The leaflet on making Rag Rugs that just came with your two books is most interesting to me, and I thought you might like to know about a rag rug that literally grew up with our family. When we first went to housekeeping I started what I hoped would be a large braided rug for the dining room. When it was big enough to go under the small table we were using then, I put it down. Each winter I have added more rows to the edge. The family has grown and we all fit on the rug quite nicely now.

"I save the best parts of old sheets and dye them different colors; then tear them into one-inch strips. I have a power machine, so I run these through it turning in the raw edges. The stitching strengthens the strips and makes them firm and neat for braiding."

If this letter inspires you, I have made a sketch here showing how to start your room size rug. If you are not quite that ambitious, you will find many ideas for smaller rugs in the leaflet offered below.

NOTE: Now is the time for all of us to give our houses a fresh start. Crisp new curtains; a bright slipcover; new lampshades; or an ottoman will do the trick. Make these things yourself. Mrs. Spears' Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, shows you how with step-by-step, easy to follow sketches. Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, shows you how to make fascinating things from odds and ends and will save its cost many times. Books are 25 cents each; if you order both books, copy of the new Rag Rug Leaflet will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Sergeant Had Several Samples Up His Sleeve

The sergeant grabbed a recruit's rifle after a hopeless exhibition of marksmanship by his squad. Hastily he took aim, fired—and missed the target completely.

"Now that," he said coolly, "is how you, Robbins, do it."

Taking aim again, he fired, and again missed miserably.

"And that," he exclaimed, "is how you, Hardaker, and you, Phillips, do it."

In despair he again took aim and fired, and managed to score a bull.

"There you are!" he shouted. "That's how I do it, you careless good-for-nothings. In the future do it my way!"

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to cure it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Patterns SEWING CIRCLE

NO. 1672—A very flattering dress is this with braid used to emphasize the bust fullness, with the effect of a bolero, and with a graceful, rippling skirt. Make this tiny-waisted charmer of thin wool, flat crepe or silk prints. You'll enjoy having some cottons like this, too, in the summer-time; it's a pattern you'll frequently repeat.

No. 1505—The little dress with the sleeveless bolero is a perfect style for girls from four up to twelve. The full skirt, the round balloons of sleeves, the high neckline, are just as becoming as possible! In challis, in gingham, in dimity—this dress will be charming, and a dress-up version in taffeta will go smartly to parties.

Material Requirements.

No. 1672 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 35-inch material and 5 yards of braid.

No. 1505 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 6 requires 2½ yards of 35-inch material without nap; ¼ yard of contrasting for collar; 2⅜ yards of braid to trim.

AROUND the HOUSE — Items of Interest to the Housewife

For Tender Fowl.—When roasting chicken or turkey place the fowl with breast down in the baking pan for the first half hour of roasting. This allows the juices to flow into the breast, making it moist and tender.

• • •

Save Your Rugs. — Frequent home cleaning of rugs actually makes them last longer.

• • •

The Dusting Question.—First of all, is your duster clean? Do you shake the duster out frequently? Do you dust the high objects first so that any falling dust will be gathered later? Do you wipe off the articles so you gather the dust in the cloth and not brush it off on the floor? Do you use a soft cloth and not one of those airy feather dusters that just push the dust from one object to another?

Substitute Garnish. — Celery leaves, or finely shredded outer leaves of cabbage or brussels sprouts, can be used for a garnish when parsley is not available.

• • •

To Wash Chamois Gloves.—Make a good lather of soap and warm water. Never use hot water as it makes the gloves shrink.

• • •

After Washing Silver.—Stand it in a jug of very hot water to which a little ammonia has been added; it will remain bright much longer.

• • •

Have Several Measuring Cups.—Having more than one measuring cup handy is a great asset and time-saver in cooking.

• • •

Use for Pickle Vinegar.—Vinegar left over from sweet pickles makes a tasty seasoning for chopped cabbage.

HOW TO CURB HOG CHOLERA LOSSES

$20,000,000 Annual Toll Is Needless

—Prepared by American Foundation for Animal Health

Voluntary reduction of the hog population by corn-hog quotas is one thing, but uncontrolled death losses of several million head of swine annually from inroads of hog cholera is a needless and costly sacrifice. Like lightning, it strikes without warning when least expected. And this loss is entirely needless.

Almost thirty years ago Drs. Dorset, Niles and McBryde of the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry made their epochal announcement of the discovery of the true cause of hog cholera, and the development of a protective serum. Shortly after this the so-called simultaneous or double method of immunizing hogs through injection of the protective serum and a small dose of virulent hog cholera blood or virus was instituted. Thanks to this discovery, hogs can now be immunized for life. Inasmuch as it is necessary to use the virulent or infective virus-blood to confer a durable, lasting immunity, all authorities have advised that the treatment be administered only by veterinarians. A farmer takes too much chance with his herd if the vaccination is not done by a competent veterinary practitioner.

In Canada hog cholera is practically non-existent, and when it does appear the Health of Animals Division of the Canadian government immediately appraises and slaughters infected herds. However, in the United States, universal vaccination of the annual pig crop near weaning time is the only practical, logical and economical method of handling hog cholera in the hog belt states.

Millions of dollars in annual loss could be avoided by seasonal vaccination of the pig crop. When farmers wait until hog cholera outbreaks are widespread, the sudden heavy demand may create shortages of needed serum and virus with consequent disastrous losses.

The only safe policy is to vaccinate while one's herd is healthy, before it is too late to save the toll which cholera always takes once it starts.

Invented Post Card

The post card is an unofficial card of a regulation size transmissible under the postal regulations through the mails upon prepayment of postage. It originated in Austria in 1869, the inventor being Dr. Emanuel Herman. It was introduced into England in 1870 and into the United States in 1873. A picture post card was first used by a book-seller named Schwartz of Oldenburg, Germany, in 1870, but the first post card of a picture appeared in 1875.

SOIL IMPROVEMENT REMEDY FOR DIET DISEASE OF STOCK

CHICAGO.—Restoration of depleted farm land by the use of chemical fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash not only increases crop yields, but helps remedy deficiency disease among livestock caused by a lack of necessary mineral elements in their feed.

Animals reflect the composition of their feeds, observes W. A. Albrecht of the Missouri College of Agriculture, and these in turn reflect the composition or available nutrient supplies of the soils on which they are grown. He declared:

"Animals will persistently graze closely in one area of a pasture while scarcely touching grass in another spot. When confined to soils whose fertility has been depleted, their judgment cannot be exercised and they may become the victims of some deficiency disease."

One of the most frequent and costly diseases acquired by animals fed on land deficient in necessary minerals is "Pica." Cattle suffering this disease have a tendency to chew bones and gnaw wood. Other symptoms are loss of weight, generally unthrifty condition, stiffness in hind quarters and at times in the front quarters, brittle bones that are easily broken, dull eyes and harshness of coat.

On farms where such a mineral deficiency exists in the soil, the use of a fertilizer containing phosphorus lime and potash is recommended by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee as a means of providing the necessary elements to restore the land and provide the plant foods so essential to the diet of livestock.

"A Fair Field for All— Special Favors for None"

Boiled down, that is all the railroads ask.

And this they ask—not only for themselves—but for farmers and others who have to depend mainly on railroad transportation. They, too, are being injured by the subsidies and special privileges enjoyed by the railroads' competitors.

Existing inequalities result in an artificial diversion of large volumes of traffic away from the railroads. This reduces the income needed to maintain and operate them. It increases the cost of handling the business that must continue to move by railroad.

Besides, subsidies cost you money as a taxpayer.

Your interests—the railroads' interests—and the principle of fair dealing—all call for a new public transportation policy that will provide for fair and impartial treatment of all forms of transportation.

To this end, a special committee appointed by President Roosevelt from railroad management and railroad labor has made certain recommendations. Among them are:

- Equal regulation should be applied to all forms of transportation and administered by the same public authorities.
- Commercial transportation by highway should be required to pay its own way—that part of the cost of building and maintaining the highways which is fairly attributable to the use they make of them, as well as a proper share of those general taxes which go to support schools and other functions of government.
- Commercial transportation on improved inland waterways should pay tolls sufficient to meet the cost to the taxpayers of constructing, maintaining and operating them.
- The long-and-short-haul restriction, which applies only to the railroads, should be repealed.
- Land grant rates, under which railroads haul government traffic at greatly reduced rates, should be repealed. In theory, these rates apply only to about 7 per cent of the nation's railroad mileage, which was built with the aid of land grants. In practice, these reduced rates apply to all railroad mileage that is in competition with land-grant mileage.
- State laws, whenever they impose unjust burdens upon railroads as compared with other taxpayers, should be amended.

A brief and simple explanation of these and other recommendations, made by the President's Committee, is contained in a little book entitled "For Better Times—A Square Deal in Transportation". Any Great Northern agent or traffic representative will be glad to give you a copy.

1500 Farmers Sign Up AAA

Approximately 1500 Marshall County farmers had completed their Farm Plans and signed up to participate in the 1939 A A A Farm Program by the end of last week, according to Tom Howard, chairman of the Marshall County Agricultural Conservation Committee.

The sign-up work in Marshall County is now on in full swing, and on the basis of the number now signed up Mr. Howard predicted that participation in the 1939 Farm Program in this county will be about as large as it was in 1938.

The county chairman urges all farmers who have not signed up to see their County AAA committeeman and work out their farm plans with him. This plan shows the acreage allotments, soil-building goal, and maximum payments for the farm, and has a map to use in working out a farming system which will be best for the farm under the 1939 Farm Program, Mr. Howard explained.

Since the announcement of the actual price adjustment payment rates, it is now possible to determine almost exactly what every farmer in Marshall County will earn by co-operating fully in the 1939 program. The price adjustment payment for wheat will be 11 cents per bushel on the normal yield of the acreage allotment. The price adjustment or "parity" payment is in addition to the regular agricultural conservation payments so that the total 1939 payment on wheat is 28c per bushel. All farmers who sign the Farm Plan and plant within their acreage allotments are eligible for these payments.

Enlarge Thief Lake Refuge

The Minnesota Department of Conservation is using Pittman-Robertson funds to assist in acquiring an additional 80 acres of land adjacent to the Thief Lake Refuge and Public Hunting Ground.

This tract is important as a waterfowl nesting ground and is also adaptable to the production of upland game species. The Division of Game and Fish plans to improve the tract by planting game food and cover plants.

The project was approved by Acting Chief of the Bureau of Biological Survey Jan. 30, 1939.

Annual Township Election

The Annual Township Election for the Township of Holt will be held at the Pioneer Schoolhouse on Tuesday, March 14, 1939. The polls are open from 9 o'clock A. M. to 5 o'clock P. M.

New Bureau-Patrol Chief

Elden Rowe, new head of the state Bureau of Criminal Apprehension, also has taken over the duties of directing the Highway Patrol of the State Highway department.

Mr. Rowe succeeds M. J. Murray, whose resignation as patrol supervisor was accepted by Highway Commissioner M. J. Hoffman effective March 1. He will be assisted in his efforts toward better coordination of the work of the Highway Patrol and that of the State Crime bureau by Earl Brown, former Hennepin couney sheriff and the organizer and first chief of the Patrol when it was established in 1929.

Mr. Brown has consented to serve in an advisory capacity without compensation.

No Muskrat Season In 1939

Minnesota will not have an open muskrat season this year, in accordance with an order issued by Conservation Commissioner Herman C. Wenzel, and Director Harry E. Speakes of the Division of Game and Fish.

The order follows the recommendation of department of wild life technicians and a statewide survey by game wardens indicating that the present muskrat population is not large enough to justify a harvest.

All state game wardens were sent questionaires to determine muskrat conditions in their territory. 56 of the wardens reported improved conditions, while 75 reported no improvement. Twenty reported an increase of five to twenty percent in the muskrat population, 64 reported a decrease, while 41 reported no change. Thirty-six recommended an open season, while 95 recommended a closed season.

The entire state was covered in the survey, so that technicians had a picture of the whole muskrat population before them when they made the recommendation for a closed season.

Young Folks Entertained

A group of young folks who had attended Bible Camp, were pleasantly entertained at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Hanson last Friday evening. After a business session where they made plans for Bible Camp night March 19, they played Chinese checkers. Mrs. Hanson served a delicious lunch. Those present were: Milton and Lois Hanson, Betty Lou and Howard Lorentson, Rubin Ness. Eleanor and Lorna Peterson, Angeline Johnson, Orlene Hagglund, Caroline Aspeline, Opal Sanoden, Jean Sorum, Marian Backlund, Marian Olson, Gertrude Nohre.

O. H. Nohre returned home last week from Spring Grove, Minn. where he had spent some time attending to business affairs Mr. Nohre stated that he was in the midst of the heavy snow storm that hit that part of the state recently. He also stated that the ground froze up wet there last fall and that with all the snow this winter they were in for a wet spring.

Risdal Out Of Hospital

Tom Risdal of Strathcona was a visitor in town on Wednesday. Mr. Risdal who is a pioneer Mud Lake farmer, has spent the past three months at the Physicians hospital in Thief River Falls taking treatments for kidney trouble. He stated that he was feeling good at this time. Mr. Risdal is spending a few days at the H. Moberg home.

Lundeen Presented Flag

Today the former Commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars, Mr. George Brobeck of Washington, D. C. presented a large silk flag to Senator Ernest Lundeen in behalf of Conrad Osthun Post No. 141, Keyon, Minnesota and the Russel Gaylord Post of Minneapolis. This flag was given to Senator Lundeen in appreciation of his activities in supporting veterans' legislation in the House and the Senate.

Many people here have been sick the past week with the old flu. Several children have missed school on account of illness. The attacks are not serious and last only a couple of days.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Horien visited at the home of Mrs. Neilson and son Albert on Sunday.

Hagglund-Reed Wedding

Miss Orlene Hagglund, daughter of Mrs. Chas. Hagglund, and Mr. John G. Reed Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Reed of Thief River Falls, were united in marriage Saturday at 5 o'clock p. m. at the parsonage with Rev. T. C. L. Hanson reading the ceremony. The couple were attended by Miss Opal Sanoden, close friend of the bride and Mr. Milton Hanson, nephew of the bride.

For the nuptials the bride wore a teal blue woolen crepe frock and Miss Sanoden's dress was of black with white pencil stripes.

A wedding dinner was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hanson after the ceremony to immediate relatives and friends.

The bride is a graduate of the Holt School and finished her course and graduated from Lincoln High School at Thief River Falls. The groom is employed by the Soo Line Railroad at Thief River Falls where the young couple will make their home.

Schools In Poster Contest

Much interest is being manifested by schools of the county in a county-wide Poster contest sponsored by the Marshall County Temperance Movement. Indications are that there will be a large number of posters submitted for the county display. The contest is open both to pupils in the Elementary schools and in the high schools. In the elementary schools each room is entitled to submit three posters and in the high schools not more than five from each of grades 9, 10, 11, 12.

Six prizes, totaling sixteen dollars, will be awarded.

Mrs. Walter Wegge and Marilyn visited at the H. O. Hanson home last Wednesday evening.

Rev. and Mrs. M. T. Johnson of Greenbush visited at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Hanson Monday evening.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Recommends Generous Use of Eggs; Shows How This Protective Food Helps to Balance the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ANY experienced homemaker knows the many cookery uses of eggs. Indeed, she is likely to feel that she could not keep house without this indispensable ingredient, which a French chef once described as "the cement that holds the castles of cookery together." It is true that we should have to do without some of our most delectable dishes if eggs were not available to use as thickening, leavening, coating, binder, clarifier, stabilizer or garnish. But even more significant than their contribution to good cooking are their splendid nutritional values.

A Notable Protective Food

Eggs rank next to milk in that group of mineral—and vitamin-rich foods that we call "protective." They contain substances that are very efficient for growth and development. And in the opinion of nutritionists, they are more nearly interchangeable with milk than any other food.

Eggs are among the first foods to be added to the milk diet of infants. And homemakers who desire to give their families well-balanced meals should provide an egg daily for every individual.

This requirement can be reduced, if necessary, to four eggs weekly. But luckily, as we head toward spring, eggs become more plentiful, and lower in price. And it is usually possible for every family to obtain a full quota of this splendid food . . . so rich in the elements that help to build muscle, bone and blood.

A Fine Body Builder

Eggs contain proteins of high quality, and their proteins seem to be particularly well adapted to building body tissue. That is one reason why this food is so desirable in the child's diet . . . so useful in constructing the diet for adults who need "building up." It also makes eggs a logical choice as a main dish for Lenten meals.

It's interesting to note that the proteins of the white and yolk of an egg are quite different in their properties. Egg white is almost pure protein and water, while the protein of the yolk is composed of a different assortment of amino acids, or building stones.

The yolk also contains fat . . . in a finely emulsified form, so that like milk fat, it is comparatively easy to digest. And it is the yolk which is highly prized for its rich store of minerals and vitamins. It is therefore considered the most important part of the egg for young children, and the white is often withheld and only the grated yolk given.

Rich in Iron and Phosphorus

Eggs are notable as a source of iron and phosphorus. Iron is necessary for the formation of the hemoglobin or red pigment of the blood, and the iron in eggs is valuable for this purpose. Phosphorus is the mineral that pairs with calcium in building teeth and bones. It also plays an important part in regulating the neutrality of the blood. The phosphorus in eggs occurs in a form that is particularly well adapted to the needs of the growing body.

Four Important Vitamins

As our knowledge of vitamins has increased, nutritionists have urged that eggs be accorded a wider place in the diet, for they supply four of these vital factors—vitamins A, B, D and G. They are an important source of vitamin A, which promotes growth and helps build resistance to disease. The appetite-promoting vitamin B occurs in lesser amounts than A, but its presence helps to increase the quantity of this essential substance included in the daily diet.

Eggs are one of the few foods naturally containing vitamin D, sometimes called the sunshine vitamin. And it has been determined that they are rich in vitamin G, which is required for health and vitality at all ages.

Raw Eggs vs. Cooked

Eggs are one of the foods that digest most satisfactorily, about 97 to 98 per cent of their protein being digested and absorbed. Moreover, the thoroughness of digestion does not seem to be affected by the method of cooking, and a hard-cooked egg, when well masticated, is as completely digested as one that is soft-cooked. Raw egg white on the other hand is not as completely utilized as when slightly cooked. This shows the fallacy of the old-fashioned idea that raw eggs were more desirable for invalids than cooked eggs.

Brown Eggs vs. White

Some people have an idea that the color of the shell has a bearing upon the nutritive value of an egg. In certain parts of the country, homemakers will pay a premium for eggs with white shells. In other sections, brown eggs are in greater demand, and therefore sell at a higher price. There is no justification for attaching any importance to the color of the shell.

Avoid "Same Old Thing"

Occasionally homemakers tell me that some member of their family doesn't like eggs. It is true that some people have an allergy to eggs, that is, they cannot eat them without having some abnormal reaction. But more often, any antipathy to eggs is due to the fact that they have been served in the same way, day in and day out. There is no excuse for that, for eggs are so versatile that they may be served in dozens of different ways, and in some dishes, their identity can be entirely concealed.

"Sunny side up" may be the most popular method of preparing eggs. But don't get into a menu rut, whether you are serving them for breakfast, dinner, lunch or supper. Cook them soft. Cook them hard. Transform them into omelets and souffles. Scramble them, plain, or dressed up with cheese, diced bacon, frizzled dried beef or sausages.

Eggs for Lenten Meal

As a main dish for a Lenten meal, hard-cooked eggs may be creamed and served alone, or combined with cooked vegetables or fresh or canned fish. Use them as a binder in croquettes and loaf mixtures, as a coating for deep-fried foods.

French toast is a simple luncheon dish, combining the energy values of bread with the fine nutritive values of eggs. Hearty luncheon salads or sandwiches can be made by combining chopped or sliced hard-cooked eggs with fresh or cooked vegetables.

Since eggs admirably supplement the food values of milk, puddings made from milk and eggs are an ideal dessert for children, and help to balance the diet of adults. Custard pies, fruit whips and cakes are also delightful dishes that bring to the diet the protective values of eggs.

Questions Answered

Mrs. B. S. R.—Pure molasses may be regarded as concentrated vegetable juice. It is rich in calcium and iron, and therefore makes a desirable contribution to the mineral content of the diet.

SAFETY TALKS

What Are You Going to Do?

IT DEPENDS on whether you're going to kill someone or just injure him.

If the automobile accident you may have next week is going to do a lethal job, the chances are your car will strike a pedestrian. On the other hand, if only non-fatal injuries are inflicted, it's an odds-on-bet that you'll bump smack into another motor vehicle.

National Safety Council statistics for 1937 show that when a traffic accident produces a fatality, the collision is between a car and a pedestrian in 39 per cent of the cases. Collisions between two motor vehicles produce 26 per cent of the fatalities with other types of collisions contributing smaller numbers to the total.

However, the Council says, it is collisions between two or more motor vehicles that produce the bulk of non-fatal injuries—53 per cent or 725,000 cases in 1937. Collisions between a motor vehicle and a pedestrian produce the next largest number of non-fatal injury cases—25 per cent or 335,000 cases.

In 1937 traffic accidents killed 15,400 pedestrians and 10,300 deaths occurred as the result of collisions between two or more motor vehicles.

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I have both of your books, and have made many things from them that have surprised my family. Most women can't drive a nail straight, but I can do that better than I can sew. I have been thinking that now with slip-covers used so much, one could make a chair out of plain lumber and cover it. Perhaps you could publish something like this in the paper. D. M."

Those who are not so clever about driving nails, may want to call on Dad or Young Son to help with making the simple chair I have sketched here. The metal angles and straps to strengthen the back may be bought at any hardware store along with the nails and screws. When the chair is covered in two tones of chintz with edges of back and seat piped in the darker color, it is really very smart. It is especially useful in a bedroom or hall. If covered in the right colors, it will also look well in the living room.

TIPS to Gardeners

Know Your Herbs

HERBS are becoming more popular each year because they are easy to grow and help make everyday dishes more appetizing and flavorful. Here are important facts about the more important herbs which you can grow in your backyard garden:

Anise—Seeds used to flavor bread, cake, cookies, candy; green leaves good for flavoring salad.

Borage—Leaves and flowers give unusual tang to fruit drinks and are good salad garnish; blossoms good cut flowers.

Caraway—Seeds used to flavor bread, cake, cookies, cheeses, baked apples.

Chives—Young leaves eaten like onions, or cut up to flavor soups and salads.

Dill—Seeds and leaves used for making dill pickles.

Sweet fennel—Fresh stems eaten like celery or used in salads; bulb at base eaten raw or cooked; leaves add flavor to sauces and soups.

Marjoram—Used for seasoning poultry dressing; young leaves good for soups and salads; makes attractive house plant.

Sage—Excellent in meat and poultry dressings.

The Safety Sensation of 1939!

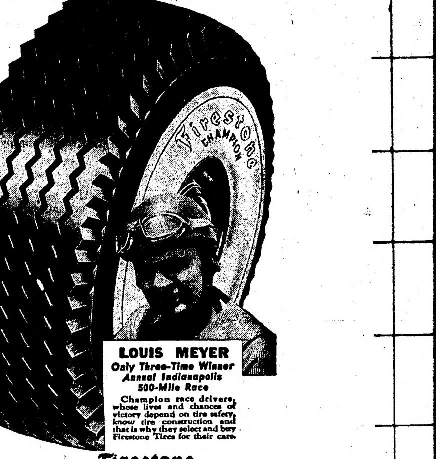
THE NEW Firestone CHAMPION

The Only Tire Made with the NEW SAFETY-LOCK CORD BODY and NEW GEAR-GRIP TREAD . . .



LOUIS MEYER
Only Three-Time Winner Annual Indianapolis 500-Mile Race

Champion race drivers, whose lives and chances of victory depend on tire safety, know tire construction and that is why they select and buy Firestone Tires for their cars.

NEVER before in our experience has a tire met with such instant and unanimous approval as the new Firestone Champion Tire. It's the Safety Sensation of 1939! Our customers have started a word-of-mouth campaign that is making this the biggest selling tire we've ever had. Motor car manufacturers have been so impressed by its superior performance that they have adopted it for their 1939 models.

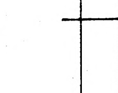
Why? Because the Firestone Champion Tire is an entirely new achievement in safety engineering.

Stronger Cord Body. This is accomplished first, by the use of a completely new type of tire cord called "Safety-Lock," in which the cotton fibers are more compactly interwoven to assure cooler running and provide greater strength. Then, the fibers in each individual cord, the cords in each ply and the plies themselves, are all securely locked together by a new and advanced Firestone process of Gum-Dipping which provides amazingly greater strength. And greater strength means greater safety.

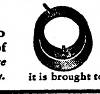
More Non-Skid Mileage. The new Safety-Lock cord construction provides the extra strength needed for the use of the new, thicker, tougher, deeper Firestone Gear-Grip tread which delivers remarkably longer non-skid mileage. This sensational new tread is called "Gear-Grip" because of its unique design — it has more than 3,000 sharp-edged angles which grip the road with a sure-footed hold to protect against skidding and assure a safe stop.

Let your nearby Firestone Dealer or Firestone Auto Supply and Service Store equip your car with a new set of Firestone Champion Tires — the only tires made that are safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.

Firestone LIFE PROTECTOR the Tire within a Tire



This amazing new Firestone development makes a blowout as harmless as a slow leak.



Should a blowout occur the exclusive Firestone Safety-Valve holds sufficient air in the inner compartment to support the car until it is brought to a safe stop.

Early Breeds of Dogs.

Among the twenty-four breeds of dogs that claim origin prior to the Christian era are: The Great Pyrenees and the Newfoundland, 1800 B. C.; the Cardigan Welsh corgi and the Pembroke Welsh corgi, 1300 B. C. and 1200 B. C. respectively; the samoyede, 1000 B. C.; the Japanese, the Mexican hairless, the Rottweiler, and the St. Bernard, 500 B. C.; and the beagle, the English foxhound, and the harrier, 400 B. C. Then some twenty-eight more breeds started prior to the Sixteenth century A. D., which marked the start of modern development in pure bred dogs.—Chicago Tribune.

Corsican Cattle

The Corsican is not primarily a fighting breed of cattle, but is semi-domesticated. It is used for draft, meat and milk, and is of medium size. Generally of a deep black color, its horns are not as long as those of the aurochs, and it is slower of movement than either the French or Spanish fighting cattle. A curious fact about these Corsican cattle is that the calves are born red and change to black in four or five months. They are long-haired in winter—another aurochs trait.

Habits of the Weasel

Weasel—also called "ermine" by the fur trade when white—can be caught almost anywhere. This small animal stays where there is plenty of food, such as birds, and so on. It likes poultry and will often live under or near a chicken coop where it can prey upon the poultry. The weasel is a killer, says Successful Farming, eating little or no flesh, but destroying to satisfy its blood lust.

Source of Rich Black Loam

Rich black loam owes its color to the decaying remains of past generations of vegetation. Such soils are thoroughly permeated with carbon dioxide, and huge amounts of this gas are imperceptibly but steadily seeping from it into the atmosphere. It is not certain whether this decay is due to bacteria, natural ferments, or the direct action of atmospheric oxygen.

A Way We Know Not

We are led on like little children by a way that we know not. It is a vain thought to flee from the work that God appoints us, for the sake of finding a greater blessing to our souls; as if we could choose for ourselves where we shall find the fullness of the Divine presence, instead of seeking it where alone it is to be found, in loving obedience.—George Eliot.

The Oboe

The oboe is a conical section of wood, usually ebony, pierced with holes and fitted with a system of keys. It is played with a double reed. Breath control is important in playing the oboe in order to produce an even, sustained tone. It is capable of an agile, vocal tone and is often called the lyric soprano of the woodwinds.

Barbados, "Little England"

Barbados frequently is termed "Little England" by the white population, but the colored people, locally known as "Bims," call it "Bimshawland." So much does the native love his country that every day he prays that when he dies heaven will be another Bimshawland.

Pioneer School Notes

Those receiving perfect papers in spelling are: Dorothy Skjerping, Earl Ness, Lorraine Skjerping, Keith Movick, Joyce Movick Harold Ness, Wilma Movick.

The pupils have enjoyed the nice weather and have had nearly perfect attendance.

In art class the children have made two very life-like posters. The room is decorated for spring We wish to be able to report the arrival of a few early birds soon.

The pupils have received new "Am I ready for school today" charts. They are all going to work to get gold stars.

The seventh graders have finished the study of "The Man Without a Country".

The first and second graders have memorized the poem "The Three Little Kittens." We also have retold the story of "Little Black Sambo" in Language class.

On Tuesday, the pupils each brought a favorite picture to school. They showed it and wrote interesting stories concerning it.

Third graders have finished the tables of fives in Arithmetic. They have also worked many problems in division.

Do you know about the danger in overheated radiators? Do you wait until the boiling has stopped before removing the cap?

Care should always be exercised in taking off the cap from an overheated radiator. Use a large rag to cover it and keep your face turned away when the cap is removed.

Be especially careful when pouring water into a radiator which has been overheated due to water running low. It should be allowed to cool. If water is poured in while the engine is still hot, the cylinder block may crack or a bad boil-over may occur, blowing the hot water into your face.

Check your anti-freeze liquid frequently to see that you have the proper amount.

2½¢ OF FARM DOLLAR IS SPENT FOR FERTILIZER

CHICAGO.—Only 2½ cents out of every dollar of farm cash income received each year is spent for fertilizer, according to a survey made by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Small as this amount may seem, it represents one of the most profitable investments a farmer can make, returning him a better than three-to-one dividend," says a bulletin issued by the committee.

"Purchases of fertilizer represent an outlay of only $33 per farm in the United States every year. Yet records on the use of fertilizer on farms throughout the Middle West show that every dollar spent for fertilizer results in an average increased value of crops amounting to about three and a half dollars.

"Farmers spend less annually for fertilizer than for wages for hired help, feed for their stock, farm implements, gasoline or taxes. Yet the price of fertilizer is lower than practically any commodity the farmer buys."

HOW MINNESOTA MAKES A LIVING

The United States census records the occupations of those who are gainfully employed.

The latest available census reports show that 309,644 of those gainfully employed in Minnesota were engaged in agriculture, forestry and animal husbandry.

At the same time, there were 683,154 citizens of the state employed in manufacturing, the mechanical and mineral industries, in transportation, trade, public, professional and domestic service and in clerical occupations.

Thirty-one per cent of those gainfully employed in Minnesota are engaged in agriculture.

Sixty-nine per cent of those employed in Minnesota are engaged in business, industry and other non-agricultural activities.

Minnesota is regarded primarily as an agricultural state. Yet for every person directly dependent upon agriculture in Minnesota there are two people who are engaged in other activities. The problems of agriculture are important to Minnesota. The problems of industry and business are also of vital importance.

This information compiled by the Inter-Organization Committee for the retention and development of industry and business in Minnesota.

18.9 Cents of U. S. Farm Dollar Goes for Taxes, Interest and Wages to Hired Help

Spend Only 2½ Cents For Fertilizer.

FARMERS spend almost eight times as much annually for wages to hired help, taxes and interest charges as they do for the purchase of fertilizer to replenish their soil, according to a bulletin prepared by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, based on U. S. Department of Agriculture statistics on average farm expenditures for the nine year period from 1929 through 1937.

THESE FIGURES SHOW MORE WAYS THAN ONE TO MAKE PROFIT ON THE MONEY WE HAVE IN OUR LAND!
THEN LET'S CHECK UP TONIGHT ON JUST WHERE WE STAND!

"An average of 18.96 cents out of every dollar of farm income yearly goes for wages, taxes and interest," said the report, "whereas only 2½ cents goes for fertilizer.

Profits on Farms Determined by Expenditures; Yield Per Acre Influences Cost of Production.

EVERY expenditure the average farmer makes has a direct or indirect bearing on how profitably he is operating his land, whether it is a new tractor, a truck, seed for his crops or fertilizer to replenish his land. Farmers generally recognize that the yield per acre of crops is the most important factor influencing the cost of production. Higher yields mean lower production costs. Thus farmers are becoming increasingly aware that the use of fertilizers is the most profitable means of increasing their crop yields per acre.

"Gasoline, kerosene and oil for the operation of autos, tractors and trucks accounts for 5.18 cents of the farm dollar, or twice as much as goes for fertilizer. Feed for livestock and seed for crops accounts for 6.22 cents. Containers for produce, spray material and twine cost 1.38 cents, while other current expenditures for farm operation take 2.48 cents.

"Expenditures on such capital items as machinery, tractors and repairs call for 3.57 cents out of the annual farm dollar; autos and trucks account for 2.59 cents and farm buildings and repairs on buildings for 2.05 cents. The value of farm commodities actually consumed on the farm amounts to 15.17 cents.

"This leaves an average of 39.85 cents of spendable income out of every farm dollar for the purchase of clothing, for education, insurance, doctors' bills, recreation, etc.

"Of all the annual purchases a farmer makes, he gets more for his money in buying fertilizer than from practically any other commodity. Farm records in the Middle West show that every dollar spent for fertilizer results in an average increased value of crops amounting to three and a half dollars as well as returning to the soil valuable mineral elements. Yet the price of fertilizer is lower than practically any commodity the farmer buys."

YESSIR, FOLKS--FOR EVERY DOLLAR I SPEND ON SOIL CONSERVATION, I GET BACK INCREASED CROP VALUE AND I INSURE MYSELF AGAINST LOSS OF LAND VALUES ALSO!

C.M.T.C. July 11 to August 9

It was announced today by Stafford King, Civilian Aide to Secretary of War that enrollment for Citizens' Military Training Camp is now open. The Minnesota quota for the Fort Snelling Camp, to be held during the period July 11 to August 9, is 1150. Over 450 young men have already sent in applications to the C. M. T. C. Office, 375 New Post Office Building, Minneapolis, Minn. For this reason all boys who would like to attend this camp at Fort Snelling during the summer should get their applications in as soon as possible to be reasonably sure of being orderd to camp.

Mr. King has appointed Dr. Geo. L. Johnson of Newfolden, as chairman for Marshall County Applications and details regarding the camp may be had by contacting him.

The varied program outlined for each day at camp will be found very interesting to all boys who attend. Aside from the work of the camp, and extensive line of sports is offered for entertainment and athletic training This training, with no expense to the individual, is a splendid opportunity for both physical and mental development.

1939 Bible Camp Program

The Life and Work in the Lake of the Woods Bible Camp will be shown to the Nazareth congregation on Sunday evening when the young people who have attended this camp in the past two years will give a special program to create more interest in the work of the Bible Camp amoung our young people and to raise funds to assist in the sustinence of the institution. The young people have worked out a program that will give some important facts on the nature of the spiritul work done there during the session. After this part of the program, the Bible Camp Moving Pictures will be shown. In nearly every scene there is some representative from this congregation and this should prove interesting.

Nearly all of the pictures are in technicolor. An offering will be taken to the support of this work and it is anticipated that this response will be very generous due to the important spiritual work that is being done there.

Realtors have been asked to give a conservative estimate of the value of the property up there near Baudette and they find that to be $3500. The total indebtedness of this property is a little over one third the estimated valuation.

Along with the buildings, there is a 70 acre tract of fine virgin timber consistihg mostly of pine, oak and birch. It is situated on the banks of the mighty Rainy River at the point where thelarge Wabanica flows into the river making it one of the most beautiful spots in the north country.

This camp is the property of the Luther Leagues, thus making it very imperative that we support this work among our young people.

Many of our young people have already signified their intentions of attending the camp again this year, and this program, no doubt, will encourage many more. The young people who are sponsoring this program will serve lunch. At a later date, some special event will be held for the support of those who are going to camp.

The camp this year will be held on June 19th to June 25th.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Larson and J. P. Augustine spent most of last week attending the Land O'Lakes meeting held in Minneapolis. Mr. Augustine left from there for Goodhue county to visit with relatives.

Mrs. Edgar Horien was taken to the St. Luke's hospital at Thief River Falls on Sunday to remain for a week to be treated for ulcer of the stomach.

Wildlife Week March 19 - 25

Promoting education in conservation, restoration, and protection of wildlife, the second annual wildlife week will be observed March 19 to 25, when thousands of conservation groups throughout the state and nation will join in appropriate activities.

National wildlife week was proclaimed by the President, and activities are under the direction of the Wildlife Federation, headed by Ding Darling. State President of the Wildlife Federation is Walter Finke of Minneapolis and Minnesota director of wildlife week is Frederick S. Winton, 1288 Flour Exchange, Minneapolis.

Among the state organizations participating in wildlife week observance are the Minnesota Game Protective League, the Izaak Walton League, Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Fed. of Women's Clubs, Boy Scouts, 4-H Clubs, the American Legion, the Minnesota Farm Bureau, the University of Minnesota Extension Service, as well as other conservation organizations.

Participating organizations are cooperating in the sale of wildlife week poster stamps, a collection of 80 beautifully lithographed stamps, representing different species of birds, fishes, animals, trees, and flowers. Last year the collection included 16 wildlife subjects. Offered this year is a stamp album containing descriptive paragraphs for each of the 96 stamps in the first and second series. Included with the album are one each of last year's stamps.

The Wildlife Federation has been interested in the enactment of federal legislation under the Pittman-Robertson act, whereby the ten per cent federal tax on small arms and amunition is earmarked for wildlife restoration purposes. Under the terms of this act, Minnesota received last year over $26,000 of the one million dollars made available by the last congress. If the entire amount of the tax is made available by the present congress, Minnesota may receive between $80,000 and $100,000 for restoration projects.

The Weather

The weather the past week has been of a mixed variety. We had a nice thaw over the week end and late Sunday it cooled off again. Monday it started to storm and Tuesday we had a March blizzard. Wednesday was clear and cold. We hope the weatherman soon makes up his mind to call it quits for this year. According to news dispatches in the Grand Forks Herald seeding had started in that area at this time last year.

Enteritis Costs Hog Raisers Millions

—Prepared by American Foundation for Animal Health

While hog cholera is, without doubt, the most dangerous and costly swine plague in America, the intestinal disease called Enteritis ranks a close second in causing tremendous annual losses.

Hog cholera, of course, can be prevented almost 100 per cent by vaccination. But there is no dependable vaccination as yet for Enteritis, and no sure cure.

Resembling typhoid fever in human beings, Enteritis creates greatest havoc in growing pigs by producing a surface gangrene or rot of the lining membrane of the intestines.

First signs of the disease are when the hogs begin to lose weight while on good rations. Their appetite continues good, but the loss of weight continues. Sometimes the condition is accompanied by diarrhea. When such symptoms show up, a veterinarian should be called immediately. Because if proper measures are applied in time, death losses and spread of the disease to other hogs can usually be controlled.

There is no sure cure for Enteritis. Farmers should be warned against peddlers who purport to sell cures for Enteritis or "necro", as health authorities have repeatedly advised that no sure cure exists at present.

Vaccination of herds suffering from Enteritis may result in heavy losses. For this reason, hogs should receive careful inspection by a veterinarian before cholera immunization is administered.

Of course, the time to vaccinate against cholera is while the pigs are healthy, and before they can be weakened by any of the prevalent swine diseases.

Prevention of Enteritis is best accomplished by selection of disease-free breeding stock, careful farm sanitation, use of the McLean County clean ground system for growing pigs, and suitable medication by a veterinarian at first signs of an outbreak.

Cunty 4-H Club Activities

Marshall County 4H members will take part in a one-act play and music contest in Warren on Friday, April 21. A number of clubs in the county have already selected their play and are beginning rehearsals.

At the meeting at Argyle last Friday, approximately thirty leaders laid plans for the 1939 club year. The first county event will be the one-act play and music contest. Miss Mildred Schenk, State 4-H Club Agent, was present and discussed with the leaders various problems in connection with the club work. She stressed the importance of interest of parents in the club work of their children in developing a well-rounded successful club program. Of first importance to club members and to the success of the local 4-H club organizatidn is the help of good adult leaders.

Several projects for older club members are being stressed this year. Among the livestock projects, these include the ten-ewe project, the trio of fat lamb and advanced dairy projects. In the home economics projects, canning, meal planning and room furnishing are to receive special attention. A new livestock project this year is the graded beef heifer project. The handicraft activity has been added to the list of activities designed to round out the club members' experience. Details of any of these projects may be secured from the local club leaders.

Thousands of 'Heroes' Souls' Sent to Japan

The white boxes being loaded aboard ship in Shanghai, China, contain "Heroes' Souls," the ashes of Japanese soldiers who have been killed in battles in China. Every ship leaving Chinese ports for Japan carries these telltale white boxes. The Japanese admit 51,000 were killed in 1938. Previously they admitted 115,000 before the end of 1937. Foreign military experts estimate Japanese losses, killed and wounded, at from 450,000 to 600,000 since fighting began July 7, 1937.

India

Vast India is at once Great Britain's most precious and troublesome colony, partly because Indians lack the ability to rule themselves, partly because a few native leaders realize Britain gets much more from the provinces than she returns. Mohandas K. Gandhi has been the leading native agitator, winning a shallow victory when the home rule constitution established 600 native sovereigns who have absolute power over their subjects but must bow to the 11 provincial governors. Working hopefully, Gandhi's party congress now holds a meaningless majority in eight provinces.

Fasting is Leader Gandhi's favorite means of forcing reforms. Since September of 1932 he has tried it six times, most recently in the native state of Rajkot. Reason: The 29-year-old Thakore of Rajkot promised last December to grant new powers to his subjects, but had not fulfilled the promise. After four days of fasting the aged Gandhi was weakening fast and the Indian viceroy expected to intervene.

MOHANDAS K. GANDHI
Food for thought in a fast.

But the fast held food for thought in Britain, already busy with enough troubles. For the first time Gandhi's party had enough strength to precipitate major trouble throughout the state, had the marquess failed to intervene. Even if the current outbreak of nationalism is settled, Gandhi's followers will obviously gain strength.

Religion

As Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Pope Pius XII was Vatican secretary of state and an important mediator in many a European squabble. His two most notable achievements were (1) leadership in the World war settlement attempt of Pope Benedict XV and (2) consummation of the concordat that brought peace between the Vatican and Italy. His most difficult job was negotiating a treaty with Protestant Russia in 1929, a feat that won him the red cap of cardinal when Pietro Gasparri retired in 1929.

When Pope Pius XI died last February 9, Secretary of State Pacelli immediately became camerlengo, interim chief of the Roman Catholic church until the college of cardinals could name a successor. Internationally better known than any other potential candidate, Cardinal Pacelli's name was immediately bandied about as the most likely successor. This, despite his confessed longing to lead the contemplative life of a monk, despite rumors that his selection would be none too welcome by totalitarian Germany and Italy.

If Cardinal Pacelli had never admitted anti-dictator sentiments, Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo, lost no time pointing out that a Pacelli appointment would be unwelcome in Rome. In Germany another newspaper, Das Schwarze Korps, chimed in. At the Vatican, German Ambassador Carl-Ludwig Diego von Bergen told the college that his nation was "assisting at the elaboration of a new world," and that "the papacy without doubt has an essential role."

Though conceivably unrelated to these events, Cardinal Pacelli's elevation to the papacy might be in direct retaliation against two governments which saw fit to interfere with church affairs. A further possibility is that the Rome-Berlin axis erred diplomatically to such an extent that the college of cardinals felt obliged to appoint an experienced statesman who could deal with Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini.

Spain

The spectre of two simultaneous Spanish civil wars is unique, but not unexpected. Since Barcelona fell and President Manuel Azana resigned upon breaking with Premier Juan Negrin, Loyalists have been threatened by internal dissention. On the defensive more than ever before, conservatives sought desperately to regain the Anglo-French favor that was shifting to victorious General Franco and his Insurgents, meanwhile making sincere gestures to end the war. Premier Negrin and the Communist element, fearing the consequences of surrender, promised a futile "fight to the death" which would serve no purpose since a Franco victory was inevitable. In the long-awaited explosion conservative Loyalists seized the government, drove Negrin from power and paved the way for peace.

The company was at target practice when the captain swaggered up to the latest recruit and proceeded to give some instructions about his gun.

When you have taken careful aim you pull this little thing which is the trigger. Now smarten up and look more like a soldier. By the way, what is your business? A clerk, I presume?"

"No, sir," was the reply, "I'm a gunsmith."

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Reveals Several Reasons Why Food Sometimes Disagrees; Warns Against Eating When Tired or Worried

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

A GREAT many people have the unfortunate habit of warning friends and acquaintances against this or that food, on the ground that it is "difficult to digest," or "is almost sure to cause digestive distress, especially if eaten at the wrong time of day or in combination with the wrong foods." Indeed, to hear some men and women recount the various dishes that are best left alone, is to wonder how they manage to find anything to eat at all, in view of the many good foods they consider taboo!

Certainly there is no objection to food as the topic of conversation.

It is so basic to good health that it should be uppermost in the mind of every individual who desires to promote physical and mental efficiency. And it is also natural for a person to be guided by past experience in determining what he should eat, and what it may be advisable for him to avoid.

But it is a grave mistake for one person to warn another against any food or combination of foods on the ground that it will cause digestive distress. For the truth of the matter is that under proper conditions, a normal, healthy person should have no difficulty in digesting almost any food that has a place in the well-balanced diet.

Food Dislikes Often Unfounded

I once met a woman who told me that her contented-looking husband could, and did, eat most everything 'cept horseshoes. Menu planning was simple for her! And how different from the problems of the home-maker who must try to reconcile her menus, both with the food dislikes of various members of the family, and with the foods that they declare they can't eat, for fear of digestive distress.

It is true, of course, that individuals differ greatly, and occasionally a food that can and should be eaten regularly by most people, will cause distress in an individual case. But that is no indication that the food will have the same effect on another person, and it is misleading either to proffer or accept advice of this nature from friends.

It may be that the victim has an allergy to the food in question—that he reacts to it differently than the majority of people. But there is also the possibility that the prejudice exists because of some previous distress, caused, not by the food itself, but by the circumstances under which it was eaten.

Perhaps a clearer understanding of some of the mental and physiological factors influencing digestion would dispel many of the bugaboos that cause people to avoid various, wholesome foods and food combinations, and to warn others against them.

Emotions Influence Digestion

Scientists have established that the stomach is capable of reacting to almost every emotion and sensation that is experienced by men and women. Thus, how you eat becomes quite as important as what you eat. And any food or combination of foods consumed when you are tired, worried or angry, may cause acute distress, whereas the same food, when eaten at another time, may be digested without the slightest disturbance.

This indicates the folly of jumping to the conclusion that you can't eat this or that, and shows that one is scarcely justified in warning friends or relatives to avoid certain articles of diet.

There is a large amount of evidence that fear, anger or anxiety have the effect of diminishing the gastric secretions, and further, of arresting or slowing down the movement of the intestines.

If food is eaten under these conditions, it may remain stagnant in the alimentary canal, with the subsequent formation of gases and decomposition products. But instead of recognizing the true cause of the trouble, many people erroneously blame the food itself!

Medical men have frequently noticed that people often develop gastric disturbances when they suffer financial reverses, and continue to suffer from them until their financial condition improves—a striking demonstration of the importance of banishing fear and worry!

Never Eat When Tired

Almost any food may cause distress when one is suffering from fatigue. So it is unwise to sit down to a large meal when exhausted from too much physical or mental work. A brief rest before eating will put the body in much better shape to receive and assimilate the food.

Then, if the meal is served in pleasant surroundings, and if the food is flavorful and well cooked, the chances are that it will be digested satisfactorily by all normal individuals.

Be Tranquil at Mealtimes

In view of the fact that tranquillity of mind is essential to the proper utilization of food, home-makers should remember never to discuss unpleasant subjects at meal times. Don't nag the children about eating, or choose that time to discuss their lapses from discipline. Don't talk about finances or take up real or fancied grievances with your husband. Let such matters wait until the meal has been digested.

If these suggestions were more generally followed, it is almost certain that we would hear much less conversation about foods that cause distress, much more wholesome talk about the pleasures of the table.

Questions Answered

Mrs. G. M. B.—Perhaps the most important single improvement that could be made in our dietaries would be to include more calcium-rich foods. So many of our staple foods are poor in calcium that a diet may be abundant and varied, and still lack this bone and tooth-building substance. In general, milk is the best source of calcium and should be the cornerstone of the diet. Fruits, vegetables and eggs also help to increase the supply of this mineral which has such a far-reaching effect upon health.

Mrs. J. H. L.—It is a fallacy to believe that hot foods supply much more heat to the body than chilled foods. In cold weather, we may prefer hot foods because they give an immediate sensation of warmth. But the temperature at which food is eaten has little bearing upon the heat or energy value it contributes to the body. The most "heating" foods are those that contribute the most caloric value. Fat takes the lead in this respect, because it is the most concentrated form of body fuel.

CLIP AND DRAW OUT FABRIC THREADS

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I had been wanting some really handsome velvet roses to pep up an evening dress. I was thrilled to find in your Book 2, instructions for making them from materials I already had. I would also like to thank you for the knitted rag rug in Book 1. My Mother spent many happy hours making it last winter."

"I thought you might be interested in a luncheon set I have just finished. It was planned to go with a set of blue dishes. There are four mats and a long runner in medium blue linen with bands of old fashioned needle weaving in darker blue across the ends. Just two edges of the napkins are banded with the weaving."

You who have pink dishes might like to try the same idea in tones of rose. Use a rather coarse linen. Prepare the work for the weaving by drawing out the fabric threads as for hemstitching. Each step is shown here in the diagram. Either linen or mercerized embroidery thread may be used.

SAFETY TALKS

Mischievous Hands

MAYBE he picked up the habit about the time he couldn't resist pulling the pig-tails of the girl who sat ahead of him in grammar school. But even though they were more chivalrous in their school days, adult man (and woman) has a lot of trouble keeping his hands and fingers out of mischief.

The National Safety council reports that of all accidents suffered during 1937 by persons who were at work, 33 per cent were hand and finger cases. Legs and feet were injured in 24 per cent of the occupational accident cases. The human trunk was injured in 19 per cent, or the third largest, number of cases.

Other parts of the body and the frequency with which they were injured: arms, 11 per cent; head (other than eyes), 6 per cent; eyes, 2 per cent. The council said general accidents accounted for 5 per cent of the cases.

Patterns SEWING CIRCLE

NO. 1691—Little girls should be seen (if not heard!) in simple, flare-skirted frocks like this one, that looks wee at the waist, flaunts a narrow ribbon sash, and bright rows of braid or ribbon. For school and everyday, make this dress of gingham, percale or batiste, with ricrac for trimming. It will be equally pretty for dress-up, in taffeta or organdie, with velvet or ribbon trim.

Slenderizing Lines.

No. 1686—A lovely dress for afternoon parties is this new one with a princess skirt, v-neckline and jabot trim. Every detail is designed to make you look slimmer. The bodice fits beautifully, thanks to darts on the shoulders and gathers above the waist. And of course nothing could be more slenderizing than a skirt like this. Choose flat crepe, small-figured silk print, georgette or chiffon for this design.

The Patterns.

No. 1691 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 6 requires 2⅝ yards of 35-inch material, with 7 yards of braid or ribbon to trim, and 2½ yards ribbon for belt.

No. 1686 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4⅞ yards of 39-inch material, with 1¾ yards of edging.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Conversation Made Easy.—Keep the center of the room free from furniture. This makes for easy conversation across the room.

• • •

Sweeten Coffee Pot. — If the morning coffee seems to have lost its pep, perhaps the pot needs attention. Scald it at least once a week—twice is better. Purify for an hour or longer directly in the sunlight.

• • •

For Baby's Bath.—A good soap substitute, if the baby has sensitive skin, is a pound of oatmeal or a quart of bran, tied securely in a gauze bag and allowed to soak in the bath water.

• • •

Sewing Tip. — Before mending with new darning wool hold it in the steam of a kettle for a few minutes and let it slowly dry. This shrinks it so it will not "pull" or pucker when the mended garment is washed.

• • •

Shine Off Serge.—The shine on the dark serge suit can be removed to a certain extent by sponging with vinegar and then pressing in the usual way.

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey, it's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted, nutritious cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

THE NEW 1940 RINSO GIVES FAR RICHER SUDS IN OUR HARD WATER
THAT'S BECAUSE THE NEW 1940 RINSO CONTAINS AN AMAZING NEW "SUDS-BOOSTER"
JUST SEE HOW THE DISHES SPARKLE . . . THERE ISN'T A TRACE OF GREASY FILM ON THEM AND THE NEW 1940 RINSO FEELS SO NICE TO MY HANDS
Rinso
The Rinso your grocer now has is the NEW 1940 RINSO
THE BOX IS THE SAME, BUT, OH! WHAT A DIFFERENCE IN THE SUDS

● The New 1940 Rinso is here a year ahead of time with a new "suds-booster" added at no extra cost to you. Rinso's richer suds make dish-washing speedy. A quick soaking . . . a swish with the dish mop . . . a rinse and the dishes are ready to dry shiny clean. Pots and pans are a cinch, too. Just put them to soak in hot Rinso suds and forget about them until the meal is over. Let Rinso do the hard work. After dinner you'll find them easy to clean—bright and shiny.

TIPS to Gardeners

Flowers for a Purpose

GARDENERS want flowers for house bouquets, for beautification of the yard, or both. To be certain of an abundance of flowers for cutting throughout the growing months, however, the gardener need plant packets of only three or four of the following flowers:

Annuals—snapdragon, aster, calendula, calliopsis, candytuft, carnation, bachelor button, cosmos, dahlia, larkspur, annual lupin, marigold, nasturtium, salpiglossis and zinnia.

Perennials—columbine, coreopsis, gaillardia grandiflora, perennial lupin, pyrethrum (painted daisy) shasta daisy and delphinium.

For earliest bloom, the following are recommended by Gilbert Bentley, flower expert: Calliopsis and candytuft among the annuals, and coreopsis, delphinium and pyrethrum among the perennials.

For late-blooming cut flowers, grow zinnia, marigold, gaillardia, snapdragon, aster, cosmos and dahlia.

Well Remembered

One of the stories Earl Baldwin likes to tell about himself—says Isaac F. Marcosson in his reminiscences, "Turbulent Years"—relates to an incident which happened shortly after he became premier the first time. A man recognized him on a train and said:

"You are Stanley Baldwin, aren't you?"

"Yes," was the reply, whereupon his fellow traveler said:

"We were at Harrow (school) together. What are you doing?"

WHAT 3.2 BEER
MEANS TO MINNESOTA

MORE TAX REVENUE ● From January 9, 1934, to December 31, 1938, Minnesota's Treasury was enriched to the amount of $9,238,470 from direct taxes on all beer, at the rate of $1.00 per bbl. on 3.2 beer and $2.00 per bbl. on high per cent beer.

● Of this vast sum, $7,475,565 . . . or about 81% . . . was from taxes on 3.2 beer alone!

● The total of $9,238,470 was deposited in the General Fund of the State Treasury from which allocations are made for Schools . . . Old Age Pensions . . . Unemployment Relief . . . and Public Welfare work.

MORE JOBS . . . LESS RELIEF

● Figuring on the conservative basis of 3 dependents for each person employed . . . as competent statisticians do . . . the business of manufacturing, distributing, and selling 3.2 Beer is today the direct means of livelihood for approximately 87,000 Minnesotans.

● For example, the 425 wholesalers of beer in Minnesota employ on the average 2,550 persons. With 3 dependents each, the number "supported" through this employment is 7,650. Likewise, 9,200 retailers of 3.2 Beer, employing 18,400 persons, actually support 55,200. And Minnesota Brewers with employment reaching 3,500 thus support 10,500 . . . a grand total of 97,000 persons receiving direct benefits from jobs made possible by Beer! 90% of the beer made and sold in Minnesota is 3.2 beer. This means that 90% of the 97,000 people . . . or 87,000 . . . are supported by 3.2 beer.

● Not only our sense of fairness, but public duty also demands that we ask ourselves . . . "What will become of these 97,000 citizens . . . and of the thousands whose money is invested in taverns . . . and of those in new businesses depending solely on supplying taverns if 3.2 Beer is declared intoxicating?"

● Let us not deceive ourselves. If 3.2 Beer is declared intoxicating, the entire business will be destroyed . . . and about 87,000 persons left without means of support.

● Can all these go on relief? And where will the money come from? The Federal Government collected $56,540,235 in beer taxes from Minnesota from 1934 through 1938. Millions of these tax dollars were returned to Minnesota . . . for relief!

● Will Prohibition replace these vanished relief dollars in State and Federal treasuries? Our 15 sad years of Prohibition Experience tell us definitely, "NO!"

● Let us, therefore, pause to consider. Let us resolve to go forward . . . not backward. Let us keep and improve what we have . . . what we know will work . . . rather than try once again an experiment that has signally failed, and always will.

BEER PROMOTES PROSPERITY and MODERATION

Appetizing Entrees

"YOU ain't seen nothin', yet," cries the clown in the circus to tease the interest of his audience. And entrees are served by the hostess as a message to her guests that more and better foods are in the offing. An entree, which means an appetizing dish served after the soup and before the piece de resistance may take any of several forms such as a vegetable or fish creation with a piquant sauce, an aspic, a patty, or something very like a salad.

A Dazzling Promise

In principle an entree is a gay little sample of the spirit of the whole meal—a dazzling promise that leads you willingly on. Since an entree's mission is to charm, it should always be served at the peak of its perfection. If it is hot, it should be piping hot. If it is cold, it should be beautifully so. Since it is supposed to create appetite, it should be flavored with great care. And in appearance, it should be dainty, inviting—irresistible!

The following delicious entrees are specially suited to winter and early spring dinner parties.

Seafood in Fancy Dress

Tuna and Crab Scallop: Make a white sauce of three tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, and two cups of milk. Beat two egg yolks slightly, and add to the white sauce. Add two teaspoons lemon juice, and season to taste. Add one 7-ounce can tuna fish (flaked) and one 6½-ounce can crabmeat, and pour into well-greased individual molds. Sprinkle buttered crumbs and grated cheese over the tops, and brown the oven. Serve from the molds, garnished with watercress. This serves eight.

Salmon with Curried Asparagus Sauce: Heat one 1-pound can salmon in the can, remove it from the can and divide it into eight servings, leaving the fish in as large pieces as possible. Place on small plates and pour over the following sauce. This serves eight.

Curried Asparagus Sauce: Melt two tablespoons of butter, add half a teaspoon curry powder and half a teaspoon celery salt, then two tablespoons of flour, and stir smooth. Add one and three-quarters cups milk or cream slowly, stirring constantly until creamy. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add asparagus cut in small pieces.

Oysters and Shrimps

Oyster Entree: Drain one 5-ounce can of oysters and arrange them in four buttered flat shallow earthen ramekins or scallop shells. Mix one cup bread crumbs with two tablespoons butter, one tablespoon minced parsley, half a teaspoon salt, a few grains of pepper, a quarter teaspoon of thyme and half a teaspoon lemon juice, and add four tablespoons of the oyster liquor to moisten. Cover the oysters with the mixture, and place them under the broiler flame until crumbs are browned. This serves four.

Shrimps Mouquin: Cook half a cup of whole blanched almonds very gently in one and a half tablespoons butter until they are a golden brown. Add three-quarters of a cup of celery cut in half inch pieces, and cook again until the celery is tender and the nuts and the celery a golden brown. Add one 5¾-ounce can shrimps, cut in half, and cook two minutes longer. Add one-third cup cream, season to taste, and serve hot on fingers of toast. This serves six.

Nothing to Conceal

Stuffed Eggs in Hiding: Cook six eggs until hard, peel them, cut them in halves, and remove the yolks. Mash the yolks and season them with salt, paprika, mustard, lemon juice, and mayonnaise. Refill the whites and press two halves together with one curled anchovy in the center of each. Soften one tablespoon gelatin in two tablespoons cold water, and dissolve it in one 15-ounce can of tomato juice which has been heated to boiling. Season to taste with salt, pepper, and Worcestershire sauce. Chill, and pour a little into the bottoms of six small molds. When hard, put a filled egg in each, and pour over the rest of the tomato jelly. Chill until set. Unmold on lettuce leaves, and garnish with mayonnaise.

Mushrooms and Olives

Mushrooms and Olives on Puff Paste Rounds: Drain one 4-ounce can mushrooms, and cook them gently for three minutes in one tablespoon butter. Cut twelve stuffed olives in half, add them to the mushrooms, and cook two minutes longer. Smooth one tablespoon flour with the mushroom liquor to which has been added enough milk or cream to make two-thirds of a cup. Add to the mushrooms and olives, and cook until creamy, stirring all the time. Season to taste, add a few drops of lemon juice and serve on rounds of puff paste. This serves four.

Legislature Nears Half-Way Mark

Senate Finance Committee Makes Drastic Reductions in Appropriation Legislation

The Minnesota Legislature has reached the half-way mark of the 1939 session with new legislation well advanced in one house or the other. In the Legislative Letter of the Minnesota Taxpayers Association sent to this newspaper, many interesting phases of the session are recounted.

Perhaps one of the most sensational features of the week has been the drastic cuts of departmental requests by the Senate Finance Committee, which has been using the axe in an unprecedented manner. Reductions in budget requests this week are: Department of Labor and Industry's request cut from $709,032 to $493,539; State Banking Dept. cut from $257,500 to $120,000; State Securities Commission cut from $76,960 to $47,500; Attorney General reduced from $513,840 to $215,000; State Comptroller reduced from $146,000 to $105,000; and State Law Examiner cut from $17,500 to $10,000.

Senator F. J. Miller of Little Falls presented a plan to liquidate Rural Credits department debt by selling immediately negotiable mortgages now held by the state, the proceeds to be used in retiring some $60,000,000 in bonds now outstanding. He pointed out that this would result in great interest savings as well as about $100,000 a year servicing present mortgage debt.

Senator A. J. Rockne of Zumbrota suggested that expenses of oil inspection be financed from gas tax receipts. He proposed a bill to cut $500,000 from road maintenance and construction for the next biennium.

The Senate has passed the bill exempting employers of less than eight from provisions of Unemployment Compensation tax. Bill now before the House would amend the act to exempt on a five-employee basis only.

The House killed the bill to provide "25 every Thursday" to all persons over 55.

A bill introduced in the House would establish in each county a welfare board of five members, two of the members to be appointed by the State Board of Control.

Many other bills have been introduced: one to increase highway patrol from 100 to 200; one reducing legal interest rate to 5 per cent and contract rate to 7 per cent; one placing old age assistance at age 60, instead of 65 years; one regulating milk prices; and increasing exemptions on income taxes.

The Civil Service bill passed the House and is now being studied by the Senate committee. The bill calls for veterans preference of 10 per cent in the ratings, and elimination of highway patrol provisions of the act.

Claude H. Allen of House Appropriations committee, in a talk sponsored by the Minnesota Taxpayers Association, calls for an about-face in the policy of "dedicating" certain tax funds for certain definite purposes. He believes that all state taxes should go into the state revenue fund, and should then be allocated to the various agencies by the state legislature. He states that this would save the state substantial amounts, and would reduce taxes.

SCHOOL LUNCH MAY HELP CHILD SUCCEED

Mother can help Johnny achieve happiness and success in school by sending the proper kind of lunch with him, asserts Eva Donelson, member of the home economist staff at University Farm, St. Paul.

A well-balanced appetizing lunch will play an important part in a child's success at school and will give him the energy he needs to carry him through the day. A good lunch should preferably have 15 per cent of its calories in protein, 60 per cent in carbohydrates, and 35 per cent in fat; it should have sufficient minerals and vitamins, it must be attractive in color and consistency, it must have flavors that blend together well. It is well to include at least one food that the child particularly likes. Often a child will eat food he dislikes, but particularly needs, if it is accompanied by one of his favorites.

An approved school lunch—one that capitalizes on economy but has sufficient food value—includes the following: 1. one hot dish, 2. sandwiches of whole wheat bread spread with plain butter or various fillings, 3. a glass of milk, 4. one raw or cooked fruit, 5. a plain desert—such as hermit, fig or oatmeal cookies, or a plain sponge cake. The hot dish may be furnished in the form of hot soups, hot chocolate or milk that can be carried in a thermos bottle, or in various dishes that are prepared at home and reheated at school. These may be baked beans, macaroni and cheese, egg dishes, rice and tomatoes with meat, vegetable dishes, chowders and stews.

BOBCAT IS KILLED ON FARM NORTH OF GRYGLA

The killing of a bobcat near the Thieling farm, twelve miles north of Grygla, was told of by Mr. Thieling Friday while he was a business caller in town.

The vicious animal was found in a strawshed after Mr. Thieling noticed that one of his sheep had been attacked by some animal. Tracks in the snow indicated it was something else than a dog. As the farmer and his hired man entered, the bobcat escaped through a hole in a corner of the shed.

They gave chase, summoning neighbors as aids, using skiis and horseback. After several hours of tracking they came close enough for a fair shot and the bobcat fell dead. It was the size of a good-sized dog.

Upon hearing of the killing of the bobcat, people in the neighborhood recalled having heard unusual howling at times in the woods that were neither that of a dog or wolf.

A lynx or bobcat was reported shot late last fall several miles north of the Thieling farm which many believe was a mate of the animal just killed.—T. R. Falls Forum.

NEW VEGETABLES ANNOUNCED BY EXPERIMENT STATION

Two new vegetables—both developed by T. M. Currence, University Farm horticulturist—have been announced by the Minnesota Experiment Station.

One is a white-podded bean called the Duluth Snap bean; the other is a yellow tomato named the Mingold.

The bean, a novelty because of its white pod, is a stringless variety which has high cooking quality. The pod is slightly flat, of average length and will reach edible maturity in Minnesota about the middle of July.

The Mingold is an early tomato which ripens about the same time as the popular red tomato, Bonny Best. Full-fleshed and of good quality, the Mingold is a fine type for gardeners who wish an early large yellow tomato. It compares favorably with the standard Marglobe in size and flavor of fruit. Seedsmen will be interested in the fact that it produces about as much seed per ton as the Marglobe.

NEW FOREST INN AT DOUGLAS LODGE

Construction has been started on a large new log building to replace the old Forest Inn at Douglas Lodge, Itasca State Park, according to Harold W. Lathrop, director of the division of state parks.

The new building will house a souvenir mart as well as a refectory and the post office. In addition, the new building will contain a kitchen, lunch room, rest room, and a public shelter. Work on the new building is being done with Civilian Conservation Corps labor in cooperation with the division of state parks.

MINNEAPOLIS ICE SHOW SCHEDULED FOR MARCH 17-26

(By Jimmy Robinson)

Lyle Wright of Minneapolis, who has promoted more ice skating shows than any Tex Rickard has fights, announces his Seventh Annual Greater Arena Ice Show at the Minneapolis Arena. The show is scheduled for March 17 to 26, inclusive, and it will include 10 nightly performances and two matinees.

Wright recently sponsored Sonja Henie and her troupe at his auditorium and they took the fans by storm—but wait until you see his Ice Follies that recently took three and one half stars in Liberty.

Of course Evelyn Chandler, the "Thrill a Moment" girl, will be on deck. This exhilarating star, who has been packing them in since 1928, will again demonstrate why she is the master of graceful skating. She has no peer for showmanship on skates.

Heinie Brock, the greatest of skating comedians; that remarkable skating team, Bess Ehrhardt and Roy Shipstead, and McGowan and Mack, are worth the price of admission alone. Shipstead is the world's professional men's champion and is known as the "Original Human Top," while Bess Ehrhardt, a Superior, Wisconsin, product, is familiarly known as "America's Sweetheart of the Ice."

McGowan and Mack will render their famous Apache dance on skates which has won acclaim everywhere. Then there will be Ida Papez and Karl Zwack, the European Pair Champions and Viennese Ice Dance experts; Osborne Colson, the former Canadian senior champion, a marvelous skater; Varerie and Luverne, the "pep" skaters; Harris Legg, the trick skater and barrel jumper; Les Hamilton, the "Laugh a Second" artist; Ann Haroldson, the "Darling" from Duluth, famed for her artful skating and last but not least, the McKellen Brothers, who really make the audience "split their sides" with their funny antics.

No less than 60 international skating stars will cut capers on the Arena ice for your entertainment in their only Twin Cities appearance this season. Admission prices scale from 75 cents to $2.26 and Manager Wright requests out of town fans to get in their orders early.

CARE OF EWE MEANS PROFIT TO SHEEPMAN

Lambing time—part of the sheepman's harvest—is a big factor in annual return from the flock, stresses W. E. Morris, extension animal husbandman, University Farm. The number of lambs saved will directly affect the size of the figures in the profit column.

Morris outlines practices which will help the flock owner get through this period successfully: "Temporary lambing pens should be provided in the warmest part of the barn to protect the lamb from the rest of the flock and against cold weather the first 2 or 3 days of his life. To accustom the ewe to being penned, place her in the pen several days before the lambs are expected. Clip loose, dirty locks of fleece from the udder and the area around it to make it easier for the lamb to nurse.

"Once a lamb is born, it is important that he get good care for the first few days, for the right start in life will mean good growth and early maturity for market. Give the ewe plenty of water with the chill taken off, and a light feed of grain the first day. The grain ration can be increased the second day, and by the third day the ewe may have her regular ration. After this, the ewe and her lamb may return to the flock, provided that she will own her own lamb.

"An important point to remember is to remove the mucus from the mouth of the lamb immediately after birth and then help him nurse so that he will at once get some food. A small amount of the ewe's milk will give the lamb strength rapidly, after which he will usually take care of himself. Every precaution should be taken to prevent unclaimed lambs."

TREES TO REPLACE SNOW FENCES UNDER NEW PLAN

An extensive plan for the replacement of snow fences along Minnesota's highways with shelterbelt trees and hedgerows is the suggestion of Conservation Commissioner Herman C. Wenzel.

These shelter plantings, in addition to permanently replacing snow fences that must be set each fall and removed in the spring, would furnish ideal shelter and food for game birds, as well as to prevent soil erosion and conserve moisture on adjoining land.

State Highway Commissioner M. J. Hoffman has indicated his interest and his willingness to cooperate in the development of the windbreak plan in every way possible.

The plan would involve leasing a strip of land 150 feet wide, 150 feet from the highway, part of which would be planted to trees and shrubs offering windbreak, as well as shelter and food for game birds. A part of the strip would be seeded to grain on a share basis, where cooperating farmers would harvest a part of the grain, and leave the balance standing for winter bird feed.

The new plan could be carried out ~~under the terms of the Pittman-Robert~~son act, whereby the federal government would provide 75 per cent of the cost, or $3.00 for every dollar of hunters license money.

Commissioner Wenzel feels that this plan developed throughout the prairie areas of the state would not only increase the attractiveness of our highways, but would eventually provide more birds and better hunting.

Study Relation of Iodine to Goiter

Less Goitre in Parts of State Where Cabbage Has Relatively High Iodine Content

Minneapolis, March 9—Using the humble cabbage as an indicator of the amount of iodine in the soil, Professor Jesse F. McClendon of the University of Minnesota medical school has shown that in parts of Minnesota where cabbage has a relatively high iodine content there is less goiter, while in parts of the state where less iodine is shown by analyses of cabbage leaves, goiter is more prevalent. The significance of the study is that a direct relationship exists between goiter and iodine, it having been established that iodine deficiency in diet predisposes a person to that fairly common disease.

His volume, "Iodine and the Incidence of Goiter" has recently been printed by the University of Minnesota Press.

Dr. McClendon, who has been working on the goiter-iodine relationship for twenty years, showed by a long series of tests that in the western and south-central three fifths of the state of Minnesota, where cabbage has an iodine value of 174 under his method, the incidence of goiter may be stated as 0.85, while in the eastern and north-eastern part of the state cabbage has an iodine value of only 111 and the incidence of goiter is 1.72 slightly more than twice as great as elsewhere.

His book deals not only with Minnesota, but with the same problem the world over, and he has made an exhaustive study of foodstuffs in almost every part of the world to discover its iodine content and to relate that to the commonness of goiter. It has long been recognized that in certain parts of the world from which much of the iodine has been removed by the off-flowing of waters and other causes, goiter is a menacing disease. Switzerland is the classic example of this. In that country both goiter and cretinism, the dwarfing disease that comes from a disfunctioning thyroid gland, are very common.

The University of Minnesota has played an important part in the scientific study of this relationship, for in 1914, Kendall of the Mayo Foundation showed that the principal substance in the thyroid gland is iodine, and he and his associates showed that by injecting iodine in a goiter patient the dangers of subsequent operation were reduced almost to nothing. Goiter is an enlargement and over-functioning of the thyroid, while the opposite and less common disease of an inefficient thyroid is myxedema.

INTRODUCES BILL TO PROVIDE LIBRARIES FOR MINNESOTA COUNTIES

Library privileges for every resident of Minnesota, whether he is a resident of city, town or farm, is the principal objective of a state aid bill to extend free public library service, introduced into the State Senate this week by Senator Val Imm of Mankato.

The bill calls for an appropriation of $85,000 for the biennium, 1939 and 1940, to assist in providing free county libraries for the people of this state who are now without adequate library facilities.

Under the provisions of the bill the sum of $1,000 shall be granted to each county that qualifies under the regulations adopted by the State Board of Education. The Board is to supervise and control the expenditure of the funds which will be administered by the Library Division of the State Department of Education.

The grants to counties will be contingent on the appropriation by county boards of an equal sum for their county library system. No county shall receive more than $1,000, but if it is necessary or advisable for two or more counties to join together to form a regional library system, they may receive the state aid due each one without penalty.

Mr. Imm pointed out that there are over a million people or more than 40 per cent of the state's population without access to a free public library. Since the library is considered today to be second in educational importance only to the public school, Mr. Imm believes that rural people should have an equal chance with residents of large cities to avail themselves of the benefits of the libraries.

Library authorities and rural leaders agree that it is only thru the establishment of county libraries that book service will be made available to everyone, and the county or regional library has also proved to be the most economical system from the standpoint of the taxpayer, Mr. Imm said.

OUR QUESTION BOX

1. How many feet does a horse have off the ground at once in running?
2. Why is a certain type of adjustable wrench called a money wrench?
3. How much did George Washington receive for his eight years as commander of the American army?
4. What do each of the world's fairs this year commemorate?
5. Who first called Duluth 'the Zenith city of the unsalted seas'.
6. Why were buttons put on men's coat sleeves?
7. Why are there stripes on a barber pole?
8. If an irresistible force meets an immoveable body, what will happen?
9. What was the secret of the strength of Samson, the lion killer, in the Bible?
10. What state has no counties?

Answers

1. A horse has all his feet off the ground at once at every stride in all of the faster gaits.
2. The 'monkey' wrench is named after its inventor, Charles Moncke. The present spelling is simply a deterioration.
3. Washington got exactly nothing for his war services.
4. The New York World's fair commemorates the 150th inauguration of George Washington as president. The Golden Gate exposition commemorates nothing. It celebrates the opening of the San Francisco bay-Oakland, the Golden Gate bridge and opening of trans-Pacific airlines.
5. Proctor Knott in a speech in congress opposing Duluth harbor appropriations.
6. Two stories are current. One that coat sleeves were so tight they had to be slit to get them over the wrist and were buttoned for neatness. The other is that Frederick the Great had buttons put on the sleeves of his bodyguard to keep them from wiping their noses on their sleeves.
7. Barbers, who were also originally surgeons, wrapped bloody bandages around poles to dry. People came to recognize a barber's place by the bloody rags. Barbers took advantage of the advertising and later painted red stripes around a pole.
8. Such a condition cannot exist. If the force is irresistible the body can be moved and if the body cannot be moved the force is not irresistible.
9. His long hair.
10. Louisiana. They are called 'parishes'.

LONG DISTANCE CALL OVER BARBED WIRE

Sauk Center—A long distance call to a rural home, which on its last lap came over a barbed wire fence, was the experience of the Robert Plant family recently. Earlier in the day their telephone was out of order and their son Robert had hooked the broken wire on to the barbed wire fence. Mrs. Plant had talked down the fence to San Francisco with perfect sound and she found the experience considerably different from talking over the backyard fence. You can imagine her surprise when she said "Where are you calling from?" to her nephew, Bud, and he answered "The San Francisco Fair!"

HOLT WEEKLY NEWS

Issued Weekly From The Home Of The Biggest Co-operative Creamery In Marshall County

H. O. Hanson, Publisher; Mrs. Mabel Hanson, Editor & Bus. Mgr. Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota, Friday, Mar. 24, 1939. Volume 28, Number 47

CCC Enrollment In April

Information has been received at the local Welfare Office that young men will be enrolled into CCC from Marshall County early in April. It is expected that several times as many men will be selected in April as were in the last enrollment in January. In January only four men were selected from Marshall County because of the small number of of vacancies in the camps.

Young men between the ages of 18 and 23 who are interested in going into the CCC are urged to call at the Welfare Office in Warren and make out a preliminary application. Those men who have made out such an application within the past four months will only need to renew it by postal card. While it is still permissable for boys between 17 and 18 years to make an application for enrollment they will not be selected unless enough qualified candidates above 18 years cannot be found.

Enrollment in the CCC now stresses good health, good character, and the desire to work in addition to the need for employment according to information received from the CCC Headquarters in St. Paul.

Kilen Selling Out Next Week

This is the time of the year that auction sales are held and the first one in this area is the big sale which Joe Kilen, farmer, 12 miles east of Middle River will have on his place on Wednesday, March 29. The sale starts at 11 a. m. Read his ad on the back page this week.

The Pioneer Auctioneer

After having spent most of forty years as an auctioneer in eastern Marshall County, I wish to announce that I am still active in that field of work. If you are thinking of having a sale soon just call me and I will be ready to serve you.

Beckwith Sponsors Land Bill

County boards will be given authority to classify and sell lands forfeited to the state if a bill sponsored by Representative H. S. Beckwith and other ligislators from northern Minnesota becomes a law.

The bill, introduced in the house of representatives during the past week, sets up machinery designed to get back into productive use as many as possible of the thousands of acres of lands that have been forfeited to the state for non-payment of taxes. The bill provides that the county board shall classify the various parcels as agricultural and non-agricultural, with approval of the conservation commissioner before any lands are offered for sale. The lands classified as agricultural lands would be appraised under terms of the bill and offered for sale when deemed advisable by the board. No land could be sold in larger quantity than 160 acres.

The bill provides that sales may be made for cash or payments extended over a period of 20 years with interest at 4 per cent on unpaid balances.

Lond classed as non-agricultural by the county boards under the bill would have to be reserved and dedicated to conservation purposes and managed as other state trust fund lands.

Concordia College Honored

Concordia College of Moorhead Minn., has been chosen one of 40 colleges in the United States to become members in the Bureau of University Travel, an organization to provide fellowships for faculty study of the Far East. The Bureau is an educational foundation for interpretation of foreign cultures, and enables Concordia to send one of its instructors to the Orient once each five years. Only one other college in Minnesota, Carleton, is included.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Smith and children and Verna Johnson spent Thursday afternoon at the C. E. Smith home. Mr. Smith was 81 years old on that day.

Band Concert Here March 31

The Holt Community Band is sponsoring a musical concert to be held at the Holt High School Auditorium on Friday evening, March 31. This is the first concert the band will give since it was reorganized and it is hoped that a good crowd will turn out to hear them.

Supt. Geo. Karvonen will be the speaker of the evening. The High School Glee Club will also give several numbers and Leonard Ness will furnish the Accordian music.

The Holt Boy Scout Troop will sell lunch to the crowd after the program.

There's Quite a Difference

"Sure, the railroads are having tough sledding, but isn't everybody?"

The railroads, of course, are affected by general conditions. They face very much the same problems as the farmer, merchant and everyone else engaged in business.

But the railroads' problems do not end there. Public policies have created unequal competitive conditions which have added immensely to their difficulties.

Railroads, handicapped by unequal regulation, are expected to be fully self-supporting and tax-paying—and meet competition which is not required to shoulder the same responsibilities.

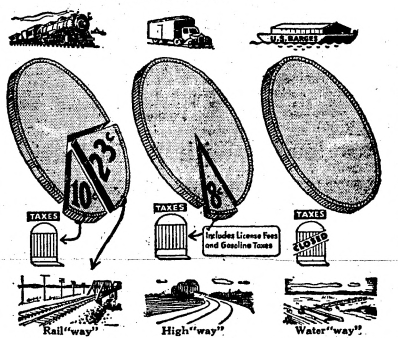
That is expected of no other business. No other business could survive that sort of a public policy. And how much longer the railroads can, is a serious question. The pictures below tell the story:

THE DOLLARS YOU PAY FOR TRANSPORTATION

Showing what part goes for taxes, and what part for providing and maintaining the "ways" over which trains, trucks and barges operate.



ALL COSTS PAID BY RAILROADS

ALL COSTS PAID FROM TAX FUNDS
If highway carriers paid their share of highway costs, it would take from their dollar about the same part that it takes from the railroad dollar to provide and maintain tracks, bridges, etc.

ALL COSTS PAID FROM TAX FUNDS
If barge lines paid their share of the cost of providing and maintaining channels, dams, locks, etc., it would take from their dollar a much larger part than it takes from the railroad dollar for roadway.

All that the railroads ask is the opportunity to compete under equal conditions with respect to regulation, taxation, and subsidies—all matters of public policy.

Soils Specialist To Speak

George H. Nesom, soils specialist of the University Farm, will be present at a discussion on soils at a series of two meeting which will be held in Marshall County next week.

One of these meetings will be held at the Court House in Warren on Tuesday, March 28 while the other will be held at Grygla on Wednesday, March 29. Both meetings will start 2 p. m. The subjects which will be discussed by Mr. Nesom will be "Soil Factors entering into the Securing of Good Stands of Alfalfa, Clovers, and Grasses," and "Soils Tests for Deficiencies of Plant Food."

Many persons will remember the work of Mr. Nesom at the Golden Valley project during which time he worked on the peat soils of Marshall County.

Thief River Falls Won Again

Several people from here motored to Foston last Thursday and Friday evenings to attend the regional basketball tournament. The teams taking part in this playoff were Middle River, Bemidji, Thief River Falls and Ada. In the final games Friday evening, Bemidji won over Ada in the consolation game and Thief River Falls took the regional championship play from Middle River.

The Thief River Falls team will again go to the state to try their luck. This was the third time they have taken the regional honors in region 8.

The Weather

The weather, since last Friday has been on the spring like order and spring was officially ushered in on Tuesday with a great thaw here. Wednesday the snow was marking time in the face of a showing of about fifty above on the thermometer. With spring, comes more activity and people feel better so we hope it is here to stay.

The crows are here in numbers and many meadowlarks have come back to their old haunts.

Crown Prince At Concordia

Crown Prince Olav of Norway will deliver the commencement address at Concordia College, Moorhead, Minn., June 8, Dr. J. N. Brown announced recently.

Deviating from tradition, the exercises will be held in the evening at 8 p. m., on the lawn in front of the main building, weather permitting. Wilhelm Morgenstjerne, Norwegian minister to the United States, will also bring greetings.

Word of the Crown Prince's acceptance was received from A. I. Johnson, Fargo, vice-consul of North Dakota, through Minister Morgenstjerne and E. I. Hobe, of the consulate at St. Paul.

With Crown Princess Martha the Prince will spend two days in Fargo Moorhead, June 8 and 9. Dr. Brown is president of the reception committee of the two cities.

Move Indian Unit To Cass Lake

The Administrative offices of the consolidated Chippewa Indian agency, located at Duluth, since last April 1, will return to Cass Lake under orders of the U. S. Indian affairs bureau with the first part of this week set as moving time.

If weather and road conditions permit, T. W. Sanders, chief clerk, said last week, the offices of the CCC, Indian department, lands, rehabilitation and forestry will be moved, This will involve a personnel of 13.

On Saturday, the remaining departments with 13 more persons engaged, are scheduled to return to Cass Lake.

Mark Burns is acting superintendent of the agence administrative center.

When the offices were moved last year the Indians at Cass Lake protested to the Federal Indian Bureau at Washington.

The ladies of Holt gave Mrs. C. O. Saastad a birthday party on Wednesday afternoon. The self invited guests served a delicious lunch and the guest of honor received a cash purse.

Big Business Of Tomorrow

Many of tomorrow's industrial giants are today small concerns, struggling for a foothold in our highly competitive economic system.

The fact that they survive and prosper will be due first to a worthy product or service and second to sound management.

Banking can, and does, play an important role in sound business management. Wise is the "small business man" who early in his career allies himself with a strong bank.

If you are in business, or hope to be, we invite you to establish a working relationship with this bank.

Knit Oval Rag Rug In Various Colors

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

Here is a sketch of another interesting rug. Be sure to order the leaflet to add to your collection of rug ideas.

Cut or tear the rags ¾ inch wide and use knitting needles ⅝ inch in diameter. Knit the oval center first. Cast on four stitches and increase one at the end of each row until the depth of the work is 4-inches, then knit evenly for 10-inches. Bind off one stitch at the end of each row until you have four stitches left. Bind these off. The diagram gives the dimensions and colors for the bands that are sewn to this center oval. Cast on seven stitches to start each band. For the outside band, start with color 3. Knit 7-inches, then cut the fabric strip and sew color 4 to it. Continue. Use a large crochet hook and fabric strips to crochet around the oval and the outside edges of the bands. Sew together with double carpet thread.

Note: Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroideries, contains 48 pages of step-by-step directions which have helped thousands of women. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Order by number, enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both books, copy of the new Rag Rug Leaflet will be included free. Those who have both books may secure leaflet for 6 cents in postage. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

A STAR NO LONGER

Two reasons were given why Mike Klotovich, backfield ace, quit school recently at St. Mary's, depriving Coach Slip Madigan of one of his best men. Mike said he needed the money to support his parents. University officials stated that he suffered from "academic apathy." Here he is at work on a construction job in San Francisco.

Divorcee Asks for 'Freedom of Dress'

The fondness of Ellen Tilton Holmsen, society divorcee, for going about in woolen pajamas finally convinced police chiefs of three New Jersey towns that she should be "exported" because she attracted too much attention. She then wrote to Washington for a badge saying "Leave this girl alone, she's all right." Mrs. Holmsen is pictured here with Hollywood's Peter the Hermit whom she visited shortly after her divorce in 1934.

Young Theatrical Genius to Stage Girl Show

Jimmy Griffin, six-year-old Brookline, Mass., theatrical genius, is having a difficult time getting these girls to do a dance the way he wants it done. Jimmy, though, is undaunted. He is the youngest possessor of an entertainment license in Brookline, and has had a successful solo act. He recently applied for a renewal of his license and decided to add some girls to his cast. Here he is trying to teach them the routine he has devised.

BANKING—New York state commercial banks have been urged to eliminate as many of their "thrift" accounts as possible, because interest payments are too great a drain on earning power.

MANAGERSHIP—A total of 487 U. S. communities now operate under the city manager form of government, with four more expected to join the list via elections by May 30.

HOSPITALS—U. S. hospitals in 1938 totaled 6,166 compared with 6,128 in 1937. Last year a patient was admitted every 3.3 seconds.

SHOES—Missouri's legislature has been offered a bill to ban sale of toeless and heelless shoes for women in spring, fall and winter months.

England

From mid-May to mid-June, Great Britain's King George and Queen Elizabeth will be guests of the North American continent on a junket which most good Americans regard as a simple, friendly gesture. But as travel time approaches, the royal expedition is meeting with far more distracting bogeymen than Toronto's Dionne quintuplets, which are being shipped 180 miles under protest to curtsy before their queen.

From June 8 to 11 the royal party will visit the U. S. Because the entire journey was planned last winter in the heat of international chatter about "democratic solidarity," more than one anti-Chamberlain writer has tried to place the prime minister in a difficult position. A sample, by one Peter Howard in Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express: "Now the royal visit puts Chamberlain himself on trial. If it succeeds Chamberlain goes up. If it fails he goes down."

What Englishmen mean by "success" or "failure" of the American visit was finally brought into fairly close focus, but it still remained a doubtful quantity. Probable meaning: The visit will "fail" if U. S. citizens get the impression that King George and Queen Elizabeth are making a begging expedition to gain American aid in pulling England's chestnuts out of the European fires.

Politics

"If Bergen can put words into the mouth of Charlie McCarthy; if President Roosevelt finds it very convenient to use Ickes, Hopkins, Jackson et al as mouthpieces or stooges, why shouldn't I use my friend 'Stuffy,' the old gray squirrel of the White House lawn?"

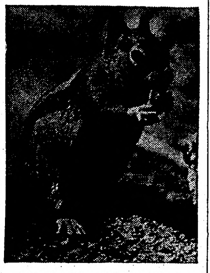
Thus reasoned Illinois' Republican Rep. Noah Morgan Mason, to whom an idea had come while watching an unidentified squirrel scamper across the White House greensward. Said the squirrel: The Democrats were elected in 1932 because the Republicans had done nothing but "fumble the ball." After the Democrats took office they discarded their "excellent platform" and have since "produced little else than a great national headache."



STUFFY, OR ANY SQUIRREL
A Charlie McCarthy to Mr. Mason.

For the edification of any newspaper reporter who would listen, Mr. Mason put the following prophetic words into the mouth of his mythical furry sage:

"It offers a real opportunity for your Republicans, and should present a challenge to your party. Father Time and vicissitudes of political fortune have kindly removed most of your old discredited leaders. New leaders have developed . . . The elephant has fully recovered from his sleeping sickness . . . All signs point to a landslide in 1940."

Late Fashion News For You Who Sew

THE smartest kind of dress for runabout, as becoming as it is practical, is yours if you use No. 1717 to make it. The button-down-the-front style is extremely popular. This dress, too, has lines that make your figure look slim and youthful. The skirt is slim over the hips, high at the waist, and full at the hem. The shirred bodice and wide-shouldered sleeves give you a softly rounded look. Make this dress of flat crepe, silk print or sheer fabrics.

Three-in-One Frock.

Here's a clever design that gives you three different fashions in one! First of all, No. 1685 is a charming little kimono-sleeved frock with a flattering, tiny waist. And with it comes a little bolero (that you can wear with other frocks, too) and a tie-around apron-skirt, fastened with a bow in the front. For this, choose silk print, flat crepe, taffeta, thin wool, and combinations of two contrasting fabrics.

No. 1717 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. With long sleeves, size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 39 inch material. With short sleeves, 3¾ yards.

No. 1685 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards of 35 or 39 inch fabric for the dress; 1⅛ yards for the bolero; 2⅛ yards for the apron-skirt.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. # WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Shows How the Right Foods Can Help to Guard Against Springtime Debility

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THE gap between winter and spring has always been recognized as a trying period. Work seems a burden, tempers are short, appetites are poor, and little enjoyment is derived from meals.

Just as the daily tide of human vitality is at a low ebb during the hours before dawn, so does the annual tide of health reach a low ebb in the weeks that mark the end of winter and the official beginning of spring.

Bodily reserves have been gradually depleted until many children and adults suffer from lassitude and fatigue that cannot be dispelled merely by getting a good night's sleep.

The Best Spring Tonic

A generation ago it was believed that sulphur and molasses, and sassafras tea would overcome springtime debility. Homemakers dosed their families with a variety of so-called tonics, in a frantic effort to put color into pale cheeks, to soothe irritable nerves, to overcome that tired feeling.

We know today why their efforts met with little success. For we have learned what they could not know—that the best possible tonic is a carefully chosen diet rich in minerals and vitamins.

In those days, the science of nutrition was in its infancy. Vitamins were still undiscovered, and there was much that we had not learned about the role of the mineral salts in regulating body processes. No wonder mothers grasped at any mixture that promised to put roses back into the cheeks of their anemic-looking children.

How lucky we are today! For science has taught us what we should eat to help increase pep and vitality, and build rich red blood. And modern methods of transportation, refrigeration, food preservation and packaging, have made the necessary foods easily available. It merely remains for the homemaker to acquaint herself with the nutritional needs of her family.

Enriching the Blood

The blood is frequently impoverished by the time spring puts in an appearance. That is not surprising, for in many households the winter diet contains a preponderance of carbohydrates and fats, with far too few of the precious minerals and vitamins. It is often deficient in iron, the mineral that is required for the formation of the hemoglobin or red pigment in the blood, and in copper, which is required for the proper utilization of iron.

Inasmuch as 3 per cent of the blood cells are destroyed daily, it is obvious that unless adequate amounts of iron-rich foods are available to replace them, the number will soon become subnormal. Moreover, it has been found that many minor disturbances of the body cause a loss of iron, and that mild infections are a common cause of iron loss.

Thus, individuals who have been consuming a diet that is barely adequate in respect to iron may find themselves on the border line of iron deficiency following an infection.

Iron-Rich Foods

Every homemaker, therefore, should make a determined effort to include plenty of iron-rich foods in her menus. These foods include liver, eggs, whole grain cereals, dried fruits, lean meats and green leafy vegetables.

Green vegetables cannot be emphasized too strongly, for they tend somewhat to be crowded out of the winter diet by the starchy and fatty foods which provide more heat and energy. And investigations with children have demonstrated that when vegetables and fruits are limited, there is a certain sluggishness of blood formation. Green vegetables not only supply iron in significant amounts, but their iron has been found to be especially well absorbed from the digestive tract.

Right now it is most important to provide large amounts of dandelion greens, spinach, kale, chard, watercress, lettuce and green cabbage. Serve a cooked green vegetable at one meal each day and a generous green salad at another.

Top the salad with fruit, if you want to add more minerals and vitamins . . . segments of orange or grapefruit, slices of banana or pineapple, or a mixture of apple and celery.

These fruits also supply important minerals and vitamins, and like the green vegetables, they leave an alkaline ash following digestion, and therefore help to maintain the acid-base balance of the body.

Plenty of Bulk Required

There is still another reason why green vegetables and fruits should be consumed in liberal quantities. These foods, along with whole grain cereals, provide an abundance of bulk or cellulose which is necessary to help promote regularity. They tend to offset the effects of a too highly concentrated winter diet. Very often that feeling of lassitude, mistakenly called spring fever, can be overcome by adding to the diet a larger proportion of these naturally laxative foods.

It's also desirable to take an adequate supply of fluids to help flush the system of waste. In addition to a generous amount of water, there should be a pint of milk daily for every adult, a quart for every child, and fruit juices in abundance. Orange juice, grapefruit juice, pineapple juice and tomato juice all supply vitamins A, B and C, and their refreshing fruit acids have a beneficial effect upon the appetite.

Exercise and Fresh Air

Two more splendid antidotes for the let-down feeling that comes at this season are moderate exercise and fresh air. The proper use of the muscular system is important to health and vitality, yet many people go through the winter taking far too little exercise.

In general, you will eat better, sleep better, feel more alert and at the same time more relaxed, if you make a point of getting out into the open every day.

Sleep, sunshine, fresh air and the right food—these are Nature's tonics!

TIPS to Gardeners

Give Flowers a Break

DON'T put an added burden on your flowers by asking them to grow in conditions to which they are not suited. Flowers are like races of humans. Some thrive in warm, moist climates. Others, through the centuries, have become accustomed to intensive cold.

Certain flowers, for instance, may be grown successfully in comparatively cool, semi-shaded locations. If you have such spots in your yard, don't plant your zinnias or petunias there.

Any of the following will prove more satisfactory, according to Harry A. Joy, flower expert: Annuals — balsam, clarkia, coleus, nasturtium, pansy, calendula and vinca; perennials—English daisy, campanula, columbine, myosotis, sweet William and viola.

If you live in drouthy sections or if your flower beds are on well-drained soil in full sun, try the following: Annuals—abronia, ageratum, alyssum procumbens, arctotis, calliopsis, candytuft, cosmos, four o'clock, lupin texensis, petunia, portulaca, sunflower, verbena, and zinnia; perennials—coreopsis and hollyhock.

Strange Doings, What?

Frank Beaman, of Murray, Ky., had steel plates made to fit the soles of his shoes and has worn the same pair of shoes continuously for 24 years.

Adam A. Bretch, 79, of Pittsburgh, Pa., likes children but hates noise. Recently he traded new bicycles to 11 boys for their roller skates.

Mrs. John Thies of Reedsport, Ore., can play two trumpets at one time.

M. H. Bidwell of Kansas City, Mo., gives his business address as: "M. H. Bidwell, Cattle Branding Alley, 200 West End Under the Hog House," says the American Magazine.

SAFETY TALKS

How About Your Safety?

IF YOU know all the rules about wearing rubbers when it rains, red flannel undies in the winter, and if you don't sleep in a draft, you probably take pretty good care of your health. But how about your safety?

The National Safety council reports that from the age of three years to 21, accidents kill more persons (both sexes) than any disease; from the age of three years to 40, accidents kill more males than any disease.

Among males of all ages only heart disease claims more victims than accidents—301.6 of every 100,000 males die of heart disease each year while accidents kill 119.6. Among the ladies, six diseases rank above accidents as a cause of fatalities. They are heart disease, cancer, cerebral hemorrhage, pneumonia and chronic nephritis.

AROUND the HOUSE — Items of Interest to the Housewife

Don't Scrub Floors. — Wood floors with shellac, varnish or floor seal-wax finishes should never be scrubbed with water. Sweeping or dry mopping is all that is necessary.

* * *

A Place for the Mail.—There should be a definite place where mail is always put as soon as it arrives. Then each member of the family knows immediately whether that important letter has arrived as soon as he enters the house and, incidentally, there is never any loss of mail.

* * *

Juicy Apple Pies.—To keep the juice in apple pies from boiling over, mix the apples and sugar, let them stand covered for about five minutes, and then drain off the juice from the apple slices. If a juicy pie is desired, pour the juice back into the pie through the hole in the top crust when the pie is baked.

* * *

Laundry Tip.—Before you put new curtains into the washer, soak them in four tablespoons of salt to each four cups of water.

* * *

Suds for Silks.—What causes gray specks on freshly washed silks and rayons? Hard water combined with soap may momentarily form a curd or scum. The addition of more soap produces suds which dissolves the scum. In hard water regions, use an extra quantity of soap to overcome the hardness and produce thick, live suds.

Washing Delicate Things.—If you are washing small articles, or thin baby dresses or other delicate things, put them into a pillowcase or sack and tie it with tape, then place it in the washer.

* * *

Mending Lace.—Lace can often be invisibly mended by running the sewing machine to and fro over the worn part. This is quite effective with lace curtains and can be done on linen goods too.

* * *

Clean Vacuum Bag.—No more than a pint of dirt should be allowed to accumulate in the bag of a vacuum cleaner.

The Man Was Waiting And Did Just That

The magistrate was not exactly clear as to what the case was all about, so he tried to find out by questioning the prisoner.

"What were you doing when you were arrested?" he asked.

"Waiting, sir."

"What for?"

"Money, sir."

"Who was to give you the money?"

"The man I was waiting for."

"What did he owe it to you for?"

"Waiting, sir."

The magistrate made a last effort to get a definite idea. "What do you do for a living?" he demanded.

"Waiting, sir."

QUICK RELIEF FOR ACID INDIGESTION

Nobility of Virtue

Virtue is the one and only nobility.—Juvenal.

MUSCULAR RHEUMATIC PAINS—ACHES

It takes more than "just a salve" to bring speedy relief. It takes a "counter-irritant" like good old soothing, warming Musterole to penetrate the surface skin and help to quickly relieve the painful local congestion and aches due to colds.

Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly.

Better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Musterole has been used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. In three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild) and Extra Strong, 40¢. All druggists.

Safetygrams

What about law enforcement on our streets and highways? Do the drunks in your community get by with a small fine, and are they allowed to go back on the roads and repeat their offense?

It behooves every citizen who travels on our highways and who obeys the traffic laws to investigate this.

Fixing tickets is as bad a violation of decency and courtesy as the crime itself. Spineless enforcement, usually diluted with politics, can never reduce highway accidents. It's bad enough for motorists to wink at the law, but when the laws wink right back, the people in a community are not safe on the highway.

Check up on this point and remember — "Its Smart to Drive Carefully."

Cornet Soloist Here Tonight

One of the special features of the Holt Community Band's Concert Friday evening will be a Cornet Solo by Mr. Hans Haug of Greenbush, Minnesota. Mr. Haug is one of the most able Cornet Soloists in this part of the state and his number alone will be worth more than the price of admission.

New Enrollment Requirements

Word has been received from the State Department of Education that the enrollment requirements for high schools have been amended. The proposed requirement of forty for the local high school has been changed to twenty five as a minimum enrollment. This change will make it possible for the local school as well as many other small schools throughout the state to continue. The new amended requirements will become effective September 1, 1939.

This change is just what we have been hoping for and now we can look forward to having a high school in our community for years to come.

The Christenson Brothers who have spent many years farming in the Ringbo community, have decided to disolve partnership and will sell out their entire line of farm machinery on Wednesday, April 5. Read their sale ad on the back page of this issue.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Anderson, Stilof Anderson and Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson attended the baccaluerate services at the A. C. in Crookston on Sunday evening.

New York City Brushes Up for Fair of Century

NEW YORK—While the New York World's Fair 1939 speeds toward its opening on April 30, the city is preparing to receive 15,000,000 guests. The Fair will be the greatest party this town has ever thrown.

Grover A. Whalen

Thousands of workmen, artists and technicians are now engaged in finishing-up the vast spectacle and large crews are at work on Manhattan Island, grooming hotels, apartment houses, theatres, and public buildings for the date when The World of Tomorrow will steal the show from The City of Today.

"Going to the Fair" this year will mean two shows for the price of one so far as the out-of-town visitor is concerned. New York's Broadway, amusement center of the nation, will not rival, but will supplement entertainments at the Fair.

Extending in a broad arc beyond the New York State Marine Amphitheatre and along the eastern shore of Fountain Lake is the 280-acre Amusement area where gaiety will rule.

Million Dollar Show

At the amphitheatre, Billy Rose, Broadway's master showman, will present Eleanor Holm in his $1,000,000 extravaganza in which 300 dancing and swimming girls will take part. A curtain of water will shield the stage from the audience between the acts. The theatre will seat 10,000 persons.

Rides and thrillers take up one section of the Amusement Area; games of every kind another, while still another section will hold exotic villages.

In the Cuban village, covering three acres, the atmosphere of Havana's cafes will be recaptured. Here the rhumba and danzon will be danced to native orchestras and arroz con pollo will be on the menu.

In Merrie England visitors will watch Elizabethan games on the village green, eat ample slices of roast beef and walk the streets of Old London.

Old New York will be another village. Here the Bowery of the mauve decade will live again.

Admiral Richard Byrd's "Penguin Island" and "Sun Valley," a winter wonderland with a daily blizzard will bring a dash of frosty fun to the scene.

Thrills for the Kids

It is estimated that 2,000,000 children between the ages of 3 and 14 will visit the $1,000,000 Children's World. Admission to this zone will be free, although modest charges will be made for special entertainments including the diminutive restaurant.

In the "thrill section" will be found a parachute leap where visitors will experience all the excitement of "bailing out" without risking broken bones. An automatic, "fool-proof" mechanism will release the 'chutes in such a manner that folding up will be impossible. The landing will be gentle. While this is one of the latest hair-raisers, the play center will be replete with coasters, wheels and rides of all varieties.

And to quote Grover A. Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation: "'The World of Tomorrow' exposition will display the marvels of science, industry and art, and at the same time provide fun and gaiety for everyone."

Mr. and Mrs. Hjalmer Johnson entertained the following at a birthday party for Eloise Saugstad on Sunday afternoon: Mr. and Mrs. John Nass and family, Ruth and Ruby Halvorson, Roy Johnson, Mildred Odie, Angeline Johnson, Isabella Tweeten, Elaine Johnson and Lorraine and Dorothy Skjerping. The honor guest received many nice gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnson and son Murnet and Mr. and Mrs O. T. Ness visited relatives at Grafton Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Ness, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Miller and baby, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hagen, and Mr. and Mrs. S. Lorentson were entertained at the Jesse Sorum home last Wednesday evening at a seven o'clock dinner.

Ladies of Holt gave Mrs. L. Wegge a birthday party on Monday afternoon. A delicious lunch was served by the self invited guests and Mrs. Wegge received a cash purse.

Slow Down For Birds

Spring marks the time when birds come out of winter cover onto the open highways, and careless motorisls take a terrible toll of both game and song birds, motorists endanger themselves, for a pheasant crashing through a windshield often causes serious accident. Even though no wrecked car results, smashed radiator grills or headlights make costly repair bills.

"Slow down, birds ahead" might well be the caution sign on every state highway during the spring months. Hardly a motorist who is not one of Minnesota's army of 200,000 hunters, all sportsmen interested in the preservation of game.

On a recent drive over one of the state's paved highways, one motorist picked up four pheasants, three hens and one cock bird, all killed by cars on an eight mile stretch. Three hens ready to nest were killed, and with them some 30 potential young birds that will not be found in the fields next fall. All of this in eight miles. Multiply this by the 11,000 miles of highways, and you have some idea of the tremendous toll of birds speed takes every day.

Birds cannot judge the speed of an approaching car, and often run or fly directly into its path, so both from the standpoint of safety and conservation, the appeal "slow down, birds ahead," applies. Conservation Commissioner Herman C. Wenzel suggests this as the spring slogan for motorists, and especially when approaching flocks of birds or places where they are likely to be.

Mrs. Austin Lindholm and baby of Strandquist and Mrs. C. L. Sandberg visited at the Marvin Sandberg home Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Horien and children visited at the H. O. Hanson home Saturday evening.

Mrs. Louis Larson of Roseau visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nohre last week.

Mrs. Chas Horien visited at the Mrs. Racine Olson home at Thief River Falls Saturday.

Big Business Of Tomorrow

Many of tomorrow's industrial giants are today small concerns, struggling for a foothold in our highly competitive economic system.

The fact that they survive and prosper will be due first to a worthy product or service and second to sound management.

Banking can, and does, play an important role in sound business management. Wise is the "small business man" who early in his career allies himself with a strong bank.

If you are in business, or hope to be, we invite you to establish a working relationship with this bank.

Jiffy Knit Skirt and Blouse That's Easy

Pattern No. 6019

Large knitting needles and some Shetland floss make this jiffy knit a delight to novice or expert. It's knitted round and round in stockinette stitch, beginning at the neck and working down. Stunning sunburst detail all-around the neck, smart raglan sleeves and snug ribbing at neck and wrists . . . all easy to do and quickly finished. The plain knitted skirt, smartly flared, completes the costume. In pattern 6019 you will find complete instructions for making the blouse shown and a skirt in sizes 16-18 and 38-40; an illustration of the blouse and of the stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern, send 15 cents in coins to The Sewing Circle, Household Arts Dept., 259 West 14th St., New York, N. Y.

Please write your name, address and pattern number plainly.

Sam Offered Inducement As Well as Guarantee

Sambo wanted to be a junk dealer, but he had no money. So he went to the village banker to see if he could borrow some capital.

The banker listened to the Negro's story and learned that he required $100.

"Don't you think you could manage on less?" asked the banker.

"No, suh," replied Sambo. "A horse and wagon would cost dat."

"Well, I must have some guarantee for the money. What can you offer?"

Sambo thought for a minute.

"Well, suh, Ah could have youah name painted on de wagon."

Affectionate Authority

He makes a great mistake who supposes that authority is firmer or better established when it is founded by force than that which is welded by affection.—Terence.

COUGHS DUE TO COLDS

To quickly relieve distress—rub soothing, warming Musterole on your chest, throat and back.

Musterole is NOT "just a salve." It's a "counter-irritant" containing good old-fashioned remedies for distress of colds—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor and other helpful ingredients.

That's why it gets such fine results—better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Musterole penetrates the surface skin, stimulates, warms and soothes and quickly helps to relieve local congestion and pain. Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. In 3 strengths: Regular, Children's (Mild) and Extra Strong. 40¢.

Lure of a Secret

Things forbidden have a secret charm.—Tacitus.

NERVOUS?

Do you feel so nervous you want to scream? Are you cross and irritable? Do you scold those dearest to you?

If your nerves are on edge and you feel you need a good general system tonic, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women.

For over 60 years one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with reliable Pinkham's Compound. It helps nature build up more physical resistance and thus helps calm quivering nerves and lessen discomforts from annoying symptoms which often accompany female functional disorders.

Why not give it a chance to help YOU?

Over one million women have written in reporting wonderful benefits from Pinkham's Compound.

Van Ardoy. The occasion was the fourth birthday of the Van Ardoys. The girls are children of Mr. and Mrs. George DeMellier of Wantagh, L. I.

SHARPSHOOTER

Miss Sigur Bergerson, number one on the University of Washington girl's rifle team, who was national champion in 1938, is also number one hopeful for the national championship of '39. Last year she fired 1,499 out of a possible 1,500. And, according to university coaches, is even more accurate this year in practice shoots. In fact, her admirers state that she can remove a gnat's whiskers off at 50 yards.

President Hears Students' Pleas; Rejects New Job

Robert Gordon Sproul, left, president of the University of California, rejected the proffered post of president of the Anglo-California National bank when 3,000 students massed and demonstrated against his leaving the school. The popular university head acceded to their wishes, and passed up the $36,000-per-year job. At the right is part of the mass of students who voiced their protest against his leaving.

COWBOY LOUIS

Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, in training at Victorville, Calif., for his fight in April with Jack Roper, spars with a thorn-clad desert plant, known as a Joshua tree. The champ takes his pistol shooting seriously, and the cowboy attire isn't all bluff. The champ includes horseback riding as part of his training activities.

Granny, 23-year-old hen, died of old age near Salisbury, N. C., recently. Property of Lawrence A. Taylor, Granny was the oldest hen in the world. She was widely known among poultry men and was frequently exhibited at shows. Until a year ago she laid an occasional egg.

Rugged Individualist Attends College the Hard Way

To be "on his own" is the ambition of Horace Carson, University of North Dakota freshman from Mongo, N. D. Carson, son of a farmer, refused to ask for NYA assistance when he started school at Grand Forks, and built his own eight by eight tarpaper-covered house rather than accept a room in Camp Depression, the University's free dormitory. It cost him $60 to build the house. Cooking his own meals, Carson's living expenses are approximately $10 per month. He bought the lot, on an open prairie, for $5.

JOSEPH BENTON NORTH has performed fifty-two marriage ceremonies, and not one of them had any lasting effect. He can recite the marriage rituals of forty-seven varieties of religion, ranging from the voodooistic ceremony to that of the Church of England, but he uses a mixed ritual which he made up himself. As you've probably suspected by now, he is a minister without portfolio, one who officiates only in the movies.

Of the many screen players whom he has "married" North reveals that Claudette Colbert exhibited the most nervousness; he thinks that was because she is the most religious. The calmest person, he says, was Rochelle Hudson; she took two of his ceremonies in her stride, and apparently thought they were amusing. Laura LaPlante cried, and Marlene Dietrich kept arranging her hair and dress.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

His most recent appearance on the screen as a marrying man was for "Wuthering Heights." Merle Oberon and David Niven were the bride and groom, and he used the ritual dictated by the period.

*

The Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret, of England's royal family, were asked recently to name their favorite motion picture star. Ignoring Norma Shearer, Janet Gaynor, Clark Gable, and the other topnotchers (including Shirley Temple) they replied "Gene Autrey."

*

When Billie Burke broke her ankle she was considerate enough to pick a perfect time in which to do it. She tripped as she was leaving the "Maiden Voyage" set, and snap went the ankle. Being a seasoned trouper, her first thought was of the picture, and the delay that might be caused by her accident.

But it happened that all of her walking shots had been made. She was due just to sit in the rest of the picture anyway.

*

How'd you like to look ahead to taking a beating? That is what Walter Pidgeon has been doing. For "Six Thousand Enemies" is slated as his next picture, and the script calls for him to be soundly beaten by one of the six thousand—with a husky pugilist selected by the casting department for the role. Pidgeon has been using his spare time between scenes of "Penthouse" to practice up a bit, but he is none too optimistic about his own skill, even though the script does put a limit on the amount of damage that is to be done to him.

*

Fred Allen is one of the few radio stars who does not own a farm. He hasn't a car, either; he prefers to live in a hotel and ride in taxis. Most of the big-time radio stars feel that they can't get along without a country home. Frank Black, Paul Whiteman and Benny Goodman have farms in Pennsylvania; Lanny Ross and Lowell Thomas each own acreage in New York state; Tommy Dorsey's place is in New Jersey, and Morton Downey's in Connecticut. And if you don't believe that they really turn into farmers whenever they get a chance you ought to hear them talk!

*

Those radio introductions are likely to go haywire, as did one in which Pat O'Brien was involved the other day. He went to the midget auto races in Hollywood with Norris Goff, who is "Abner" of radio's famous "Lum and Abner" team. Barney Oldfield, the former auto racing champion, introduced them as follows: "Norris Goff, better known as 'Abner' on the radio, and Pat O'Brien, who plays 'Lum.'"

*

ODDS AND ENDS—The reason that movie studios aren't more lavish with their screen tests is that the average test costs $10,000 . . . The death of Ernie Hare deprives radio of one of its most beloved old-timers . . . Looks as if the "Castle Walk" would oust the "Lambeth Walk" as the most popular dance when RKO releases "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle" with Rogers and Astaire.

It's Pretty to Wear And Easy to Make

ISN'T the dress with paneled skirt and lifted waistline (No. 1716) a lovely thing for larger women to wear? It's so simple, so soft and slenderizing, with a bodice that fits perfectly, because the shoulders are shirred and the waistline gathered. Make this of silk crepe, georgette, chiffon or flat crepe. Wear flowers or a jeweled pin at the becoming, deep v-neckline.

For slim figures, the bow-trimmed bolero frock (No. 1705) is particularly flattering, and it's new as tomorrow morning! The dress, even without the bolero, is a real charmer, with its high neckline, flaring skirt and tiny, tiny waist. Tailored enough for daytime, and yet appropriate for afternoon parties, too. Thin wool, flat crepe or silk print are pretty materials for this.

The Patterns.

No. 1716 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. With long sleeves, size 38 requires 5 yards of 39-inch material; with short sleeves, 4⅝ yards.

No. 1705 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14 requires 4¾ yards of 39-inch material, and 1½ yards of ribbon for bows. To line bolero takes 1⅜ yards.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Beverages of Various Kinds; Explains Their Role in the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

FOOD and drink are inseparably linked in any consideration of the nutritional needs of man. It is, therefore, in response to a fundamental need that we include some kind of beverage in every meal, no matter how simple or how elaborate the food may be. For primarily, beverages contain water which is as necessary to the human body as air.

Approximately two-thirds of the body is composed of water. It is found in the muscles, in the brain tissue, in the various organs such as liver and kidneys, and even in the bones. Every cell in the body is dependent upon water for its proper functioning.

Body's Need for Liquids

This precious fluid acts as a solvent of food materials and makes possible their digestion and absorption. Since it is an essential constituent of the blood, it helps to transport nutrients to every cell—this function alone requiring about 10 pounds of water in constant circulation. Finally, it helps to eliminate waste products from the body through the lungs, skin and kidneys.

The daily losses of water from the body must be replaced regularly or the consequences may be extremely serious to health. It has been shown that headaches, nervousness and indigestion may result when the intake of fluids is diminished below normal requirements.

Beverages Classified

The quantity of water needed by each person varies with the dietary and with the season of the year, much larger amounts being required when the temperature is high. But it is generally agreed that everyone should consume several glasses of water daily, in addition to the water obtained from foods, chiefly fruits and vegetables. Part of the need is met by milk, and by coffee, tea, cocoa, fruit juices and various other fruit-flavored drinks which add pleasure to mealtime, serve as wholesome, between-meal pick-me-ups, and provide a gracious method of extending hospitality to guests.

Aside from milk, which belongs in a classification by itself, and fruit juices which are consumed chiefly for their minerals and vitamins, beverages fall into two groups which overlap somewhat: those that are refreshing and those that are stimulating.

Refreshing Beverages

The refreshing beverages include fruit juices, fruitades and carbonated drinks, such as ginger ale and sarsaparilla. They are effective in quenching thirst and their appetizing flavors encourage the drinking of generous amounts of water. They also contribute energy values to the diet in proportion to the amount of sweetening used in their preparation.

Fruit juices are most frequently served as an appetizer at breakfast, lunch or dinner. Fruitades are useful as between-meal drinks and when entertaining. Children like to display their hospitality to friends and this type of beverage, served with a few crackers or simple cookies, makes an attractive snack.

Mothers will find it convenient and economical to utilize for this purpose beverage crystals which come in a variety of fruit flavors. These make wholesome, refreshing beverages at a minimum cost; the amount of sweetening may be determined by individual preference; and they are so easily prepared that children may do the mixing themselves.

Stimulating Beverages

The stimulating beverages are coffee, tea, chocolate and cocoa. When made with milk, chocolate and cocoa are rich in nutritive values, though their fuel value varies with the product used. Chocolate is much richer in fat than cocoa, and products labeled "breakfast cocoa" usually contain a larger percentage of the natural cocoa fat than products simply labeled, "cocoa."

The food value of coffee and tea depends entirely upon the cream or milk, and sugar with which they are served. However, they have an important place in the dietary because their flavor and aroma add greatly to the enjoyment of other foods and they give a comfortable feeling of well-being.

The stimulating principle in these beverages is known as caffein in coffee, and thein in tea. Doctors may forbid coffee because of some abnormality in health which makes a stimulant undesirable. But competent authorities hold that the effects of the moderate use of coffee by normal individuals may be disregarded. Neither coffee nor tea, however, should be given to children. First, because they do not need stimulants, and second, because the use of these beverages will tend to reduce the consumption of milk which is so important to their nutritional welfare.

Guard Against Staleness

The subject of coffee has been investigated from many angles by competent scientists, whose findings should be of interest to homemakers. The flavor and aroma of coffee are derived chiefly from a volatile oil, which is developed during the roasting process. But it has been established that this substance is rapidly lost from the coffee upon exposure to air. Moreover, each pound of coffee contains about two ounces of fixed oil which may become rancid in the presence of air. These changes occur whether the coffee is ground or in the bean.

Since stale, flavorless coffee may have an adverse effect upon appetite, it is important to buy a product that is protected against the air, or to choose one that is freshly roasted. The homemaker should also buy coffee in small quantities so that it can be used up quickly once it is opened. After the coffee has been made, there may be a further escape of its flavor and fragrance with both heat and steam. That is why coffee should not be allowed to stand, but should be served the moment it is made, and why it should not be reheated.

Tea also deteriorates when it is stored for long periods. It should therefore be bought in small quantities and kept in air-tight containers.

SAFETY TALKS

'Pedestrian Faults'

THE National Safety council has charged pedestrians with a large share of the responsibility for traffic accidents that killed 39,500 persons in 1937. Of this total 15,400 were pedestrians.

In "Accident Facts," a statistical review of 1937, the council said: "Many pedestrians show utter lack of caution in their use of streets and highways. Combined state reports for 1937 show that in 67 per cent of all fatal pedestrian accidents the pedestrian either was violating a traffic law or was acting in an obviously unsafe manner. In non-fatal accidents pedestrian faults appeared in 69 per cent of the cases."

The council described such things as jay-walking, failure to observe traffic lights, drunken walking, walking with instead of against traffic on rural highways, crossing streets in the middle of a block as "pedestrian faults."

Ironing Board Cleanliness.—Unaccounted-for smudges that appear on freshly laundered clothes may be caused by an ironing board cover that isn't quite clean. A few removable unbleached muslin covers that can be tubbed and changed for each batch of ironing will more than repay their upkeep by protecting the entire week's wash.

Crunchy Sandwiches.—An interesting, crunchy sandwich filling is made like this: Mix equal parts of chopped dates and celery, add half as much cream cheese and chopped candied orange peel. Season with a dash of salt, paprika and a little salad dressing.

* * *

Joining Wool Yarn.—Knotting your wool is never a satisfactory method of joining. When you next start a fresh ball, thread a darning needle with the end of the wool and run your needle along the new end of used wool for about one and a half inches. You will find that this makes an invisible join which will not come undone.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

USE A CURTAIN ROD THAT EXTENDS BEYOND THE SIDES OF THE DOOR FRAME — SEW CURTAINS TO RINGS HOOK

Draperies for French doors.

"I NEED some help," my friend's voice said over the telephone. "The living room draperies are finished. I am bursting with pride over them, but I don't know how to hang the ones for the French doors."

"Yes, I want to cover the door frame at the sides, but I can't cover much of the door because it must open and shut without interfering with the draperies. I did want the curtain rod for the door to match the ones at the windows too."

Her voice trailed off in a discouraged tone as if there were just too many difficulties ever to be solved. But they all were solved. The sketch shows exactly how it was done. The curtain rod was placed on hooks near the top of the door frame and extended a good 7 inches over the wall at each side of the doors. The curtains were sewed to rings. When they were in place, they covered both the hooks and the sides of the door frame, and allowed the doors to be opened.

NOTE: These curtains were lined and had a pleated heading. They were made from the step-by-step sketches in Mrs. Spears' Book 1; SEWING, for the Home Decorator. ## TIPS to Gardeners

Plant Seeds Carefully

WHEN vegetable and flower seeds purchased from reputable firms do not germinate as they should, it is safe to assume that conditions are not favorable for growth, or that seeds were not planted properly.

Therefore, it is of greatest importance to plant seeds according to directions on the packets. Extremely small seeds must be covered only lightly with soil, according to Harold N. Coulter, vegetable expert.

The will to grow is strong in seeds, but they have their limitations. To plant a tiny seed, like the petunia, under an inch of soil is like burying a man under a 20-story building and asking him to push it away.

Heavier, larger seeds, of course, may be planted deeper. Beans and cucumbers may be covered with three-quarters of an inch to a full inch of soil. Peas and corn sprout vigorously and may be planted from an inch to an inch and one-half deep.

Many successful home gardeners actually cover peas and corn with an extra half-inch of soil after they begin to push through. This protects them from birds, and also helps keep weeds down.

Wheat Price Adjustments

R. A. Reierson says farm owners and operators should think twice before overplanting their wheat acreage allotments this spring. In an effort to at least partly adjust farm income to a "parity level", Mr. Reierson pointed out that a new feature of the 1939 farm plan sets up "price adjustment" payments in addition to the "soil conservation" and "soil building" payments that can be earned by the farm. For wheat, the price adjustment payment is 11 cents per bushel for normal yield and allotted acreage for that farm.

According to State Chairman Charles W. Sticknew, the entire price adjustment payment for a crop is lost if the acreage allotment for that crop is at all overplanted.

To show how this would work on an average Marshall county farm, Mr. Reierson prepared the following example: This farm has a wheat allotment of 50 acres These two multiplied together times 11 cents equals $66.00, or the price adjustment payments he would lose by overplanting even a tenth of an acre.

A wheat grower will be eligible for wheat price adjustment payments this year if all of the following requirements are met:

1. A wheat allotment was established for the farm in 1939.
2. The 1939 wheat allotment is not overplanted.
3. Wheat was planted for harvest in either 1938 or 1939. However, if failure to plant wheat for harvest in these years due to flood or drought, a wheat grower may still be eligible for a price adjusdment payment.
4. The non-allotment option on wheat was not elected where the allotment is 8 acres or less. Farmers who select the non-allotment plan for wheat may sow up to 8 acres without penalty, but they will receive no price adjustment payment on their wheat acreage.

Rev. P. B. Trelstad of Middle River called at the parsonage on Friday evening.

Free Shows at New York Fair For Millions

NEW YORK—Millions of "average" Americans, from Maine to California, will close their cottages, bungalows and apartments for brief periods this year and start out for the New York World's Fair 1939. They will arrive by plane, car, bus and some, perhaps, on foot.

About the wonders of the Fair they will have read much. They will expect the utmost of this $155,000,000 exposition. But the question they are asking now is "what will it cost?"

The answer:

They may enjoy virtually all the wonders of the Main Exhibition Area without cost, except what they may spend for food which ranges from 10-cent frankfurters to de luxe swank meals in the cafes.

Every night they will be treated to the greatest free spectacle in exposition history: the $1,000,000 fireworks and fountain displays which will bathe the 1,216½ acres of the Fair in brilliant colors.

Free Shows Galore

Hundreds of free shows on the grounds will include such varied entertainment as a rocket ship which carries passengers through both space and time to remote planets; thrilling head-on crashes at the automobile proving ground, a model dairy where 150 prized cows will be milked daily. Industry, science and the nations of the world will offer their wonders and art treasures to the free view of all Fair visitors.

Admission to the grounds will cost 75 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. One day each week children will be admitted for 10 cents.

One of the most elaborate spectacles in theatrical history, Billy Rose's stage and water ballet at the 10,000 seat Marine Amphitheatre, starring Eleanor Holm and 300 dancing and swimming girls, will cost only 40 cents.

The World on Display

Sixty-two foreign countries whose magnificent pavilions face the Lagoon of Nations and the Court of Peace will be open throughout the Fair for free inspection. Here the treasures of Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and South America will be shown.

A list of the free wonders of the Exhibit Area would fill columns. Some of the highlights are:

The Railroad Building, center of a 6-acre exhibit, containing the most complete miniature railroad ever constructed; a thriving American homestead, complete with cattle, sheep, and chickens, with a singing fountain at the entrance; the most valuable wheat field in the world; a 135-foot schooner in New England's exhibit; the model Town of Tomorrow containing completely furnished homes; The Children's World, a fantastic miniature fair by itself; the House of Jewels where more than $5,000,000 worth of gems will sparkle.

All this and vastly more, may be seen—free of charge.

Bull at the Fair

Attend Easter Services

Sunday is Easter! In the present troubled world we should more than ever before feel the glory of Easter morn. Let us all attend our church services with a thankful heart that we have the opportunity of living in a land where freedom of worship reigns.

As you will see announced in these columns, special Easter services have been prepared by the various churches in the community.

Easter services are being held today (Good Friday) at the Ringbo Luthern Free church by Rev. Elnar G. Olson.

Easter morning at 9:30 o'clock Rev. T. C. L. Hanson will conduct services in the Norwegian language in the Nazareth Lutheran church and in the English language at 11 o'clock. At 2 he will conduct services in the Silver Creek Lutheran church.

Easter Sunday evening a group of young folks from Newfolden will give a program in the Free Mission church at Holt.

At all times everyone is welcome to attend services in these churches and especially so on Easter.

Non-Resident License Cut

The non-resident fishing license fee reduction from $4.00 to $3.00 and a $4.50 combination man and wife license became law Friday when Governor Harold E. Stassen signed the bill that had passed both house and legislature.

"Normally, the reduction should bring about an increase of at least 20 percent in the tourist indurtry, and non-resident fishing," said Ed L. Shave, director of the Minnesota tourist bureau. "On account of the world's fairs, however, this increase may not be fully effective during 1939."

The reduction brings Minnesota into line with its nearest competetors for tourist vacation business, and the state can continue to draw its clientele from the south and east.

Band Gave Fine Concert

The Holt Community Band under the able direction of O. J. Peterson of Thief River Falls, gave a fine concert to the public here at the High School auditorium on Friday evening. The band rendered some outstanding selections and the large crowd attending were amazed at the wonderful progress the band had made in the short time since the the band was reorganized here.

A special feature on the evenings program was a Cornet solo by Hans Haug of Greenbush. Supt. Geo. W. Karvonen spoke on behalf of the band and asked that the people and organizations in this community give the band their support.

The High School Glee Club gave several fine numbers and Leonard Ness, our youngest musician, played accordian solos.

The net proceeds of the evening were about $25.00.

Safetygrams

By Fred W. Braun The Safety Man

Pedestrian, walk with the lights, do not ignore this warning. The lights are put up for your protection and should be used accordingly. There are just as many pedestrians trying to "beat" the lights as there auto drivers. Why take a chance? Why invite trouble?

Contrary to all instructions issued in newspapers, magazines and other publications, pedestrians still walk along the right-hand side of the highway.

Everyone is to prone to blame the auto driver when we as pedestrians could exercise more care at crossings and on our highways.

Life will be longer, sweeter, and safer if we use just ordinary common sense in walking and driving.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Nohre, Mr. and Mrs. G. Sanoden, Mrs. C. Sandberg, Mrs. O. Backlund, and Mrs. Joe Nelson spent Monday evening at the Marvin Sandberg home.

University Cadets Engage in Mimic War Games

Preparations for miniature war games by cadets of the Reserve Officers' Training corps at the University of California at Los Angeles were held recently with modern anti-aircraft equipment moved in on the Westwood, Calif., campus. Cadets enrolled in the coast artillery unit of the student corps were instructed in actual operation. The equipment included a three-inch anti-aircraft gun, director, height finder, searchlight, sound locator and machine gun. Maneuvers are part of a practical training corps.

Is Hitler Planning Ukrainian Conquest?

Map shows huge eastern European area inhabited by Ukrainians, whom Germany's Reichsfuehrer Hitler would group into one nation under domination of the Third Reich. Recent Nazi conquests in the former republic of Czechoslovakia and his trade overtures to Rumania lead international observers to believe the Fuehrer is paving the way for his "drive to the east" in which a new state would be carved, principally from Russian territory.

Centenarian Receives Centennial Ticket

Dr. Newell Patterson of East St. Louis, Ill., who, like baseball, is celebrating his 100th year, received the first of the souvenir St. Louis Cardinal opening day tickets commemorating the national game's centennial. A Civil war veteran, he said only bad weather would keep him away from the Cardinal-Chicago Cub opener in April.

PIGEON EXPRESS

The pigeon flew 20 miles against a strong wind in 40 minutes without mishap.

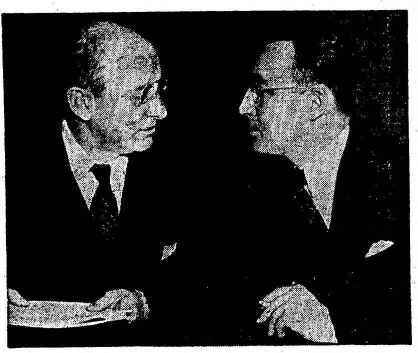
Congress Wins Economy Tussle But Finds It Holds Hot Potato

By Joseph W. La Bine



WHEN SOCIAL SECURITY COSTS WENT DOWN

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. (left), as he recommended before the house ways and means committee that a limited old age reserve fund be substituted for social security's controversial $40,000,000,000 "full reserve" plan. At the right is Arthur J. Altmeyer, social security board chairman.

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Congress

U. S. business was pouting genuinely last February when Harry Hopkins made his famous Des Moines speech promising a new administration effort to start the recovery ball rolling. But to business men, recovery was precluded by high relief costs and "exorbitant" taxes. When the administration indicated unwillingness to slash costs, Mr. Hopkins' highly touted "appeasement" plan bogged down and in its place arose the most hostile, economy minded congress President Roosevelt has ever faced.

Many administration leaders, like Secretary Morgenthau and Vice President Garner, are economy bent. Others, like Federal Reserve Chairman Marriner Eccles, a White House favorite, believe government should spend when industry will not, providing a semblance of normalcy. But so unpopular a philosophy bucks the public trend, which is poor politics. A smarter course is to give congress and the nation its economy. If prosperity results, the White House will bask in glory; if it misses fire, the public can be reminded that the White House counseled against it all along.

Whatever the reasoning, a sudden switch in administration attitude has brought new peace to Washington:

Eccles Demarche. Appearing before a special senate silver committee, Mr. Eccles confounded his audience by advocating governmental economy. His reasoning: "While I am convinced that such a policy . . . under present conditions would have disastrous results, we live in a democracy, and, therefore . . . the viewpoint of the majority should promptly be made effective." His suggestion: That federal spending be concentrated on non-competing public activities, i.e., buildings, roads, schools, hospitals, housing.

Morgenthau Demarche. Next day Mr. Morgenthau gave administration blessing to congressional plans for postponing scheduled increases in payroll contributions for social security, also endorsing a pay-as-you-go system founded on sound actuarial principles. Present assessments are 1 per cent each against employer and employee. In 1940 and 1941 this would jump to 1½ per cent each; 2 per cent to 1945; 2½ per cent to 1948; 3 per cent each after 1948. Mr. Morgenthau's four alternatives:

(1) One per cent to 1940; 1½ per cent to 1943; 2 per cent to 1946; 2½ per cent to 1949; 3 per cent after that.

(2) Boost from 1 to 1¼ per cent in 1940; to 1½ per cent in 1941; to 1¾ per cent in 1942; present schedule thereafter.

(3) Boost from 1 to 1⅓ per cent in 1940; to 1⅔ per cent in 1941; to 1½ per cent in 1942; present schedule thereafter.

(4) Omit increase to 1½ per cent in 1940; step up rates in 1943 and follow present schedule thereafter.

Morgenthau reasoning: The trend of business conditions in specific future years could not be accurately foreseen in 1935 when social security was started under the present $40,000,000,000 reserve plan. Today it appears a $3,000,000,000 reserve would be sound.

Also recommended was a trustee board to hold social security funds, thereby spiking criticism that the money is now being used to pay governmental expenditures. Under actual operation, payroll contributions now go to the treasury, are shifted to the old-age reserve fund, then invested in treasury securities to bring the cash back to the general fund.

Sour Note. Given a highly coveted concession, congress has found economy is easier to talk about than enforce. Next on the list is the farm appropriations bill, carrying a $250,000,000 item for parity payments which had not been included in the original budget estimate. Farm-state representatives, foreseeing political suicide if parity appropriations were not made, hoped the money might come from a renewal of processing taxes. Industrial-state lawmakers knew their constituents would object. And both groups reflected that less social security income would leave Secretary Morgenthau's cupboard bare.

Pan-America

In early March Brazil's Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha arrived at Washington, spent two weeks making friends and returned home with a basketful of plums. In return for liberal U. S. credit allowances to develop Brazilian trade and industry (partly a Pan American defense measure) Senor Aranha agreed to resume payment on Brazilian debts to U. S. bondholders on July 1.

But commitments that were convenient in Washington were hard to repeat when the foreign minister returned to Rio de Janeiro. To pacify hard-pressed Brazilians, the smooth-tongued statesman told his home folks that "I always subordinated that moral obligation of payment to material capacity to do it . . . My theory (in promising payment) was to tranquilize more than half a million holders of our bonds."

OSWALDO ARANHA

Observers have decided Senor Aranha is merely playing a clever game of diplomatic hide and seek. From safely within his own bailiwick he can make pointed inferences that Brazilian bond payments will not be forthcoming as expected unless U. S. tradesmen jump to reduce his nation's large surpluses.

People

Organized, by Mrs. Ken Maynard, estranged wife of the cowboy actor, an escort service to assist inebriated Los Angeles night club guests to their homes.

● Turned religious, Al Capone, former Chicago beer baron now imprisoned at Terminal Island, Calif. When a visiting minister asked prisoners to stand if they "felt the need of the Saviour," Capone was the first to rise.

Trend

RISK—Thanks to Adolf Hitler, rates on marine war risk insurance covering shipments through the Baltic sea have been raised.

SPIES — Attorney General Frank Murphy reports foreign spies are becoming more active in the U. S., but that federal counter-espionage agencies are prepared to cope with them "100 per cent."

TREES — The national forest service in 1938 planted 140,000,000 trees in 31 states, covering 154,268 acres.

DIVORCE—Seeking new industries, the Kansas legislature is considering a one-day divorce law to attract more people to the state.

These New Patterns Have Lovely Lines

THE full-sleeved, high-waisted dress (1721) is a perfectly charming fashion for afternoon parties, club meetings and luncheons. It does nice things to your figure, because the bodice is gathered into just enough fullness, and the high waistline makes you look slimmer around the middle and over the diaphragm. Make it of silk crepe, georgette, prints or chiffon.

Here's a simple little pattern (1670) that brings you one of the very smartest styles of the season—the button-front frock for every day wear. It has wide shoulders, a flaring skirt, and the fitting is all by means of simple darts that draw in the waistline and fill out the bust. Flat crepe, prints, thin wool and linen are nice materials for this dress.

The Patterns.

No. 1721 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 4⅓ yards of 39 inch material. One yard edging for neckline.

No. 1670 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. With long sleeves, size 36 requires 4⅜ yards of 39 inch material. With short sleeves, 4 yards.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1324, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

★ Charlie Is Taken Down
★ Politics Promotes Ann
★ Orchestra Leaders All

By Virginia Vale

PEOPLE in New York are still talking about Charlie McCarthy's first week there. In fact, a new aristocracy sprung into being; its members were the people who had actually gone to the first broadcast (tickets were scarcer than hen's teeth), and they are still high-hatting their friends who couldn't get in, and running perfectly good luncheons and dinner parties by insisting on telling about how cute Charlie is.

"You simply have to see him to appreciate him," they declare, which is rather hard on the people who have never seen Charlie and probably won't get a chance, as Edgar Bergen is too busy for personal appearances.

Charlie's kidnaping, one evening, by the amusement editor of one of the newspapers, very nearly stirred up a lot of trouble. The famous little man is insured for $2,500. Bergen was so worried that after Charlie's reappearance he took to taking Charlie apart and hiding him in sections.

Ann Sheridan has sort of crept into stardom by the back door, although she deserves the promotion. It's "Naughty but Nice" that stars her, and studio politics are involved. For this is Dick Powell's last for Warner Brothers, and it's an old studio custom to play down the departing star, since advertising him just means that you're promoting property that will soon belong to somebody else.

ANN SHERIDAN

So the charming and hard-working Ann gets big billing in this one, after five years of doing her best with whatever roles came her way.

Katherine Hepburn is doing very well indeed in her new theatrical venture, "The Philadelphia Story," although it has not, at this writing, been given the acid test of presentation in New York. Apparently Miss Hepburn still cherishes some affection for the screen; she has bought the film rights to the play and will do it herself before the cameras eventually.

Nowadays it seems that everybody who can't get a job feels that the answer to the unemployment problem is becoming an orchestra leader. Prize fighters, millionaires, tap-dancers, movie stars—all are more than willing to step in front of a band and wave a baton. But it's a rare thing for a man who works with his hands to become an orchestra leader—Russ Morgan is about the only exception to the rule.

He's an ex-coal miner, you know. He worked in the Nanticoke Mine, near Scranton, Pa., until the foreman fired him for playing a trombone in his spare time. The foreman happened to be his father.

Today he is one of the top bracket orchestra leaders. Before he was twenty-one he had written arrangements for such famous musical men as John Phillip Sousa and Victor Herbert.

If you're considering writing for radio here's something to remember. Due to the threat of federal censorship, radio stations are leaning over backward in their efforts not to offend. The Federal Communications commission, which is in charge of renewing broadcasting licenses every six months, has hinted they will frown on the following forms of radio fare: fortune telling, astrology or similar sciences, solicitation of funds, except for recognized worthwhile charities, misleading statements, defamatory statements, obscenity, programs offending religious or racial groups, over-melodramatic children's programs, liquor advertising, too much advertising and too many phonograph records.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Offers Practical Help in Planning Meals That Avoid Hidden Hunger; Illustrates Right and Wrong Methods of Menu Building

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

A GENERATION ago, homemakers approached the problem of feeding their families with but two objectives: to put weight on their children and to send adults away from the table with their appetites appeased. If the child failed to gain satisfactorily, or if his teeth were crowded and subject to decay, he was said to "take after his Uncle Abner" or perhaps to have inherited the poor teeth of his maternal grandmother. And if adults were chronically tired or suffered from "nerves," that, too, was blamed on circumstances that had nothing to do with the diet.

No one had ever heard of hidden hunger! For nutritionists had not yet startled the world by demonstrating that food may satisfy the appetite and yet fail to feed . . . that the absence of minute amounts of minerals and vitamins may be responsible for a long train of deficiency diseases which cause untold misery and are responsible for mental and physical inefficiency.

Planning Meals Scientifically

Today we know that a definite relationship exists between food consumption and bodily activity, and that normal individuals can usually control body weight by regulating the amount of fuel foods in the diet. We know that minerals and vitamins play a powerful part in building and maintaining sound teeth as well as healthy nerves; and that we can build resistance to disease, defer old age, and even lengthen the span of life by choosing our food, not merely for its appetite appeal, but for the qualities that contribute toward what nutritionists term a balanced diet.

The Balanced Diet

Every modern homemaker therefore owes it to her family not to plan meals at random, but to take into consideration the seven factors that science has determined to be essential for top health. These include: protein for building and repairing body tissue; carbohydrates to produce quick heat and energy; fats, a more compact form of fuel; minerals, which serve both as builders, and as regulators of body processes; vitamins A, B, C, D, E and G, which act as regulators, and help to prevent the various deficiency diseases; water, which serves as a vehicle by which food is carried to the tissues, and cellulose or bulk, required for the normal functioning of the intestinal tract.

A Day's Food Plan

The various food essentials will be supplied if the three daily meals include a quart of milk for every child, a pint for each adult, which may be served as a beverage, with cereals, in soups, sauces or made into desserts; an egg daily, or at least three or four weekly; one serving of meat, fish or chicken, usually at the main meal of the day; a second protein food, such as cheese, baked beans or nuts, usually served at lunch or supper; two vegetables besides potatoes, one of which should be of the raw, leafy variety; two servings of fruit, and at least one serving of a whole grain cereal.

By adhering to this plan, you will help to supply your family with the necessary proteins, minerals, vitamins and cellulose. Fuel foods may be added by way of breadstuffs, macaroni, rice and other cereals; butter or margarine and the fats used in cooking.

Common Errors in Menu Planning

Common mistakes in menu planning are a concentration of too many proteins or carbohydrates in one meal; the failure to include adequate bulk by way of fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals; and the massing in one meal of too many foods that are high in fat.

The following menu, for example, contains more protein than necessary, and too little bulk, yet it is typical of the dinners served in many homes: Hamburger Steak, Baked Beans, Potatoes, Stewed Corn, Custard Pie.

Since both meat and baked beans are rich in protein, they may well be served at separate meals, as indicated by either of the following combinations: Hamburger Steak, Creamed Potatoes, String Beans, Lettuce Salad, Fresh or Cooked Fruit. Or, Baked Beans, Stewed Tomatoes, Cabbage Salad, Custard Pie.

In the first menu, the beans, potatoes, corn and pastry are all high carbohydrate foods. To provide additional bulk, as well as to reduce the amount of carbohydrate, it would be advisable to serve a green vegetable such as string beans, and choose fruit instead of pie for dessert. It is assumed, of course, that eggs would be given in some other form during the day.

Since baked beans contain both protein and carbohydrate, we omit potatoes in the third menu, and serve a food rich in vitamin C—the tomatoes, and add a bulky raw vegetable by way of the salad.

It's Balance That Counts

It requires no more time or effort to prepare nutritionally correct meals than those which lack balance, nor is it more expensive. For elaborate meals can lack balance, if they are deficient in minerals, vitamins and bulk, while those composed of such simple foods as bread and milk, and stewed fruits may provide an abundance of the protective substances which satisfy the hidden hunger of the body.

My plea to homemakers is to give less thought to the preparation of elaborate recipes, and more thought to supplying the food values that will create abundant health and vitality. In that way, I believe we shall take a real step forward in human progress.

Questions Answered

Mrs. T. L. D.—The alkaline or base-forming foods include vegetables, most fruits, nuts and milk. Among the foods which have been found particularly effective as body alkalinizers are bananas, apples, oranges, dried beans and potatoes.

HOW TO SEW

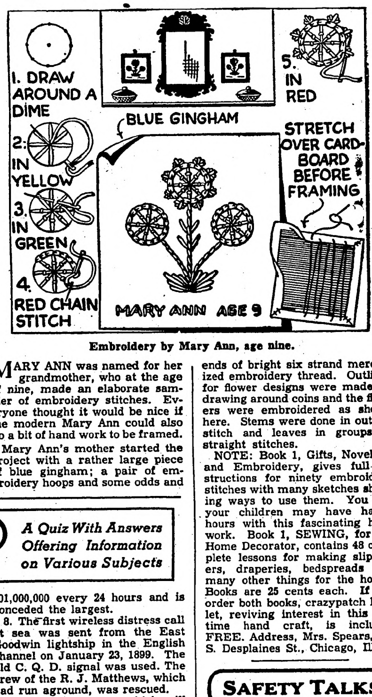
by Ruth Wyeth Spears



Embroidery by Mary Ann, age nine.

MARY ANN was named for her grandmother, who at the age of nine, made an elaborate sampler of embroidery stitches. Everyone thought it would be nice if the modern Mary Ann could also do a bit of hand work to be framed.

Mary Ann's mother started the project with a rather large piece of blue gingham; a pair of embroidery hoops and some odds and ends of bright six strand mercerized embroidery thread. Outlines for flower designs were made by drawing around coins and the flowers were embroidered as shown here. Stems were done in outline stitch and leaves in groups of straight stitches.

NOTE: Book 1, Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, gives full instructions for ninety embroidery stitches with many sketches showing ways to use them. You and your children may have happy hours with this fascinating hand work. Book 1, SEWING, for the Home Decorator, contains 48 complete lessons for making slipcovers, draperies, bedspreads and many other things for the house. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books, crazypatch leaflet, reviving interest in this old-time hand craft, is included FREE. Address, Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

SAFETY TALKS

Like the Chicken, We—

IT BEGINS to look as though maybe we humans are second cousins to the chickens when it comes to crossing the road.

Of 7,250 pedestrians killed during 1937 in traffic accidents that occurred in cities, says the National Safety council, in its 1938 edition of "Accident Facts," 85 per cent were struck while crossing the road.

About 2,900 persons were injured fatally while crossing a street somewhere BETWEEN intersections. Approximately 3,260 met their death at intersections. Either they were crossing the intersection with the traffic signal, against the signal, diagonally, or were crossing an intersection at which there was no traffic signal. Deadly and tragic work at the crossroads!

Gay Fruit Motif for Towels

Pattern 6037

Here's your chance to add color to the kitchen in the simplest of stitchery. Do the large fruit in applique or outline stitch and let the cross-stitch (4 and 8-to-the-inch) give the finishing touch. Make them for the bride-to-be but here's fair warning, you'll want to keep them yourself! In pattern 6037 you will find a transfer pattern of six motifs averaging 4 by 10 inches and the applique pattern pieces; color suggestions; material requirements; illustrations of stitches used.

To obtain this pattern, send 15 cents in coins to The Sewing Circle, Household Arts Dept., 259 West 14th St., New York, N. Y.

Free Shows at New York Fair For Millions

NEW YORK—Millions of "average" Americans, from Maine to California, will close their cottages, bungalows and apartments for brief periods this year and start out for the New York World's Fair 1939. They will arrive by plane, car, bus and some, perhaps, on foot.

About the wonders of the Fair they will have read much. They will expect the utmost of this $155,000,000 exposition. But the question they are asking now is "what will it cost?"

The answer:

They may enjoy virtually all the wonders of the Main Exhibition Area without cost, except what they may spend for food which ranges from 10-cent frankfurters to de luxe swank meals in the cafes.

Every night they will be treated to the greatest free spectacle in exposition history: the $1,000,000 fireworks and fountain displays which will bathe the 1,216½ acres of the Fair in brilliant colors.

Free Shows Galore

Hundreds of free shows on the grounds will include such varied entertainment as a rocket ship which carries passengers through both space and time to remote planets; thrilling head-on crashes at the automobile proving ground, a model dairy where 150 prized cows will be milked daily. Industry, science and the nations of the world will offer their wonders and art treasures to the free view of all Fair visitors.

Admission to the grounds will cost 75 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. One day each week children will be admitted for 10 cents.

One of the most elaborate spectacles in theatrical history, Billy Rose's stage and water ballet at the 10,000 seat Marine Amphitheatre, starring Eleanor Holm and 300 dancing and swimming girls, will cost only 40 cents.

The World on Display

Sixty-two foreign countries whose magnificent pavilions face the Lagoon of Nations and the Court of Peace will be open throughout the Fair for free inspection. Here the treasures of Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and South America will be shown.

A list of the free wonders of the Exhibit Area would fill columns. Some of the highlights are:

The Railroad Building, center of a 6-acre exhibit, containing the most complete miniature railroad ever constructed; a thriving American homestead, complete with cattle, sheep, and chickens, with a singing fountain at the entrance; the most valuable wheat field in the world; a 135-foot schooner in New England's exhibit; the model Town of Tomorrow containing completely furnished homes; The Children's World, a fantastic miniature fair by itself; the House of Jewels where more than $5,000,000 worth of gems will sparkle.

All this and vastly more, may be seen—free of charge.

Mantoux Test Here Monday

Miss Margaret Hessburg, R. N., field nurse from the Sanatorium at Thief River Falls was here on Wednesday to make arrangements for the Mantoux test to be given in the schools in in this part of Marshall county next week.

The test will be given here at the Holt high school on Monday, April 17 at 1 p. m. and readings will be taken on Wednesday, April 19, while those having positive reactions will be transported to the Sanitorium at Thief River Falls on Saturday. April 22 when x-ray pictures will be taken to locate the infection.

This Mantoux campaign is made possible by the Christmas Seal Sale and the Red Cross organization of Marshall County. The test is free to anyone wishing to take it. Positive reactors in adults wishing to have an X-ray at the Sanitorium will have to pay the small fee of $2.00.

The trantportation and X-ray for children is all free of charge.

Teachers and parents should cooperate with the nurse in getting this test to as many as possible in this area. This is one more step in wiping out tuberculosis.

Safetygrams
BY FRED W. BRAUN
The Safety Man

Last week I gave a one-question quiz on safe driving, and this week I'll give another. Here is the question:

What is the proper thing to do when the rear wheels of your car start to skid?

(a) Turn front wheels in same direction rear wheels are sliding.

(b) Turn wheels in opposite direction from skid.

(c) Through out clutch and apply brakes.

What is the correct thing to do and what is the safe thing to do?

Point your front wheels in the direction the car is skidding; this will help you get out of the skid.

Watch Your Flax Seeding

Much misunderstanding is prevalent amongst farmers as to when flax will be considered depleting and non-depleting. Flax, when seeded alone, is always depleting. Flax, when used as a nurse crop, is non-depleting, provided a good stand of legumes or grasses is obtained.

Farmers are cautioned, that whenever they listen to broadcasts from North Dakota stations or read North Dakota newspapers to remember that, as far as the Agricultural Conservation Program is concerned, North Dakota is included in the Western Region while Minnesota is a part of the North Central Region.

The following announcement was received from the Rev. Ordahl family of Glenfield, N. Dak. who for 18 years served the charge here at Holt.

Announcements of the wedding of Miss Valborg Ordahl, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. M. B. Ordahl of Glenfield, N. Dak. to Mr. A. C. Anderson, son of Mrs. Martinson of Barlow, N. D. was made at a five o'clock dinner on Easter day at the Ordahl home.

Miss Ordahl, who is teaching at Woodward, N. D. and Mr. Anderson, manager of the Standard Oil bulk station at Carrington, N. D. will be married at Glenfield the third of June.

Those present at the occasion besides the immediate family were Mrs. Martinson and Mr. and Ham Garland and children, Lila, Alice and Kenneth all of Barlow, Mr. Anderson of Carrington, Miss Elva Hendrickson of York, N. D. and Miss Leila Hendrickson of Valley City, N. D., Mr. and Mrs. H. Hendrickson of Glenfield aud Rev. P. H. Holm Jensen of Luvern, N. D.

Ken Milton, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Brown of Mayville N. D. received Christian bastism at the Harry Engen home Sunday. He was born Nov. 16, 1938. Rev. T. C. L. Hanson officiated, and the sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Christ Engen and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Engen.

Distinctive Initials In Easy Stitchery

Pattern 1947

Being personal is the distinctive thing with linens and personal accessories today. These alphabets, mainly in lazy-daisy stitch, are most effective in black or green and a color or in two shades of a color. You'll want to put them on everything! They're so quickly embroidered even that youngster of twelve would enjoy doing them. Pattern 1947 contains a transfer pattern of two 2¼-inch and two 1½-inch alphabets; directions for placing initials; illustrations of stitches.

Send 15 cents in coins for this pattern to The Sewing Circle, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

QUICK QUOTES

PREPONDERANT SENTIMENT

"AFTER one hundred and fifty years, notwithstanding expansion of territory, enormous increase in population and profound economic changes; despite direct attack and subversive influences; there is every indication that the vastly preponderant sentiment of the American people is that our form of government shall be preserved."—Charles Evans Hughes, Chief Justice of the United States.

STYLES FOR SAFETY

Members of the Greater New York Safety council, when they met recently, found out what the safe worker of 1939 will wear. Miss Sammy Cunningham demonstrates aluminum toe guards, fiber shin guards, an eye shield of non-inflammable plastercel and a respirator. She holds a safety belt with red reflectors.

Now It's Safety First in Swingtime

Swing music has at last made its influence felt in the field of safety education. Cleveland, Ohio, police erected this sign addressed to motorists and pedestrians in the center of the street at public square. Pedestrians, however, are not expected to shag across the intersections.

Two Friendly Watchdogs Patrol Mount Hood Resort

Massive, friendly and famous are Lady, left, and Breuhl, the huge St. Bernard dogs who dwell at Timberline lodge on Mount Hood. The dogs are hitched to a toboggan at the mile-high Oregon resort. In the background is Mount Hood's two-mile peak. Lady and Breuhl gained national fame last summer when they accompanied climbers to the mountain summit. Lady made the descent alone, but Breuhl lost his nerve. A special rescue expedition was sent after him, and only through a long struggle was he saved.

One Bullpower Caravan Takes to Road

BULL CARAVAN

J. L. Talent wagered 50 pounds that he could take himself, his wife and three children in this unique caravan from Mildura to Melbourne, Australia, a distance of 350 miles, in 12 weeks. He had traveled for 10 weeks when this picture was taken, and expected to reach Melbourne in one more week. The box-like conveyance is mounted on an abandoned automobile chassis. Talent requested that no cameras be used, but offered to sell pictures to curious onlookers.

Argentina

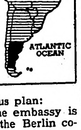
In southern Argentina lies little-known Patagonia, (black section on map) on whose 267,000 square miles live only 77,750 souls. Though neglected, it constitutes a good third of the nation's territory, a fertile land for expansion in days to come. But Germany also seeks to expand, and surprised Argentinians recently read in their newspaper Noticias Graficas the unsubstantiated report of an outrageous plan:



Germany's Argentine embassy is said to have advised the Berlin colonial office that "Patagonia is nobody's land and we can annex it . . . Argentina considers it hers on the basis of outdated political ideas." Another passage allegedly said the report was submitted with "the theoretical supposition that the whole territory should be annexed as a field for settlement and economic activity by Germans."

While the German embassy fumed and denied, all departments of the Argentine government were ordered to start investigations. What might otherwise be an unimportant issue may have great effect, for Argentina alone among South American nations has been loathe to break away from German trade alliances. If Patagonia is indeed threatened, Buenos Aires will be quick to seek shelter in Pan-American solidarity.

Labor

The unhappy plight of U. S. employer-employee relations may be due either to (1) the Wagner labor relations act, or (2) American Federation of Labor's battle with Congress of Industrial organizations. Like an impatient school teacher, both congress and the White House have resolved to end this squabble, the White House by sponsoring A. F. of L.-C. I. O. peace talks, congress by amending the Wagner act.

When April 11 was chosen starting date for senate committee hearings on Wagner amendments, labor peace talks were in full bloom. But so strong are the workingman's feelings about the proposed changes that many a peace advocate thought hearings might have been delayed until labor's warring factions either make up or draw swords.

To amend the Wagner act, congress can pick from four sets of proposals, all opposed by C. I. O., three of them submitted by coherent factions with special interests:

(1) By Massachusetts' Sen. David I. Walsh, obviously favored by A. F. of L., which opposes all other proposals: Curtail the national labor relations board's power to invalidate union contracts; require NLRB elections by craft rather than by industrial units; permit employer petitions for elections; permit appeals in representation cases.

(2) By Nebraska's Sen. Edward R. Burke, and supported by the potent, strike-weary National Association of Manufacturers: Require that NLRB have representative from labor, management and the public; outlaw deduction of union dues from pay envelopes; outlaw "coercion" by either employers or unions; establish code of "unfair labor practices" for unions as well as employers; forbid strikes unless a majority of employees approve; require all union officials to be U. S. citizens; permit transfer of "unfair labor practice" charges from NLRB to federal district court.

(3) By Oregon's Sen. Rufus Holman: To split NLRB's duties. Administrative and investigatory power would be vested in a labor relations commissioner. Final decisions would be made by a nine-member labor appeals board.

(4) By Kentucky's Sen. M. M. Logan, supported by the National Grange and other farm groups: To extend exemption of agricultural workers under the Wagner act to processors and packers of farm produce.

A Way to Anchor Your Slip Covers

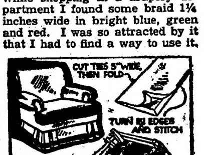
"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: My living room is looking very smart and gay; the clear sketches on how to fit and make slipcovers in your Book 1, SEWING, for the Home Decorator, have been a great help.

"I think you would especially like one slipcover I have made. While shopping in a drapery department I found some braid 1¼ inches wide in bright blue, green and red. I was so attracted by it that I had to find a way to use it.



CUT TIES 5" WIDE, THEN FOLD
TURN IN EDGES AND STITCH
SEW TIES TO SLIPCOVER SEAMS, THEN TIE TIGHTLY UNDER SEAT

The result is a chair covered in plain blue glazed chintz with green seam bindings and the blue, green and red braid around the cushion and the bottom ruffle. It is very stunning and everyone admires it. My problem now is keeping my slipcovers firmly anchored in place. How should this be done?"

Here is a sketch of the chair that was inspired by a shopping tour. I have also sketched a method that is often used by professionals for anchoring slipcovers.

Give your house a fresh start with new curtains; slipcovers, lampshades and other smart new touches which you will find in Book 1, SEWING for the Home Decorator. Book 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, illustrates ninety embroidery stitches and many ways to use them. They are 25 cents each; with each order for both books, Rag Rug Leaflet is included FREE. ## Star Dust

★ Deanna Stays Deanna
★ Bouquets for McCarey
★ Clothes Make the Guide

By Virginia Vale

DEANNA DURBIN seems to be the current heroine of moviedom, because of her excellent performance in "Three Smart Girls Grow Up." A lot of people who liked "Three Smart Girls" were pretty sure that they wouldn't like this sequel; sequels have a way of being disappointing, especially in the movies.

Then along came Universal with the announcement that in this one their money-making little star turned glamorous. That made everything much worse. If Deanna was going in for slinky gowns and false eyelashes even the critics who had always liked her were going to use barbed adjectives, and urge their readers to stay far, far away from theaters where those three particular smart girls grew up.

DEANNA DURBIN

But along came the picture, and there has been dancing in the streets. The picture is swell, and Deanna isn't "glamorous," she's just herself. It's a picture that everybody ought to see.

*

Our hero this time is Leo McCarey, director-producer, who also did a turn as writer for "Love Affair." The picture is one of the best that has come out of Hollywood in a long, long time. When you see it, you might pause and think of how very bad it might have been, were it not so expertly done. With a couple of not very good actors in the roles played by Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer, with a run-of-the-mill director, it could easily have been a B picture.

Several bouquets should go to McCarey for his work on the writing end also. His movie career began with writing, you know. Hal Roach suggested that he become an actor, and he replied that he'd rather become a writer. Within six months he was a studio executive; then he directed Laurel and Hardy and Charlie Chase comedies for five years, and in 1936 he directed "Ruggles of Red Gap" for Paramount and was all set for big things.

"Love Affair" was developed out of an idea of his, with Miss Dunne and Boyer in mind for the picture. Don't miss it!

*

If you liked "The Citadel" you'll be glad to know that "Vigil in the Night," by the same author, has been bought as a starring vehicle for Carole Lombard. A romantic drama, it tells of the love and sacrifices of a young woman who wants to save her sister, a student nurse, from the results of a moment of carelessness which leads to the death of a hospital patient.

*

Jack Berch, one of NBC's handsome young baritones, recently discovered that clothes are more important than he thought. With summer just ahead, he bought a yachting outfit, and liked it so much that he wore it right out of the tailor's and back to Radio City.

He was on his way through the first-floor corridors to the elevators when an elderly lady stopped him. "Young man," said she, "I stopped to look at one of the murals here, and the touring group I was with has gone on. Please continue my tour."

Berch used to be a small-town boy, and learned to be polite to elderly ladies. So, cursing his yachting cap, he escorted her to the front door, industriously describing the murals they passed on the way. There she discovered her group, and he fled to the studios, his cap in his hand.

*

Paul Whiteman's replacing Burns and Allen on the air for the summer could be listed as "Turn about is fair play." They once replaced Paul Whiteman.

*

ODDS AND ENDS—If you liked "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" you'll look forward to "The Real Glory"—same star, Gary Cooper, same director, Henry Hathaway . . . Dorothy Lamour and Jon Hall, "Hurricane" stars, will appear together in "Canal Zone" . . . Pat O'Brien will have the lead in "Father Damien," the story of the priest who devoted his life to the lepers in the colony of Molokai.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Explains How Food Can Make You Fat or Thin; Offers Tips on Gaining Weight

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

TO NEARLY every adult, weight is a matter of great concern. Thin people step on the scales in the hope of finding that they have gained a pound or two. Fat people sometimes weigh themselves several times a day, trusting each time that the arrow will point to a slightly lower figure. In many cases, the reason for this absorbing interest is vanity—a desire to look better. But the real objective should be to attain the weight at which one feels better, for few people realize that to weigh neither too much nor too little is one of the best possible aids to buoyant health. Moreover, the secret of weight control for normal individuals lies in the kind and amount of food consumed.

The science of nutrition teaches us that all body fat originates as surplus fuel . . . that is, food which has been consumed over and above the immediate requirements of the body machine. It therefore follows that in general the problem of gaining or losing weight is concerned with an increase or reduction in the total fuel value of the diet.

Shortage or Surplus of Fuel

Those who find it difficult, after 30, to avoid taking on excess pounds must learn to reduce the total fuel intake. Otherwise, they may find themselves burdened with a mounting surplus of fat, which not only destroys beauty, but impairs health, and tends to decrease both mental and physical efficiency. On the other hand, those who feel that they must struggle to keep their weight up to normal . . . who declare that they simply cannot gain, no matter how much they eat, should acquaint themselves with the high-caloric foods and make a persistent effort each day to eat a little more than enough to meet their needs. If a gain is achieved, the result will be well worth the effort. For just as overweight is a handicap to health and efficiency, so have nutritionists observed that physical efficiency may be definitely decreased when the weight falls more than 10 per cent below the average for one's height.

It is often said that it is easier to lose weight than to gain it, and in many cases this is true. For the overweight person who consistently cuts down the fuel value of the diet, should, under normal circumstances, be able to reduce gradually, comfortably and effectively. But the individual who is underweight often has a small appetite and therefore has little desire to eat the increased quantities of food that are required in order to gain.

Influence of Body Build

Nutritionists have observed that many people who find it difficult to gain have a tall, slender type of body build. It has been determined that in people of this type, the digestive tract is usually shorter than in those having a stocky build. Moreover, they tend to be more tense, more active and of a more nervous temperament. As a result, the passage of food through the digestive tract may be so rapid that it leaves the body before all the available nutrients can be utilized. At the same time, these active people tend to burn up more of their food for energy, so it is not surprising that they fail to store body fat, unless the diet is especially planned to meet their needs.

Concentrated Foods Desirable

The well balanced diet, with its full quota of minerals and vitamins is basic to good health for all. But in order to produce a gain in weight, the diet of individuals belonging to the slender type should be composed of easily digested foods, which can be utilized by the body with a minimum of effort; and it should include generous amounts of concentrated and highly nourishing foods.

Included in this classification are eggs, cheese, cream, butter or margarine, bacon, bread, cereals, cream soups, custards, ice cream, rice and tapioca puddings. The addition of two or three glasses of milk to the regular meals will be found useful in increasing the fuel value of the diet. Milk also belongs in the reducing diet, but there it is used to replace other high caloric foods. Fruit juices will be found useful in stimulating the appetite of those who desire to gain; and the fuel value of these beverages may be increased by the addition of milk or cream.

Very often it is possible to get extra nourishment into the diet by way of a light lunch in mid-morning, mid-afternoon or both—provided it does not interfere with the appetite for the regular meals. This may take the form of fruit juice and crackers; malted milk; cocoa, egg nog or plain milk. A between-meal snack is regarded as especially desirable for thin people whose work is fatiguing. It will help them to sustain energy and prevent them from coming to their regular meals too tired to enjoy or profit by food.

Importance of Rest

Since thin people have a tendency to tire quickly, they are advised to get plenty of rest. There should be long hours of sleep at night, and nutritionists have also observed that the food is apt to be better utilized if a short rest is taken before meals.

Questions Answered

Mrs. G. M. P.—Liver contains four vitamins, A, B, C and G, though the vitamin C is mostly destroyed in cooking. It is also notable as a source of the blood-building mineral iron, and of copper, which is necessary for the proper utilization of iron. Muscle meats are considered a significant source of vitamin G, and contain some vitamin B. Pork has a considerably higher content of the B vitamin than lamb, mutton or beef.

Miss G. L. D.—It has been estimated that one quart of fluid skim milk and one-and-one-half ounces of butter may be considered as approximately the equivalent in food value to a quart of fluid whole milk.

SAFETY TALKS

THE "dirty work at the crossroads" of fable and story has a counterpart in the pattern of modern automobile accidents.

The National Safety council reports that in 1937 about 58 per cent of all injury accidents in cities occurred at intersections.

In rural areas, however, only about 24 per cent of the injury accidents occur at intersections.

The council said 52 per cent of the intersection accidents that involved two motor vehicles were right-angle collisions.

TIPS to Gardeners

Fertilizer Usage

GARDENS can't go on producing excellent flowers and vegetables year after year without an application of fertilizer now and then. Because stable manure is difficult to obtain, a complete commercial fertilizer recommended by your dealer will prove most satisfactory. Before applying fertilizer, however, give consideration to a few simple, practical hints.

First, be cautious! Never apply fertilizer recklessly or over-abundantly. Don't be like the man who saw a neighbor get good results from a sparing use of fertilizer. He proceeded to apply 10 times as much, but expecting 10 times as good results—but his garden proved worthless.

Broadcast the complete fertilizer over the soil 10 days before planting, using about three pounds per square rod. Three or four weeks after planting, if the garden seems a bit backward, apply a side dressing. Sprinkle fertilizer lightly alongside the rows, about six inches from the plants; then cultivate. Apply only from one to two pounds per square rod of garden.

PATTERN DEPARTMENT

SEWING CIRCLE

A SMART button-front dress that you'll want in street materials like wool crepe, flat crepe and silk prints, as well as in house-keeping cottons, is No. 1723. Simplicity itself, it has lines that are very flattering to the figure. The princess skirt makes your waist and hips look slim; the tucked and gathered bodice gives a nice rounded bust line. It's just absurdly simple to make—a pattern you'll use time and again.

A Stock of Aprons.

With a busy summer coming on, you'll need a fresh supply of pretty and protective aprons, and here's a new pattern (1622) that gives you three different ways to make them. Two pinafore styles, and a dainty tie-around, they are all full and flaring, so that they look smart as your frocks. Gingham, percale, broadcloth and linen are nice materials for aprons like these.

The Patterns.

No. 1723 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 35-inch material and ½ yard for contrasting collar, if desired.

No. 1622 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 34 takes, for apron No. 1, 2⅜ yards of 35-inch material and 6 yards of braid. For No. 2, 2⅜ yards, and ¾ yard contrasting; for No. 3, 2⅜ yards, and 1 yard pleating or ruffling.

Spring and Summer Pattern Book.

Blueberry Flakes Griddle Cakes

1¼ cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1¾ cups milk
1 cup Grape-Nuts Flakes
1 tablespoon melted butter or other shortening
1 cup fresh blueberries

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and sugar and sift again. Combine eggs and milk; add to flour gradually, beating only until smooth. Add Flakes and shortening. Fold in berries. Bake on hot greased griddle. Serve with a hard sauce. Makes about 2 dozen griddle cakes.—Adv.

Why Let Yourself Get Constipated?

Why endure those dull headachy days due to constipation, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

New Rulings on Wheat Mixture

Problem 1.

Some persons may attempt to defeat the purpose of the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program by seeding large acreages to grain mixtures containing wheat, which together with the the acreage planted to wheat is in excess of the wheat allotment, and harvest the mixture for grain and separate the wheat from the other small grains in the mixture.

Question 1:

How will the acreage seeded to wheat mixtures be classified if the wheat is separated from the other small grains after harvest?

Answer to queseiou 1:

The county committee should refuse to recommend an application for payment for a farm on which the wheat is separated out of the grain mixture after harvest. The seeding of grain mixtures was permitted under the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program for the purpose of permitting farmers who customarily seed grain mixtures on the farm to have such acreage classified as general soil-depleting instead of wheat. Therefore, in the determination of the normal wheat acreage for purpose of establishing wheat acreage allotments for states and counties, the acreage of wheat mixtures was not included. Accordingly, if any farmer seeds wheat mixtures for the purpose of expanding the acreage seeded to wheat, we feel this practice tends to defeat the purpose of the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program.

Problem 2. The time of determining what constitutes a wheat mixture:

Question 1:

On a wheat allotment farm, is the determination with respect to acreage planted to wheat, in the case of wheat mixtures, based upon the mixture at the time of planting or upon the mixture at the time of harvesting?

Answer to question 1:

At the time of planting, except if the grains other than wheat fail and if wheat is harvested from the acreage, then the acreage from which wheat was harvested shall be classified as soil-depleting and regarded as acreage planted to wheat. On the other hand, if the resulting grain mixture contains a sufficient amount of grain other than wheat to make the grain harvested unsuited for milling as wheat filour, the acreage from which such grain was harvested shall be classified as soil-depleting but shall not be regarded as acerage planted to wheat.

Problem 3: An acreage is seeded to a mixture of wheat and flax.

Question 1.

If the mixture of wheat and flax is harvested, how will such land be classified?

Answer to question 1:

Since wheat and flax are ordinarily grown together for the purpose of separating the grains and obtaining additional wheat for market such acreage shall be classified as soil-depleting and regarded as planted to wheat.

Question 2.

If the mixture of wheat and flax is used as a nurse crop for perennial or biennial legumes or grasses as provided for flax in NCR301 and the mixture harvested as grain, how will such acreage be classified?

Answer: The acreage shall be classified as soil-depleting and regarded as planted to wheat.

Old-Age Ins. Payments Made

Total payments amounting to $19,145.27 were made to 317 Minnesotans in old-age insurance benefits in February, according to Wesley K. Wilson, manager of the Grand Forks office of the Social Security Board. Payments averaged $60.40 per claim.

Since the beginning of the program, Minnesota workers and their families had received cash payments totaling $226,609.53 up to the end of February. Mr. Wilson stated that the single cash payments are now being made to commercial and industrial employees who have reached age 65 since January 1, 1937, or to the families or estates of workers who have died.

Claims for old-age insurance payments and assistance in filing them can be secured, without charge, at the Grand Forks office of the Board.

Card of Thanks

I herewith want to express my heartfelt thanks to all my friends and neighbors for their many fine visits, flowers, plants, candy, cards and letters and especially to Rev. Hanson for his very fine visits and to the Nazareth Ladies Aid for the wonderful book and plant given me during my illness at the hospital. I assure you it will never be forgotten. May God bless you all.

Mrs. Wm. Holst.

Tom Risdal of Strathcona was a Holt visitor Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Christenson left Wednesday for Fairbanks Alaska where they will make their home. A farewell dance was given for them at the hall on Monday night at which a large crowd attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Christenson, Ethel Vattendahl and Joel visited at the Delmar Hagen home at Gatzke last Thursday.

Mrs. G. Karvonen and Miss Lyseng visited Caroline Aspelin Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Reed of Thief River Falls visited relatives here Thursday.

Silver Wedding Anniversary

About 100 friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Inman last Friday evening and surprised them, the occasion being their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

A program was given consisting of a duet by Mrs. Ben Garthus and Lida Monson and a mock wedding given under the direction of of Mrs. Johnnie Nelson and a duet by Ethel and Lois Larson. At a late hour the self invited guests served a delicious lunch. Center of attraction was a delicious wedding cake baked by Mrs. Hans Stensrud. A cash purse was presented to the honor guests in remembrance of the day. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pommering of Warroad.

H. O. Hanson, publisher of the Holt Weekly News, entered St. Luke's hospital last Saturday and underwent a major operation on Tuesday. He is at this writing progressing nicely.

Big Show's Train Gets Annual Blessing

SUN-TAN FOR CHIEF

Although he's a full-blooded Cherokee, Chief Thunder Cloud, in whose veins flows the blood of the mighty Red Hawk, has to take a daily course of sun-lamp treatments to acquire a convincing tan on his body for the title role of a new picture.

Radio Amateurs Solve Communication Problems

On the day of his birth Edward Noble sounds off with a lusty yell in his radio debut. The little fellow is destined to do a lot of broadcasting, for both his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. William Noble of San Francisco, are licensed amateur radio operators. They have a powerful radio station at their home, and the cab Mr. Noble drives is equipped with a tiny low-frequency receiver-transmitter. A small transmitter and receiver were installed in the hospital for Mrs. Noble's benefit.

OVER-BOOTED ANGLER

Opening of the New York state trout season, April 1, didn't catch young Albert Welch unprepared. Not to be outdone by the many men who were out for their first fish, the over-booted angler caught this prize near Theresa with an old pole and line.

Musical Bleats Win Prize for Pet

While Victor Angerame, New York city, holds the musical instrument, "Bum," his pet lamb, sounds off a tune on the harmonica to win first prize as the most artistic pet in the Kip's Boys club's fifteenth annual pet show recently. "Bum," according to his owner, did not pull the wool over the judges' eyes.

'Oscar' Grades 'Oomph' Behind Students' Kisses

It comes under the heading of recreation as these University of Richmond students, Margaret Harris and Kenneth Bass, submit to a test in the dynamics of kissing, which can be tested with great precision by the machine Donald Murrill is operating. The machine is the invention of Dr. R. E. Loving, a faculty physicist at the Virginia school. He calls it an oscolometer, but the students have named it "Oscar."

Europe Faces Final Showdown In Democracy-Dictator Battle

By Joseph W. La Bine

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Europe

"There are in Europe two madmen . . . Hitler and Mussolini. There are in Europe two damn fools who sleep—Chamberlain and Daladier."

Such was the parting shot of Albania's King Zog as he fled Italian invasion. Symbolic of British-French lethargy were Mr. Chamberlain's warships, which lay at anchor off Greek Corfu, within cannon range of the invader. One shot, said Zog, would have stopped the Italians. But one shot might also have been the sendoff for a conflict more frightful than the one which started from a pistol shot at nearby Sarajevo 25 years ago.

When Il Duce captured Albania, a month had passed since Britain and France dropped their futile appeasement policy for a Stop Hitler—Stop Mussolini program. Poland, Rumania and Turkey were fairly well lined up with the democracies but such Balkan states as Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria and Hungary knew when they were well off. Alignment with Britain would invite invasion from Italy or Germany. Meanwhile Berlin's covetous eyes began looking at Switzerland and the Netherlands, while Herr Doktor Paul Joseph Goebbels shouted from his propaganda office a German answer to the key question facing Europe today: Will Britain really fight to defend any lesser European nation's independence?

Herr Goebbels said no, and many an alert Britisher said the same thing, wondering if aggressive Germany and Italy were not right in maintaining that Great Britain has passed her empirical peak and is falling into decadence. Under the appeasement policy it was only passingly embarrassing for Mr. Chamberlain to make repeated concessions for peace's sake. But under the new policy Britain at last faces reality; Europe's dictators are obviously forcing a showdown to demonstrate that Mr. Chamberlain will never fight to protect them, therefore the little nations had best beg for mercy from Hitler and Mussolini.

Hence observers agree the worst of Europe's recurrent crises—and England's, too—may come within the present month. Neither Britain nor France have backed up their new umbrella-waving policy in the case of Albania, whose occupation was a direct violation of the Anglo-Italian pact of 1938. A swift German jab at Poland or an Italian march into Greece would provide the ultimate test; if Britain fails to march in such a situation, then European democracies are indeed decadent and the Old World has new undisputed masters in Hitler and Mussolini. At the same time Mr. Chamberlain's government would undoubtedly collapse.

On the other hand, if Britain and France act to block the next dictator aggression, there is a pathetically good likelihood of general European warfare.

Trade

State trade barriers are usually brainchildren of panicky, depression-ridden legislatures. Though sectional barriers (like North-sponsored high freight rates in alleged discrimination against poorer Southern states) are also to blame, most of them spring from a forlorn hope that the individual commonwealth can protect its own prosperity by discriminating against tradesmen from neighboring states. Sample barriers are: (1) preference to home-state industries, often resulting in monopolies and exorbitant prices; (2) excessively high license rates for out-of-state truckers; (3) unreasonable sanitary laws which bar dairy imports.

Most such regulations tread on questionable ground, assuming round-about jurisdiction over interstate commerce which is really a federal power. Early this year Washington became so alarmed that several officials like Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace threatened to use a federal mallet to knock down the barriers. The most important result came from intervention by the Council of State Governments which called a "national conference on interstate trade barriers" in Chicago. Surprisingly, though most of the 44 states represented were themselves guilty, they condemned barriers to a man. A clear-cut prophecy, actually keynoting the session, came from Missouri's Gov. Lloyd C. Stark:

MISSOURI'S GOV. STARK
Temporary advantage, eventual chaos.

"The point is this: If the states try to get these additional revenues at the expense of their neighbors they are gaining only a temporary advantage. They are laying the groundwork for an unprecedented economic breakdown and eventually nationwide financial chaos which will affect their own citizens along with citizens of all other states."

Assents came from U. S. Solicitor Gen. Robert H. Jackson and Fred I. Kent of the American Bankers' association. Principal dissent was from Arkansas' Gov. Carl Bailey, whose complaint about sectionally discriminating freight rates was finally included in the conference's resolutions. Other condemnations: (1) discriminatory state alcoholic beverage laws; (2) sales taxes and "use" taxes, in states where no "offset" provision is made for goods produced in another state having sales tax; (3) discriminatory out-of-state truck permits.

Homeward bound delegates were admonished to work generally for uniform regulations among the various states. If they must discriminate, it was decided to do it "directly, and not by masquerading under the taxing power." But every delegate knew it would be a tough job—even political suicide—to destroy the invisible barriers which folks back home consider a justifiable protection for their state's industries.

People

Invited, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, back home to help the house foreign affairs subcommittee in an urgent task, shaping an "ideal" neutrality policy in the event of war.

● Needed, a successor for Illinois' late Sen. James Hamilton Lewis, age-concealing, sartorially elegant Democratic statesman since the 1890s.

● Facing trial, Kansas City's Democratic boss, Thomas J. Pendergast, on grand jury indictment charging income tax evasion.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

★ Siren Again as Escape
★ Picture Valentino's Life
★ On the Screen Map

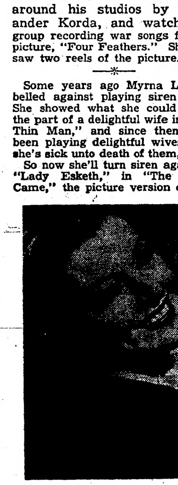
By Virginia Vale

FOR the first time in a lifetime during which she has shown deep interest in motion pictures, the Dowager Queen Mary of Great Britain recently visited a motion picture studio. She was shown around his studios by Alexander Korda, and watched a group recording war songs for the picture, "Four Feathers." She also saw two reels of the picture.

* * *

Some years ago Myrna Loy rebelled against playing siren roles. She showed what she could do in the part of a delightful wife in "The Thin Man," and since then she's been playing delightful wives until she's sick unto death of them, too.

So now she'll turn siren again, as "Lady Esketh," in "The Rains Came," the picture version of that very good book that everybody was reading a year or so ago. After that she'll play another young woman who is something less than perfect when she is co-starred with Spencer Tracy in "Sea of Grass," in a role that will have to be considerably rewritten if the censors are to approve of it.



MYRNA LOY

* * *

A picture based on the life of Rudolph Valentino is to reach the screen at last. It is one of the five productions to be released through United Artists in 1939-40 by Edward Small Productions, Inc. And various old newspaper men are waiting for it with considerable interest, wondering how certain parts of that biography will be fixed up so that they are fit for the screen.

* * *

Two Texas cities, Fort Worth and San Antonio, took particular interest when two recent R. K. O. pictures were released. One was Douglas Corrigan's "The Flying Irishman," because it was in San Antonio that Corrigan worked as a newsboy to support his mother after his father deserted the family. Fort Worth wanted to see "The Story of Vernon Castle," with Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire, because it was at Benbrook field, Fort Worth, that Castle crashed his plane to avoid colliding in mid-air with another.

Incidentally, Mrs. Castle, who acted as technical director for the picture, is very much pleased with Astaire's portrayal of her famous husband. She wasn't so well satisfied with the agile Ginger's performance as his wife, because, as she said, she couldn't imagine herself as a blonde.

* * *

Casting Henry Fonda in a leading role in "The Story of Alexander Graham Bell" was what's known as a natural. Fonda himself was delighted. For when he was in high school he decided that his career in life would have something to do with the telephone business, if he had anything to say about it.

During his last two years in high school he worked as a "trouble shooter," and when he got his degree from the University of Minnesota his thesis was on communication systems, especially the telephone and telegraph. It was just by accident that he worked with a Little Theater group and finally landed in the movies.

The first radio program to arrange for an exhibit at the New York World's fair is Dave Elman's "Hobby Lobby." A special building is being erected, and thousands of specimens of hobbies will be on display. In addition, Elman has arranged for hobbyists who have been on his programs to appear at the exhibit and explain their hobbies.

ODDS AND ENDS — Hollywood's glamour girls who appear as guest stars on "The Circle" broadcasts usually demand that Cary Grant play opposite them . . . Isabel Sheridan, stand-in for Joan Bennett in "The Man in the Iron Mask," is Mary Pickford's cousin . . . A perfect piece of casting seems to be that of Ronald Colman for the hero in "The Light That Failed" . . . Warner Brothers won't screen "John Dillinger, Outlaw" after all—too many people didn't like the idea . . . Bing Crosby's going to work with 75 children in "The Star Maker"—probably at least one of them will become a star.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Gives Practical Advice on Feeding 'Teen Age Child; Describes Some Special Food Needs of Both Boys and Girls

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

BEGINNING around the twelfth year in girls and the thirteenth year in boys, the rate of growth is greatly accelerated. Then children require large quantities of food to meet the needs of their rapidly maturing bodies and they usually develop huge appetites. Unfortunately, however, they are often inclined to overlook the foods that are most necessary to health, to eat at odd hours, and to stuff themselves with rich combinations that may severely tax the digestive system.

Mothers may find it exceedingly difficult to deal with their offspring all through the 'teens, when physiological changes are taking place which mark the transition from childhood to maturity. For along with the development of his fast growing body, the child's emotional life undergoes a profound and disturbing change. The boy or girl who was formerly amenable to direction suddenly exhibits a desire for independence. He becomes jumpy and irritable, and the wish to direct his own life extends even to his choice of food.

Mothers must mobilize all the patience and forbearance at their command—must make it their solemn duty to see that their adolescent children have the foods they require for growth, for stamina, and for building resistance to disease. For the stress and strain of adolescence will be far more easily weathered by boys and girls who are properly nourished.

Quality Important as Quantity

During the years of greatest growth, boys and girls frequently require more food than their fathers or mothers. But it is essential that the diet be well balanced and of the highest nutritive value. It should include an abundance of easily digested energy foods, such as breadstuffs, potatoes, cereals and macaroni products, as well as liberal quantities of the more concentrated fuel foods, such as butter or margarine. There must be an ample supply of high quality protein—which is furnished by meat, fish, eggs, cheese and milk—to build the new muscle tissue required to cover the lengthening frames of the boys and help build the rounded contours of the girls.

Need for Minerals and Vitamins

There must be ample amounts of the various minerals—especially calcium and phosphorus for the teeth and bones, and to help build sound, healthy nerves; iodine for proper functioning of the thyroid gland; iron for building increased quantities of rich red blood. Every vitamin must be included in the adolescent's diet to promote normal health and development, but vitamin A is especially valuable at this time of rapid growth, and vitamin B is also required in liberal amounts to meet the extra demands of increased activity and growth.

A Quart of Milk Daily

It is highly desirable that the diet should include a quart of milk daily, because milk is such a splendid source of calcium and vitamin A, as well as other necessary minerals and vitamins. If children have been brought up with a wholesome respect for this master food, they will continue to drink it during their 'teens.

However, if they complain about taking it as a beverage, mothers should see that it is supplied by way of cream soups and sauces, with cereals, and in nutritious pudding desserts, which can be enriched with eggs, thus providing additional proteins, minerals and vitamins.

Fruits and Vegetables

Fruits should be eaten freely—at least twice a day—and the high-caloric dried fruits, such as prunes and dates, may be used to advantage along with bananas, oranges, grapefruit, apples and other fresh fruits, as well as the many varieties that come in cans.

Cooked and raw vegetables should be provided liberally—if possible, at both lunch and dinner. Dressing cooked vegetables with butter or margarine will increase their fuel value, and make them more satisfying for hungry boys. Girls, who are often finicky eaters during their adolescent years, can usually be tempted with crisp, raw vegetables served in the form of salads; and protein can be added by means of eggs, cheese, fish or chicken.

Boys Need More Food Than Girls

There is a marked difference between the fuel requirements of 'teen age boys and girls. Both must have a well balanced diet. But the boys need many more calories, and therefore should have a more generous allowance of highly concentrated foods which supply necessary fuel with a minimum tax on the digestive system.

They should have cereals in generous-size portions—and it's advisable to choose part of the cereals from those retaining the bran and the germ. And they'll welcome nourishing desserts, such as custard, tapioca, bread and cornstarch puddings.

Girls Warned Against Reducing

Girls, on the other hand, may become fussy and try to cut down radically on the fuel foods, with the foolish idea of keeping fashionably thin. This must not be permitted, because it may result in under-nutrition, which opens the way to fatigue and nervousness, and may lead to serious disease.

In addition to wholesome, nourishing food, 'teen age boys and girls should have plenty of rest, sunshine and healthful outdoor exercise. And they also deserve the sympathy and deep understanding of their parents.

Favorite Recipe of the Week—

Buttermilk Flakes Waffles

1 cup sifted flour
¾ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup Grape-Nuts Flakes
2 egg yolks, well beaten
1¼ cups buttermilk or sour milk
4 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Sift flour once, measure, add soda, and salt, and sift again. Add Flakes and mix well. Combine egg yolks, milk, and butter; add to flour mixture, beating only until smooth. Fold in egg whites. Bake in hot waffle iron. Serve with maple-flavored syrup. Makes four 4-section waffles.—Adv.

Fire Walkers

Fire walkers claim faith protects them from injury as they walk barefooted across a bed of hot stones or smoldering ashes, says Collier's. Others claim fire walking is a trick the fanatics are able to stage because they use a fuel that is a bad conductor of heat, because they walk so rapidly that the contact is too brief to cause a burn and lastly, because they are able to induce some kind of anesthesia.

Lovely Waist and Neckline

THE neckline is a very important detail in making your dress becoming. Thus No. 1719, designed for large figures, has a plain, deep v-neckline which is especially slenderizing. Darts at the waistline tend to make you look inches slimmer. This is a particularly comfortable dress to work in, with its deep armholes, slashed sleeves, and easy waist. It's easy to put on and to iron, too, thanks to the button-front. A diagram design, it may be all finished in a few hours. Calico, gingham, percale or seersucker are nice for this.

For slender, youthful figures, the heart-shaped, frill-trimmed neckline of No. 1726 is perfectly charming and as flattering as can be! The pointed basque bodice diminishes your waistline to practically nothing, and the wide-shouldered sleeves and flaring skirt accent the slender youth of the silhouette. Make this pretty dress of silk crepe, taffeta or prints, and see if it doesn't win you many compliments!

The Patterns.

No. 1719 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4⅝ yards of 35-inch material; 4½ yards of braid.

No. 1726 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 takes 4¼ yards of 39-inch material; 1½ yards of pleating or ruffling.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1324, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

QUICK QUOTES

CURE FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

"THE only way to restore prosperity in the United States is to cure as far as possible the evil of unemployment. This can only be done by speeding up private agriculture, commerce and industry to employ more people. Existing industry must be encouraged to expand. Individuals must be encouraged to spend their own time and their own money in developing new enterprises and new products."—U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft.

HOW TO SEW

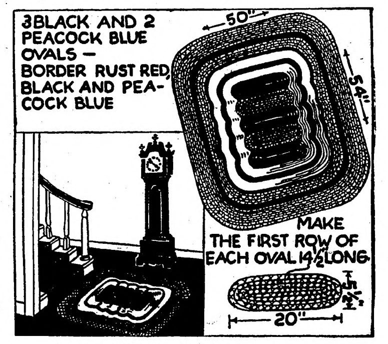
by Ruth Wyeth Spears



3 BLACK AND 2 PEACOCK BLUE OVALS — BORDER RUST RED, BLACK AND PEACOCK BLUE 50"
54"
MAKE THE FIRST ROW OF EACH OVAL 14½" LONG 20"

Grandmother Surprised Everyone.

YES, a certain grandmother surprised everybody—even herself. She had always enjoyed making hit and miss rag rugs in cheery colors. Then one day her favorite grandson brought home the girl he was going to marry. She was a bright young thing, and chattered away about color schemes for her new home.

The living room and hall were to be peacock blue and rust with touches of black. "Well, peacock is just a greenish blue," thought Grandmother, "and rust is a brownish red." So she got out her dye pot and her best wool rags, and she mixed and she dipped and dipped again. Then, instead of sewing her braided rags into one big oval, she made five ovals of the size shown here—3 black and 2 blue. She sewed these together, then around them came 4 rows of rust; 2 rows of black next; then 4 of rust; 1 of black; 4 blue; 2 black; then 8 rows of blue around the outside.

When the wedding day arrived this gift was a great surprise; even Grandmother was amazed at how handsome it looked at the foot of the stairs in the new house.

Women everywhere are using their leisure to make their homes more attractive, with slipcovers; curtains; bedspreads and lampshades. They are again taking up embroidery and handwork so that they may beautify their homes and there is a revival of interest in old time hand crafts.

Mrs. Spears' Book 1, SEWING for the Home Decorator, and No. 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, clearly chart the way for you. If the old craft of rag rug making is your new hobby, you may have free Mrs. Spears' leaflet on rag rugs with your order for both books at 25 cents each. Address, Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Life Is a Mission

Every other definition of life is false, and leads all who accept it astray. Religion, science, philosophy, though still at variance upon many points, all agree in this, that every existence is an aim.—Mazzini.

TIPS to Gardeners

Care in Transplanting

TRANSPLANTING is an important activity in almost every garden, but a gardener will save time and possible disappointment if he knows what should and what should not be transplanted.

The following should not be moved: Celosia, didiscus (blue lace flower), four o'clock, hunnemania, and perennial sweet pea. Because of their peculiar root growth, these flowers are damaged, sometimes even killed, when transplanted.

Flowers which may be transplanted with little fear of damage, as long as the moving is done properly, include ageratum, alyssum, snapdragon, aster, calendula, marigold, pansy, petunia, pinks, salvia, scabiosa, verbena, Canterbury bells, columbine, hollyhock, pyrethrum and viola.

There is a third division of flowers, according to Harry A. Joy, flower expert of the Ferry Seed Breeding Station, whose lives will not be endangered by transplanting, but whose growth will be stunted. Both plant and blossoms will be smaller but earlier. Larkspur, zinnia, phlox, nasturtium and bachelor button are in this group.

ARE THE REAL FRIENDS of TEMPERANCE?

- Today, as always, these are the real friends of true temperance because they urge a more general use of beer—the proved beverage of Moderation:
    - The farmer who grows the grains used in beer.
    - The brewer who produces wholesome, satisfying beer.
    - The retailer who distributes beer to his community.
    - The legislator who makes it lawful to enjoy beer because he knows it encourages Moderation!
- These men understand the needs of their fellow men, and they believe that "true temperance is attained only through Moderation—the secret of happy, well-balanced living".
- If you practice Moderation you are truly temperate! And if you believe that democracy is designed "to promote the greatest good for the greatest number" you are doing a service to your community when you promote Moderation.

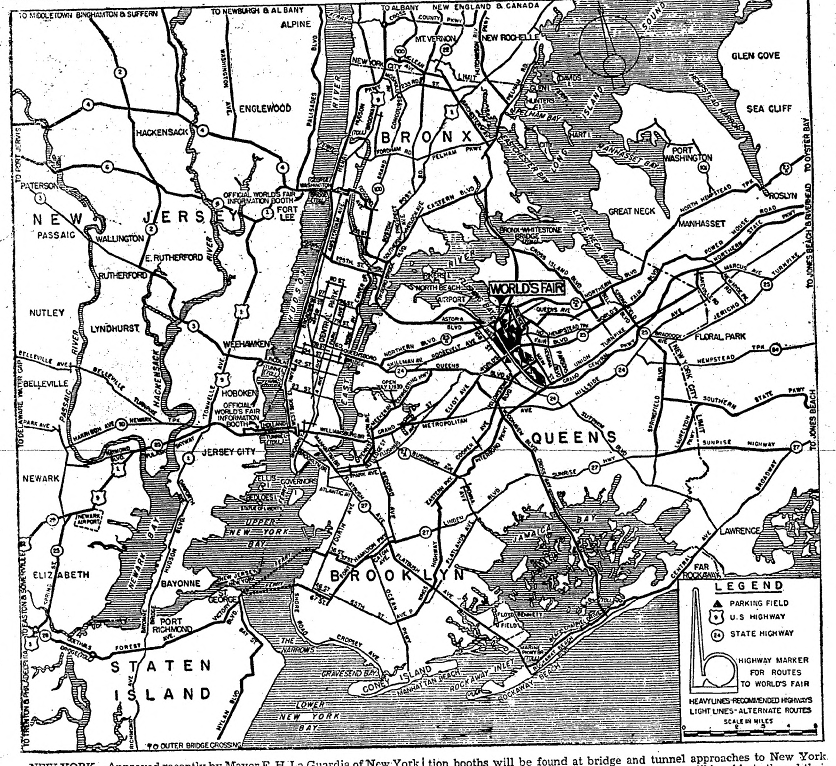
Official Routes to The New York World's Fair



NEW YORK—Approved recently by Mayor F. H. La Guardia of New York City and Grover A. Whalen, President of the New York World's Fair, this map is designed to be of especial use to those motoring to the exposition. A comprehensive system of handling Fair traffic has been developed. Information booths will be found at bridge and tunnel approaches to New York. According to Mr. Whalen, out-of-town motorists will be able to thread their way through the city to the Fair grounds "as easily as they now go from home down to Main Street."

Peterson Chosen Scoutmaster for Model Camp at Co. Fair

A Boy Scout encampment, setting up a model camp and display an exhibit of Scout handicrafts which will be operated by Honor Boy Scouts from the North Star District including all troops in Marshall County at the Fair grounds in Warren during the Marshall County Fair which will be held July 3, 4, and 5.

Regulations for the encampment were sent to Boy Scout officials in Lancaster, Stephen, Argyle, Alvarado, Humboldt, Bronson, Holt and Warren last week by Peter S. DeJong, Scout Executive of the Lake Aggassiz council, Grand Forks.

The purpose of the model camp and exhibit is to acquaint the people of the Northwest with the program of Scouting which in itself is building better citizens for America.

Hartley Peterson will serve as Scoutmaster of the model troop to which each troop in the various towns will be entitled to to send three scouts.

Selection of the boys will be based on rank, previous camping experience, Scoutlike conduct and attitude, health, ability to cook, dicipline and whatever additional standards each troop might set up.

Emery A. Johnson, scoutmaster of Warren troop and council commissioner, will be in charge of arrangements.

Frequently automobiles coming out of a private road or driveway feel that they have undisputed right to enter the main thoroughfare. recently, this question was sent to me:

Does a driver of a car entering a street or road from a private road or driveway have the right of way over all vehicles approachimg on the street or road?

No - decidedly not,

The driver should stop to see that the street or road is reasonably clear. The driver of a vehicle on the street or road may not know there is a private road or driveway tnere. You are not in the line of traffic when you come on to a road from a private driveway, so until you are sure you can get into the traffic without an accident, wait- be alert-be careful.

IT'S SMART TO DRIVE CAREFULLY.

Farm Plan Closes May 1

May 1 will be the final date for farmers in Marshall County to express their intentions to participate in the 1939 AAA program, according to an announcement made today by Mr. Howard, chairman of the county AAA committee.

Mr. Howard urged all farmers who expect to take part in the farm program to see a county or community committeeman before May 1. If farm plans are not completed and signed by that date, farmers cannot request inspection to determine performance. Letters from landlords signifying an intention to coopperate must be in the county office by that date. It will be impossible to obtain payment on farms for which no performance inspection is requested by May 1.

Mr. Howard stated that 3271 farmers in Marshall County had signed to take part in the AAA.

Information received from Charles W. Stickney, state AAA chairman, revealed that through March March 31, 150,077 Minnesota farmers had signed plans. This number represents 67 per cent of the farmers in the state. Stickney commented that the present rush of farm owners and operators to sign their plans indicates that by the final date the number of participators will be considerable higher than in previous years.

In the 10 states of the North Central region through March 31 figures show that 1,395,126 farmers had indicated their intention to cooperate in the 1939 farm program. This number is about 250,000 larger than took part in 1938, and represents 62.7 per cent of all farmers in the area.

The farm plan is a form showing the acreage allotments, the soil-building goal, and maximum payments for the farm. It also has a map to be used by the producer in working out the best farming system for his land in 1939.

Boy Scouts Have Court of Honor

The local Boy Scout troop No. 112 took part in the Court of Honor at Thief River Falls on Tuesday evening. A very inspiring program was given. Mr. Selke of Grand Forks was the main speaker.

Several Holt boys were awarded Merit Badges. The troop now has seven Life Scouts, three Star Scouts, one First Class Scout, two Second Class Scouts and five Tenderfoot Scouts. The Life Scouts are now working hard to attain the rank of Eagle Scouts which is the highest rank a scout can have. It is quite unusual for any troop to have as many as seven coming up for this rank.

Bible Camp Assn. Had Meeting

At a recent meeting of the Lake of the Woods Bible Camp Association held at Roseau, plans were completed for the annual Camp week which will be held this year from June 19th to 25th.

The Bible Camp is located on the banks of Rainy River, halfway between Baudette and Wheeler's Point at the point where the Wabanica Creek flows into the river.

Rev. R. M. Fjelstad of Thief Siver Falls, Camp Dean, reported that the camp faculty had been completed. The faculty will include: Dr. Carl L. Weswig of Luther Theological Seminary, St. Paul: Prof. Morten Nillson of Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, Miss Frida Nilson of Concoraia College, Moorhead.

Due to the continual growth in attendance of the young people at the camp, it was decided to build another camp cabin. This will assure accomodations for the expected increase in enrollment as reported by the pastors of the Association.

A brief survey of the financial status of Assn. was presented by the treasurer, O. M. Wammer of Badger. The pastors present reported what financial assistance had come in or what might be expected from their respective Luther Leagues and other friends of the Camp.

The Bible Camp is the property of the Luther Leagues of the Thief River Falls and Crookston Circuits of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America. This property consists of a beautiful 75 acre virgin wooded tract complete with new buildings and equipment for camp use.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Olson and Rev. and Mrs. Hanson drove to Baudette on Thursday and returned home on Friday. Rev. Hanson delivered an address at the Father-Sons banquet in the 1st Lutheran Church. Mr. and Mrs. Olson were guests of their son and daughter-in-iaw Mr. and Mrs. Ted Olson and family at Spooner. Rev. and Mrs. Hanson were guests of Rev. and Mrs. H. O. Aasen.

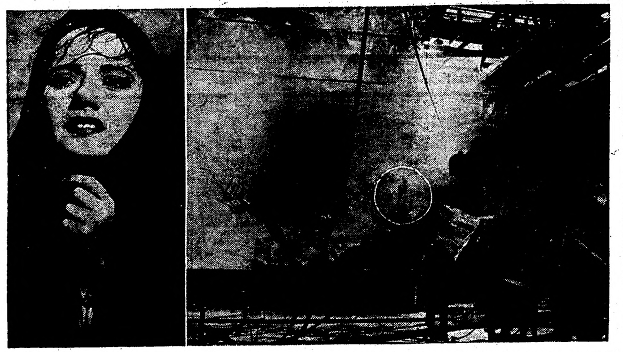
Nature Made to Order by Movieland Technicians



Nature is merely a pawn in the hands of Hollywood movie technicians who make it rain or snow, and even make the grass grow—all at a moment's notice. A downpour was one of the desired effects in a production starring Merle Oberon, left, but rainfalls are somewhat unruly. So the whole company moved indoors. There in the studio a complete countryside was rebuilt and overhead sprinklers were installed. Wind machines scattered the water and gave the "even downpour" effect. Cameramen had to don oilskins. Miss Oberon (pictured in circle) is braving an indoor Hollywood "rainstorm," manufactured to order.

ELECTRIC FENCES NOT ALWAYS SAFE

Improperly Charged Wiring May Kill Live Stock.

By David S. Weaver, Agricultural Engineer, North Carolina State College.—WNU Service.

Caution should be exercised in the use of the electric fence, which is becoming so popular with farmers in pasturing live stock. While electric fences have met with general acceptance because the cost of the fence and the cost of operation is materially less than the standard type of stock fencing, all electric fencing does not have a clear slate of safety.

Reports by investigators have shown several instances where stock has been killed by wiring that was improperly charged. In some instances it was homemade contraptions which were rigged up by persons who did not know what degree of shock the apparatus was delivering and did not understand how much shock was necessary or safe for live stock.

A word of caution to those who might be contemplating installing an electric fence would be to secure the equipment from those sources which have had extensive experience and have the equipment on a safe basis. The buyer also should follow throughout the directions by the manufacturer for safely installing the controller.

No person should attempt to install a homemade apparatus without first consulting some person competent of giving information as to safety precautions to be followed. The proper grounding of the wiring system and electrical equipment around farm buildings is also important, as a slight shock from improperly grounded systems has been known to kill cattle.

Eggs With Thick Whites Are in Greater Demand

Eggs with a large quantity of thick albumen, or thick white, are regarded as of excellent quality. Consumers also want eggs with a large percentage of thick white because it stands up well around the yolk when broken. Such eggs are particularly in demand for poaching.

Some fresh eggs have more thick white than others, and poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture have been experimenting to find out why.

They find that a hen's ability to lay eggs with thick white is an inherited characteristic. They find that some hens lay eggs with a greater percentage of thick white than other hens of the same breed and in the same flock.

The season has a slight effect on the percentage of thick white, but other factors, such as feed, periods of light and heavy production, and egg weight do not affect the percentage.

At the national agricultural research center, Beltsville, Md., Dr. C. W. Knox, geneticist of the bureau of animal industry, has bred two flocks which further prove that the thick white characteristic is inherited. One flock lays eggs that average 68 per cent thick white. Eggs from the other flock average only 45 per cent thick white. The average fresh egg has from 50 to 52 per cent thick white.

Tree Booster

Young trees never stop growing when they are moved from the nursery to permanent locations, if a bucketful of moistened peat moss is placed in each hole at planting time, reveals the Country Home Magazine. Dr. H. B. Tukey, of the New York Experiment station, found that apple trees which were set in peat moss produced six times as much top growth the first season as those that were planted without it. By the end of the fourth season, the peat-fed trees looked like five-year-olds. A 150-pound bale of peat moss, costing around $3, is enough for 50 trees.

Outwitting the Weather

Some 6,000 cotton growers now get perfect stands of their crops, irrespective of soil and weather conditions, by using variable-depth planters, says the Country Home Magazine. They place the successive seeds at different depths that vary from a fraction of an inch to two inches. If the weather is dry, the deeper seed will come up; if it is wet, the shallow ones come up. If conditions are so favorable that all the seeds germinate, the least thrifty are hoed out at chopping time.

White Tomato

California state department of agriculture announces a new white tomato, developed by Dr. Jonas Clark, a farmer and physician of Gilroy. The doctor describes the new species as "absolutely white, about the same size as the ordinary tomato, but much sweeter." It was developed after eight years of experimentation, states the Indiana Farmer's Guide. The Mexican workers on the farm have christened it "El Tomato Blanco."

Relief

His 1939 relief vote may be a record on which many a senator and congressman will rise or fall next election. Reason: Congress is determined to outlaw the present system, substituting something closer akin to state administration in which states will also pay a bigger share. If the plan succeeds, fine; if not, disgruntled relief clients could make hostile constituents at election time.

Major idea is that of South Carolina's Sen. James F. Byrnes, who boasts coalition support for a measure to place WPA, PWA, CCC and NYA into a new public works agency, provide old age assistance payments, liberalize unemployment compensation and increase aid to unemployables. Federal supervision would continue unabated, though bi-partisan administration would attempt to quiet cries of politics-in-relief.

SENATOR McNARY
He also neglected financing.

Many Republicans support the Byrnes bill, but the solid congressional economy front may break down under relief debate. Going whole hog against federal supervision, Oregon's Sen. Charles L. McNary (G. O. P. minority leader) wants WPA eliminated entirely because of serious "structural defects" which inevitably produce periodic "scandals." His program: (1) Return relief administration to the states; (2) create bi-partisan federal boards to allocate funds; (3) create bi-partisan state boards to disburse relief money.

Though Senator Byrnes scoffed mainly at the impossibility of "bi-partisan" boards, both proposals had one other major defect, namely, financing. Senator McNary would compel states to contribute not less than 25 per cent of funds spent within their borders. Senator Byrnes would have states pay one-third. The stumbling block is that the U. S. will not cut its tax levies, yet without such cuts the 48 states cannot raise their levies to reassume relief costs which the government began easing from their shoulders in 1933. The hoped-for solution, already under discussion, calls for U. S. allocations based 50 per cent on population and 50 per cent on unemployment, proportionately higher grants going to "sub-marginal" states with less than average per capita income.

Science

In 137 B. C., two Chinese astronomers who reported an eclipse were beheaded for being drunk. Four hundred years earlier an eclipse scared the Medes and Persians into ending their five-year war. No such consequences resulted one mid-April day when the sun, moon and earth staged a similar phenomenon. Passing in front of the sun as astronomists predicted, the moon eclipsed from one-third to three-fourths of the fiery ball in a show visible throughout most of the U. S., much of Europe and eastern Russia.

Asia

Discouraging to a disguised Japanese visitor would be modern Chunking, new headquarters for westward-driven China where newsmen have been shown for the first time how crafty Gen. Chiang Kai-shek is sinking the industrial roots of a new nation, while Nippon wrestles with war-wrecked coastal districts.

Projects include a $2,500,000 iron and steel works which far-sighted Chiang began building early last fall, where a 30-ton blast furnace, a 10-ton open hearth and a 10-inch rolling mill will soon be in operation. Nearby, under American trained directors, are two Chinese-built electric furnaces making ship anchors, rails and smaller steel items.

Another important project is a vegetable oil cracking plant where experimental production will soon start on artificial gasoline refined from oil comparable to high grade motor oils. At other sites in Chungking's vast new industrial district reporters saw silk, cotton and electric plants, while several thousand workmen were laboring over new factories.

Lest Japan push westward to capture Chungking, Chinese are expanding their industrial life to other places like Szechuan, Yunnan and Kweichow.

Geneva's international labor office reports U. S. unemployment (estimated at 11,523,000) led all other nations in 1939's first three months. Thirteen nations reported increased unemployment in this period

C. Houston Goudiss Explodes Some False Notions About Food; Warns Homemakers Against Fallacies and Superstitions

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

IT HAS been well said that a little knowledge is a dangerous thing. This is particularly true of dietary facts, for half-truths can be more misleading than lies.

There should be no place for half-truths, misinformation or superstition in a matter so vital as the choice of food. Yet judging from the letters that come to my desk, thousands of homemakers are being influenced, not by scientific knowledge, but by "old wives tales," and a multitude of fads and fancies which there is not a shred of scientific evidence to support.

Some food fallacies are harmless. Others may be detrimental to health. For they result in an unbalanced diet that deprives the body of substances needed to maintain physical efficiency at the highest possible level.

Misinformation About Meat

Many common and persistent fallacies concern the eating of meat. It is wrongly charged that light meats are more wholesome than dark meats . . . that veal is not completely digested . . . that meat is a contributing cause to disease, and many other equally foolish notions. All these misconceptions are in a class with the absurd ideas that eating turnips will make you brave, that lettuce is a cure for insomnia, or fish a food for the brain.
